MAP SHOWDOWN ON CARROZZO'S LABOR CZARDOM

Aldermen to Fight Strike Demands.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

City hall leaders, headed by Mayor Kelly, drew up plans last night for a showdown struggle with Michael Carrozzo, boss of the street laborers' union and self-appointed czar of paving and street construction activities in Chicago for many years.

Ald. J. M. Arvey.

The first phase of the fight was the successful blitzkrieg against Carrozzo and an alleged paving company plan to get high prices for a huge asphalt order from the city. This battle was waged and won last week by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works.

The city hall leaders who drew plans to back Hewitt were headed by Mayor Kelly and the powerful finance committee of the city council.

The mayor, who is in Miami Beach, Fla., was asked over the telephone whether he approved of the city's fight against Carrozzo. "I have all the confidence in the world in Commissioner Hewitt and whatever he does will have my support," the mayor said.

First Bids Rejected.

Hewitt had opened the fight when he appeared before the finance committee last week to get authority to toss out bids for 100,000 tons of asphalt, the largest order ever placed by the city. Hewitt told the aldermen he could save money for the city by calling for new bids.

Then, only two hours after the council had authorized him to take new bids, the 60 Carrozzo bossed workers in the city's three asphalt plants went out on an unexplained strike. No demands were made on the city.

The official head of this union is Samuel Kart, attorney for Carrozzo, and an incorporator and first president of the Illinois Asphalt company, which had been low in the bids which Hewitt discarded. Kart declares he has no connection with this company now.

Fear Strike of 2,183 More.

Yesterday officials in the bureau of streets reported a warning from the union that 2,183 city street cleaners and refuse collectors, also bossed by Carrozzo, will be ordered out this week unless the asphalt strike is promptly settled.

Kart, who speaks for Carrozzo, denied that such a warning was issued with his approval. He intimated that striking asphalt workers will go before the city council with demands for pay increases. He charged that the city pays $1 a day under union scale.

Members of the council's finance committee said last night that Carrozzo and Kart will get a fight when they come in with demands while a strike is in progress.

Arvey Promises Battle.

"I'm going to stand by Hewitt," said Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee. "He obtained council approval for action to get lower prices on paving, and I certainly favor that.

"As for pay increases, this union will never get it, as far as I'm concerned, by attempting force. Carrozzo was told fairly, when the budget was made up, that we have no money for increases. We're paying a scale comparable to that paid to workers in private industry. That's our policy with union labor."

Other aldermen echoed Ald. Arvey's views. Among them were Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], vice chairman of the committee; Thomas P. Keane [31st], Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d], William V. Pacelli [20th], and Joseph C. Ross [40th], all veterans on the finance committee.

NEW BOMBER PLANE RELEASED FOR SALE TO BRITAIN, FRANCE

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—Great Britain and France were given official permission by the war department today to place orders for a new model Douglas attack bomber believed to be the world's fastest of the type. It was the fifth type of army plane released for sale abroad under the administration's relaxed export policy.

A two motor craft, the attack bomber is credited with a top speed approaching 400 miles an hour, rivaling that of normally faster pursuit planes.

Designed largely to harass enemy troops and nearby military objectives, it bristles with machine guns and can carry a heavy bomb load and chemicals.

Other planes released for sale abroad, under conditions by which the air corps expects to obtain more advanced models at a later date, were all fighters, built primarily to cope with enemy bombers. They were the Bell P-39, the Curtiss P-40, and the Lockheed two motor P-38, release of which also automatically released a Lockheed-Hudson two motor light bomber.

Aviation quarters understood that still other army and navy planes would be made available shortly for sale abroad minus equipment which the war department considers secret.

For City Opera: New Leaders, New Art Goals

BY MARCIA WINN.

Plans for making Chicago the operatic capital of the world were completed yesterday with the final reorganization of Chicago's opera company.

Chicago opera emerged with a new chairman, a new president and a new name. The name is the Chicago Opera company, the chairman is Chauncey McCormick, with Mayor Kelly as honorary chairman, and the president is Walter R. Kirk.

In addition, new members were added to the board of governors and an operatic advisory board setup of Mrs. Charles Swift, John Alden Carpenter, composer, and Frederick Stock, noted conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Mrs. Carpenter was renamed as chairman of the women's board.

Promise Superior Performances.

With the completion of the board and officers, the opera company now will begin to sign artists' contracts for the 1940 season. The entire company will be one of such outstanding quality that, in the words of one director, "all opera performances will be far above that of anything given in this country for a long time."

Mr. McCormick, who heads the new board, is a newcomer to the opera house. In an official capacity, that is. He long has been a noted patron of the arts and now is vice president of the Art Institute of Chicago. As such, he succeeded single handed in bringing the Italian art masterpieces to Chicago recently.

He also is president now of the American Commission for Polish Relief, which is directing relief operations in Nazi-overrun Poland, for many years has headed the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society and was one of the original eight founders and trustees of A Century of Progress.

Confident of Future.

"I'm a little appalled at my election," he said yesterday, of his new post, "but I do think that Chicago has had the best opera in the world and there's no reason why it shouldn't again."

Mr. Kirk, a retired manufacturer who is the new president, is not new to opera. He formerly served as a trustee. Mrs. Kirk was elected head of the box committee.

"I think it is a great honor and a civic duty," Mr. Kirk said, when notified of his election. "It's a little early to make any statement of plans."

Jason F. Whitney was elected vice president of the company, Abner Stilwell treasurer, and William D. Saltiel secretary. Henry Weber is artistic director and James C. Thompson business manager.

Directors Are Named.

An important factor in the reorganized Chicago opera, according to Director Weber, is the new chorus which he has been training since March 1, and which will continue to rehearse 12 hours a week for the next eight months.

"All the chorus members are graduate music students and able to sing well in four languages," said Mr. Weber. "It is a new chorus, one of the things that the opera has long needed."

FRANCE DEBATES ON QUESTION: IS DANCING DURING WAR WRONG?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 13.—Is dancing immoral in war time? This question is the subject of a lively debate in Paris just now between moralists and the devotees of the tango and swing.

The moralists say that it is unbecoming for civilians to amuse themselves while the nation's fighting men are out on the Maginot line. They also assert that it has a bad effect on the soldiers for them to think that their wives and sweethearts may be fox trotting with other men while they are lying in muddy trenches or doing risky outpost duty in No Man's land.

The supporters of dancing argue that closing of the dance halls would be particularly unpopular among the soldiers, who want to enjoy themselves when they come to Paris on leave. It is therefore suggested that the problem could be solved by barring all male civilians from dancing places so that women and soldiers could dance to their hearts' content.

Bombs Strike Boats as They Cruise on Surface.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Maps on pages 2 and 5.)

BERLIN, April 13.—Germany today proclaimed that its positions along the Norwegian coast were virtually impregnable.

It also hailed the sinking of two British submarines by German bombers, the steady flow of troops from Germany to Norway, despite the reputed new British mine field, and smashing victories scored in the air against British bombers.

The two British submarines were sunk by direct bomb hits from planes which surprised the English craft cruising on the surface of the North sea, the Germans said. Nazis cited these two losses as further indication that naval operations in Scandinavian waters are costing Great Britain heavily.

Land Heavy Artillery.

Every day that elapses, the Germans declared, lessens British chances of even gaining minor successes in Norway, with German troops and material, including heavy artillery, continuing to pour into that country.

German airplanes continued to rush northward in big numbers, the Germans said, while German antiaircraft reinforcements attempted to keep abreast on the ground. The German high command declared that "further strong contingents were landed in Oslo and that German artillery arrived at Trondheim to reinforce the seized Norwegian shore batteries."

British attempts to raid the German strong points along the Norwegian coast were repelled with heavy losses, according to the Germans, who reported the shooting down yesterday of 12 British planes. [Eleven losses are admitted by the British.]

Germans Admit 5 Losses.

Germans gave their losses as five Messerschmitt pursuit ships. The British suffered the heaviest losses at Bergen, where Messerschmitt fighters shot down nine British planes, while a tenth was brought down by newly installed German antiaircraft guns.

The British planes downed at Bergen were of the latest design, manufactured by Lockheed-Hudson, Hampden-Hereford, and Vickers-Wellington. Two other British planes, the Germans assert, were shot down over Stavanger and Narvik. The Germans claimed they suffered no losses at Stavanger.

The British heavy cruiser York, reported by neutral sources to have sunk, is, according to the Germans, the same vessel which was attacked by German bombers two days ago. At the time, the German military high command reported that a British heavy cruiser was rendered motionless after being hit by two aerial bombs.

First Such Incident.

This is the first time in war history that a large war vessel—the York displaces 8,250 tons—was sunk by aerial bombs. Even if other British warships, including Britain's most powerful battleships, were only damaged, Germans contended that the controversy of "battleships versus bombers" had been decided in favor of the bombers.

The German high command tonight announced that the German navy had taken over and manned with German crews a number of Norwegian war vessels. It also was claimed that a great part of the Norwegian railway line connecting the port of Narvik with the Swedish frontier now is in German hands.

The Germans, it was disclosed, have protested to Sweden against reports emanating from that country which credit the British and Norwegians with military successes. The Nazis, tho pleased with the attitude of the Swedish government, expressed their dissatisfaction with the Swedish press and public opinion.

The presence in Sweden of the president of the Norwegian parliament, C. J. Hambro, and other refugees from Norway, also has met with Nazi disfavor. The Nazis feel confident that they now can compel small countries like Sweden and others to obey immediately.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 13 (AP).—Germany today landed new expeditionary troops in southeast Norway and began a brisk drive northward toward Oslo in fierce fighting with Norwegian defenders.

The newly landed Germans, commandeering buses and motor cars, smashed their way thru a hastily formed defense ring which the Norwegians had built around Oslo to prevent the Germans from augmenting the forces which captured the capital Tuesday.

Norse Resistance Brief.

Overcoming brief Norwegian resistance, German troops have occupied at least three more towns on the southeastern tip of Norway. Reports from Norwegian troops and refugees reaching Sweden said the town of Fredrikstad had surrendered after short fighting; that Sarpsborg was in German hands and that the town of Halden [Frederikshald] on the Swedish border had been surrendered by the Norwegians.

About 100 Germans were reported to have arrived in Halden in automobiles and buses. Before their arrival, the Norwegians, who said there was no use to waste lives in attempting to hold the line from Sarpsborg to Fredrikstad and Halden, crossed the border with supplies. They were disarmed by Swedish authorities.

The Germans smashed the Norwegian ring between Holen, 25 miles south of Oslo, and Moss, 10 miles farther south, on the east side of Oslo fjord.

Norse Dynamite Bridge.

The Norwegians had built their defense lines in a semicircle from Moss to Holen, east to Mysen, northward to the Romerike region, 40 miles north of Oslo, and then south to Tyrifjord and Vikesund, about 30 miles west of Oslo.

Tonight the Germans were said to hold all the area within this zone. The Norwegians, in addition to trying to prevent the new German forces from getting in also were trying to keep the Germans already there from thrusting outward.

The newest German troops were said to have landed at Skieberg, at the head of the Skagerrak near the Swedish frontier.

Sharp Fighting Reported.

Farther north sharp street fighting was reported at Sarpsborg, about 20 miles away, where Norwegian Nazis were reported numerous.

The town of Kongsvinger, 50 miles northeast of Oslo, near the Swedish frontier, still was held by the Norwegians, altho all civilians had left in anticipation of a German attack.

The newspaper Lens Tidningen at Ostersund, in central Sweden opposite the important Norwegian port of Trondheim, which the Germans hold, said today that a telephoned dispatch from Stjordal, 15 miles east of Trondheim, disclosed that 26 German bombing planes were stationed there. In addition, 22 more were reported on their way there.

Tells of Trondheim Capture.

This newspaper also brought to light a story which may solve the mystery of how the Germans on Tuesday were able to pass so easily by the fortress Agdenes which guards the outer entrance to the narrow Trondheim fjord.

This report was that the fortress had stopped the German fleet and was holding them off until it had received an order from Maj. Vikdun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi party, ostensibly issued in the name of the Norwegian government and ordering the defenders not to resist.

Later, according to this story, a contradictory order came from the regular government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, but it then was too late. The German ships were inside the fortress.

Smashes Battery in Harbor; Claims Soldiers Flee.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, April 14, Sunday (AP). —The admiralty early today announced British laid mine fields in the Kattegat had been extended southward to cut off German sea access to Copenhagen except thru Swedish territorial waters. British mine layers, either submarines or surface craft, penetated the Baltic to lay the new mine barrage, the admiralty said.

This would mean the British vessels had slipped either thru the narrow strait separating Denmark from Sweden or thru the wider channel west of Zealand, Denmark's main eastern island. The admiralty declared Swedish territorial waters would be left free of mines.

LONDON, April 13 (AP).—Great Britain threw the overwhelming might of her navy today against the German captors of Norway's ore port of Narvik and announced she had sent seven German destroyers to the bottom of the rocky bay and narrow inlet there. It was the second sea assault on that focal point of northern war within four days.

Vice Admiral Whitworth, British Commander.

Even while King George VI. and the British government were assuring King Haakon of Norway and his people that British and French help against the German invaders was coming and coming soon a powerful flotilla, led by the great battleship Warspite, rebuilt veteran of Jutland, was moving up narrow Narvik fjord, smashing a German coastal battery and then sinking the seven German destroyers before and behind the town, killing perhaps 1,000 German seamen.

Report Troop Landings.

It did not say whether any British troops were landed, altho at least one Stockholm radio report stated this to be a fact.

Fleeing men, "possibly German soldiers," were seen running over the hills behind Narvik.

"Further details are awaited," said the admiralty. "Operations are still proceeding.

"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel, but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men," said the announcement.

Three of the attacking destroyers were damaged but not seriously, and "British loss of life is believed to have been very small," it continued.

First Foray Recalled.

This daring attack was a sequel to Wednesday's dawn foray into Narvik fjord when the British reported the sinking of one of six German destroyers and the setting afire of three others. In that battle the British lost two of five attacking destroyers, the Hunter and the Hardy, and two others were damaged. [The Germans say six British destroyers have been sunk at Narvik.]

In addition to the German warships, the British reported seven German supply and ammunition ships were sunk in Wednesday's action, described by First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill as worthy of any in the proud records of the British navy.

[With the sinking of the seven destroyers yesterday nearly one-third of this type of German warships completed or under construction had plunged to the bottom within a week. Jane's Fighting Ships of 1939 listed 30 German destroyers completed or

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—Great Britain and France were given official permission by the war department today to place orders for a new model Douglas attack bomber believed to be the world's fastest of the type. It was the fifth type of army plane released for sale abroad under the administration's relaxed export policy.

A two motor craft, the attack bomber is credited with a top speed approaching 400 miles an hour, rivaling that of normally faster pursuit planes.

Designed largely to harass enemy troops and nearby military objectives, it bristles with machine guns and can carry a heavy bomb load and chemicals.

Other planes released for sale abroad, under conditions by which the air corps expects to obtain more advanced models at a later date, were all fighters, built primarily to cope with enemy bombers. They were the Bell P-39, the Curtiss P-40, and the Lockheed two motor P-38, release of which also automatically released a Lockheed-Hudson two motor light bomber.

Aviation quarters understood that still other army and navy planes would be made available shortly for sale abroad minus equipment which the war department considers secret.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Plans for making Chicago the operatic capital of the world were completed yesterday with the final reorganization of Chicago's opera company.

Chicago opera emerged with a new chairman, a new president and a new name. The name is the Chicago Opera company, the chairman is Chauncey McCormick, with Mayor Kelly as honorary chairman, and the president is Walter R. Kirk.

In addition, new members were added to the board of governors and an operatic advisory board setup of Mrs. Charles Swift, John Alden Carpenter, composer, and Frederick Stock, noted conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Mrs. Carpenter was renamed as chairman of the women's board.

Promise Superior Performances.

With the completion of the board and officers, the opera company now will begin to sign artists' contracts for the 1940 season. The entire company will be one of such outstanding quality that, in the words of one director, "all opera performances will be far above that of anything given in this country for a long time."

Mr. McCormick, who heads the new board, is a newcomer to the opera house. In an official capacity, that is. He long has been a noted patron of the arts and now is vice president of the Art institute of Chicago. As such, he succeeded single handed in bringing the Italian art masterpieces to Chicago recently.

He also is president now of the American Commission for Polish Relief, which is directing relief operations in Nazi-overrun Poland, for many years has headed the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society and was one of the original eight founders and trustees of A Century of Progress.

Confident of Future.

"I'm a little appalled at my election," he said yesterday, of his new post, "but I do think that Chicago has had the best opera in the world and there's no reason why it shouldn't again."

Mr. Kirk, a retired manufacturer who is the new president, is not new to opera. He formerly served as a trustee. Mrs. Kirk was elected head of the box committee.

"I think it is a great honor and a civic duty," Mr. Kirk said, when notified of his election. "It's a little early to make any statement of plans."

Jason F. Whitney was elected vice president of the company, Abner Stilwell treasurer, and William D. Saltiel secretary. Henry Weber is artistic director and James C. Thompson business manager.

Directors Are Named.

An important factor in the reorganized Chicago opera, according to Director Weber, is the new chorus which he has been training since March 1, and which will continue to rehearse 12 hours a week for the next eight months.

"All the chorus members are graduate music students and able to sing well in four languages," said Mr. Weber. "It is a new chorus, one of the things that the opera has long needed."

FRANCE DEBATES ON QUESTION: IS DANCING DURING WAR WRONG?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 13.—Is dancing immoral in war time? This question is the subject of a lively debate in Paris just now between moralists and the devotees of the tango and swing.

The moralists say that it is unbecoming for civilians to amuse themselves while the nation's fighting men are out on the Maginot line. They also assert that it has a bad effect on the soldiers for them to think that their wives and sweethearts may be fox trotting with other men while they are lying in muddy trenches or doing risky outpost duty in No Man's land.

The supporters of dancing argue that closing of the dance halls would be particularly unpopular among the soldiers, who want to enjoy themselves when they come to Paris on leave. It is therefore suggested that the problem could be solved by barring all male civilians from dancing places so that women and soldiers could dance to their hearts' content.

Bombs Strike Boats as They Cruise on Surface.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Maps on pages 2 and 5.)

BERLIN, April 13.—Germany today proclaimed that its positions along the Norwegian coast were virtually impregnable.

It also hailed the sinking of two British submarines by German bombers, the steady flow of troops from Germany to Norway, despite the reputed new British mine field, and smashing victories scored in the air against British bombers.

The two British submarines were sunk by direct bomb hits from planes which surprised the English craft cruising on the surface of the North sea, the Germans said. Nazis cited these two losses as further indication that naval operations in Scandinavian waters are costing Great Britain heavily.

Land Heavy Artillery.

Every day that elapses, the Germans declared, lessens British chances of even gaining minor successes in Norway, with German troops and material, including heavy artillery, continuing to pour into that country.

German airplanes continued to rush northward in big numbers, the Germans said, while German antiaircraft reinforcements attempted to keep abreast on the ground. The German high command declared that "further strong contingents were landed in Oslo and that German artillery arrived at Trondheim to reinforce the seized Norwegian shore batteries."

British attempts to raid the German strong points along the Norwegian coast were repelled with heavy losses, according to the Germans, who reported the shooting down yesterday of 12 British planes. [Eleven losses are admitted by the British.]

Germans Admit 5 Losses.

Germans gave their losses as five Messerschmitt pursuit ships. The British suffered the heaviest losses at Bergen, where Messerschmitt fighters shot down nine British planes, while a tenth was brought down by newly installed German antiaircraft guns.

The British planes downed at Bergen were of the latest design, manufactured by Lockheed-Hudson, Hampden-Hereford, and Vickers-Wellington. Two other British planes, the Germans assert, were shot down over Stavanger and Narvik. The Germans claimed they suffered no losses at Stavanger.

The British heavy cruiser York, reported by neutral sources to have sunk, is, according to the Germans, the same vessel which was attacked by German bombers two days ago. At the time, the German military high command reported that a British heavy cruiser was rendered motionless after being hit by two aerial bombs.

First Such Incident.

This is the first time in war history that a large war vessel—the York displaces 8,250 tons—was sunk by aerial bombs. Even if other British warships, including Britain's most powerful battleships, were only damaged, Germans contended that the controversy of "battleships versus bombers" had been decided in favor of the bombers.

The German high command tonight announced that the German navy had taken over and manned with German crews a number of Norwegian war vessels. It also was claimed that a great part of the Norwegian railway line connecting the port of Narvik with the Swedish frontier now is in German hands.

The Germans, it was disclosed, have protested to Sweden against reports emanating from that country which credit the British and Norwegians with military successes. The Nazis, tho pleased with the attitude of the Swedish government, expressed their dissatisfaction with the Swedish press and public opinion.

The presence in Sweden of the president of the Norwegian parliament, C. J. Hambro, and other refugees from Norway, also has met with Nazi disfavor. The Nazis feel confident that they now can compel small countries like Sweden and others to obey immediately.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 13 (AP).—Germany today landed new expeditionary troops in southeast Norway and began a brisk drive northward toward Oslo in fierce fighting with Norwegian defenders.

The newly landed Germans, commandeering buses and motor cars, smashed their way thru a hastily formed defense ring which the Norwegians had built around Oslo to prevent the Germans from augmenting the forces which captured the capital Tuesday.

Norse Resistance Brief.

Overcoming brief Norwegian resistance, German troops have occupied at least three more towns on the southeastern tip of Norway. Reports from Norwegian troops and refugees reaching Sweden said the town of Fredrikstad had surrendered after short fighting; that Sarpsborg was in German hands and that the town of Halden [Frederikshald] on the Swedish border had been surrendered by the Norwegians.

About 100 Germans were reported to have arrived in Halden in automobiles and buses. Before their arrival, the Norwegians, who said there was no use to waste lives in attempting to hold the line from Sarpsborg to Fredrikstad and Halden, crossed the border with supplies. They were disarmed by Swedish authorities.

The Germans smashed the Norwegian ring between Holen, 25 miles south of Oslo, and Moss, 10 miles farther south, on the east side of Oslo fjord.

Norse Dynamite Bridge.

The Norwegians had built their defense lines in a semicircle from Moss to Holen, east to Mysen, northward to the Romerike region, 40 miles north of Oslo, and then south to Tyrifjord and Vikesund, about 30 miles west of Oslo.

Tonight the Germans were said to hold all the area within this zone. The Norwegians, in addition to trying to prevent the new German forces from getting in also were trying to keep the Germans already there from thrusting outward.

The newest German troops were said to have landed at Skieberg, at the head of the Skagerrak near the Swedish frontier.

Sharp Fighting Reported.

Farther north sharp street fighting was reported at Sarpsborg, about 20 miles away, where Norwegian Nazis were reported numerous.

The town of Kongsvinger, 50 miles northeast of Oslo, near the Swedish frontier, still was held by the Norwegians, altho all civilians had left in anticipation of a German attack.

The newspaper Lens Tidningen at Ostersund, in central Sweden opposite the important Norwegian port of Trondheim, which the Germans hold, said today that a telephoned dispatch from Stjordal, 15 miles east of Trondheim, disclosed that 26 German bombing planes were stationed there. In addition, 22 more were reported on their way there.

Tells of Trondheim Capture.

This newspaper also brought to light a story which may solve the mystery of how the Germans on Tuesday were able to pass so easily by the fortress Agdenes which guards the outer entrance to the narrow Trondheim fjord.

This report was that the fortress had stopped the German fleet and was holding them off until it had received an order from Maj. Vikdun Quisling, head of the Norwegian Nazi party, ostensibly issued in the name of the Norwegian government and ordering the defenders not to resist.

Later, according to this story, a contradictory order came from the regular government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, but it then was too late. The German ships were inside the fortress.

Smashes Battery in Harbor; Claims Soldiers Flee.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, April 14, Sunday (AP).—The admiralty early today announced British laid mine fields in the Kattegat had been extended southward to cut off German sea access to Copenhagen except thru Swedish territorial waters. British mine layers, either submarines or surface craft, penetated the Baltic to lay the new mine barrage, the admiralty said.

This would mean the British vessels had slipped either thru the narrow strait separating Denmark from Sweden or thru the wider channel west of Zealand, Denmark's main eastern island. The admiralty declared Swedish territorial waters would be left free of mines.

LONDON, April 13 (AP).—Great Britain threw the overwhelming might of her navy today against the German captors of Norway's ore port of Narvik and announced she had sent seven German destroyers to the bottom of the rocky bay and narrow inlet there. It was the second sea assault on that focal point of northern war within four days.

Vice Admiral Whitworth, British Commander.

Even while King George VI. and the British government were assuring King Haakon of Norway and his people that British and French help against the German invaders was coming and coming soon a powerful flotilla, led by the great battleship Warspite, rebuilt veteran of Jutland, was moving up narrow Narvik fjord, smashing a German coastal battery and then sinking the seven German destroyers before and behind the town, killing perhaps 1,000 German seamen.

Report Troop Landings.

It did not say whether any British troops were landed, altho at least one Stockholm radio report stated this to be a fact.

Fleeing men, "possibly German soldiers," were seen running over the hills behind Narvik.

"Further details are awaited," said the admiralty. "Operations are still proceeding.

"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel, but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men," said the announcement.

Three of the attacking destroyers were damaged but not seriously, and "British loss of life is believed to have been very small," it continued.

First Foray Recalled.

This daring attack was a sequel to Wednesday's dawn foray into Narvik fjord when the British reported the sinking of one of six German destroyers and the setting afire of three others. In that battle the British lost two of five attacking destroyers, the Hunter and the Hardy, and two others were damaged. [The Germans say six British destroyers have been sunk at Narvik.]

In addition to the German warships, the British reported seven German supply and ammunition ships were sunk in Wednesday's action, described by First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill as worthy of any in the proud records of the British navy.

[With the sinking of the seven destroyers yesterday nearly one-third of this type of German warships completed or under construction had plunged to the bottom within a week. Jane's Fighting Ships of 1939 listed 30 German destroyers completed or

DEMANDS FRANCE FORCE NEUTRALS TO CHOOSE PATH

Hour of Evasion Is Past, Declares Paper.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 13.—The position of Sweden in the Scandinavian struggle and whether or not Russia likes the idea of Germany being in possession of the Norwegian coast seemed to preoccupy French political and military circles today.

A bitter political battle appears to be going on in nearly all the European capitals and talk continues here that the front may be extended from eastern France to Murmansk, Russian arctic port.

Some French papers, while cautioning the public to beware of false optimism, speak of the necessity of putting searching questions to neutrals again. This should be done, one paper said tonight, "without frightening them or harassing them, to show them that the hour of evasion is past and that they have now got to decide and choose."

Call for Audacious Action.

Fear about Sweden's position seemed to be centered in the possibility Germany will need landing places on the Swedish east coast, in the Gulf of Bothnia, to reinforce her garrisons in Norway by way of the Swedish railway. Will the German invasion be extended or will the Swedes acquiese in German pressure? every one was asking.

"The moment has come for French and British diplomacy, for our secret service, and for the British intelligence service to show the same audacity and the same force that the allied sailors are showing in northern waters," says Le Matin.

With the departure of Gen. Maxime Weygand to the near east after a visit in Paris, there seemed to be an indication that Britain and France would be vigilant against any attempt by Adolf Hitler's generals to extend fighting to the Balkans, particularly to Rumania, which seems to be expected here.

Confer On Aid for Norse.

Hectic consultations are taking place about sending reinforcements to Norway. Many experts say that only mountain troops, such as the French chasseurs, Alpine, or British troops used to mountain warfare, can be effective in Norway.

Premier Paul Reynaud had a talk with the Polish general, Wladislaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government in France, and it was rumored Polish troops might go to Norway.

Every one is watching the effect of the war in Scandinavia on American public opinion. It is said here that invasion of Norway has been a severe blow for American 'isolationists,' which expresses perhaps the hope that events in Scandinavia will work toward getting America to join actively in the war, or at least counteract the effects of persons trying to keep the United States neutral.

Jacques Fransal, correspondent of the Paris Soir, wrote from America that the idea of aiding England and France in order to keep peace in America is gaining ground rapidly.

Germans Push Drive in Oslo Area

Additional German troops, landed yesterday in southeastern Norway, started a brisk movement toward Oslo, the captured capital, according to news from Stockholm, Sweden. Principal events of yesterday in the region are indicated on the map.

GERMANY'S 1937 'FALCONRY' TRIPS HELD SIGNIFICANT

Boonton, N. J., April 13 (AP).—Capt. R. Luff Meredith, United States army air corps retired, said today he deemed it "considerably significant," in view of Germany's invasion of Denmark, that Field Marshall Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Fuehrer Hitler's right hand man, sent 'falcon expeditions' to Greenland and Iceland in 1937 and 1938.

Meredith, one of America's leading falconers and a pilot during the world war, expressed belief the expeditions might have been intended to obtain information for future action. He said that altho Goering was a known falconer "it seemed strange that he should put the government to such an expense when it was undergoing such economic and political change."

Five Germans stayed in Greenland six months and returned after capturing six gyrfalcons, Meredith said, adding:

"They had sufficient time to uncover a lot of general and specific information about Greenland."

PLAN NATIONAL FUND FOR RELIEF OF NORWEGIANS

Tentative plans for formation of a nation-wide committee to raise funds for Norwegian relief work were announced yesterday in Chicago. The national chairmanship has been accepted by Arthur Andersen, senior partner of a La Salle street accounting firm and a second generation Norwegian-American.

Norwegian sources here said the idea for the relief committee originated in Washington. Complete plans will be announced next week. Branches of the committee are being formed in New York, Washington, and other large cities. Offices will be opened in Chicago soon.

Sigurd Maseng, Norwegian consul-general here, said yesterday that messages from men wishing to fight for Norway had poured into his office. Maseng said no request has yet been received from Norway that such offers be accepted and that applicants were being so advised.

2 Chicagoans Join French as Ambulance Drivers

Two Chicagoans will go to the front with the French army today as ambulance drivers, it was announced in New York yesterday by the American Volunteer Ambulance corps. They are William B. T. Mock and Robert H. Newman. Mock is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Mock of 1616 Forest place, Evanston. He has been doing relief work in Finland. Newman's address was not given.

BRITISH PERK UP! NARVIK VICTORY JUST THE TONIC

Go Back to Nelson for a Similar Thrill.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 13.—The mental depression which had settled over this country at the prospect of Germany's establishing herself solidly within 300 miles of Scapa Flow was broken tonight with the admiralty announcement that the navy had sunk seven German destroyers at Narvik, thus virtually gaining control of that far northern Norwegian port.

Not since Admiral Horatio Nelson destroyed the Danish fleet at Copenhagen in 1801 has any single performance by the British navy buoyed up the nation's spirits as much as this dashing engagement, which was regarded as the beginning of more extensive operations.

Boon to Norse Resistance.

The victory, besides cheering the morale of the English, is expected also to increase Norwegian resistance.

British sources said failure of the German destroyers to offer greater resistance revealed the importance of the armaments carried by the 12 German supply ships which the British say their navy sank. After today's episode the insistent German claims that reënforcements were arriving at Narvik were considered by the British to have been German bluff designed to discourage just such an action as the British fleet undertook today.

It was conceded that if the land batteries which the Germans claimed already were protecting the inlet leading to Narvik really had been mounted, the success of the British operation would have been impossible.

Skagerrak Is Big Question.

If Britain and France now are able to cut off the Skagerrak, experts say they will have accomplished the beginning of the end of the German occupation of Norway. The German fleet and shipping also will be bottled up, they assert.

The war in the north already has revived the old controversy of aircraft versus battleship.

Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, so far has discounted the danger of recurring German air attacks on the naval base at Scapa Flow.

However, claims by the British air force that it has sunk German cruisers with air bombs emphasize the danger of the German air assaults. This danger exists despite the fact that the battleship Rodney was hit squarely on the deck by a big German bomb and not seriously damaged.

BRITISH SINK 7 NAZI DESTROYERS IN NARVIK BATTLE

Invade Fjord, Led by a Battleship.

under construction last November. Two German destroyers were reported sunk early last week in the opening engagements of the Skagerrak-Kattegat-Narvik battles.]

Participating in today's expertly maneuvered fight was the British destroyer Cossack, which, with admiralty backing, took matters into its own hands and charged into Norway's territorial waters Feb. 16 to rescue 300 British merchant sailors held aboard the German prison ship Altmark.

"Since the attack upon German destroyers in Narvik on Wednesday by the second destroyer flotilla, this flotilla, with reënforcements, has been blockading the enemy in Narvik fjord.

"This morning at about noon H. M. S. Warspite, accompanied by a strong force of destroyers using mine-sweeping and other appliances, advanced up the fjord to attack the German destroyers, some of them already damaged, which were sheltering in the harbor, and also to engage any shore batteries which might have been erected.

"According to reports which have been received from the commander in chief, Vice Admiral Whitworth, hoisting his flag in the Warspite, commanded the attack, which was extremely successful.

"Enemy opposition was not found to be remarkably severe. A field howitzer which had been mounted ashore was put out of action by the fire of H. M. S. Cossack.

Pursued and Destroyed.

"Four German destroyers were shattered and sunk in Narvik bay. Three others fled up Rumbahs fjord, a small inlet eight or nine miles long behind Narvik town. These also were pursued and destroyed.

"At the moment of issuing this communique, the admiralty is not precisely informed as to conditions in Narvik town. Parties of men, possibly German soldiers, have been seen escaping from it over the hills, and further details are awaited.

"This destruction of seven of the enemy destroyers was not achieved without some loss. Three British destroyers were damaged in the fight, but not seriously, and the British loss of life is believed to have been very small.

Operations Still Proceeding.

"No estimate can be made at present of German losses in personnel, but the seven destroyers sunk must have counted over 1,000 men.

"The admiralty has signaled congratulations to Commander in Chief Admiral Sir Charles Forbes, to Vice Admiral Whitworth, and to the officers and men engaged in this vigorous, daring and skilfully conducted action, which may well tend to clarify the situation on this part of the Norwegian coast. Operations are still proceeding."

By directing the audacious attack, Vice Admiral William Jock Whitworth, on the bridge of the Warspite, became the new man of the hour to Britons.

To maneuver a warship the size of the 30,600 ton Warspite with its eight 15 inch guns into the narrow, rock studded fjord leading to Narvik called for excellent seamanship.

The Stockholm radio broadcast a report that several large British warships were effecting landings at Narvik under heavy bombardment from German warplanes and land forces.

While the British fleet put words into action, King George VI., in a message of cheer to King Haakon of Norway, assured the Norwegian monarch that the British and French "are bringing all help in their power" to break Adolf Hitler's hold on the Scandinavian kingdom.

"Deeply sympathizing with Norway in her hour of trial, I assure your majesty that my government, in full coöperation with the French government, are bringing all help in their power to Norway so that allied forces, fighting side by side with the Norwegians, may prove this latest outrage by Germany to have been as rash as it was wicked," King George added.

The king's message was preceded by a special broadcast in which British military strategists told the fighting Norwegians:

"Allied help is coming and coming quickly! Hold out! Long live Norway! Long live King Haakon!"

The Norwegians were told to fell trees and destroy bridges to check the advance of the German troops, and to hasten to the nearest British or Norwegian military headquarters with any news they hear about movement of the German units.

Bomb Transport Ships.

At acknowledged high cost in planes and pilots, the fleet air arm and royal air force today recounted these additional exploits:

Bombardment of the Stavanger airdrome with salvos of heavy bombs, with heavy damage to a hangar and planes and the shooting down of a twin engined German fighter by a wounded R. A. F. pilot;

The bombing of three more big German supply-transport ships;

The machine gunning of a German destroyer and motor torpedo boat;

Destruction of at least four other German fighting planes.

A total of 11 British planes were acknowledged lost since early Friday [the Germans claimed 12].

In new fleet air arm operations at Bergen, it was disclosed today, one British plane was forced down at sea near an island and the crew of two others were seen abandoning their machine.

However, a plane of the R. A. F. coastal command gave a good account of itself in action against a German destroyer and a Dornier flying boat, according to a British account.

The British plane dropped thru clouds of swirling snow straight at the German warship. The gunner raked her decks from 500 feet with machine gun fire.

"The Dornier lost height and soon both engines were afire," said the official report. The British plane got home with a bullet hole in its gasoline tank.

Three German ships, captured by the British navy off the Norwegian coast, were taken into northern ports today manned by British prize crews. The ships were all trawlers, the 393 ton Nordland, the 344 ton Blankenburg, and the 247 ton Friesland.

A German transport, near Haugesund, has been sunk by the Norwegian destroyer Draug, which imprisoned 67 men from the German ship, a Reuters [British] news agency report from Stockholm said. The prisoners were turned over to the British.

British Report Seven German Destroyers Sunk

On this map of the region surrounding Narvik, ore port in northern Norway, are quotations from a British communique announcing a naval victory that, it was predicted, will "clarify the situation on this part of the Norwegian coast." The heavy broken line indicates the route by which the British flotilla proceeded to the city, held by the Germans. The view is northwestward. Each grid contains 25 square miles.

DIES CHARGES RUSS-NAZI PLOT TO SEIZE MEXICO

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], asserting that he had information from authentic sources of a Russo-German plot to set up a puppet government in Mexico, called on President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull tonight to declare that any such attempt would be a violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

"The President and the secretary should say to the world," Dies said, "that the Monroe Doctrine not only bars armed intervention but prohibits outside powers from setting up puppet governments in the western hemisphere."

Dies declared Germany and Russia are sending "thousands of agents and smuggling arms into Mexico for the purpose of overthrowing the government there and setting up a threat against the United States." He said 10,000 communists already had moved into Mexico from Spain and France, and "the same crowd is perfecting plans to do in Mexico the same thing they did in Spain."

Mexico Investigating Plot.

MEXICO CITY, April 13 (AP).—Representative Dies' assertion that he had information that Russia and Germany were plotting to seize Mexico were received in official quarters here with a mixture of belief and denial. A spokesman for the department of the interior said: "It is possible there are communists assigned here as promoters of a conspiracy," and added that his department is investigating. The German legation flatly denied any German agents were active in Mexico.

HOLLAND WIDENS MARTIAL LAW TO GUARD BORDERS

Belgium Places Watch Over Brussels Area.

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands, April 13 (AP).—The Netherlands faced tonight its most critical period since the outbreak of the European war. Its armed forces were alert to strike at any invasion, new strategic areas were under martial law, and the government insisted it would maintain independence.

Belgium, too, invoked new defensive measures, posting military guards at radio stations, ministry offices, and airdromes "because of the general tension." Additional army leaves were banned.

Northern Provinces Covered.

The military was given control over additional zones in the southeastern province of Noord Brabant, where the main first defense lines are located, and in northern and eastern provinces.

Since last November the Netherlands has been dotted with these martial law zones, covering land, sea, and water line defense. Heretofore, however, the northeastern provinces of Groningen, Drenthe, and Overijssel, flanking the Ijsselmeer [Zuider Zee], had no such zones, and other provinces were not encased in the state of siege.

Since the war spread to Scandinavia, within striking distance of the coasts of Groningen and its islands, concern has been manifest in both the Netherlands and Belgium.

There have been charges both from Germany and Britain and France that "the other side" is threatening a surprise attack on the low countries.

Defense Moves Cheer Dutch.

The Dutch seem heartened by the defense measures taken by the government. There are signs of uneasiness among some foreigners, however. British nationals have been advised to report to their consulates at Amsterdam and Rotterdam if any emergency arises.

The government press service said the government would make no arrangements with any belligerent for aid in case of attack.

FRANCE BUYING AMERICAN GUNS FOR ITS INFANTRY

Taking Large Quantity of Submachine Type.

Washington, D. C., April 13.—French purchase of thousands of Thompson submachine guns as an infantry weapon is being followed with interest by military observers. The weapon is popularly known as the "Tommy-gun."

The purchases are being made in this country by the French military mission, according to reports here, because the French general staff is convinced that the arming of infantry has been defective for 30 years.

Shoots Revolver Bullets.

Infantry does not need a long range weapon, it is said, as long ranges are in the province of machine guns and artillery. Carrying the argument a step further, it is said that the .30 caliber rifle bullet is too small and does not do enough damage as compared with the .45 submachine gun bullet.

The 28AC model of the Thompson submachine gun which the French are purchasing weighs 9 pounds 13 ounces and has an overall length of 33 inches. It can be equipped with either a 20 or 50 cartridge magazine and shoots .45 caliber revolver bullets.

The weapon is in use in the American army, but not extensively. French experience with the weapon may lead to wider use in the American army.

Semiautomatic Favored.

The American general staff feels that the Garand semiautomatic rifle is superior to the submachine gun for infantry use, because the American system of small arms training calls for aimed shots which require a high degree of accuracy in a small arm.

Setting the maximum effectiveness of rifle fire at 400 to 600 yards, the army high command insists the semiautomatic rifle is a perfect weapon for accurate fire. It is acknowledged that the submachine gun can shoot faster than the new rifle, but not as far or as effectively.

Military experts here said that the French government would not make such large purchases of the submachine gun if it were able to buy the semiautomatic rifle. At present the army is buying all the Garands which are being made and production is far behind army needs.

FRENCH CUT DOWN NAZI INFANTRY IN WEST FRONT RAID

Also Repulse Attack on Rhine Island.

PARIS, April 13 (AP).—German infantry stabbed savagely today at vital French positions near the Luxemburg frontier under a screen of artillery fire, but the defenders beat them back and cut them down in the tangled barbed wire of No-Man's land, the French high command announced tonight.

The night French communique did not disclose the strength of the attacking force. No estimate of casualties was made.

Earlier in the day artillery and machine gun fire was reported heavy at various points along the Rhine river and to the east, and the French said their troops attacked successfully a German position between the Saar river and the Vosges mountains.

War Committee Meets.

Fighting near the Luxemburg frontier has flared intermittently between the German village of Perl and the French frontier village of Apach. Uneasiness in Luxemburg has caused many nationals of that tiny country to apply for permission to enter France.

French activity on the home front was marked by a meeting of the war committee composed of Defense Minister Edouard Daladier and chief of the army, sea, and air forces with President Albert Lebrun. This is the body which makes all decisions of war strategy.

Germans Raid Island.

Western front action yesterday in the Rhine river sector saw a bold German raid on a French held island near the Swiss frontier beaten off by French machine gun fire.

The German raiders approached the island in boats but were forced to withdraw in the face of heavy blasts from machine guns and rifles. Because of the darkness the French could not say whether any of the German boats had been sunk.

The French said their artillery smashed German military constructions in the Saarland which have "held especial attention of the French command."

German artillery replied by pounding positions on the French bank of the Rhine.

German Communique.

BERLIN, April 13 (AP).—The German high command's communique today said: "In the west the day passed without special developments. The air force carried out several reconnaissance flights over northern and eastern France and over Paris."

PAPERS REDUCE SIZE AS BRITAIN CUTS NEWSPRINT

LONDON, April 13 (AP).—A new order for control of paper was announced by the ministry of economic warfare today.

The order, which became effective tonight, reduced the amount of paper supplied by mills to customers for March, April, and May. It cuts the allotment to 30 per cent of the amount supplied during the corresponding period in 1939. The allotment would have been 60 pen cent but the German invasion of Norway has cut shipments of newsprint to England.

The News Chronicle announced that it and other papers would be reduced to 10 pages beginning Monday, with further reductions expected soon.

Newsprint prices are nearly double the prewar rate and may rise again Monday.

Attack by Air

(Story in adjoining column.)

Arrows point to Yochow, reported bombed by Chinese, and "lifeline" highway, which Japanese said they damaged.

JAPS AND CHINESE STRIKE AT EACH OTHER FROM AIR

HONGKONG, April 13 (AP).—Bombing squadrons of both China and Japan struck today. The Chinese claimed they damaged a warship and munitions dump at Yochow, Japan's Yangtze valley base. Japanese reports said their fighter planes shot down two of 16 Chinese raiders and drove off the rest.

Japanese said their army and navy air units heavily and successfully attacked river crossings and storage points along the 350 mile "lifeline" highway connecting Chiang Kai-shek's central China supply base, Kweiyang, with French Indo-China.

Chinese sources also reported that their land forces occupied a number of towns in the vicinity of Nanning.

SPANISH WAR VETERAN DIES.

Bloomington, Ill., April 13 [Special].—Funeral services for Walter C. Brown, 61 years old, a Spanish-American war veteran who died Thursday night at Cooksville, will be held in Colfax on Monday. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Bloomington.

BRITISH, FRENCH NEAR EAST ARMY ON TURK BORDER

ROME, April 13.—Gen. Maxime Weygand's army of the orient left Damascus last Monday and is assembling in Aleppo, on the Syrian-Turkish border, Syrian circles here disclosed tonight.

Contingents of the British army commanded by Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, reported to total 40,000 troops, also were said to have been sent from Egypt to Syria.

Italian correspondents in Sofia, Bulgaria, and Bucharest, Rumania, reported tonight that considerable anxiety was felt in those capitals over a rumored Russian move against Rumania. They said the only hope of salvation seen in those countries is the Anglo-French near east force which could operate from the Black sea as well as pass thru Bulgarian territory to aid the Rumanian army.

USE OF PRIVATE AUTOS BARRED INSIDE DENMARK

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 13 (AP).—Denmark began to adjust itself today to the requirements of the German army of occupation.

Increased rationing of electricity, gas, and coal was forecast by the Danish press, and the driving of private automobiles was forbidden. No gasoline will be sold to private persons.

Electricity and coal have been rationed to some extent since February because of a coal shortage.

A new ban on public meetings exempted church services, union meetings, Boy scout and similar club meetings, theaters, motion pictures, and races.

GERMAN LEGIONS SHATTER PEACE OF HAAKON RULE

King of Norse Beloved for Three Decades.

The present situation of King Haakon VII. of Norway driven from his palace in Oslo and in constant danger of capture by the invading Germans, is in sharp contrast to the quiet associated with his reign until the present war broke out.

King Haakon.

His has been a happy kingship since his accession to the throne in 1906. A constitutional monarch, a crowned democrat, he always had the affection and support of his people. In return he gave no opposition to a government in which the people ruled.

Quiet World Figure.

In the broad field of European politics King Haakon has made few appearances. During the world war he and his fellow monarchs, Christian X. of Denmark and Gustaf V. of Sweden, joined in a united front for Scandinavian neutrality, and were able to keep out of the war. Fortunately, perhaps, Norwegian armed forces are small and reputedly poorly equipped for battle.

Haakon, brother of the present king of Denmark, was chosen to rule Norway in 1906 when that country was allowed peacefully to draw away from Sweden. King Edward VII. of England was his father-in-law and was largely instrumental in getting him the throne.

Relations Always Cordial.

For this reason and thru the influence of Queen Maud, who died in 1938, official relations between the British and Norwegians have always been cordial. In the present struggle there is no doubt where Norwegian sympathies lie, but the small population and its own economic interests kept the country neutral as long as neutrality was possible.

Crown Prince Olav, now 37 years old, is even more popular than the king. He was educated as if he were an ordinary well-to-do English boy. He is one of Scandinavia's principal sportsmen and sails his own yacht in regattas. He takes his royalty lightly, and is said to have appeared at one regatta wearing a patched jacket. Prince Olav's consort is Princess Martha, daughter of the king of Sweden.

RUTH ZIMMERMAN.

Allen, Neb., April 11 (AP).—Ruth Zimmerman, co-ed at the Wayne State Teachers' college, believes she has a pretty good chance of becoming the first woman to hold a seat in Nebraska's unicameral legislature.

The 22 year old student was one of two candidates nominated in the 13th district primary, emerging successful in a race against five male and older contestants. Miss Zimmerman, daughter of a Methodist minister, found time to campaign on days when she wasn't attending classes. Her college course includes 15 hours' work with three extra hours in law. She drives 42 miles to and from school on class days.

Turkey Votes $35,000,000 for Frontier Rail Lines

ANKARA, Turkey, April 13 (AP).—A sum of $10,000,000 pounds [currently about $35,000,000] was appropriated today for completion of two strategic railway lines to the frontiers of Iraq and Iran [Persia]. Turkey, Iraq, Iran, and Afghanistan have been linked since July, 1937, by a nonaggression pact.

Valparaiso, Ind., April 13 (AP).—Dr. and Mrs. J. Stuart McQuiston of Cedar Rapids, Ia., were injured seriously early today in an automobile-truck collision on United States highway 30, 15 miles east of here. The McQuistons, returning to their home from a Pittsburgh, Pa., medical meeting, were brought to Porter Memorial hospital here.

HAAKON, A TIRED KING HARRIED BY NAZIS, SEEKS BED

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 13.—Haggard and worn from lack of sleep, King Haakon of Norway stopped for a short rest at a point on the Swedish frontier last night to hear reports of how his countrymen were fighting heroically to stem the German invasion.

The 67 year old monarch complained that he was tired and had not had a chance to take off his shoes since he left Oslo, his capital, early Tuesday morning.

He confessed that a German bombing attack on his party at Nybergsund on Thursday had shaken his nerve, for he had watched children and women cowering in the snow together with his ministers, his escort, and his son, Crown Prince Olav. He said he would never again halt for either rest or food at a place where there were children.

Indignant at Being Hunted.

King Haakon was indignant at being hunted by the Germans like a wild beast. He said he felt as tho civilization were being destroyed when such things could happen. He looks forward to continuing the journey with a touch of pessimism. He said no place seems safe to him so long as the German bombers could find where he was. He told his ministers that if they wished they could go across the frontier and find security and refuge in Sweden and pointed at the painted post which marked the Norwegian-Swedish frontier.

These men, who had elected to share his fate, declined to leave and said they would stick with him to the end. The king smiled proudly and said the group would stay in the country so long as a foot of soil remains Norwegian.

Discount Nazi Claims.

The little party did not remain long near Sweden. Crown Prince Olav sent a message to his wife, who is in Stockholm, and the group drove on. They will seek a secure refuge where all can enjoy a long rest.

Swedish authorities do not believe claims of Germany that it has 100,000 men in Norway. The highest estimate here is well below 50,000. The Germans, however, are landing soldiers in Oslo as rapidly as possible, many of them from transport planes which carry 40 to 60 men. It is reported the aerial convoys are being attacked by British fighter squadrons over the Skagerrak and Kattegat.

Sweden's defense preparations are continuing and the country now is reported to be ready for all eventualities. The defense measures have been accomplished quietly and swiftly and the country is ready to fight if necessary to maintain its independence.

A law providing for strong punishment for spies and traitors was announced here today. This is something new for Sweden as the country has not felt the need of such legislation for more than a century.

Two thousand Nazis in Sweden today were ordered by their leader, Sven Lindholm, to support the government and defend it from attack by any power. He warned his followers that they must be Swedes first and to forget political doctrines until the crisis is over.

U. S. ARMY STAFF STUDIES 3 WEEK POLISH DEBACLE

Seeks Defensive Lessons in German Conquest.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—While world interest is focused on the German invasion of Norway and Denmark, the war plans division of the war department general staff is engaged in an intensive study of the lightning 2German campaign in Poland which brought about the subjugation of a nation of nearly 40 million people in three weeks.

Information gathered by military observers in all European capitals has been woven together to give a rounded picture of what happened in the three fateful weeks six months after the world was stunned by the rapid campaign.

It was stressed here that the war plans division is studying the campaign with emphasis on defense rather than offense as this nation does not contemplate taking the offensive against any country. The lessons of defense may prove invaluable, it was said, should any foe attempt a campaign against the United States.

Launched on Sept. 1.

The campaign against Poland was launched at 4:45 a. m. last Sept. 1 when Adolf Hitler ordered the commanders of the army, navy, and air forces to strike at Poland.

Behind that order was years of preparation of a plan of campaign as well as actual preparation for the campaign. Germany had honeycombed Poland with spies and had intimate knowledge of every detail of terrain and every detail of Polish defense. Citizens of German descent in Poland were not only engaged in espionage but also sabotage.

At the time the order to attack was given two German air fleets, commanded by Generals Kesselring and Lohr, took to the air under direction of Field Marshal Goering, chief of the air force. These struck first at the Polish air force and its ground organization and then at aviation plants, ammunition depots, supply centers, and railroads.

Poles Driven from Air.

The small Polish air force was driven from the air. Inadequate Polish antiaircraft guns were unable to drive away German planes. By Sept. 2 Germany had complete control of the air, while German troops were hardly started on their invasion.

On that date the air force shifted to harrassing Polish lines of communication in front and behind the Polish army. Planes destroyed railroads, bridges, and roads. They also lent support to advancing German columns by strafing Polish troops and carried supplies of oil, food, and ammunition in transport planes.

The air force also prevented reenforcements from coming up to Polish front lines. Thru continual employment in efficient coöperation with ground forces it contributed largely to the rapid success of the campaign.

Armies in Two Groups.

On land the German forces were gathered in two groups of armies—one to the north, which consisted of the fourth army under Gen. von Kluge, which was mobilized in Pomerania on the border northward of the Netze river across from the wider extent of the Polish corridor, and the third army under Gen. von Kuchler, which was on the southern border of East Prussia.

The armies of the south consisted of the 14th army, commanded by Gen. List, which faced Cracow; the 10th, commanded by Gen. Von Reichenau, which was in the area of Czestochowa, and the eighth army, commanded by Gen. Blaskowitz, which was along the border south of Posen.

The plan of invasion called for destroying as much as possible of the Polish army in the area between the Vistula river and the German-Polish border. Empire observers had urged the Polish high command to retire behind the river and make a stand where the Germans could best be held off.

This plan was urged upon the Poles as one which would enable them to conduct a defense until Britain and France could some to her aid. The Polish high command was desirous of taking an offensive against East Prussia.

The Polish forces were gathered in groups of north and south armies and a middle army. The army of the north was concentrated between Mlawa and Lomza facing one wing of the German third army. This army was to invade East Prussia simultaneously with an army to the east of East Prussia between Suwalki and Augustow. A third army was massed in the corridor opposite the German fourth. This was to invade East Prussia from the west and move against Danzig.

The Polish armies of the south were concentrated in the area of Cracow and Lemberg. The mission of these armies was strictly defense—to protect the Polish industrial region in Upper Silesia. These armies faced the eighth, tenth, and fourteenth armies.

Might Have Periled Flanks.

The middle army was concentrated in the vicinity of Posen, which province jutted into Germany. Its mission was to move onto German soil. Experts agree that if this army could have carried out its mission it would have seriously imperiled the flanks of the invading German armies of the north and south.

However, the mechanized German army carried its attack so rapidly against a nation whose communications were demoralized that the Poles were completely surprised and were forced to retreat before they could undertake the offensive, particularly in the Posen area.

Infantry and Cavalry First.

Strangely enough the mechanized units did not lead the attack into Poland. German infantry and even horse cavalry made the holes in the various Polish armies thru which tanks, reconnaisance cars and other motor units poured thru.

This phase of the conquest is of particular interest here. The general staff is interested in knowing just how far mechanized forces must be led by horse and foot and how much they must be supported by such troops.

In the attack the German high command exerted constant pressure on all Polish troop fronts while its air force harrassed the Polish rear.

Bavarian and Austrian mountain units of the fourteenth army to the south broke the stubborn Polish defense in that mountainous area. Silesian and Austrian units moved into Upper Silesia on the left wing of the fourteenth army pushing into Cracow. They forced the Poles back of the Dunajec and San rivers.

Polish Army Shattered.

The tenth army shattered the Polish army in the area of Czestochowa and followed retreating Polish troops thru to the Vistula. Within a week this army penetrated 140 miles into Poland, encountering stiff resistance at points along the way.

The eighth German army moved across the Warthe, thrusting back Polish forces on both sides of the town of Lodz. Then the army took up a position on the Bzura river to block off the retreat of the Polish Posen and Corridor armies.

The fourth German army thrust downward into the corridor from Pomerania, after having divided itself to have one wing face the Polish Posen army.

The joint operations of the fourth, eighth, tenth, and fourteenth German armies destroyed the main Polish army at Kutno. This battle followed when the Polish Posen army abandoned plans to invade Germany and rushed back to aid in the defense of Warsaw.

Ten days lapsed between the invasion of Poland and the battle of Kutno.

German Forces Unite.

In the meantime, the third army advanced into Poland from East Prussia and joined with German forces from West Prussia to force the Polish fortified line behind the Nawew river. Continuing across the Bug river, this army turned toward the north and east fronts of Warsaw.

Warsaw surrendered Sept. 29.

On sea the German navy blocked the Bay of Danzig and destroyed almost all of the small Polish naval force, and bombarded Polish coast defenses.

In the campaign the German losses were insignificant. In between 60 and 70 divisions of men employed, losses were approximately 12,000 dead, 35,000 wounded, and 5,000 missing, according to estimates of the German high command.

Polish losses are not known, but were tremendous.

The German campaign in Poland clearly demonstrated the superiority of a highly mobile, well trained and well armed troops over brave troops with obsolete weapons and equipment. It also demonstrates, according to experts, the value of an efficient high command.

German plans were perfection; Polish plans illogical. And the Polish high command virtually deserted its troops on the field of battle to be almost the first to find refuge abroad.

Germany's troops were fully equipped for modern war and the Poles were better equipped for a war of the proportions of the American civil war. Virtually one-fourth of the Polish army was horse cavalry, which could not be expected to compete with tanks and mechanized troops.

Geography and weather also contributed to Poland's downfall. She was without natural frontiers and failed to take advantage of the defense lines afforded by nature. Fall rains, which had been counted upon to bog down German mechanization, did not come.

The Russian invasion of eastern Poland holds little interest for American experts. They acknowledge it has political interest but none for the military student because all the Russians did was to march upon a prostrate nation.

SHIP ON MERCY ERRAND IS SUNK WITHOUT NOTICE

LONDON, April 13 (AP).—Survivors who were landed today reported that the 5,128 ton Norwegian steamer Tosca was torpedoed and sunk without warning by a submarine while she was steaming to the aid of the 9,076 ton Swedish tanker Sveaborg, which had been torpedoed. The Tosca was carrying a general cargo from South America. The survivors were picked up by a British patrol vessel and landed at a north Scottish port. They said two of the crew of 32 drowned when forced to take to lifeboats. All but one of the crew of 35 of the Sveaborg were reported rescued.

REICH FINDS EVEN 6 YEARS OF WAR PLANS GO AWRY

Labor Problems, Scarcity of Materials Bob Up.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 13.—Germany's war economy program has not required the drastic changes in domestic organization that have taken place in other countries because the reich has been on a practical war footing since 1933.

For six years the country's entire resources and economic machinery have been subordinated to the military requirements. However, the strain on national resources caused by excessive efforts in war preparation caused the country to enter the war facing a shortage of labor, inadequate transportation facilities, a scarcity of essential raw materials, and defective utilization of available industrial capacity. Also a disproportionately large share of the national income was being used to finance rearmament and public construction.

Under these circumtances, Germany's entry into the war meant, from an economic and financial viewpoint, an exaggeration of the existing trends rather than the beginning of a new period.

Friction in the War Machine.

Her organization for the regulation of industry, agriculture, and distribution required only minor changes when the war began. This applied particularly to the rationing of raw materials and the regimentation of labor.

Despite the fact that Germany's peacetime activities were prescribed by regulation, considerable dislocation in domestic conditions and friction in the war administration machinery were noticed during the lighting Polish invasion. These developments have continued, altho much time has been devoted to perfecting the wartime systems.

The German commercial and monetary policy had tended to isolate the country from the direct influence of foreign economic forces. Especially the rigid and comprehensive foreign exchange regulations had reduced the foreign influence on the reichsmark to a minimum.

Because strict regulations and control of prices protect the country's price structure against disturbing foreign influences, the shift in trade from foreign to nearby countries caused by the blockade did not take the reich unawares.

It is difficult to make an exact appraisal of Germany's economic conditions during the first months of the war because the country stopped publishing important statistical data. However, it is known that strain on labor and machinery was beginning to make itself felt in the industrial output when the war started. Lack of repairs and overhauling of equipment was reducing its normal useful life.

In most industrial plants, 10 hour days and longer had become the general rule. Laborers on the Siegfried line officially were reported to be working 14 to 16 hours per day. Employment of women during the last two years rose 18 per cent.

Benefit from 1914's Lesson.

Benefiting by the lessons of the world war, the government has avoided the great mistakes of 1914 when men in key industrial positions were mobilized. The present system of gradual mobilization has permitted greater discrimination to be exercised in calling up men indispensable as soldiers on the industrial front.

However, a certain amount of friction and dislocation could not be avoided. Owing to their geographical location, some industries near the border were moved or shut down, causing general unemployment in some sections. The continual drafting of recruits and expansion of war production activities has helped to solve this problem. The necessary readjustments were completed around the beginning of 1940.

A new unemployment crisis is appearing, however, because purely peacetime industries are beginning to shut down because they lack markets.

British List 15 Lost from Destroyer Sunk Off Norway

Dutch Ship Sunk by Mine Off English Coast; 3 Killed

BRITAIN ENLISTS HOUSEWIVES FOR 'KITCHEN FRONT'

Urged to 'Let Shopping Help Your Country.'

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 13.—Lord Woolton, the new food minister, today announced a new "kitchen front" slogan for housewives, "Let Your Shopping Help Your Country," in the campaign to save food. He stressed the importance of housewives confining their purchases to foods and other goods produced here.

Lord Woolton.

Sir David Milne Watson, public utility chief, told housewives they could reduce foreign purchases of food by about $700,000,000 yearly by adhering to Lord Woolton's slogan.

Enormous increases in the prices of food outside government control were announced today by Sir Douglas McRaith, chairman of the north regional price regulation committee. He said the prices of some canned goods, such as peas, had jumped 100 per cent.

Wider Price Control Forecast.

He said these items would have to be put under government control and that a new list of controled foods might be announced soon.

As the German occupation of Norway has cut off the importation of foods from Scandinavia and the Baltic, the board of trade today prohibited the exportation, except under license, of all goods from the United Kingdom to Denmark, Esthonia, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Sweden, and Russian ports on the Baltic and Arctic seas.

Buying Drive Ignored.

What last week was considered a great British-French weapon—an economic spring offensive in the Balkans—has become so relatively insignificant that an outline of the plans whereby Britain and France could buy Germany out of these countries, is now being ignored in the press.

QUEEN SAYS WAR IS A CHALLENGE TO CHRISTIANITY

The Queen spoke on the occasion of the 85th anniversary of the founding of the Y. W. C. A. She said that "a purely material conception of life is being offered" to the world in place of Christian standards.

Nazi Trade Issue Nears Crisis.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 13 (AP).—Rumania maintained tonight her virtual embargo on exports to Germany while the nation's press lashed out at the Nazis.

As German-Rumanian relations apparently were speeding toward a crisis, Bucharest heard reports from German sources that the Russian government had handed a note, its contents undisclosed publicly, to the Rumanian minister at Moscow. The note is reported to protest incidents on the Rumanian side of the soviet-Rumanian frontier.

The Rumanian cabinet economic council met for five hours but failed to agree on a complete list of products that will be banned for export following Germany's action in prohibiting the export of many articles to Rumania. The council adjourned until next week without lifting an order forbidding the loading of freight cars and river barges with oil, wheat and other products for Germany. It was expected that economic demands might come from Germany at once.

Nazi Trade Envoy Snubbed.

Members of the Rumanian government have refused to receive Dr. Karl Clodius, head of a German trade commission now in Bucharest, after weeks of dickering over German demands for oil and wheat.

The government-inspired Bucharest press published similar editorials assailing the "fantastic assertions of fantastic incidents" in "certain foreign press." These were said to refer to a German press campaign against "English-attempted sabotage" on the Danube. Germany recently charged that Britain planned to dynamite barges in the Danube river to block the flow of supplies to Germany.

In Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, ministers told foreign envoys Germany had notified Jugo-Slavia and Rumania that if German shipping is sabotaged on the Danube, Germany will be forced "to walk in to protect the barges herself."

Germans Reported Massed.

The Jugo-Slav, Rumanian, Greek and Turkish ministers at Budapest, Hungary, conferred. It was said they discussed reports that German troops were concentrated on the Hungarian and Jugo-Slav frontiers, planning a sweep into Rumania and Greece to occupy southeastern Europe and obtain important supplies. Three German gunboats were reported at Bratislava, Czecho-Slovakia, for a possible dash down the Danube to the Balkans.

French and British quarters in Hungary and Rumania expressed concern over the reported passage of thousands of German "tourists" thru Hungary to Rumania." They said the "tourists" are Nazi troops.

Worry was caused in Jugo-Slavia and Greece by reports that 25,000 more Italian colonists have been sent to Albania. An equal number arrived in Tirana a fortnight ago. Jugo-Slavia suspects they have had military training.

MEAT TRUCK DRIVER ROBBED.

Two men robbed Irving Plotkin, a driver for a meat market, of $100 cash and $15 in checks in the rear of 5127 Greenwood avenue yesterday.

ITALY TO EQUIP ARMY WITH NEW POWERFUL, HIGH SPEED RIFLES

ROME, April 13.—The Italian high command has decided to equip the army with a new semiautomatic rifle, it was announced tonight. The Italian army will be the first in Europe to be equipped with this type of weapon. It is described as lighter, more accurate and more powerful than the old 1891 rifle used until now, and is known as the Revelli, model 39.

The United States is said to be the only other major power which has equipped its army with a similar rifle.

Tests made since 1937 have been "thoroly satisfactory," it was stated. The Revelli can fire as many as 120 rounds a minute, and its accuracy is said not to suffer from high speed firing nor from prolonged immersion in water, mud, snow, and sand.

LEARN TO LISTEN—TO LEARN!

By CALEB

"DID you ever stop to consider," said my quiet friend—who usually has little to say, but makes every little big—"that while this cranial skypiece of ours has only one opening to speak through, it has two to hear through?"

I thought that one over for some minutes. "Meaning?" I suggested. "Meaning," he replied, "that it's very possible Nature intended us to do twice as much listening as we do talking."

Perhaps my friend is actually a philosopher? Perhaps this listening idea involves one of the genuine arts of living? Perhaps it is up front among the beautiful, basic secrets of succeeding with one's civic, social and commercial adventures? I began to look into the matter; to recall carefully some characteristics of the few able executives, charming conversationalists and steady business producers included in my acquaintance.

As I remembered these people, concentrating on them, I discovered they were all, quite definitely, good listeners. I hadn't thought about it: but there it was. They made you feel brilliant, entertaining, sure you had "personality." And maybe that was the answer. You did the talking; you seemed to have the stage and the spotlight; you appeared to scintillate—while they merely offered you plenty of silence to shine in.

And I decided that was the answer. Several specific incidents revived in my mind. Three of those friends, particularly . . . I always left them in possession of more information from me than I had had from them. They seemed to learn that way from everybody. A few well-timed questions—and the other fellow did the talking. He provided the knowledge they wanted; and only afterward did he realize that he hadn't received any additions whatever to his own mental stock. . . .

An art of living! Listening, graciously employed, is just that. One does not mean, obviously, the chilling taciturnity that freezes up conversational channels, and thickens, instead of dispersing, the spiritual ice of first meetings. Not that at all; but a cultivation of interest in the "party of the second part" which wins response—in the winning of which nothing proves so effectual as being an attentive and sympathetic listener.

And when one has thus learned to listen, how one learns! Properly manipulated, the habit reaches out far and wide, like an invisible net, and winnows from practically every encounter of the day something worth knowing, something worth using, something that has made one wiser in life and people than he would have been if he had done all, or even most, of the talking himself.

GERMANY'S NEW DRIVE ASSAILED BY ROOSEVELT

He Condemns Invasion of Scandinavia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—President Roosevelt tonight condemned the German invasion of Denmark and Norway as an unlawful exercise of force repugnant to the government and people of the United States.

W. M. de Morganstierne, Norwegian minister.

In a special statement of condemnation issued at the White House the President said:

"Force and military aggression are once more on the march against small nations, in this instance thru the invasion of Denmark and Norway.

"These two nations have won and maintained during a period of many generations the respect and regard not only of the American people, but of all peoples, because of their observance of the highest standards of national and international conduct.

"Strong Disapprobation."

"The government of the United States has on the occasion of recent invasions strongly expressed its disapprobation of such unlawful exercise of force. It here reiterates, with undiminished emphasis, its point of view as expressed on those occasions.

"If civilization is to survive, the rights of the smaller nations to independence, to their territorial integrity, and to the unimpeded opportunity for self-government must be respected by their more powerful neighbors."

The statement was similar in tone to others which the President has issued to protest against the rule of might. He has roundly voiced disapproval in the past of the invasions of China by Japan; Ethiopia and Albania by Italy; Finland by Russia, and Czecho-Slovakia and Poland by Germany.

Discouragement by "Quarantine."

In his message to congress a year ago he urged measures "short of war" be employed to discourage aggression, and in Chicago in 1937 he called for quarantine of aggressor nations.

The White House statement was issued by the President after he conferred with Wilhelm Munthe de Morganstierne, Norwegian minister, and Norman Davis, president of the American Red Cross.

In leaving the executive offices the envoy declared that King Haakon and Prime Minister Nygaardsrold head the only "constitutional" government in Norway.

He would not discuss the nature of his conversation with Mr. Roosevelt.

Davis said he discussed the problems now in the making for keeping millions of people alive in China, Finland, Poland, and other countries which have felt the blight of war.

The Greenland Problem.

He said he had discussed with the President relief problems in Greenland, among other things, but that the Greenland problem is small in comparison to the need to assuage suffering in other parts of the world.

Davis said two of the three American ships now in Norwegian ports, the Mormacsea and the Flying Fish, carried large shipments of Red Cross supplies for Finland. These included 10,000 blankets. The Red Cross had not received word of the fate of the supplies, but Davis added that there had never been any interference with Red Cross supplies. He disclosed later that the Red Cross was considering chartering one or more ships to carry relief supplies to Norway and Sweden. safe conduct.

During the day the United States notified belligerents that the three American ships in Norwegian waters will return home shortly and this government expects them to be given safe conduct.

Flyer Dies in Crash

Wreckage of airplane in which Robert D. Muir lost life yesterday a mile south of Lombard in Du Page county.

An airplane pilot was killed and a companion with whom he was practicing spins was injured severely yesterday when their plane crashed on William Blecke's farm, a mile south of Lombard in Du Page county.

James McKenna.

The dead man was Robert Douglas Muir, 28 years old, an unmarried plasterer living at 1913 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park. He was the owner of the small plane in which they were flying. The man who was injured is James McKenna, 35, of 703 Oakland avenue, Villa Park. McKenna, a hotel engineer, was taken to the Elmhurst hospital. He is married and the father of three children.

McKenna said he realized that Muir was unable to pull the plane out of a spin when it was about 150 feet in the air. McKenna seized the dual controls and attempted to right the plane, he said, but he was unable to break Muir's grip. The men had taken off from the Elmhurst airport.

RELATES TERROR OF DAYS BEFORE FALL OF WARSAW

Ex-Polish Announcer Now Living in Oak Park.

The young man who, as announcer for the Polish national radio station, was the first to tell the Poles that Hitler had begun his invasion, yesterday told the story of the terrible three weeks before Warsaw fell.

Eugene Dee.

He is Eugene Dee, 20 years old, now living at the Oak Park Y. M. C. A. Dee attended school in Oak Park for five years before his family, after inheriting extensive landholdings in Poland, went to Europe 11 years ago.

Heretofore, Dee has avoided discussion of his experiences during the last days of Warsaw because his mother and two sisters were still in Poland. Now they have found a haven in Sweden.

Recalls First Bad News.

Prior to the opening of the war Dee was a radio commentator for the propaganda ministry. When hostilities began he was assigned to make the official announcement. He recalled the precise words yesterday:

"Today [Sept. 1, 1939], in the early morning, the Germans violated the Polish frontiers, thus creating a state of war between Poland and the third reich. Hostile infantry and mechanized troops were promptly stopped by Polish troops———"

At these reassuring words, Dee recalled, Warsaw residents started celebrating. After England and France declared war, the crowds became more bouyant and optimistic. For seven days the radio station served up confident reports and there was no knowledge in Warsaw that Poland was being overrun, said Dee.

Officer Seizes Microphone.

First realization came on Sept. 7, when a Polish officer rushed into the studios and commandeered a microphone. In four minutes Warsaw learned that the government had fled, that the army was dismembered, and heard Gen. Smigly-Rydz called a traitor.

This officer, said Dee, was shot by other soldiers as he left the studios. Radio officials disappeared at this time and Mayor Stefan Starzynski took over operations of the station.

On Sept. 18, Dee recalled, he left the microphone to go to another room for notes; a few minutes later he returned to find that studio blown away. On Sept. 23-24 the station was leveled by bombs, and Dee and several associates were trapped in underground studios for three days.

They endured great thirst and hunger; for days lived on horse meat hacked from animals lying in the streets, he said.

Even on Sept. 27, Dee's last day in the radio station, English short wave transmissions were reassuring the Poles that bombers and troops were on their way. But no one longer believed Britain's promises.

After the Germans took over the station a representative of the German propaganda ministry offered Dee a radio job in Berlin, since he can speak several languages.

Caught by Russians; Escapes.

Dee said he promised to reply the next day. He escaped during the night, but soon found himself in a Russian concentration camp near Brezesz. He bribed his way out by giving his wrist watch to a Russian officer, he said.

Returning to Warsaw, he learned at the American consulate that the German secret police were seeking him. He fled by car with an American associate and ultimately reached Vienna. American officials, after some delay, obtained a visa so that he could enter Italy. Later he obtained passage on the liner Rex from Genoa.

21 Republics Will Observe Pan-American Day Today

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—The 21 republics of the American continent celebrate Pan American day tomorrow, signalizing a half century of progress in the development of closer economic, cultural, and juridical relations between the nations of the western hemisphere. The celebration this year marks the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Pan American union at the first international conference of American states. Pan American day was set aside to commemorate the bonds of friendship and peace which the union has fostered among the continent's republics.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PUTS IN BUSY DAY WITH 3 SPEECHES

Defends Her Sponsorship of Youth Congress.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in three speeches in Chicago yesterday, praised collective bargaining, defended her espousal of the American Youth congress and gently out-talked a young Youth congress heckler who tried to out-talk her in Orchestra hall.

She spoke on collective bargaining before the annual convention of the American Communications association, a C. I. O. affiliate which Friday rescinded its indorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt's husband. She made no comment on this, other than to say, "I'm speaking not as a politician, but as an individual."

To the 400 delegates at the Hotel La Salle she said that collective bargaining strengthens the chances for true democracy to grow and added, "Perhaps we are the torch in this country for the rest of the world."

Answers Her Critics.

She answered criticism leveled at her sponsorship of the American Youth congress at a dinner given by the congress' adult advisory council at the Hotel Sherman. She told the 250 Chicagoans here that if they supported the congress, they, too, probably would be criticized.

"You will be asked questions such as 'Do you believe in encouraging communistic tendencies in any group in the United States?'" she told them.

"The answer simply is that if we who are older don't take our responsibilities sufficiently courageously to work with groups of young people even if there are some—I don't think we could even say communists—some with radical leanings among them, who do you suppose is going to take that responsibility and work with the youth of the nation?"

Heckler Draws Chiding.

Later she addressed this group directly at a peace rally held in Orchestra hall by the Chicago council of the American Youth congress. Here she aroused umbrage when, speaking on "Jobs and Opportunity for Youth," she mentioned national defense.

"We want jobs—not defense!" screamed a young man from the peanut gallery.

Mrs. Roosevelt paused, looked up thru the packed gallery and directed her remarks to all.

"I am perfectly willing to answer questions," she said. "I am perfectly willing to be hissed or booed, but I have been asked to speak and while I speak, I hope you will hear me out."

Ends Life with Gas

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Helen Derby, divorced wife of Burgess Meredith, actor, who ended life with gas yesterday in New York.

New York, April 13 (AP).—After penciling a will and a last minute footnote on a calendar, Mrs. Helen Derby Meredith, divorced first wife of Actor Burgess Meredith, died today from gas poisoning in the kitchen of her Washington square apartment. She leaves a 12 year old daughter by her first husband.

"I leave all I have to Ted and Ruth Michel, 325 West 13th street," police said the will read. "My bank accounts, etc., and all my furniture, too. One o'clock. Helen."

And then this later notation:

"Feeling fine except for fumes. [Signed] H."

Police said they learned that Mrs. Meredith, the daughter of Harry L. Derby of Montclair, N. J., president of the American Cyanamid and Chemical corporation, had been under the care of a psychiatrist, and was particularly depressed by receipt of a letter yesterday from a Kenneth Frank stating they should end their friendship because her social views were too liberal.

Policeman Shot by Bandit Leaves Hospital Tomorrow

Sergt. Michael Curtin, who was shot by a bandit at 48th street and Drexel boulevard on March 8, is expected to leave the Chicago hospital for home tomorrow. Dr. Andrew Toman, chief surgeon of the bridewell hospital, who has been attending him, said he had shown much improvement. Curtin is a former bodyguard of Mayor Kelly. He shot and wounded his assailant, Andrew Foster, colored.

EIGHT NEW PRESS UNITS PURCHASED BY THE TRIBUNE

Equipment Required for Expanding Circulation.

To care for its expanding circulation and numerous editions, THE TRIBUNE yesterday ordered eight new press units and a folder, which will be in service by Oct. 1. Cost of the improvement, including special foundations for the press, will be approximately $375,000.

With this addition, the Tribune plant will have 110 press units. Fourteen are designed for high speed color printing. The customary proportion of one color unit to seven black and white units was maintained in the new eight unit press. One unit is equipped for color. Used for black and white work the new press is capable of printing 50,000 copies an hour of a 56 page paper.

One Break with Past.

In one way, however, the press will represent a break with the past. Its power drive will be operated by alternating electrical current. All other presses in the plant use direct current. Tribune engineers said that only in the last few years have alternating current drives and controlers been developed to a point where they are practicable for newspaper presses. The new motors will have special brakes and controls to insure proper acceleration and deceleration.

This is the first time an alternating current drive has been tried on a press with so many units. The experts believed that all presses eventually will have this drive.

Rolls Put On Automatically.

Modern improvements on the new units include paper reels with automatic paster and tension controls. These are so designed that when a roll of paper is exhausted another is fed in automatically at full press speed.

The new press will be installed in that part of the black press room under the W-G-N studio. To conform with a long range program of press expansion, several old units will be relocated. The special foundations are being put in to do away with vibrations that might interfere with radio broadcasting facilities.

MA! SHE'S MAKING EYES AT POST OF GOVERNOR AGAIN

Austin, Tex., April 13 (AP).—The political team of Miriam A. and James E. Ferguson is taking the field once more, and soon over Texas' hills and plains will be ringing the battle cry of their followers: "Me for ma!"

"Ma" Ferguson.

Thru her husband Mrs. Ferguson announced her candidacy for the governorship today, asserting the condition of the state demanded action to restore sanity and prosperity.

It will be the fifth time Mrs. Ferguson, now 64 and a grandmother, has campaigned for governor. Twice she was elected and twice she was defeated. Called "Ma" because of her initials, she was the first woman in the United States to be elected a governor.

Since she retired at the end of her second term in 1935 she has been living in Austin, exhibiting little interest in politics.

BEAT NEW DEAL IN DRIVE TO CURB BUREAU POWERS

Foes Bring Out Bill After 66 Days' Delay.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—After 66 days of desperate maneuvering by administration forces to prevent action at this session, the Walter bill curbing federal administrative agencies will be brought to the floor of the house Monday for consideration. Following two or three days of debate, it is expected to pass despite determined New Deal opposition.

The measure has been termed the most sweeping to come before congress in many years. Its provisions are more restrictive of administrative absolutism than the proposed limitations on the powers of the National Labor Relations board and other agencies.

New Dealers Caught Napping.

The bill slipped thru the senate last year while the Democratic leadership was napping. It was called back at the insistence of Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], the senate whip. Therefore, it must be reconsidered by the senate after it receives approval in the house.

Both senate and house judiciary committees reported the bill favorably. The house rules committee gave it the green light last Feb. 7. Chairman Adolph J. Sabath [D., Ill.] pocketed the special rule, however, and was intent upon keeping it sewed up.

Finally Democratic Majority Leader Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.], apprised that a revolt was brewing among conservative Democrats, told Sabath to release it for consideration.

Provides Judicial Review.

The real author of the bill sponsored by Representative Francis E. Walter [D., Pa.], is said to be the American Bar association's committee on administrative law. It provides an opportunity for individuals to appeal from the rules, regulations, orders, and decisions of agencies which now, in many cases, are final.

Administrative rules, under the bill, must be issued within one year after enactment of the statute upon which they are based. Such rules may be issued only after public notice and hearings.

The federal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is given authority to determine whether any rule is in conflict with the constitution or the statute under which it was issued. The measure provides a uniform procedure for appealing decisions or orders of federal agencies to federal Courts of Appeal.

In recommending passage of the bill, the house judiciary committee reported:

Hint at Additional Curbs.

"The law must provide that the governors shall be governed and the regulators shall be regulated, if our present form of government is to endure. Of course, any procedure for hearing affords an opportunity for delay. No one questions that an autocrat, if benevolent, may not be the most effective administrator, but the United States government is not founded on autocracy."

The committee also expressed the opinion that, unless a more efficient administration of the federal government can be obtained in accordance with law, it may become necessary to provide that all officers and employés of federal administrative agencies who receive more than a stated minimum salary shall hold office for comparatively short terms and be approved by the senate before going on the payroll.

STRIKE SETTLED IN ST. CHARLES METALS PLANT

Rival Unions Vote to Go Back to Work.

Settlement of the strike which has interfered with the operations of the St. Charles Manufacturing company since last Jan. 8 was announced yesterday by Robert MacNeille, president of the company.

Two American Federation of Labor unions of machinists and blacksmiths called the strike in a dispute with an independent union over which should be recognized as the bargaining agent for the company's employés. The two A. F. of L. unions voted yesterday to return to work tomorrow with the dispute unsettled. The company makes sheet metal equipment.

Goon Terrorism Charged.

Charges were made repeatedly that labor goons were imported to terrorize working employés. Violence resulted and numerous arrests were made. Criminal and contempt proceedings are pending against more than 30 alleged terrorists, some of them employés.

Disposition of most of these cases is expected this week. What attitude the company will take was not made known definitely. A conference will be held today to determine the company's position.

"We are not taking a stand either against or for the men cited," said MacNeille. "We will let the law take its course."

Pledges to Prosecute.

State's Attorney Charles A. O'Connor of Kane county indicated, however, a more definite stand. He announced he personally would prosecute in the Kane County court two strikers charged with assault, whose cases are scheduled to come up on Thursday before Magistrate Harry Olson in St. Charles.

A. J. Eberhardy, an international organizer for the blacksmiths, who has been directing the strike, said the men voted 3 to 1 yesterday to return to work. He indicated that the National Labor Relations board will be asked to settle the jurisdictional dispute.

"We agreed to rehire the strikers without discrimination but without recognition of any union group," MacNeille said. "The picket lines have been withdrawn and men, about 30 of them, will be put to work Monday."

Enjoin Strike Violence.

Soon after the strike began the St. Charles company obtained an injunction prohibiting the strikers from intimidating, coercing, or otherwise interfering with those who remained at work. The injunction was granted by Judge Frank W. Shepherd in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva.

Two groups of strikers, of 14 and 18 men, have been cited for contempt of court for violating the injunction. These cases were to be heard tomorrow by Judge Shepherd, but the union attorneys demanded a change of venue. Judge Shepherd granted the change to the Elgin city court.

Justice of the Peace W. H. Johnson of Wheaton is scheduled to hear charges of assault against 9 of the group of 14 men involved in the civil contempt proceedings. No date has been set for the hearing.

Johnson also is scheduled to hear charges of assault with a deadly weapon against Walter MacNeille, secretary of the St. Charles plant, who allegedly fired a tear gas gun at some of the strikers. This hearing is to be held tomorrow morning.

LAKE COUNTY'S SHERIFF TO GET FBI TRAINING

Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy of Lake county will enroll tomorrow in the federal bureau of investigation police school in Washington, D. C. We was one of 30 law enforcement officers of the nation chosen by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the bureau, to attend the bureau's 12 week spring school.

The Lake county board of supervisors in Waukegan authorized the sheriff to accept the invitation after William W. Steele, chairman, told the members that the honor was a signal one, conferred upon Sheriff Kennedy for his success in fighting crime.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Walter L. Atkinson will be acting sheriff. Kennedy will return to Waukegan by airplane when office duties require his presence.

OPEN VERDICT IN DEATH.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned an open verdict in the death of Edward Parker, 57 years old, 3 North Green street, who died of a skull fracture in County hospital four days ago.

Free Tomorrow

JOAN CRAWFORD.

Hollywood, Cal., April 13 [Special].—Joan Crawford, motion picture star formerly married to Franchot Tone and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., will be free to wed again when Superior Judge John Beardsley signs her final petition of divorce Monday in Domestic Relations court.

Miss Crawford, who has declared that "There is not the slightest possibility of my going to the altar at any time in the near future," has been seen frequently with Charles Martin, film writer.

They were reported engaged at various times, but neither would confirm rumors they were to marry.

PROSECUTOR'S AID NAMED FOR QUIZ IN GOON SLAYING

Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford has been assigned to investigate activities of labor goons in the strike at the American Needle and Novelty company hat manufacturing plant at 2331 North Washtenaw avenue. In making this announcement yesterday, First Assistant Wilbert F. Crowley pledged "hearty coöperation" with police to quell the violence.

Three employés were attacked Tuesday when they left the plant, and an independent trucker carrying the firm's goods and his helper were beaten. Seven men were arrested by Shakespeare avenue police, but two of the victims refused or were unable to identify them.

Attorney Harold M. Keele, counsel for the company, said last night that he is preparing to oppose a motion to dissolve an injunction issued by Judge John C. Lewe in Superior court Wednesday, restraining the union from violence and mass picketing at the plant. The union is the United Hatters, Cap, and Millinery workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

MAP SHOWDOWN ON CARROZZO'S LABOR CZARDOM

the city and Carrozzo and his allies in the alleged paving trust broke into the open when Hewitt determined that the Illinois Paving company had bid for the entire 100,000 tons of asphalt, which is more than its plant can turn out. Bids of 10 other companies were higher, running 26 to 45 cents a ton above the Illinois company offer of $6.40 a ton for top dressing asphalt and $5.40 a ton for binder asphalt.

Hewitt apparently reasoned that the Illinois Asphalt company planned to sublet part of its contract. The sub-contractor, of course, would supply the product at a lower price to the Illinois company. Hewitt, it is reported, determined to get that lower price for the city.

After Hewitt had gone before the city council and thus indicated he meant business, three companies—the American Asphalt Paving company, the Sensibar Engineering and Paving company, and White Consolidate, Inc.—came in with bids below that of the Illinois Asphalt company. These companies had been among the high bidders in the first bidding. By getting them informally to agree to bid less than $6.40 a ton, Hewitt affected a saving of nearly $10,000 for the city.

Fight Expected Tuesday.

It is expected that the Carrozzo fight will be transferred to the city council chambers Tuesday. At that time there will be a showdown between Carrozzo and the city officials. Aldermen were confident last night that the czar of the street laborers and the big International Hod Carriers, Building and Construction Laborers' union will meet his first setback in many years of increasingly widespread control of paving and other street work in Chicago.

Aldermen say that before the fight is ended Carrozzo's right to dominate these unions will be explored, and that influences boosting the cost of paving and paving material will be investigated thoroly.

Corporation records in Springfield show that Kart was an incorporator and first president of the Illinois Asphalt company, but he declared yesterday that he had severed all connections with that concern five years ago when he became an appointed official of the Asphalt Workers' union.

Union Scale Cited.

"I have not been with the Illinois Asphalt company since 1935," Kart said. "The inference that the strike is connected with the Illinois Asphalt company is untrue. We warned the city council last December our asphalt workers would go out unless the city paid the union scale. The city isn't paying the scale, and it has hired nonunion workers."

In reply to this, Hewitt said there is no definite union scale for this type of work. He said the council ordinarily attempts to pay the same wages a worker would get at the same job in private employment, but there are no comparable asphalt jobs. There were some nonunion workers employed in the asphalt plants, he said.

Despite Kart's explanation of the strike, Hewitt said no demands have been made by the union.

Hewitt said the city's three asphalt plants, at 15th street and Ashland avenue, 3300 Belmont avenue, and 91st and State streets were closed from December until a week ago Thursday. The workers had only a week's employment when the unexpected strike was called.

U. S. COURT REFUSES TO KILL INDICTMENT IN TILE ANTITRUST CASE

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday overruled defense motions seeking dismissal of antitrust charges against members of the tile industry indicted in the government's investigation of the Chicago building industry. The court also took under advisement arguments on 17 motions asking that the federal prosecutors be ordered to submit bills of particulars on the tile indictment.

The indictment was the first of four voted by a special grand jury which sat here for three months. It names 41 defendants, including 25 individuals, 14 corporations and manufacturers, a trade association, and a union.

Three other indictments voted by the special grand jury, charging antitrust violations in the stone, plywood, and electrical industries, are pending. The building trades grand jury was excused by Leo F. Tierney, special assistant United States attorney general, who is conducting the inquiry, after it had sat its maximum time. The impaneling of a second jury to continue the work is expected next month.

"Do it Better—Do it First"...that's the policy back of Plymouth cars. That's why Plymouth leads in quality...why this year again new thousands of people are changing to Plymouth!

DOWN THROUGH THE YEARS Plymouth has become more and more widely recognized as the "miracle car" of the automobile world—in its great sales gains—in the increasing numbers of people who each year give up their previous preferences to become owners of Plymouth cars—in the pioneering of great engineering advancements that mean bigger and bigger value at low price.

It has been conspicuously true that all low-priced cars built since 1928 owe something to Plymouth!

First low-priced car with hydraulic brakes, Plymouth soon had the public demanding hydraulic brakes as the foremost requirement of a modern low-priced car.

One of the pioneers of the all-steel body, Plymouth set such a high standard of safety that today a low-priced car must have a steel body.

The list is long—oil filter, aluminum alloy pistons, Hypoid rear axle—feature after feature that give more economy, finer performance, greater enjoyment.

When you slip behind Plymouth's wheel—when you get the delightful "feel" of Plymouth's Floating Power performance and discover the joys of its Luxury Ride, you know it is a result of great engineering.

In 1940, Plymouth is again the biggest of "All Three" low-priced cars—it has the longest wheelbase—the roomiest body—the widest seats.

The beauty of Plymouth—its fine upholstery—its big luggage space—its smoothness at every speed—all inspire an eager desire to own it.

Get the whole story of what the 1940 Plymouth gives you. See the Quality Chart at your Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer's—take Plymouth's Luxury Ride. PLYMOUTH DIVISION OF CHRYSLER CORPORATION.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ON GREAT LAKES SET FOR TONIGHT

Call Ignores Warning Walkout Is Illegal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 13.—The Canadian Seamen's union today called a strike of Great Lakes seamen for midnight tomorrow. The walkout order is said to affect 6,500 sailors scheduled to operate 285 ships in the 1940 season.

J. A. Sullivan, the union president, issued the strike call despite a telegraphed warning from W. M. Dickson, Canada's deputy minister of labor, that it is illegal.

Strikers Face Possible Fine.

Under the industrial disputes investigation act, Dickson said at Ottawa, it is illegal to call a strike without first having the dispute dealt with by a board of conciliation.

Every seaman who strikes, Dickson said, is liable on conviction to a fine of $10 to $50 a day for each day he is on strike, and any person encouraging the strike faces a possible fine of $50 to $1,000.

Sullivan set the walkout to coincide with the official opening of what has been expected to be the heaviest shipping season on the lakes since the world war.

More Pay Demanded.

The union, which is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, demands a general wage increase of $15 a month, a closed shop, three extra men for every crew, and a 25 per cent bonus on ships entering belligerents' waters.

Camp Algonquin Gets $25 from Harriet Sayers Fund

A contribution of $25 for the Camp Algonquin fund was received yesterday from the Harriet Sayers Trust fund by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. This brings the camp's current total to $42.70. Camp Algonquin, on the Fox river, is a summer camp for tenement mothers and children. It was established by readers of THE TRIBUNE 30 years ago, and since has been maintained by them.

They were married in Geneseo. Mr. Farber was assessor in Geneseo township for many years. Their only children are Mrs. Jennie Stafford and Charles W. Farber of Geneseo.

ONE WORD COST $1,500, MACARONI MAKER CHARGES

Tenderoni, Inc., of Joliet filed suit in the Circuit court at Joliet yesterday asking $1,500 damages from the Western Union Telegraph company for a wrong word.

The suit alleges that on Sept. 30, 1939, a certain broker in North Dakota wired the Tenderoni people asking them for 3,800 pounds of spaghetti and macaroni to be packaged under the brand-name "Mineopa." When the wire arrived, the suit alleges, it read "Minnesota." The spaghetti and macaroni was accordingly so labeled and shipped.

When it arrived in North Dakota, however, the broker refused it, and Tenderoni, Inc., had to pay freight charges back to Joliet, had to pay for repackaging it and shipping it out again. Cost: $1,500 extra.

FALL KILLS HORTICULTURIST.

Freeport, Ill., April 13 [Special].—John H. Lausch, 65 years old, died last night from injuries incurred a few days ago when he fell down a stairway as he was leaving the city hall after purchasing a motor vehicle license. He was an expert gardener and an authority on flowers.

HERE'S A CIRCUS! IT DOESN'T SEEM TO MISS A TRICK

Like the Others, Greater Olympia Has Everything.

Just about every circus that ever played anywhere—from Chicago to all the Punkin Junctions—is billed as better than any other circus in the world. And circus fans will be glad to know that the Greater Olympia circus, opening next Friday in the Chicago stadium for a 17 day run, is no exception. Its got everything, and admits it.

There are jugglers, clowns, high wire artists, thrill acts, animal acts, lovely equestriennes, ball playing elephants, popcorn, tumblers, "Aussie" [the first boxing kangaroo to play Chicago since 1920], balloons, hundreds of monkeys and other animals, and 64 acts recruited from carnivals and big time circuses thruout the world.

A Complete Malay Village.

Frank Buck will be there with his jungle camp. In addition to a Malay village and two real Malay boys, Buck will be showing more than 350 animals.

Carmichael, star of the new Jack Benny picture, will be there as one of the seven Pallenberg bears. The Loyal dogs and the Powers elephants will exhibit their tricks. Hugo and Mario Zacchini will be shot [together] out of a cannon.

Then there are the Aerial Ballet, the Loyal Repenski riding troupe, the Gretonas, and little Henrico Gretona, 10 years old, appearing for the first time on the high wire [publicly, that is], and, for the stouthearted, Gregoresco, The Man Who Hangs Himself.

Acrobats and Seals.

The Otaris, criss-cross aerial acrobats; the Milos, Marions, Saxons, Walkmirs, and Canestrelli, high perch acts; 39 clowns; "Aqua," smartest seal in the world, and his trainer, pretty Yu Loi San; the Tiebar and the Spiller musical and juggling seals, and the Abdallahs, Marvellettes, and Dowlings, women acrobats, also will appear.

Well, when circus fans add to all those wonders such acts as Latôsça Cannestrelli, 17 years old native of Genoa, Italy, on the bounding rope, and Masie and Brach, a unicycle team, they will have a rough idea of what to expect.

REPAY RAIL WORKERS MILLION IN JOBLESS FEES, COURT ORDERS

Frankfort, Ky., April 13 (AP).—Kentucky's highest court today ordered $1,040,000 collected from railroad workers by the state unemployment commission returned to the workers instead of transferred to the federal government.

The Court of Appeals affirmed Franklin Circuit Judge W. B. Ardery's decision that a legislative act requiring the transfer, on penalty of discontinuance of federal funds for the state commission's administrative costs, was unconstitutional.

Deadline for transfer of the funds is midnight tonight. Attorney General Hubert Meredith said the state commission would notify the Federal Social Security board of the court's decision immediately and attempt to work out an agreement.

Former Music Festival Winners on Concert Bill

Several winners of past Chicagoland Music Festival contests will be among the artists appearing this evening in a concert to be given by the Sarmatia Male chorus, directed by Zdzislaw Skubikowski, in the Polish Women's Alliance hall, 1309 North Ashland avenue. Edward Grabinski will sing with the chorus, and his wife, Maria, will sing several numbers. She will be accompanied by Adeline Preyss, director of the Echo Women's chorus. Henry Banke is president of the male group.

FARMER TO LEARN SOON IF HE'S A FARMER OR NOT

Jonh Jurisch will learn within three weeks whether he or the government owns the 151 acre McHenry county farm that he used to call his. Judge Philip L. Sullivan concluded Federal court hearings in the case yesterday, asked for briefs, and announced he would rule within that time.

The government seized the farm three years ago after finding an illegal still there. Jurisch appealed, asserting that the government might legally seize the still and the property on which it was actually situated, but that the government had no right to take the entire farm.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a new hearing of the complaint on which the government won the farm. Judge Sullivan opened the second hearing last Tuesday.

Ideal

The structure of every successful business is built upon a cornerstone in which is sealed the ideal of the founder. That ideal invariably is to build better. In the piano field BALDWIN has built better. So today, the ideal instrument for musical expression is the BALDWIN. Before you buy we suggest critical comparison.

A CAR THAT PUTS SAFETY FIRST

HUDSON

AMERICA'S SAFEST CAR

FOR YOUR FAMILY'S SAKE INVESTIGATE

Every motorist has a double responsibility: To drive carefully, and to drive a safe car.

The new 1940 Hudson gives you safety features you don't have, and can't get, in any other make of car! A few of these extra protection features are described below.

You get, too, extra beauty, roominess and luxury; easier riding and handling; greater economy, endurance and performance—proved in officially certified tests.

For all these reasons—and especially for its unmatched SAFETY—see and drive HUDSON before you buy any car!

Here's Why* YOU'RE SAFER in a HUDSON

Only Car with PATENTED HYDRAULIC BRAKES—finest of hydraulic brakes (all hydraulics are liquid brakes) plus an automatic reserve mechanical braking system. If your hydraulics should fail, as they can in any car, you just push farther on the same foot pedal and stop. Two braking systems from one foot pedal . . . America's Safest Stopping! IT'S PATENTED.

Only Car with PATENTED AUTO-POISE FRONT WHEEL CONTROL—a revolutionary mechanical safety invention which automatically helps to keep wheels straight on their course, even if a tire blows! Auto-Poise Control really thinks for you—acts quicker than you could act.

Only Car with DASH-LOCKING SAFETY HOOD—hinged at front; even if it's left unlatched, wind can't blow it open . . . just closes it tighter! It locks from a lever inside the car. When your car is locked, your hood is locked . . . protecting engine parts against tampering or theft.

A HUDSON FAMILY IS A PROTECTED FAMILY

FATHER Says:

"I feel a lot easier now that I know my family has the extra protection of the safest car money can buy. I've always preached safety—I practiced it when I bought our Hudson!"

MOTHER Says:

"One reason I like our Hudson is that I can see traffic so much better through the wide windshield. And the car is so very easy to handle, it gives me a feeling of security."

"BUD" Says:

"Now that we have a Hudson, the folks don't worry so much about my driving . . . and that means I have a better time, too! This car can really go; and it really can stop, too!"

REX and SKIPPY don't drive, but . . .

. . . it's a great satisfaction to the whole family to know that these little fellows, who need protection most, are getting, in a Hudson, all the protection a car can give.

DEWEY LEAVING TONIGHT FOR 2D SWING TO COAST

Speaks at Indianapolis Tomorrow Night.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 13 [Special].—Fresh from his triumphs in midwestern primaries, Thomas E. Dewey will start for the west coast tomorrow night on a wide swing in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. Dewey swept the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries in a contest with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and emerged with a huge vote in the Illinois primary where he was unopposed.

Dewey's party will leave New York City early tomorrow evening. The candidate will board the train at Harrisburg, Pa., traveling from Washington where he was a guest at the Gridiron club banquet tonight.

Speaks at Indianapolis.

On this tour the New York district attorney will speak at Indianapolis [Monday night], Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Albuquerque, Los Angeles, Denver, and Wichita. He will also make brief appearances at Des Moines and Marshalltown, Ia. In Indianapolis Dewey will speak in the Butler university fieldhouse under the auspices of the regular Republican organization of Indiana.

Yesterday Dewey's office celebrated the second anniversary of a remarkable record for the suppression of crime. Not a single police officer in New York county has been killed in the line of duty during the last two years. This record does not include the other four boroughs of the city over which Dewey does not have jurisdiction.

Providing the strongest kind of deterrent for would-be killers, Dewey's office during the last two years has convicted a total of 13 gunmen for prior slayings of four policemen. All were given the death penalty.

Gain Committee Control.

On the political side, Dewey's forces gained control of the Republican state committee of New York yesterday at Albany when they elected Edwin F. Jaeckle of Buffalo as state chairman. Steps also were taken toward the ouster of Kenneth F. Simpson as national committeeman. Jaeckle is an active Dewey supporter, while Simpson is not.

Simpson, who has been nursing a grudge for Dewey for some time, has control of 20 New York county delegates to the G. O. P. national convention. The Dewey camp never trusted Simpson to deliver these delegates to the prosecutor when the roll is called.

Nevertheless, Dewey is expected to have a minimum of 75 delegates out of 92 from New York state on the first ballot. Control of the party organization may aid in swinging recalcitrants into line. J. Russel Sprague, Dewey's campaign manager, is being pushed for national committeeman to replace Simpson.

Wife Going to Oklahoma.

On his swing thru the west the candidate will be accompanied part way by Mrs. Dewey and a family friend, Mrs. Carl T. Hogan. They will leave the party at Oklahoma City where Mrs. Dewey's mother, Mrs. Orla Thomas Hutt of Sapulpa, Okla., will meet them. Mrs. Dewey will visit with her parents for several days before returning to New York to take care of her two small boys.

On the night of April 18 Dewey will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Simms at their ranch outside of Albuquerque, N. M. Mrs. Simms is comanager of the Dewey for President campaign.

THREE HOTEL CLERKS HELD UP.

A bandit held up the night clerks in three west side hotels early yesterday. He took $6 and a watch from Edward Muntzel, clerk in the Windsor hotel, 4820 Chicago avenue; $8 at the Norford hotel, 1508 North Pulaski road, and $30 at the Parkgate hotel, 1535 North California avenue.

Republican Rivals Friendly

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (left) of Michigan and Thomas E. Dewey of New York, both candidates for the Republican nomination for President, greeted each other in friendly fashion at the Gridiron club dinner in Washington, D. C., last night.

WHO WILL RULE STATE PARTY BIG QUESTION OF GOP

Springfield Parley to Make Choice.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Illinois Republicans turned their attention yesterday to the next big state event on the political calendar, the state convention in Springfield some time in May.

"In the national picture who is going to control the party in Illinois?" they asked. "What district delegates have been elected and what delegates at large will be named by the state convention? Whom will the 58 delegates elect as national committeeman and committeewoman?"

Interest swung in this direction as the official county canvasses of the vote in the primaries last Tuesday came to a halt for the week-end. Many counties, in their counting, had just reached the district offices which include the delegates to the national convention and these probably will be reached by the tabulators tomorrow.

National Delegate Winners.

In the hurry and excitement of ascertaining the nominees for major public offices such as those of United States senator, governor, and other state officers, party leaders lost track of the contests for posts in their party machinery except those in their own districts.

Altho much of the information is still of an unofficial character, the winners in the national delegate contests—two to each congressional district—now are known.

The fifty believed to have won in the district races, some of whom were unopposed, are:

1.	G. Hellmann	Jacob R. Tipper
2.	L. C. Reid	Daniel P. Trude
3.	W. H. Weber	C. N. Bergstrom
4.	A. W. Sullivan	Anton Haas
5.	S. R. Ballis	P. W. Rothenberg
6.	Julius H. Miner	Joseph A. Coyner
7.	William Busse	W. E. Johnson
8.	W. V. Pacelli	Robert Petrone
9.	E. L. Ryerson	Robert M. Adams
10.	A. D. Lasker	James S. Kemper
11.	Frank R. Reid	James C. Bell
12.	Ernest H. Pool	Ernst E. Smith
13.	J. O. Graham	Harry S. Lowman
14.	C. F. Buck	W. A. Rosenfield
15.	Omer N. Custer	James P. Nielson
16.	B. C. Heacock	Dr. W. C. Steele
17.	Frank L. Smith	E. J. Pacey
18.	Victor McBroom	Karl R. O'Hair
19.	Elmer Haynes	Rolla C. McMillen
20.	C. E. Robinson	E. H. Alexander
21.	B. S. DeBoice	Omer Poos
22.	Dan McGlynn	C. Parker Levis
23.	L. L. Emmerson	G. C. Curtis
24.	A. B. Anderson	Arthur R. Clark
25.	Joe Crain	Cole L. Jones

When the time comes to name the other eight delegates, those speaking for the state at large, the nominee for governor, Dwight H. Green, probably in coöperation with the nominee for United States senator, Wayland Brooks, will have the customary right to dominate the elections.

Pick "Natural" Selections.

Without waiting for that time to arrive, however, many leaders are already picking out the "logical" or "natural" selections for the eight places, designating Republicans distinguished by record of public or party service. The lists differ widely, but they all include Green and Brooks as a matter of course, and a few of the others mentioned are Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President; Otis F. Glenn, former United States senator; C. B. Goodspeed, national committee treasurer, and Hill Blackett, national committeeman.

Blackett is a recognized candidate for election by the convention delegation to the post he now holds by a vacancy appointment from the state central committee after the death of Committeeman George F. Harding last year. While there is no legal prohibition against the election of a national committeeman from outside the delegation, old timers have been unable to recall a case in which the nondelegate was chosen for the national committee honor.

Chief Strength Downstate.

Blackett showed a warm interest in the delegate races downstate early in the campaign. It was recognized that in Cook county nearly all the winners would be those backed by the regular county organization and therefore subject to its control to a large extent. Blackett's support in the state committee when he was elected came largely from downstate. Probably whatever backing he has for a full term will come from that area.

Many of the downstaters, it is known, are not pledged on the national committeeship and are free to follow a Green-Brooks suggestion if one is made. It also is customary for delegates at large to listen to the wishes of those individually responsible for the honor paid them by the party in the state.

In Washington yesterday, Green reaffirmed strongly the position he took frequently during the campaign.

"I was supported by a number of leaders," he said, "but all of them understood that their support of me was not to be used as a stepping stone for their own ambitions."

Green Favored by Blackett.

Blackett let it be known that he favored Green for the governorship, but because of his party office sought to maintain neutrality. He spent nearly all of March in Mexico.

In this direction there has been no decisive development since primary day, but over the week-end, while Green was in Washington, some of Green's closest advisers are said to have considered boosting Capt. Ferre C. Watkins for the national committee place. Watkins managed Green's mayoral campaign last year and was one of the insiders in the recent battle. He was formerly state commander of the American Legion and service men are said to be anxious to see him a candidate.

REPUBLICANS PRAISE GREEN IN WASHINGTON FOR ELECTION VICTORY

Washington, D. C., April 13 [Special].—Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for governor of Illinois, received warm congratulations today from national leaders of his party when he arrived to attend the Gridiron dinner tonight.

Members of the Illinois congressional delegation called on him as soon as they heard he was in town, expressed their pleasure over his victory, and promised their aid in bringing a united party to the polls next November. Among those at a luncheon party in his honor were Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, minority leader of the house, and Congressman Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, vice chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee.

Mrs. Green, a former resident of Washington, also is here, and while her husband was busy with political matters visited with relatives, Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Harris. Mr. and Mrs. Green will leave here tomorrow for a short stay in Florida and expect to return to Chicago early next week.

NOMINATION BID SEEN AS M'NUTT REQUESTS LEAVE

Move Called Omen of 3d Term Refusal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, silver haired favorite son of the Indiana Two Per Cent club, has applied for a leave of absence from his post until after the Democratic convention, it was learned tonight.

An official announcement of the application is to be made by his office Monday or Tuesday. It is expected that white house approval will be obtained.

The announcement is expected to indicate whether McNutt plans to barnstorm for delegates for himself or for President Roosevelt. In his campaign to date McNutt managers have stressed the fact that his candidacy is conditional upon the President's refusal to run for a third term.

Third Term Refusal Seen.

In political circles here it was expected that the Indianan will be out in his own behalf under the conviction that Mr. Roosevelt has no intention of running himself.

This conviction is growing in the capital. More and more administration leaders have been reporting that in conferences the President has hinted he will not run and has expressed a preference for Secretary of State Cordell Hull as his successor.

These leaders acknowledge that the President is being moved to a decision by unfavorable primary returns and that he is still willing to be drafted but wants to be sure the draft will call him and not a Republican to the white house.

No Direct Quote Given.

The leaders are vague when pressed for exact quotes from the President which would support their statements, saying that is was not so much what he said but the way he said it.

These reports, it is believed, worried the former governor of Indiana, who launched his campaign two years ago at one of the most extravagant cocktail parties Washington has ever seen, and induced him to apply for the leave.

He doubtless will try to make a little hay for himself in the fields where Vice President John N. Garner and Postmaster General James A. Farley are active.

Three Weeks' Tour Planned.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 13 (AP).—Frank M. McHale, campaign manager for Security Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, said tonight McNutt would take a three weeks' leave of absence next month to make a campaign tour. He said McNutt would visit the deep south and west.

TELLS LOTTERY PROFIT AIM OF MRS. HARRIMAN

Witness Reveals $30,000 Investment in Scheme.

Santa Fe, N. M., April 13 (AP).—A witness told a federal court jury today that Mrs. Oliver Harriman, New York society leader, hoped to profit from a proposed New Mexico lottery in 1938.

George Perry, former Port Jefferson, N. Y., contractor, testifying at the trial of Mrs. Harriman and four others on charges of conspiracy to transport lottery tickets in interstate commerce, said he and a few personal friends invested $30,000 in the projected sweepstakes.

Before he participated, however, Perry said he talked to Mrs. Harriman in her New York apartment.

No Longer Wealthy.

"I asked her if I could make any money out of it, and Mrs. Harriman replied, 'Yes, and I would like to make some myself'," he testified, adding:

"In effect Mrs. Harriman said that in these times we can all use money, and she explained that she was no longer a wealthy woman as she was sometimes represented as being."

Earlier, former Gov. Clyde Tingley testified he "wasn't too hot about the plan" for raising funds for the crippled children's hospital at Hot Springs, N. M.

Explaining his failure to remember details of conversations with promoters of the sweepstakes, the then governor said "it didn't look as if the state would get much out of it, and I made up my mind to let it alone."

Expected Harriman Gift.

"I thought," he added, "Mrs. Harriman was a wealthy woman, and thru her connections would give the state hospital a lot of money. It was my understanding the lottery was just a build-up."

Mrs. Harriman and her associates in the Harriman Institute for Social Research sought to conduct a $10,000,000 lottery on behalf of the Crippled Children's hospital at Hot Springs, N. M., under authority of an old territorial law. The state Supreme court later ruled the proposal illegal.

The government contends thousands of tickets were printed and that tickets were shipped to New York, Chicago and other cities in violation of federal law.

Luncheon Launches Ticket Sale.

Fred Davis, Port Jefferson, another withness, described a luncheon in a New York hotel to launch a ticket sale drive. At the luncheon were holders of participation certificates in the "Frederick W. Benduhn Associates," an organization headed by Benduhn, director of the Harriman institute, which sponsored the New Mexico lottery plans, and one of the defendants. Davis said the luncheon was planned by Perry and Mary Derieux, another defendant.

Mrs. Harriman spoke, and when she left "bargain" tickets were distributed, Davis testified. "Perry told us we could have a $7 book of tickets for $5," he said. Davis said he took 20 books, but under agreement with Perry returned all except one.

HELD IN FORGERY PLOT EXTENDING OVER FIVE YEARS

Williamsport, Ind., April 13 [Special.]—A Williamsport business man was in jail here today accused of defrauding a loan agency of huge sums over a period of five years during which he allegedly forged the names of Warren county residents to hundreds of promissory notes and mortgages.

The prisoner is Harold N. Brown, owner of a radio and furniture store here and an electrical appliance store at West Lebanon, five miles west of here.

Brown faces two criminal charges and one civil suit based on complaints that he defrauded the Howarth Loan agency at Pine Village, about 10 miles north of here.

Two forgery charges were placed against Brown by State's Attorney Alfred V. Ringer on the complaint of Clyde H. Howarth, who accused the business man of selling the loan agency two notes totaling $475 on which he had forged the names of Ralph Summers and Jerald Travis.

The civil suit was filed the same day, Wednesday, by Clyde Howarth's mother, Mrs. Jessie Howarth, who mother, Mrs. Jessie Howarth, who asked the return of $6,000 she said she had paid for 100 notes which Brown delivered to her on the representation that they had been executed by citizens of the county.

TRAP BRIDEWELL FUGITIVE IN LOOP ON MYSTERY TIP

Walter Noble, 20 years old, who escaped last Thursday over the Bridewell wall with James McDowell, 17, after they tricked a tower guard and knocked him unconscious, was recaptured yesterday as he sat in a taxicab at Washington and Dearborn streets. An anonymous message informed police he would be there to keep an appointment. He was unarmed and did not resist.

Walter Noble.

Noble said he had walked the streets since his escape, sleeping one night in a truck and another under a viaduct, and had panhandled to get money for food. He said he and McDowell parted after their escape and that he did not know McDowell's whereabouts. Noble was sentenced for larceny, and McDowell for tampering with an auto.

Du Page Taverns Raided as Reply to Vote Charges

He said that when he supported Lee Daniels of Elmhurst for the Republican nomination for state's attorney political enemies said that if Daniels were successful the county would run wide open. Daniels won the nomination and Sheriff Hoffman said the raids were his answer to the assertions.

FATAL SLUGGING TRACED TO ROW OVER G. O. P. VOTE

Warned to Cast Ballot for Democrats—or Else.

New City police disclosed yesterday that Vincent Sniegowski was shot and fatally wounded last Tuesday night after he received a warning by a Democratic precinct captain to vote the Democratic ticket in the primary election that day.

In a death-bed statement, according to Detective Otto Katelhut, Sniegowski said that as he went to the polls he was accosted by James Keska, 43 years old, 4805 Justine street, who told him:

"You'd better pledge yourself to Roosevelt or I'll see that you're taken care of."

Strangers Loiter Nearby.

Nearby, Sniegowski said, he saw two men who were strangers. It was these men who, a few hours later, dragged him into an alley on 49th street between Bishop and Laflin streets, where, after a furious struggle, in which he was worsting his assailants, one of the pair shot him in the abdomen. He died Friday night in Holy Cross hospital.

Sniegowski, who was 48 years old, was employed by the Fruin Drop Forge company, 351 Root street. His wife, Frances, operates a tavern at 4859 Bishop street, where the family lives.

Keska, who for seven years had held a job as an assistant city sealer and for the same period was a Democratic precinct captain of the 6th precinct of the 14th ward, but who lost his city job a few months ago, was brought to Sniegowski's room before he died. There Sniegowski identified him as the man who had threatened him as he went to the polls. Sniegowski said that as he was leaving the polls Keska threatened to "send two men after him that night."

Daughter Tells Threat.

Sniegowski first told of the threat as police were taking him to the hospital. He repeated the story to his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Kern when she visited him in the hospital. Mrs. Kern also told Capt. John McGinnis that her father had told her and her husband, James, of the threat when he returned from the polls.

Sniegowski asserted the argument began in the polling place when Keska accused him of intending to vote Republican. Sniegowski asserted that he voted the Democratic ticket and that he advised Keska to ask poll officials what party ballot he had asked for. But Keska, according to Capt. McGinnis, refused to be mollified because another member of Sniegowski's family had voted Republican.

Thoro Quiz Promised.

Assistant States' Attorney Morris G. Meyers said that Keska, since his arrest, had admitted that he thought Sniegowski was a Republican, altho the prisoner now denies this.

"This case will be thoroly investigated," Meyers promised. "Any attempt to dictate the way a citizen votes by threats of force or resort to murder strikes directly at democratic liberties."

An inquest into Sniegowski's death was continued until May 8 to permit further search for the two slayers. Keska, who had previously been booked on a charge of accessory before and after the fact of assault, was booked on a charge of accessory bebefore and after the fact of murder. Keska said he had merely said hello to Sniegowski when they met.

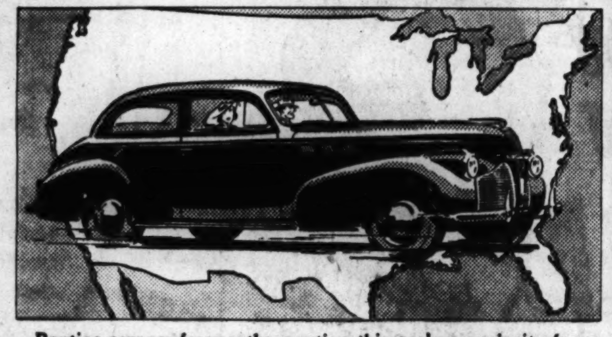
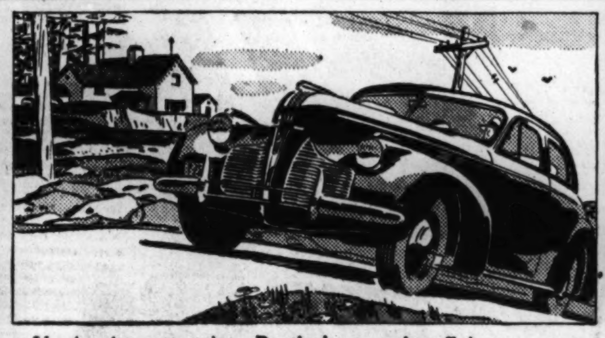
"500 MILES TODAY AND I FEEL FIT AS A FIDDLE!"



Pontiac owners frequently mention this car's superiority for long distance travel. They're the same miles but they seem shorter, and they're more delightful, in a Pontiac.

As Pontiac owners compare notes with other drivers on their trips, they also discover that few others can match Pontiac's gasoline and oil economy (18 to 24 miles per gallon).



Up in the mountains, Pontiac's smooth, efficient power-packed engine really thrills you by the way it "goes to town." And Pontiac's handling ease stops driving fatigue before it starts!

And whether you go across town or 500 miles a day, it's a shorter trip in a Pontiac with Pontiac's marvelous "Triple-Cushioned" ride!

*Special Six 2-Door Touring Sedan, as Illustrated $838

IF YOU LIKE TO get out and see the country, go in a Pontiac and travel de luxe!

Pontiac's "Triple-Cushioned" ride and big, wide seats bring every passenger in at night feeling fine and ready to go again at the first crack of dawn.

Pontiac's noteworthy steering ease, its big-car road balance, and the super quietness of Pontiac's power-packed engine save wear and tear on driver's nerves.

And it's more economical to go in a Pontiac. Owners report 18 to 24 miles to a gallon of gas—and never a drop of oil in between the regular oil changes. You'll like Pontiac's price, too. It's right down with the lowest!

THE LESSON OF THE DEBTS.

The sixth plank in THE TRIBUNE'S Platform for America when it comes to notice these days causes feelings which are inadequately described as decidedly mixed. During the years that slogan has been flying at the masthead world events have dumfounded all except the unemotional and undeceivable realist who did not believe that power politics had been swept off the earth by altruistic peoples. The realist is never a very popular fellow and no doubt he dislikes his own conclusions.

There were 15 debtors in the settlement which scaled the obligations down and incorporated them into a 62 year agreement. Of these five—Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, and Jugo-Slavia—were the prearmistice or war debtors. Their obligations, prior to funding, amounted to over 8 billion dollars. The other 10 got their financial assistance after the armistice. Such postarmistice aid was also given the war debtors, and the total amounted to nearly 4 billion dollars, making the sum of the original account, including, of course, accrued interest, 12 billion. The debt settlements scaled this amount down 43.1 per cent, leaving it 6 billion 878 million.

Let's look at what has happened to these war and postwar debtors who, with the exception of Finland, have defaulted in their payments. Austria has lost its independence and has been incorporated in Hitler's reich. Czecho-Slovakia has been dismembered and its constituent parts are Nazi protectorates. Estonia and Latvia have been put under soviet military control. Poland has been overrun and destroyed, suffering its fourth partition under the knives of Hitler and Stalin. Finland, attacked by Stalin, was forced to make a bad peace and was stripped of much territory.

France and Great Britain are again at war with their enemy, Germany. Belgium, Greece, Hungary, Lithuania, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia are in a frightened state of armed neutrality, slowly exhausting their resources in attempts to defend themselves against attacks they daily expect.

The goods the United States poured into Europe, first to make that continent safe for democracy and then, when the war had been won, to feed its people, remove the physical wreckage, and raise up impoverished and shattered nations, has gone for nothing. A 12 billion dollar investment in the better way of life for Europe—and that is precisely what the majority of the American people thought it was—was sunk in an idealistic adventure which ends in a second catastrophe, threatening a greater prostration than the first. The new crop out of the soil America tried to enrich for better products is again a crop of war and bankruptcy.

We do not intend to reproach the peoples of Europe with this. It would be useless to do so and it would not accord with the policy to which America must now adhere. To the extent that these peoples have not been able to control their governments and keep their national life from drifting into violence, they are responsible. It is a responsibility which Americans refuse again to share.

We may look at the plank, "Collect the International Debts," with a wry smile, but should recognize its worth as a reminder. The debts only partly represent the investment America made in its idealization of European prospects. There were our own war expenditures and, more important than anything else, there was the expenditure of men. We enriched European soil with more than the money of America. Lives were sacrificed to a belief that the world could be remade. If it had been, we might have said the expenditure, sad as it was on its human side, had brought commensurate gains and rewards.

The Europe which could not pay its debts is now fated to accumulate more of them. Many reasons have been assigned to explain the default which occurred before the signs of the present collapse were well outlined, and with these explanations it is unnecessary now to waste time. Whatever they are worth, they will apply to any future undertaking of the sort. If default was inevitable in one instance, it will be inevitable in another and we understand that now. Part of our understanding is represented by the Johnson law prohibiting loans to governments in default.

It may be remarked, however, that when suggestions are made in congress that two of the debtors, France and Great Britain, could satisfy some of the obligations by transferring to American jurisdiction imperial possessions in American waters there is a haughty silence from the debtors and our own government takes on an expression of shamed dismay that any one should suggest such a thing. So we get nowhere with that reasonable proposal except to irritate our own government, from Mr. Roosevelt down, and to be stared at icily by the proud defaulters across the water.

The plank is a valuable one. We'll not get the money. We may never get anything in satisfaction of these debts but they are there to remind us, when people seek a repetition of that adventure, of just how we came out and how Europe came out when we went abroad in shining armor the other time.

TWO IFS IN NORWAY.

The Norwegian war may well be the crucial event in the struggle for domination of Europe. Leaving aside other aspects, the extension of war to Scandinavia has so many potentialities from the military standpoint alone that it is fruitless to attempt comment on the basis of present obscure and frequently conflicting reports.

It does seem possible, however, to advance two general propositions. The two theaters of war in Norway offer serious tests of the effectiveness of two of the principal instruments of the war, the British fleet and the German air force.

Off the long stretch of Norway's Atlantic coast line the odds now seem to be all with the British fleet. It can be assumed that reinforcement by sea of the Nazi's Trojan horse contingents that seized the western ports is impossible, while early reinforcement overland from southern Norway does not seem likely at the moment. Under these circumstances if the British fleet cannot convoy and land sufficient forces to retake and hold the ports of Narvik, Trondhjem, Bergen, and Christiansand the effectiveness of Britain's chief defense force will be opened to most serious doubt.

Within the Skagerrak the odds are all on the other side. German surface warships are negligible if the British are willing to risk their battle fleet, as it seems they are doing, but submarines offer a peril and mines an even greater one. The British took great risks in dashing in to smash the German troop convoy, as they say they did.

But the most effective German weapon in this area is the air force. Its bases are near by, the British bases far away. If the German air force cannot prevent the British fleet from operating in the Skagerrak, blockading the fjord leading to Oslo and thus cutting off the German forces that have seized Norway's capital, then the weapon with which Hitler has been threatening Europe for two years will be shown to have a dull edge, after all.

THIS AMERICAN REPUBLIC.

A southern statesman the other day impatiently gave out that he was tired of so much talk about democracy—meaning the lower case, not the upper case "d." He said that the founding fathers had established a republic—lower case "r"—and intended it to be governed from the top. He is for a republic governed by the southern Democratic party. The gentleman has gone a little way toward the light, but a little way is probably as far as he'll go. Traditional inhibitions will keep him from joining what we trust will be a majority in November who believe this should be a republic governed according to the ideas and principles of the rank and file of the Republican party and to the welfare of all.

Altho our southern friend's idea of a republic as a form of government in which plebians are controled by the equestrian classes is moldy with time, he touches something when he questions the substitution of the word "democracy" for the word "republic" in our conception of what we have. Democracy has ceased to be a term truly distinguishing a form of government.

If Russia under Stalin is a democracy then the word is useless to describe what is to be preserved here. Stalin's herds of submissive political cattle are supposed to have the apparatus of democracy with the vote and the representative assembly, which is just so much farce. It all sums up to the Kremlin dictatorship and operates by putting a pistol at the back of the victim's neck and pulling the trigger.

Hitler and Mussolini don't pretend that they are running democracies. They say that democracy is worthless and won't work. Hitler, however, does not call either Great Britain or France a democracy; he calls them plutocracies. When Mussolini calls them democracies he does so in ridicule.

The war has revealed that Great Britain never was much of a democracy as we used to understand the word. The distinction between the United States and Great Britain is not made if both countries are to be called democracies, a term which has no reality in such application. The difference is stated when the United States is called a republic and Great Britain the founder and controling part of an empire, an empire with a royal family and a ruling caste whose dominance may be modified but certainly is not suppressed by the votes of the enfranchised citizens.

France is an empire with certain characteristics of democratic, representative government, which is suspended in emergency and frequently has been dispersed by historical change. Here in the United States the New Deal, making much of the word "democracy," has been headed away from the republican form of government from its beginning in 1933 and is now seeking to break down the republican tradition by putting Mr. Roosevelt back in the White House for a third term as an indispensable man. The American republic has never conceded the indispensability of any occupant of the White House. The logical consequence of that is life tenure with its probable finale of hereditary succession.

There is no place for the republic in the New Deal planned society. It would not be preserved by calling it a democracy.

THE ARRESTATION OF TWO BELGIAN BANDITS.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

The estimable M. Pum Fritt, who occasionally translates French dispatches for us, hands in the following account of the arrest of two French bandits from the Paris evening paper Paris Soir:

"At Vizille, the dawn came to be born and the superb landscape emerged from a silvery mist. Everywhere, in that bucolic setting, men were going about, muskets on their arms. On roads still kissed with the dew they had erected in haste barricades. In effect, night before last, at Sennecey-the-Grand, in the Saone-and-Loire department, Mr. John Roullé, employé of a garage in Bourg-on-Bresse, had been stuck up by two motorists.

"This morning the gendarmes of Vizille saw in the ditch a vehicle which appeared to be abandoned. They threw a stroke of the eye toward the deserted landscape—at far, two men were putting themselves in flight across fields.

"The gendarmes summoned them to stop themselves, then launched in their pursuit, ready to shoot. But the flighters were run down; at the end of a quarter of an hour of chase they allowed themselves to be arrested without resistance. The pair admitted at once that they were auto bandits. Are they the authors of all the 12 holdups committed since a fortnight? That would be premature to say. At any rate, the two are Belgians, Edouard Van Meenem, 20, and François Peers, 21. They had revolvers and pistols of Belgian make and in the automobile were found four daggers of a type unknown to France.

"But the arrestation of these bandits should not give the police an excuse for taking their repose. It is hoped they will make other investigations."

WAR PINCHES THE NEUTRALS

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia.—To take your family for a drive on Sunday is against the law in Jugo-Slavia. To get a taxi after 10 p. m. in Bulgaria you must present a doctor's certificate that you cannot walk. In Hungary the family car can be used while the gasoline holds out, but gasoline is strictly rationed, allowing about 100 miles a month for a small car. These are among the unexpected effects of the war on neutrals.

Gasoline, of course, has its military uses. What has puzzled and annoyed neutrals even more is the sudden and disastrous effect of war on the comparatively harmless habit of drinking coffee.

"Have you any coffee or tea?" is the first question the customs men ask now at most frontiers. Coffee especially has displaced tobacco and alcohol as the smuggler's favorite stock in trade. The country you are leaving will not let it be taken out, and the country you are entering wants to profit not only by the duty but by a tax.

Coffee is no longer a near-necessity, as in America; it has become a luxury in the caviar class. In some countries it is not to be had at any price. In some it is rationed, and in some, tho it can still be had, the quality is bad. Europeans are drinking everything from peanuts to barley, from acorns to beans, roasted black and steeped in boiling water, and calling it coffee.

In Spain for nearly a year coffee had been almost unknown until shipments began recently to get thru. Café auténtico [real coffee] was sought after like a rare gem. The normal drink was malta, an evil tasting concoction of burned malt that fooled nobody's palate.

Now the blight has moved eastward. Germany, of course, has been short on coffee for some time, and Vienna, where coffee drinking was almost the national sport and the coffee was superb, has had to learn to do without.

Italy felt the pinch, too, since coffee had to be imported, and banned it last fall. Even in the diners of international trains coffee disappeared until the train pulled out of Italy. Now that favorite drink has returned again, but it is carefully rationed at a rate that allows about one small cup a day for each person.

In Hungary there is good coffee for those who can pay for it. A small cup of after-dinner coffee costs 20 cents in a modest restaurant, half as much as a luncheon. In a good hotel it costs from 30 to 50 cents. At retail a pound of coffee costs about $4.

Rumania still has coffee and the price has not risen to more than double what it normally was, about 50 to 60 cents a pound. That is due to government control of prices. But storekeepers say the stocks will not last long and there will be no more, or very little. Already they are authorized to mix 10 per cent of adulterants in their coffee. They may use roasted wheat or barley, rye, corn, nuts, or even burned bread crumbs.

Bulgaria has managed so far to avoid rationing and substitutes. In Bulgarian cafés there is still good coffee and plenty of it. The Bulgars are particular about their coffee, which they usually drink Turkish style—a tiny cup of strong coffee with the bottom full of the pulverized grounds. In Bulgaria the customer does not merely order coffee; he specifies that it is to be very sweet or very bitter, very weak or very strong, or medium. The Bulgarians still get it as they order it, but coffee is no longer taken for granted. They wonder how long they will keep on having it, and discuss the question earnestly.

Gasoline restrictions are severe, but easier to put up with because the need for them is easier to understand. Gasoline is needed in every country fo- the army, for self-protection if need arises, while the coffee shortage is due to the intricacies of tariff and barter arrangements and the reluctance of governments to let cash leave their countries.

Rumania alone has no gasoline restrictions. She produces three times as much gasoline as she uses, and since the war began has not been able to ship out all of the surplus because of transport difficulties. Taxis are plentiful and cheap in Bucharest and anybody who can afford to buy a car can afford to run it as much as he wants. A gallon of gasoline costs roughly 20 cents, of which about 17 cents is tax.

In Bulgaria, where there is no native gasoline, there is strict rationing. Most of the people cannot afford cars anyway, as the country is extremely poor. There are taxis in Sofia, but anybody traveling after 10 p. m. has to depend on horse drawn cabs. The use of taxis at night is forbidden except in emergencies. Then the cab must be called by the police when they are satisfied it is needed.

During the week there are plenty of cars in Belgrade, but at noon on Saturday most of them are put away for the week-end. Since last November there has been a law against using cars on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. Like Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia has to import her gasoline and cannot afford to bid against Germany's determined buyers. As a conservation measure the government forbids joyriding on week-ends and gives special permits to those who must use their cars. Taxis are allowed to operate, but the fare is some 30 cents a mile, compared with about 10 cents in Rumania. Private cars can have only 4½ gallons of gasoline a month.

Hungary has put no restrictions on the use of cars, but rations gasoline. Taxis charge about 30 cents a mile and buses are becoming constantly more popular.

Editorial of the Day

A NATION OF PANHANDLERS.

[Pine Bluff (Ark.) Commercial.]

Are the people of this nation becoming plain, ordinary panhandlers—beggars from government? Individuals, towns, cities and states have their hands out for federal alms.

By accepting these alms they are gradually giving up individual, civic, and state rights and building a federal overlordship that will make them mere pawns of government.

We like to talk about our democracy and pity the people of countries where liberty has been crushed, when we ourselves are giving up our freedom for a mess of federal "handouts" that are mortgaging our future for generations to come.

Civic organizations have become beggars, great industries have become beggars, cities and states have become beggars at the public trough. Then after accepting public charity and injecting government into their local and personal affairs, they cry because government in business is being so rapidly extended that it is wiping out free enterprise.

Don't blame anybody but yourself when you feel the jaws of officialism close on you, if you have countenanced or accepted federal alms for projects which would have been handled by courageous, intelligent and self-respecting citizens in the past.

This country hasn't changed fundamentally in spite of all the theoretical prattle to the contrary; opportunities are still countless for young and old.

What has changed is our backbone and our pride. We are becoming a nation of "sissies" who cry for help at the slightest provocation and want to be coddled as incompetents.

By our actions we are admitting that we are no longer capable of self-government or private management of our own affairs. We are asking for political dictatorship and we will have no one but ourselves to blame if we get it.

Any one with a thimbleful of brains knows that when you borrow money the lender gets in the driver's seat. When you become a beggar the giver controls your actions. When you beg or borrow from the government you give up your birthright as a free citizen—you begin to exist for the government rather than the government existing for you.

VITAMIN B AND GRAYING HAIR.

WHAT causes the hair to become gray? The answer to this question has long been sought. Among our friends there are many whose raven locks have silvered prematurely. With others the natural shade will persist thruout life—even into the eighth decade.

Recent studies from nutrition laboratories have shed some light on the problem. Only a year or two ago it was discovered that the early loss of coloring material could be prevented and cured thru the feeding or the injection of vitamin B2 complex. The water soluble residue of yeast, liver, or rice bran will yield this important substance.

Later research conducted by Morgan and Simms has added considerable new information. They devised a deficiency diet [lacking in one of the fractions of B] for young rats and maintained these menus until maturity was attained. Within 60 to 70 days thereafter the fur became dry and brittle, finally releasing its pigment. The changes were noted first on top of the head and along the sides of the body. Other rodents placed on a regular régime showed no alterations—keeping their glossy black coats.

Furthermore, numerous other signs of improper nutrition became manifest. Skin lesions appeared with areas of baldness. Unless full rations were resumed promptly these animals did not live long. Another indication of trouble was the formation of ulcers which usually began about the base of the tail. With the raw patches definitely spreading, the filtrate part from brewer's yeast was fed in huge doses, whereupon the ulcers began to dry, scar tissue was produced, and—within 60 days—healing was complete.

Another interesting fact brought out by this study was that the glandular system suffered under this sparse diet. Damage to the thyroid as well as to the adrenals was exhibited. These latter structures lie adjacent to the upper region of the kidneys and influence health profoundly.

In these experiments it was found that there was some variation in potency between different brands of yeast. Extracts made from molasses [sugar cane] and alfalfa—while causing rapid growth and other phases of development—relieved the graying process but slightly. But when the rice bran and liver portions were included, dark hair returned.

Our authors carried their work still further—using guinea pigs, dogs, and foxes. Within two to four months two black Boston terriers turned reddish brown, first noticeable on the back of the neck, around the eyes, and under the chin. As these pets seemed to be perfectly healthy and contented the diet was persisted in until the discoloration had extended over the entire body. Nine months later, concentrated yeast preparations were employed and—within a few weeks—renewal of the normal hue was observed.

We may assume from these investigations that special extracts of rice bran, yeast, and liver not only will ease symptoms of food insufficiency but will restore normal skin and the pigment to hair. Apparently a factor exists in these materials the absence of which will explain the trouble—in part, at least. This disturbance may occur even tho the individual is on a standard diet because the absorption of B may be substantially below par.

Reënforcing B elements in our meals may decrease those instances of youthful whitening which we see now and then. At any rate we may assume that the "grizzling" will be delayed—perhaps for a long time. But we need not expect these newly discovered nutriments to recondition the tresses overnight. We can, however, keep in mind this property of B and make certain that our meals supply a generous amount.

FLAT FEET.

Mrs. H. writes: My 2 year old daughter has flat feet. Since the age of 1 she has worn shoes with wedges on the inner sides—prescribed by our physician. The condition has not improved any. Is there anything else that can be done?

REPLY.

The condition is common in young children and no immediate concern need be felt. Allow her to run and play as much as she will. Later, special exercises may be helpful.

CHILD'S TEETH.

Mrs. B. writes: My son's baby teeth were sound and healthy and—up to the age of 8—his second teeth had no cavities. At that time I boarded him in the country and now—at 13—they are badly decayed. His general health is good. What could be the cause?

REPLY.

Insufficient lime, phosphorus, or vitamin D. Cod liver oil and more milk should be employed.

TRENCH MOUTH.

Mrs. J. G. writes:
1. What causes trench mouth?
2. How can it be cured?

REPLY.

1. A corkscrewlike organism.
2. Trench mouth [Vincent's angina] is highly contagious and should be treated with skill. Special medication may be advised by your physician. A mouth wash that contains hydrogen peroxide or sodium perborate will be helpful.

PREGNANCY.

Mrs. B. writes: Can one become pregnant after the removal of the right tube?

REPLY.

TODAY IN HISTORY

April 14, 1865

President Lincoln shot in his box at Ford's theater, Washington, by John Wilkes Booth. The play was "Our American Cousin." Booth stealthily entered the box and discharged his pistol at the back of Lincoln's head. Then, dramatically flourishing a huge knife, he leaped from the box to the stage and made his escape in the resulting confusion. Actors in the wings, however, recognized him as Booth the actor, member of a famous stage family. Lincoln was carried unconscious from the theater to a boarding house across the street, where he died the following morning. Twelve days later Booth was found hiding in a barn and was shot.

AMERICA'S STRENGTH.

Downers Grove, Ill., April 9.—On the train coming in this morning a leather lunged business man was telling all and sundry that "we were getting into it." It developed that the L. L. B. M. was ballyhooing in behalf of England. Well, this is a free country, and it is good to let such guys talk. My own idea is that they are enemies of our country and ought to be put in concentration camps, but that idea doesn't square up with democracy, so we'll pass it up.

Your paper, Mr. Editor, could render another great service by running authoritative stories showing how impregnable the United States is. In simple language that even a L. L. B. M. could understand you might show by charts and graphs of various kinds that a victorious Hitler has as much chance of launching an attack on the United States as my revered maiden aunt has of playing left field for the Yankees. You'd be astonished to know that the propaganda of the empires is existing on the abysmal military ignorance of many of our best people. DOUGHBOY.

SITE FOR AN ISLAND AIRPORT.

Chicago, April 6.—Today's TRIBUNE announces that the city council has approved of the small triangular airport on an island off Northerly Island in the lake. It seems strange that the council should be so lacking in vision as to approve an airport plan so inadequate as is this plan.

If it is intended only to serve a shuttle service between the Cicero port and downtown it may be adequate, but surely it cannot be intended to accommodate the commercial air lines!

Air travel is in its infancy. It is reasonable to expect that planes will continue to increase in size and require longer and wider runways, and with a port surrounded by water the runways must be of extra length to provide a margin of safety. Furthermore planes will be multiplied many times in number requiring more area to ports, more runways and more and larger hangars and other service buildings.

The site is ill chosen because it is too close to our loop skyscrapers; because access to the port lies thru park areas setting up a bad cross traffic to the park's main thorofares. Access to the port is via a single causeway or bridge which will prove entirely insufficient as time goes on.

All of these objections could be overcome by locating the island in the lake off shore between 26th street and 47th street. Here the island may be constructed as big as needed and enlarged as needed. Burnham park here is a narrow strip easily bridged so that not only could the public be admitted to the island but invited to do so and be provided with parking space. Street cars could cross over to the island and even spur tracks from both the elevated railroad and the I. C. R. R. could be accommodated.

The increased distance from the loop would be so little as to be negligible so far as consumed time to and fro is concerned.

A drive around the island would add two or more miles to the lake frontage and it could be enjoyed as it would not be a speedway. RUFUS F. CHAPIN.

BURIED GOLD.

Chicago, April 9.—I have just read the letter signed "Oak Parker," wherein he states that he was educated in a most excellent school, and that because of such education he is very happy over the fact that we have 18 or 20 billions of gold "buried" in this country as, he states, THE TRIBUNE often mentions.

I wonder if this "excellent school" also educated him to be happy over the fact that the President can devalue the gold dollar from time to time, and in that way increase the number of billions even if the value of the gold is not increased. DANIEL ANDERSON.

ENERGY WANTED.

Glenview, Ill., April 9.—In Thursday's TRIBUNE I read a letter written by a neighboring townsman from the good old Republican town of Deerfield, Ill. In this article he states that President Roosevelt needed a much deserved rest, but couldn't retire from the presidency because of the danger of the position falling into inexperienced hands of a young galpin like Dewey, which would result in this county getting into a chaos. He also asks the question, "Why don't the Republicans nominate a man like George Norris?"

First, why does the President need a rest? He has spent more time on fishing trips and on tours of this country than he has spent working in the White House.

Secondly, Mr. Dewey by his record in New York state has proven to the people that he is a very capable man. Why does the Republican party always nominate some old fossil that never has a chance to win the election? What we need in the White House is a young, energetic man who will not be influenced by money interests. HAROLD F. RUGEN.

LADIES! LADIES!

Oak Park, Ill., April 9.—In the first place, Old Skipper, when I tender a challenge at duck-on-the-rock or anything else, it must be in the time honored and conventional fashion, so if you will drag this female tyro, this furnace clinker tugboat, to whom you refer as "Maizie," over to my domicile I shall have the extreme pleasure of waving my velvet glove across her visage.

Also, since this amazon you are championing seems to have no voice of her own, no brain, no ability, in fact, no evidence of existence except thru your doubtful expression, perhaps it would be wise for you to range yourself alongside her when this joust takes place, so that I may "kill two birds with one rock," so to speak. For myself, I need no seconds, no acclaimers of my skill, and so—bring forth your crew, if you can dig them out of their south side alley haunts, wash them off, and I shall look forward with fiendish glee to refuting your foolish assumptions with customary ease.
SHIRLEY R. POERSCH.

THE LAST WAR APPROVED.

Chicago, April 6.—I'm getting tired of listening to spielers echoing that we were roped into the world war by propaganda.

If the Germans had won and gotten control of England and France and with their fleets they could keep us from the Panama canal as a start of deviltries and in the end we might experience what Belgium and later Poland did. In fact, the kaiser told our ambassador he'd settle with America after the war. As you can't remove a menace by ignoring it, America decided to settle with him first.

We got 20 years of peace out of the war and would have had more had we listened to Woodrow Wilson instead of Lodge, Borah, Johnson & Co.
O. L. VEIEN,
Ex-Private, A. E. F.

PROBABLY.

Chicago, April 6.—These new stamps Farley's got out—commemorating the 50th anniversary of statehood: I like to paste them on the letters upside down because there, clearly, appears the good old pachyderm himself! Is this an omen? C. M. MATTSON.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES.

Chicago, April 4 [Legal Friend of the People].—What procedure should I follow to collect $21 for professional services rendered during December, 1939?

1. The patient who owes me is employed by the city as a policewoman and has never been off the pay roll even during her illness.

2. Her husband is employed by a private corporation and also has been working. When I demand payment all I get is promises.

3. Can I garnishee her wages for nursing services?

4. Would it cost me more than my bill for services?

5. Do I pay the expense of collecting or does she?

6. What would you advise me to do?
—B. W.

1. Her wages are not technically subject to garnishment, but you might take the matter up with her superior in office, urging that pressure be brought to bear upon her to pay the debt.

2. If the professional services were medical care they would be a family expense, so that her husband would also be liable under the Illinois statute.

3. Yes, after taking judgment against her.

4. Not necessarily. Depends in part on the attorney whom you employ.

5. The court costs would be assessed against the losing party. If you were able to collect at all you probably could collect the court costs. Each party pays his own attorney.

6. Place your claim in the hands of an attorney on a contingent fee.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS LAW.

Chicago, April 4 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Why do banks regularly protest for nonpayment all negotiable instruments amounting to $50 or more unless otherwise instructed?

2. Apparently this procedure entails needless expense to depositing customers since under the law only foreign bills of exchange must be protested.

3. Notice of dishonor is sufficient to hold endorsers in the case of other negotiable instruments.

4. If the only reason is to provide proof of presentation, such proof can be made in other ways as well as by a manifest of protest.

5. Would registered mail receipts, together with records of the collecting agent showing that notices to payers had been sent out by registered mail, be accepted in court as proof of presentation?—G. W. S.

1. We have no information that there is any such uniform custom. The negotiable instruments law requires protest in order to charge secondary parties on foreign bills of exchange, which would include checks other than those drawn and payable in this state. Protest is permitted on other instruments. If the bank takes the step in a case where it is not required, this is presumably because the bank feels that an official preservation of the facts on which liability of the drawer and indorsers would depend, is important enough to be worth the trouble and expense.

2. It may be needless in the sense that it is not required by the statute, but it might not be needless in the sense that the bank might need the evidence of the notarial certificate.

3. This might require the testimony of witnesses, whereas the notary's certificate of protest proves itself.

4. See 3.

5. Not necessarily, but the notary's certificate would be accepted.

FIRST CORPS WAR GAMES SINCE '18 BEGIN THIS WEEK

45,000 American Troops Massed for Training.

Fort Benning, Ga., April 13 (AP).—Concentration of United States army troops for corps training to emphasize streamlined mobility this week paralleled swift expansion of the European war front.

Teamwork to coördinate the efforts of motorized forces is to be the first concern of officers in a two week series of war games starting here tomorrow. The maneuvers are one phase of a national preparedness program.

About 45,000 men, assembled from posts as far distant as Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., and Fort Lewis, Wash., have been assigned for the exercises, which will test modernized organizations and equipment.

Most of the troops are embraced in the 4th army corps, the first full corps to be organized in this country since the world war. The commander is Maj. Gen. Walter Campbell Short. The corps includes three of the new style streamline divisions, the 1st, 5th, and 6th.

600 Square Miles Available.

Nominal opposition for the games is to be provided by a provisional corps of 6,000 men, headed by Brig. Gen. Robert O. Van Horn.

In the army's language: "The general purpose is to develop methods of procedure and an effective tactical control of large units under assumed conditions of combat."

About 600 square miles of pine-dotted west Georgia land is available for the test. The area is the Fort Benning infantry school reservation and surrounding farms on which the owners have granted trespass rights.

More War Games in May.

Mechanized and horse cavalry, truck-transported infantry, tanks, planes, artillery, and supporting units will take to the field with full equipment except for ammunition. Explosive effects are to be obtained thru the detonation of blocks of TNT.

The maneuvers are to be followed in May by the army's largest peacetime war games between the 4th corps and the 9th corps, which is made up of units from the southwest. Those war games will take place in the Sabine river valley of Louisiana and Texas. About 25,000 men in training at Texas forts will engage in 9th corps maneuvers April 27 to May 7.

Chain Liquor Store Head Kidnaped, Robbed of $700

Rocco DeStefano, president of the United Liquor Stores Inc., a chain organization with headquarters at 604 East 63d street, reported to the police yesterday he had been kidnaped and robbed of $700 and jewelry valued at $700 more. He said he was forced into an automobile by two men near his home at 8000 Langley avenue and was released at 74th street and St. Lawrence avenue. The robbery occurred at 3:30 a. m.

Pays 20,000c for Baby

Mrs. Carol Holz and baby son for whose birth father paid hospital costs with 20,000 pennies.

The Women's and Children's hospital will think twice before they again admit Mrs. Carol Holz, 21, as a maternity patient. Mrs. Holz gave birth to a son April 5, and yesterday her husband, Harvey, showed up at the hospital with a large box containing 20,000 pennies which he and his wife had saved since last October. Hospital officials said they wouldn't count the coppers, which filled 14 cigar boxes. They gave Holz a receipt and had a janitor drag the box into a corner. The Holz' residence is at 607 North Washington avenue, Park Ridge. It was their first child.

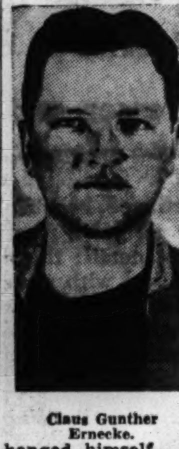
BUNDSMAN FOUND HANGED; ON TRIAL FOR REVOLT PLOT

Called Suicide; Attorney Bares Threats.

New York, April 13 (AP).—The body of Claus Gunther Ernecke, 36 years old, German-American bundsman accused with 16 other men of plotting to overthrow the United States government, was found hanging today in the basement of a Brooklyn apartment house.



Claus Gunther Ernecke.

Detectives said Ernecke apparently had gone to the apartment house basement, around the corner from his home, Thursday afternoon and hanged himself. Medical examiners said he had been dead at least 36 hours.

Police, who listed the case as a suicide, said a note was found with the body, but its contents were withheld.

Wide Search Underway.

A wide search for Ernecke had been underway. Federal Bureau of Investigation men and police began hunting for him as quickly as it became known he was missing. His $7,500 bail was ordered forfeited when he did not appear in court yesterday. His last appearance in court was on Wednesday.

Ernecke's lawyer, former Magistrate Leo Healy, said Ernecke had become terror stricken over threats made against his life as a result of testimony depicting him as a ringleader of the alleged plot. Healy said he had tried to soothe Ernecke, but that his efforts appeared futile.

Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell said yesterday that the trial of the other defendants would be resumed Monday in Brooklyn federal court regardless of whether Ernecke was found. Informed today of Ernecke's death, the judge declined comment.

Witness Faints After Testimony.

The trial, which began two weeks ago Friday, was adjourned last Wednesday when Dennis Healy, principal witness for the government, fainted after three days of cross-examination by Ernecke's attorney. When it resumed yesterday Healy still was too ill to continue.

Ernecke, according to information released by the FBI at the time of his arrest in January, was born in Berlin, Germany, June 2, 1903, and held first naturalization papers. A salesman and a member of the German-American bund, he had served in the New York National Guard.

Ex.-Gov. Brann of Maine Seeks Senate Nomination

Augusta, Me., April 13 (AP).—Louis J. Brann, two term Democratic governor of Maine, whose 1932 victory presaged the Roosevelt landslide of that year, tonight announced his candidacy for his party's United States senatorial nomination. Maine's primary is June 17. The announcement, made known to colleagues at a Jeffersonian dinner here, followed by a few hours the filing by Gov. Lewis O. Barrows for the Republican nomination. Also seeking the Republican nomination is Ralph O. Brewster, now in the house of representatives.

Then he noticed that the pole cast a shadow. He decided to measure the shadow and found that it was 12 feet long. But he could see that the pole was much taller than 12 feet. How would you solve this problem? Here's another hint: The boy was exactly 5 feet tall, but his shadow was 36 inches long.

52 FLYING CORPS CADETS PICKED FROM ILLINOIS

Traveling Army Board Ends 11 Day Stay.

Modern merchandising methods of the army air corps were described as a success yesterday when the first traveling board of air corps and medical officers to visit Chicago concluded its 11 day stay here. Fifty-two suitable candidates from Illinois, mainly from Chicago and vicinity, instead of the 40 fixed as the goal, were recruited.

The young men who passed the rigid physical examinations will be ordered to report May 15 at army supervised civilian flying schools. They will receive primary flight training for 12 weeks and if they pass the course will be transferred to Randolph field, Texas.

After another 12 weeks at Randolph field those who are successful will be transferred to Kelly field, Texas, from which they will emerge as officers in the air corps reserve. Then they will be given the opportunity of accepting extended active duty with the army for periods of from one to seven years.

Some Lack College Work.

A staff officer said there were openings in the May class because the army has avoided tempting college students to leave school. The new recruits include some without the customary two years of college training. This was the first time an air corps board has come to a major center of population to stimulate the recruiting of cadets.

Trucker and Trainman Killed in Crossing Crash

East St. Louis, Ill., April 13 (AP).—A truck crashed into a moving freight train last night, killing the driver. The impact toppled over a boxcar and crushed a railroad switchman to death. Those killed were M. F. Snipes, 62, of East St. Louis, the switchman, and Rochell Wheeler, 32, of Washington, Ill., the trucker.

CHICAGOANS ASK RFC FOR LOAN TO UNIFY CAR LINES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—A committee representing the city of Chicago and the Chicago traction companies called on Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones today to plead for a 45 million dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation loan to finance transit modernization and unification in the city.

After more than an hour with the nation's lending chief, members of the committee reported they were hopeful of favorable action on their request.

Jones did not hint at his decision. The RFC has advanced similar loans to Seattle and Kansas City.

Members of Delegation.

In the delegation were Philip Harrington, traction commissioner; Ald. James R. Quinn, chairman of the council transportation committee; Peter Boesen, Harrington's assistant, and William Sexton, city traction counsel, as representatives of the city.

The traction companies were represented by Edward E. Brown, Surface Lines receiver; Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee for the elevated lines, and John A. Ritchie, representing the Chicago Motor Coach company.

Also present were Joseph Sharfsin, special PWA counsel, who had broached the loan to RFC officials, and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Subway Grant Involved.

Under the $18,000,000 PWA subway grant, a unified traction franchise agreement is supposed to be reached by May 1. If not, the grant is subject to cancellation.

Granting of the RFC loan would permit the purchase of new Rapid Transit cars for use in the subway to be operated by the merged company, the committee said. Added to $20,000,000 now held by the lines, it would make possible new equipment for both systems and would leave about $5,000,000 for purchase of the motor coach company interests.

WIFE OVERLOOKS SOCK IN NOSE, BUT ENOUGH'S ENOUGH

Omaha, Neb., April 13 (AP).—Mrs. Lee Felthauser forgave her husband when he broke her arm 12 years ago, she testified in her divorce suit. She forgave him for an eye cut that required three stitches eight years ago. Three years ago he broke her nose, but their three children kept them together, she said. Once he cracked her hip.

"Last January," she continued, "he threw me across the davenport so hard he cracked three vertebrae."

She sued for divorce.

Judge Frank Dineen gave her a divorce, $15 a week alimony, and enjoined her husband from molesting her. The husband did not contest.

3 DIE IN CRASH AT 70 M. P. H. IN POLICE CHASE

Automobile Hits a Tree in Glen Ellyn.

Three young men were fatally injured yesterday when their automobile, driven at more than 70 miles an hour with a police squad in pursuit, missed a curve in the road, hurdled a two foot embankment, and crashed into a tree at Main street near Fairview avenue, in Glen Ellyn.

The dead were Robert McDonald, 24 years old, of 225 West Blair street, West Chicago, owner of the car; Philip Geasey, 19, of 733 Prairie avenue, Glen Ellyn, who died in Elmhurst hospital, and Wesley Haglund Jr., 17, of 645 Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn, who was killed outright.

Gives Ride to Two.

Testimony given at an inquest showed that near midnight McDonald picked up Geasey and Haglund in his car at Stewart avenue and Main street in Glen Ellyn.

A cab driver testified that McDonald then started off down Main street at high speed. At Duane street he was speeding 60 miles an hour, and a police squad with Officers Fred Cross and William Sanders gave chase. The policemen flashed their spotlight on McDonald's car, which he had obtained two months ago, and which did not carry license plates because he had not yet cleared the title to the car.

McDonald drove past a stop sign at Hill avenue. A short distance farther Main street turns from a paved road into a macadam surface, which is bumpy, and there is an S curve. The police slowed down for the curve, but McDonald, still driving fast, missed it and shot off the road.

Woman Killed, Two Injured.

Mrs. Harold Daley of 2460 North Albany avenue was killed and two other women were injured seriously when the car in which they were riding overturned in route 29, seven miles west of Spring Valley in Bureau county. The injured were Mrs. Mary Swiezy and Mrs. Catherine McLearn. Mrs. Swiezy's husband, Anthony, 55, who was driving, was not injured. All four lived at the Albany avenue address and were driving to Princeton in Bureau county.

William Kleinert, 75 years old, 2145 North Claremont avenue, was fatally injured by an automobile in front of 2104 North Western avenue. The driver, Joseph Salinger, 4429 North Damen avenue, told police that Kleinert stepped off a safety island and into the side of his moving car.

Dies of Injuries.

Rubin Rushakoff, 49, of 2201 Potomac avenue, owner of an expressing business, died in Walther Memorial hospital of injuries incurred Friday at Armitage avenue and Richmond street. He was standing in front of his truck there when it was struck and knocked into him by a car driven by Albert Goldman, 2718 Haddon avenue. Goldman's car, in turn, had been struck by another, driven by William Kalinowski, 2019 Lemoyne street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 247 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 189 were killed in Chicago, where 5,705 were injured in the same period.

WHO'S GOVERNOR STILL IN DOUBT; ISSUE IN COURTS

Bloomington Suit Asks Stelle to Act.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—Confusion in the public affairs of Illinois was the rule in several quarters this afternoon as the state ended its first week under two professed chief executives—the sick Henry Horner with his bedside cabinet, and Lieut. Gov. John Stelle who has proclaimed himself acting governor.

Attorney General John E. Cassidy issued a statement today to the effect that all books, records, and papers of the late F. Lynden Smith, who was state director of public works, are now in the hands of the administrator of the estate. The announcement does not mention whether inheritance tax investigators saw Smith's records of campaign collections and disbursements.

Cassidy Takes Hand.

Cassidy, according to an unofficial state house report, is about to go into action on another front in the war of nerves between the embittered Democratic factions. It was said that he will file his appearance in a mandamus suit brought in the Circuit court at Bloomington to compel Stelle to act as governor. He would represent Horner's interests.

This law suit was brought by James McComb of Chicago as a taxpayer, evidently without any consultation with the Stelle forces. An Associated Press dispatch quoted the petitioners as having selected Bloomington for the court in the belief that this county seat of McLean county included McLeansboro, Stelle's home. McLeansboro, the county seat of Hamilton county, is about 175 miles south of Bloomington.

Stelle, nevertheless, will respond to a summons in the suit. He pointed out that to do otherwise would be in contempt of court. His lawyers are preparing to take the position that the judge should appoint a medical commission to decide whether Horner's illness has incapacitated him as governor.

Benson Calls Parley.

The legislature, to convene in special session on April 30, also is expected to pass on who is governor of Illinois. As a preliminary, to discuss this question and the problems included in the governor's call, Senator Arnold P. Benson [R., Batavia], minority leader, today asked all Republican senators to attend a conference in Springfield next Friday.

In the meantime, an accounting suit against the 2 per cent slush club, naming nine high Horner appointees as defendants, has lain dormant in the Sangamon county Circuit court for a week. It was brought by Attorney Arthur M. Fitzgerald, a Democrat, and he has been busy denying that he will let the case die now that the primary fight is over.

MORE ARRESTS ARE EXPECTED IN RELIEF SCANDAL

Chief IERC Investigator Presses Inquiry.

Raymond Hilliard, head of the investigation department of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, returned from Springfield yesterday to take personal charge of the inquiry into the burning of the Bremen township relief office on Feb. 25.

Albert Stolz, wealthy coal dealer of Blue Island and Midlothian, was arrested Friday night as one outcome of the examination of records which were partially burned in the fire. Hilliard and Lieut. Fred Muhlhausen of the Homewood county highway police, who arrested Stolz, indicated that more arrests are expected soon.

Charged with Larceny.

The warrant for Stolz's arrest, signed by Gerald Griffen, one of Hilliard's assistants, charged Stolz with larceny and embezzlement "in excess of $2,000." Griffen, when he signed the warrant, declared that Stolz had been dealing in relief disbursing orders and had been giving rebates to James Bennette, missing bookkeeper of the relief office, on extra large checks from the township relief funds for relief coal orders.

Stolz denied the charges. He lives at 12960 Maple avenue, Blue Island, and has a coal yard at 14900 South Crawford avenue in Midlothian.

Bennette is being sought on bigamy, conspiracy, and other charges. He is accused of faking disbursing orders issued by the relief office for relief supplies and later redeemed in cash.

Arson Blamed in Fire.

Frank Doherty, deputy state fire marshal, said the burning of the relief office, at 147th street and Cleveland avenue, near Posen, was a case of arson. Auditors from the IERC had begun an inspection of the books the day before the fire.

Eugene Brown, colored, an investigator for the relief office, was arrested March 9 on charges of conspiracy and violation of the corrupt practices act when he admitted dealing in the disbursing orders. He was released on bond of $2,500.

Arthur Reiher, operator of a gasoline station at 147th street and Cicero avenue in Midlothian, was arrested last Thursday night on a charge of conspiracy in the cashing of checks forged and then indorsed by Bennette as payment for fake disbursing orders.

Reiher was released on $5,000 bond. Stolz was released when he posted a $10,000 real estate bond. Both men are to appear in court at the Homewood highway police station Wednesday.

If You Get Up Nights How Are Your Kidneys?

Most people never think of their Kidneys although these vital organs contain about 9 million tiny tubes and work night and day cleaning and filtering excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. Because they never get a real rest it's easy to see that as you grow older the Kidneys may get tired and slow down. These excess acids and wastes may accumulate and poison your system because of functional rather than organic or systematic Kidney and Bladder troubles. So if you have to get up nights, or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, backaches and groin pains, due to non-organic and non-systematic Kidney or Bladder weaknesses, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Over ten million packages of Cystex have been sold in 73 countries and have given such joyous, happy relief to so many thousands of people that it is now sold under a positive guarantee of money back on return of empty packages unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex now costs only 35c at druggists and the guarantee protects you.

Kenmore, except for Mount Vernon, is the only home now standing which was closely associated with Washington thruout his life. It is located on an estate of 863 acres just outside of Fredericksburg.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker of Chicago, honorary regent of the Kenmore association since 1928, has been active in helping restore the old home.

CRA STARTS QUIZ OF RELIEF GIVEN CROSSING GUARD

Keeps Big Car on Dole of $35 a Month.

The Chicago Relief administration began an investigation yesterday to learn how Joseph Skrzydel is able to maintain a seven passenger de luxe model sedan and his family on a work relief check of $35.28 a month.

Skrzydel's story came out Friday when he was accused of transferring gasoline to his own car from a car that had overturned near his post. It was then learned that he has been on work relief since June and that he was a WPA employé for almost four years before that.

Formal charges of tampering with an automobile and making false registration of a car were filed against him yesterday by Abbey Blattberg, assistant state's attorney. Skrzydel was released in $125 bond.

Fired from Crossing Job.

Chief John Prendergast of the uniformed police forbade the CRA to assign Skrzydel again to the job of protecting pupils at a crossing near St. Ladislaus' parochial school at 5342 Roscoe street. Prendergast acted after learning that Skrzydel had been sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell in 1929 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor by selling cigarets.

William Ellis, CRA attorney and investigator, was ordered to determine how a man with sufficient money to buy a car should obtain relief and to learn how Skrzydel can make payments of $26 a month on the car, operate it, pay $15 a month for rent, and buy clothes and food for himself and a daughter.

Skrzydel said a woman relative is paying for the car and for its maintenance so that he may take his daughter in style to places where she sings.

He denied he transferred the gasoline to his own car, asserting that he drained the overturned car's tank to prevent an explosion. He admitted he registered his car in the name of Joseph Swing, but insisted that this is a translation of his Polish name. Skrzydel is 48 years old and lives at 2210 Division street.

ELECTION BOARD SPEEDS CANVASS OF PRIMARY VOTE

The board of election commissioners yesterday completed the canvas of the Democratic votes for city, county, and state offices cast Tuesday in the 3,848 precincts under the boards' jurisdiction. Fifty teams canvassing the Republicans votes are expected to end their work today.

The canvas of the congressional and senatorial votes will begin tomorrow, said Joseph J. Tauer, assistant chief clerk of the election board. The official proclamation, giving the official results for the 3,848 precincts, is expected to be issued next week.

Daniel A. Carey, chief clerk in the county clerk's office, reported that the Republican and Democratic votes have been canvassed in about one-third of the 528 suburban precincts under the jurisdiction of the clerk.

TOBEY DEMANDS MORE FACTS ON PROPOSED CENSUS SNOOPING

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] called upon Attorney General Robert Jackson today to identify the sponsor of proposed legislation which Tobey said would permit the federal bureau of investigation and the army and navy intelligence services to gain access to census files.

In a statement replying to charges by Tobey, Jackson acknowledged recently that such legislation was submitted to the budget bureau while Frank Murphy, now a Supreme court justice, was attorney general, but had been dropped.

Tobey asked Jackson [1] in whose mind this plan was conceived; [2] what reasons were advanced; [3] the recommendations of the department of justice when it submitted the proposed draft to the bureau of the budget; [4] why the department of justice maintained such secrecy; [5] the grounds upon which the department of justice based its then existing policy of approval and the grounds upon which the department now feels the proposal is without merit.

PROFESSORS ASK FIGHT ON RUSSELL BAN AS TEACHER

The national council of the American Association of University Professors, meeting yesterday in the Stevens hotel, unanimously adopted a resolution "earnestly urging" Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City and that city's board of higher education to appeal the court decision which revoked the appointment of Bertrand Russell, mathematician and philosopher, to the faculty of City college on the ground his teachings are immoral.

"The council feels," the resolution said, "that the court's decision and the supporting opinion may have such serious consequences for the administration of higher education that they should be reviewed by the highest judicial tribunal possible."

Messages were signed by Frederick S. Deibler and Ralph E. Himstead, president and general secretary, respectively, of the council. Deibler is head of the economics department of Northwestern university. Himstead is director of the office of the American Association of University Professors in Washington, D. C.

TORONTO, Ont., April 13 (AP).—The New York Rangers tonight rallied after being two goals behind, then scored a goal after two minutes and seven seconds of overtime play to defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 2, and win the final hockey playoff series for the Stanley cup, four games to two.

The Rangers pulled out two successive overtime games on Toronto ice to win the emblem of the world professional hockey championship for the third time in the club's history. After winning the first two games of the best-of-seven series at home, they were beaten twice here. Then they took the lead Thursday by winning a long overtime game and repeated the feat tonight when Bryan Hextall banged home the winning goal.

Beat Bruins to Reach Finals.

Second to the Boston Bruins during the regular National league season, the Rangers disposed of the league champions in a six game preliminary playoff series. Toronto, which finished third, came to the finals by way of two-game triumphs over the Chicago Blackhawks and Detroit Red Wings.

The Rangers' comeback in the last period was one of the greatest exhibitions of the season and the crowd of 14,894 burst into spontaneous cheering for the New Yorkers after the game ended.

For the first two periods the Leafs had all the best of the play, breaking up nearly every New York attack and carrying on a speedy offensive that give them a 2 to 0 margin.

Five Man Attack Succeeds.

The Rangers looked pitifully slow in their back checking and weak on the attack. But when they started to click with five man assaults they were not to be denied. They scored twice in the first 10 minutes of the third period to knot the count.

Syl Apps made the first Toronto goal in the opening period, circling Babe Pratt, Ranger defenseman, and backhanding a shot past Davey Kerr. In the second period Nick Metz slapped in another goal after a fine rink length dash by Sweeney Schriner.

The Ranger attack finally clicked at 8:08 of the third period when Neil Colville sank a backhand shot on a pass from Alex Shibicky, who played despite an ankle injury that kept him out of the fourth game and limited his participation in the fifth. Less than two minutes later Rookie Alf Pike snapped Clint Smith's pass beyond Broda to equalize the score.

The Rangers last won the world title in 1933, when Bill Cook scored a similar overtime goal against Toronto. Their other Stanley cup victory was gained in 1928.

Harridge Names Umpires for A. L. Opening Games

President William Harridge yesterday announced the following umpire assignments for the opening games in the eight American league cities:

TUESDAY, APRIL 16.

Cleveland at Chicago—William McGowan, Harry Geisel, Louis Kolls.

St. Louis at Detroit—Emmett Ormsby, Stephen Basil, William Grieve.

Boston at Washington—George Moriarty, Cal Hubbard, Ed Rommel.

FRIDAY, APRIL 19.

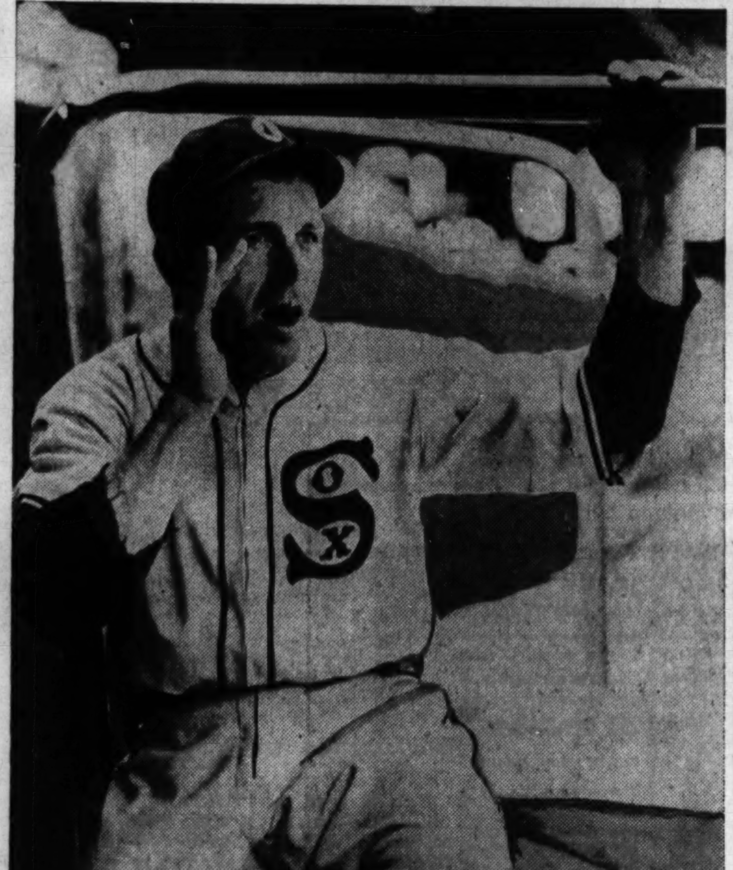
Chicago at St. Louis—McGowan, Geisel and Kolls.

Detroit at Cleveland—Ormsby, Basil and Grieve.

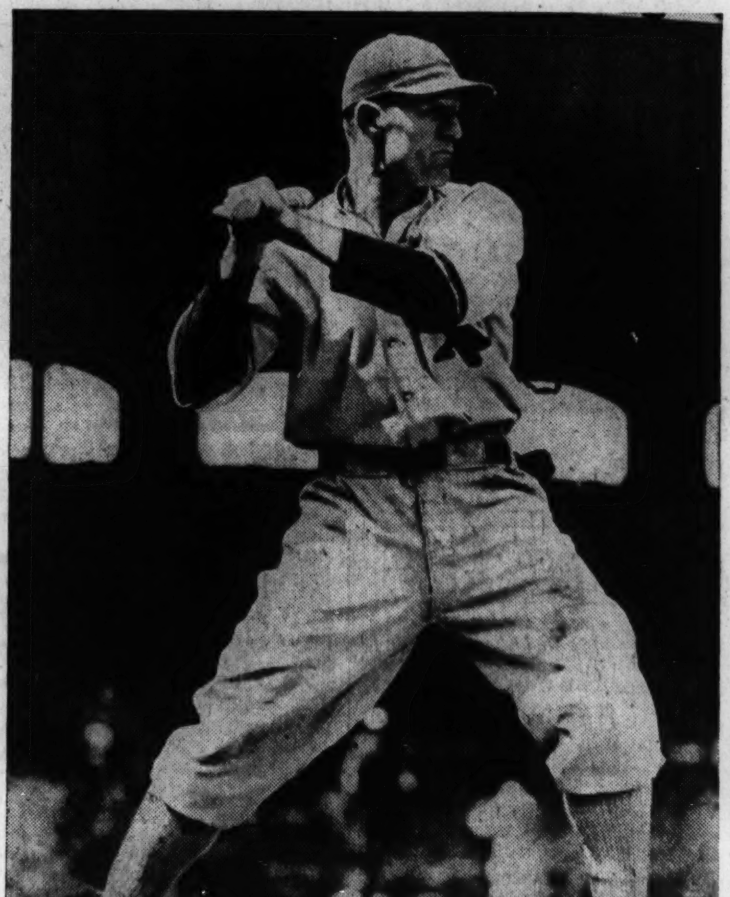
Philadelphia at Boston—Summers, Quinn and Pipgras.

Washington at New York—Moriarty, Hubbard, Rommel and Joseph Rue.

BASEBALL'S BIGGEST THRILL—OPENING DAY—IS AT HAND



Jimmy Dykes, crafty manager of the White Sox, will send his boys against the Indians in the opening game of the American league pennant race Tuesday in Comiskey park. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Center field will be well guarded by fleet little Mike Kreevich, who, since he became a White Sox, has developed into one of the best defensive players in baseball. He can hit, too.

In the visitors' dugout the master minding will be done by Oscar Vitt of the Indians, who is reported to have a potential pennant contender, as usual.

Ed Smith, south side southpaw, who is something of a jinx to the Indians, will start on the mound.

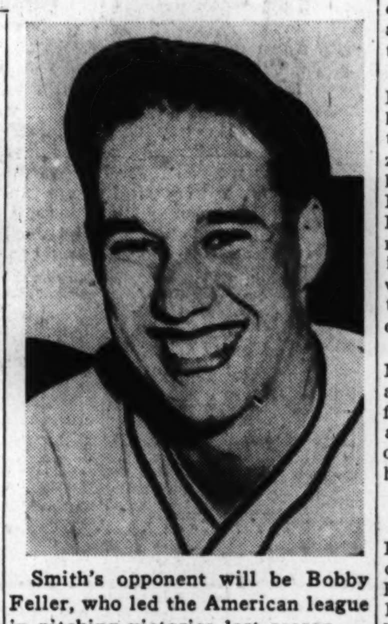
Augie Galan (left) and Hank Leiber contrast the new Cub shirts with those worn last year. Augie models the 1940 style, Hank the 1939.



Smith's opponent will be Bobby Feller, who led the American league in pitching victories last season.

Sox and Cubs Will Try, Try Again to Play

The White Sox now are unofficial as well as official baseball champions of Chicago. They earned the latter honor by thumping the Cubs last fall. The former became their possession yesterday when for the second consecutive day frigid blasts blew away another portion of the pre-season event, leaving the Sox with a 7 to 5 margin over their National league enemies and only time enough remaining for one battle.

The final is billed for 3 o'clock this afternoon at Comiskey park and the rival managers, Mr. James Dykes and Mr. Charles Hartnett have made proper arrangements. For the third day in succession they juggled their pitching assignments. Bill Lee was supposed to start for the Cubs yesterday. Eddie [Lefty] Smith was scheduled to do the Sox pitching. They'll not appear in formal competition today for the very sound reason that they are going to pitch the openers Tuesday.

Eaves Will Start.

In anticipation of a break from the weather man Dykes has substituted Chief Vallie Eaves for Smith, leaving the six other innings for Bill Dietrich and Jack Knott, hangover nominees from yesterday. Hartnett, not wishing to use up Claude Passeau, who probably will work the second game of the season Wednesday at Cincinnati, will start Larry French, the veteran lefty.

Despite cancellation of the game there was activity yesterday on Wrigley field. The Cubs hadn't had any exercise for two days so Hartnett put them in uniform and ordered them to work up a sweat. They tried hard enough, but no beads of perspiration were produced. Even the temperamental Diz Dean labored in the wintry air, indicating that peace really has been established between himself and his manager — for the time being.

Cubs Release Montgomery.

The Cubs yesterday released Alvin Montgomery, a catcher, under option, to their Moline, Ill., farm club. For those who may be surprised to know there ever was such a fellow on the club's roster, we'll mention that he was signed during the training trip. He belonged to the Cubs' cousins, the Los Angeles Angels.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

On Tuesday, April 16 on the calendar, seven American league clubs will start looking for their eighth member—the four time world champion Yankees. When the Yankees finally are located it will be done by some National league club and undoubtedly much to the regret of the latter.

This is just another way of hinting that Joe McCarthy's troops, who tapered off last fall by clearing the Cincinnati Reds thru a baseball college in four afternoons, have the same program in mind for 1940.

There is nothing on paper to indicate that as far as the American league's first place and a world series triumph are concerned that it will be any different six months hence than it was last fall. Of course, there always is the possibility of a mishap to the Yankees over a summer's course, but thoughts such as this are based solely on the hopes of those unfortunately scheduled to question the Yankee's power.

Make Your Own Bets.

After dismissing the Yankees as sure shots you get down to where the real fight will be waged. You are entitled to make your own bets as to the identity of the three other first division occupants. It will be a wide open affair, at least wide enough to sustain summer interest for the customers after the Yanks have gone down the road, leaving a trail of blinding dust for the breathing purposes of their pursuers. It looks as if it will develop into a case of four fellows trying to crowd into space meant only for three.

The four clubs which undoubtedly will make an effort to squeeze their way into three stalls are Boston's Red Sox, Cleveland's Indians, Chicago's White Sox, and Detroit's Tigers.

Red Sox Pitchers May Be Better.

Not much space is necessary to detail the respective bad spots of the candidates immediately behind the Yanks.

The Red Sox finished second last

BY EDWARD BURNS.

There's a gent named Daugherty down in Pontiac, Ill., who for years has been exhibiting our pre-season baseball prophecies, along with actual finishes. This quaint museum is run in connection with a rest room in Mr. Daugherty's gas station and has brought us no fame whatsoever.

If our picks seem to be a little timid this year, blame it on a winter discovery of the Daugherty exhibit and reflection on the painful divergence of Mr. D's posted contrasts.

There's the matter of picking the Cubs first or sixth. This is our choice of the proper way to say the north side heroes are going to be pretty good, or very bad. Good they'll be if Clay Bryant comes thru, as he has shown some symptoms of doing, even better if the once great Dizzy Dean makes some sort of comeback, a contingency not predicted by any one except ol' Diz himself.

There's Matter of Shortstop.

Also there's the matter of shortstopping. It now appears that 19 year old Bob Sturgeon will start the season at short. It's pretty hard for a guesser to gamble on one so young. But if Manager Gabby Hartnett feels like taking on the hazard of such tender youth, we certainly aren't the one to heckle him, especially since the kid has looked sprightly enough during the exhibition season. We also think that Bob Mattick is a good infielder any place except on first base, and there is no need for his services at first, what with Rip Russell showing much better than last year's good enough and Phil Cavarretta pressing him day by day.

Until 10 days ago the veteran, Bill Rogell, had been ticketed as the regular shortstop, but Bill subsequently dropped a few points in Hartnett's rating book. He will be around for infield utility work, and that may prove important.

In the moments we guess the Cubs first, we rate Bill Lee and Claude Passeau as good as any top pair of pitchers on any team in the National league, with a slight shade to Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters of the Reds, the team we think will win the pennant such times as our bosom is not busting with civic pride.

French Rated No. 3.

We think Larry French, buoyed by many ups and harassed by many downs, has a chance to be as good a No. 3 pitcher as any team the National league can put forward. We are in no mood to get mixed up on speculation as to which teams have regular No. 4 pitchers, but the Cubs have as many candidates as anybody, even reckoning without Bryant's comeback.

The Cub outfield promises to be as good as any in the league and, with Dom Dallessandro in left, Augie Galan in center, and Hank Leiber in his new spot in right, more powerful than Monarchs Hit 3,047; Take Lead in A. B. C.

Detroit, Mich., April 13 [Special].—Chicago's Monarch Beers beat the 3,000 jinx in the American Bowling congress tournament tonight. The Classic league champions, performing before a capacity crowd, soared into the lead with a smashing 3,047 total. Opening with 996, the Monarchs then rolled up the high game of the tournament, 1,089, and came home with 962.

Lenzen Taken Out.

Bill Lenzen, regular anchor of the squad, who bruised his bowling thumb last week, started for the new leaders, but was taken out after scoring only 41 in the first four frames. Harry Angel of the North End Traveling league, was substituted, finished with four strikes for a 170 opener and added 187 and 192 in the final games.

In 1928 Leo Faetz, pilot of the Monarchs, captained the Oh Henry's to the championship with 3,057. The Chicagoans had 9 errors and 12 splits in the three games.

Wilman Drops Title.

Joe Wilman, who won the American Bowling congress all-events title last year with a 2,028 total, relinquished his crown today. But, after totaling 581 with the Cicero Budweisers in the team event and 594 in the doubles, ne came back in the singles with a smashing 703 total. His nine game tally was 1,878 for a 208.6 average.

Given the breaks so essential in the short three game route under which most bowling championships are determined, Wilman could have beaten the leading 730 total, scored by John Taylor of Collingdale, Pa., two weeks ago. He gave the fans a thrill when he started his solo series with seven consecutive strikes. He drew the 4-6 split in the eighth frame, struck in the ninth, and spared out for 246.

Fortune Lets Him Down.

In the second game Joe left the No. 10 pin up on three consecutive pocket hits in the first three frames. He struck in the fourth, but the No. 7 pin wobbled in the fifth and refused to fall.

A 15 FOOT VAULT AT LAST; COAST VETERAN DOES IT

Berkeley, Cal., April 13 (AP).—Cornelius Warmerdam of the San Francisco Olympic club, exceeded the world's outdoor pole vault record today with a leap of 15 feet. The recognized mark is 14 feet 11 inches, held jointly by Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton, former University of Southern California athletes. Warmerdam's leap was the outstanding performance at a triangular meet among the Olympic club, Washington State college, and the University of California. California won with 70 points.

St. Louis, Mo., April 13 (AP).—Eddie Silber, 23 year old outfielder, was released by the St. Louis Browns today to Toledo of the American association. He recently was returned to the Browns by Hollywood of the Coast league.

L. S. U. GOLFER BEATS MICHIGAN STAR FOR TITLE

Athens, Ga., April 13 (AP).—Rallying in the home stretch, 21 year old Bert McDowell of Louisiana state university defeated Bob Palmer of Michigan, one up, today to win the sixth annual southern intercollegiate golf championship. McDowell earlier went into the back nine one down.

Results of the final round in lower flights:

Championship consolation — Morey, L. S. U., beat Swift, Georgia, 2 up.

Second flight consolation—Emery, Michigan, defeated Mills, Florida, 1 up.

Third flight—Samas, Sewanee, beat Cooper, Davidson 2 up.

ALLEN, CHICAGO BUSINESS MAN, BIDS FOR TRACK

Directors Weigh Proposition.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Negotiations for the sale of the Arlington Park race track to John D. Allen, a prominent Chicago business executive who is a resident of Libertyville, will reach a definite conclusion one way or the other tomorrow. This was learned on reliable authority last night following a day of persistent rumors to the effect that a deal was under way for the transfer of the property which was purchased by the present holders for $2,400,000 in 1929.

John Hertz, chairman of the track's executive committee, and Warren Wright, a member of the board of directors, withheld comment on the report when reached by telephone at their Kentucky estates last night. Neither denied, however, that negotiations were going on.

Allen a Church Leader.

For the last year or so it has been reported that Mr. Hertz, who now resides in New York, has been considering giving up his Chicago racing interests with the idea of establishing himself in one of the eastern centers, possibly in New Jersey. With the passage of the pari-mutuel bill in that state, the way was opened for the building of tracks and applications are now being received from associations interested in this venture.

Mr. Allen is a prominent layman in Episcopal church circles. Last June he was nominated for a position on the Chicago school board by the citizens' advisory schools committee headed by Dean W. F. Clarke of De Paul university law school. Mayor Kelly made the appointment but a month later, Mr. Allen resigned, stating that the pressure of business would render it impossible for him to devote sufficient time to school duties.

Mr. Allen was born in St. Paul, Minn., 53 years ago and came here at the age of 6. He was graduated from Chicago public schools. At the age of 18 he got a job doing general office work in the company of which he is now a high executive.

Purses Total Half Million.

He is a member of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church and of the board of the Episcopal Cathedral shelter. He also has been president of the National Federation of Church Clubs. His other activities include a trusteeship in the Chicago Latin school, and membership on the board of St. Luke's hospital.

with regard to size of stakes and class of horses, enjoyed one of its most successful seasons of recent years last July and announced plans for substantial increases in purse distribution during the coming summer.

The schedule laid out by Maj. Louis A. Beard, director of racing, calls for the disbursement of approximately $500,000 during the 30 day meeting for an average of about $16,667 daily. Last season's average was $12,537.

Track Opened in 1927.

Arlington Park was built as a playground and recreation center for Chicago's wealthy north shore residents by H. D. Brown, a California promoter, in 1927. Brown had been invited to come to Chicago by a group of north shore sportsmen. He purchased 998 acres of land just northwest of Arlington Heights, Ill.

In the fall of 1927 the track opened its first meeting on a course said by Brown to have cost $3,600,000. With this tremendous capitalization, the track soon was in need of more finances and Brown floated another $900,000 bond issue in addition, he claimed, to putting $1,000,000 of his own money into it. Bad weather further handicapped the track and Brown was forced to sell a part of the enterprise to two Chicagoans, Sam Cole and Palmer House Ryan.

Brown, who had built Oriental Park in Havana, sold out his interests in 1928 to A. H. Dressel, former president of the West Central State bank of Chicago. Dressel was said

BADGERS TAKE DOUBLE HEADER FROM MAROONS

Win Opener, 13-1; Second Game, 8 to 0.

Ed Schiewe, Wisconsin first baseman, connected for two home runs, each with a man on base, in the second game of a Big Ten double-header against Chicago yesterday on the midway, clinching the contest, 8 to 0. The Badgers won the opener, 13 to 1. Wisconsin led, 2 to 0, when Schiewe socked a homer to center after Nello D'Orazio had walked to start the fourth inning. Bob Schilling, Badger left fielder, had singled to start the sixth and D'Orazio had popped out when Schiewe again smashed the ball far out in center field, scoring ahead of the throwin. Pitcher John Saxer held Chicago to one hit.

Walk Leads to Maroon Run.

In the first game Chicago led in the first three innings but Wisconsin's head up play had supplied a 7 to 1 lead by the beginning of the eighth. In the ninth, five hits and a pair of Maroon errors permitted the Badgers to shove an additional half dozen runs across.

N. U. LOSES PAIR.

Champaign, Ill., April 13 [Special].—The University of Illinois opened its Western conference baseball season today with a double victory over Northwestern, 11 to 7 and 1 to 0. Timely hitting decided the first battle and a two hit pitching job by John Pacotti won the second. Pacotti needed all his mound skill as the Illini were able to collect only three hits off his opponent, Fred Rosch.

The Illini scored their run in the third inning of the second game. Russ Drechsler, left fielder, was safe when George McKinnon, Wildcat shortstop, fumbled a ground ball. Drechsler stole second, went to third on Catcher Arnold's bad throw and scored when Bill Hapac singled.

Pacotti Strikes Out 10.

Altho Pacotti struck out 10 batters, Northwestern had men on bases in every inning except the first, eighth and ninth. Double plays helped Pacotti to weather the second and sixth.

The Illini scored five runs in the sixth inning of the first game with the bases full and two outs. Three scored when Evers singled off Second Baseman Erdlitz's glove. Hapac singled, scoring Evers and scored himself on a passed ball. Northwestern errors and hits by the Illini brought two more in the seventh and one in the eighth.

Yanks Look Ready to Run Over Rivals

The Indians comprise a confused outfit because the route between the front office and the managerial throne in the dugout is too short. The Indians also have a flagrantly unskilled infield if you consider both fielding and hitting in the aggregate.

The Tigers have been going downhill at a dizzy pace since they won the second of their successive pennants in 1935. Now they threaten to pick up speed. They are shy on infielders, and their manager, Del Baker, thinks Hank Greenberg can move from first base to the outfield and that Rudy York can play first base. The experiment probably won't work out satisfactorily, but the big fly in the Tiger ointment is that the pitching will be weak and that old age may check Charley Gehringer.

White Sox May Surprise.

If there is a surprise in the entire league it probably will be the White Sox whom some people rate merely as a collection of fellows nobody else wanted. Manager Jimmy Dykes didn't pay much for most of them, but he knew what he was doing. The Sox finished fourth by a slim margin last year so the fellows nobody else wanted evidently are pretty good in a tough league.

Mr. Dykes, by last winter's manipulations, did very well himself. Without giving up much he acquired two established hitters in Taft Wright and Julius Solters, who will be the respective right and left outfielders. The regular infield, which has defensive talent may balance. 300 hitting over a long course. The catching will be good enough to take care of the pitching, and the latter is the weak item, altho it may develop strength by the addition of Vallie Eaves and at least one other youngster.

As for the three other clubs in the league — Athletics, Senators, and Browns—you can write your own ticket. The sixth, seventh, and eighth positions are purely a matter of their own concern. What happens to them will not make much difference to the Yankees.

HERE'S A UNIQUE TIE—IN ALL SIX SCORE COLUMNS

St. Louis, Mo., April 13 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals, National league pennant favorites, and the St. Louis Browns, picked to occupy the American league cellar, battled 11 innings to a 2 to 2 deadlock in the opener of their spring series today before 2,946.

When the umpires called the game on account of darkness, the box score showed that it was almost a perfect tie. Each team had 40 official times at bat, 9 hits, 33 putouts, 17 assists, and 1 error. The Browns' hits, however, were all singles, while the Cardinals' included two doubles and Enos Slaughter's triple on a misjudged fly ball.

Both teams got pitching in mid-season form. Eldon Auker and Bob Harris each worked three innings for the Browns, with Jack Kramer finishing the game. For the Cardinals, Bill McGee, Clyde Shoun, and Jack Russell divided the chores. Score:

Outfielder Johnny Dickshot and Infielder Glen [Gabby] Stewart were sent to Jersey City; Tom Gorman, young pitcher, to Clinton, Ia., and George Bausewein, a promising southpaw, to Fort Smith, Ark.

Harridge Hails Rookie Stars; Close Race Again, Says Frick

BY WILL HARRIDGE.
[President American League.]

Enthusiastic over the splendid showing made in 1939 by such first year men as Ted Williams, Charles Keller, Barney McCoskey, Joe Gallagher, Lou Boudreau, Jim Tabor, Marius Russo, and Atley Donald, American league club owners and managers are making a supreme effort this year to display an unusually large number of new players in the hope of uncovering other such outstanding stars.

Lists Outstanding Rookies.

American league rosters include the names of 50 players who were in the minors in 1939. Many of them will be hailed as major league stars within two or three years, while some are expected to distinguish themselves in 1940.

Newcomers who will, no doubt, make rapid steps toward stardom on American league clubs, in addition to Boudreau, who joined Cleveland late in the 1939 season, include Shortstop Jim Pofahl and Pitcher Sid Hudson of Washington, Outfielder Walter Judnich and Catcher Bob Swift of St. Louis, Catcher Tom Turner, Third Baseman Bob Kennedy, and Pitcher Vallie Eaves of Chicago; Outfielder Dom DiMaggio and Pitcher Maurice Harris of Boston, Pitcher Marvin Breuer of New York and Catcher Ed Parsons, Detroit.

Night Games Break for Fans.

With the scheduling of seven night games in each of four American league cities, giving many fans who could not attend day games an opportunity to witness baseball under lights, and the possibility of stardom for so many new players, I believe the American league can look forward with much optimism to another banner year.

BY FORD FRICK.
[President National League.]

New York, April 13 (AP).—It seems foolish to go into a long dissertation on baseball prospects for the coming season at a moment when the minds and hearts of the people of the United States are so deeply concerned by what is going on in Europe.

The importance and the far-reaching consequences of each day's front page headlines hold public attention so absorbingly that, for the time being, guesses about a pennant race seem far-fetched, indeed.

Baseball Draws a Contrast.

We are thankful the baseball season opening means our young men and boys are mobilizing with bats and gloves and baseballs instead of guns, gas masks and tanks. They're swinging at fast ones and curves and chasing hard-hit drives across the open field instead of peering over the brim of a trench. The only masks they need are for the catcher and umpire.

Against the sombre setting of European war, the opening of the baseball season in this spring of 1940 is a particularly cheerful reminder of our national solidarity.

A Close Race Again.

The National league clubs are primed and conditioned for a busy and eventful season, with every prospect of another close pennant race. New men of exceptional ability have been proving their worth and making places for themselves in the lineups of the contending teams.

But most important of all, the pennant race in all of the leagues—major and minor—will be providing for the people of our nation an outlet for emotions which in less fortunate lands takes other forms.

Hartnett and Todd will take care of the catching all right.

Davis Not Likely to Duplicate.

We have been reading about the Cardinals, and we have been looking over the 1939 pitching records of the Cards, which show nary a 15 game winner, except Curt Davis, who certainly isn't a bet to duplicate his 22 victories of last season. We aren't underestimating those two bitter intraclub rivals in the slugging art, Johnny Mize and Ducky Medwick, and we wish the Cubs owned Enos Slaughter and Don Padgett. But we can't see the Cardinals' pitching and infield past first base.

We have seen the Cubs whip the Pirates twice this year. We have read a lot about the miracles Frankie Frisch has wrought with this long-lazy outfit. Maybe it isn't fair to judge the Pirates by those two games we saw them play, or by the waistlines of those on whom Frisch is said to be counting most.

We have not seen the Dodgers, but those who have followed them seem to have receded from early pennant forecasts. Durocher's pepper may be put to a strain to carry the Dodgers as well this year as it did last. Brooklyn is a great baseball town and we are pulling for it to be right up there, but we're afraid we can't help it much with our wishes.

Second Division for Giants.

We contemplate the Giants with much sorrow. So proud and elegant at heart but almost a cinch for a duplication of their 1939 visit to the second division.

The Bees are handicapped by a swan wallet. The sale of Deb Garms, their best hitter, is evidence of what a skimp bankroll does. The Phillies have similar troubles. Even their manager has expressed the ambition to keep them from being more than a few games out of seventh place.

Writers Pick Yanks to Win Again; Sox 5th

New York, April 13 (AP).—The New York Yankees are a cinch to win their fifth straight American league pennant in the opinion of a majority of the experts, but there are still a few die-hards who foresee the breaking up of Joe McCarthys' powerful machine.

The 77 baseball writers participating in the Associated Press' annual poll followed last year's order of finish pretty much in making their 1940 predictions. Sixty-six placed the Yankees first. Nine selected the Boston Red Sox as the new league champions, while the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox each received one vote.

Receiving no votes for below second and on the basis of 8 points for first place, 7 for second, etc., the Yanks piled up 605 points. The Red Sox were just as firmly entrenched in second place, with 536 points, the majority of which were garnered from the 57 runnerup votes.

The Indians, polling votes for the first five places, received 438 points, placing them in third place—just where they finished last fall. Then came the only transposition in the order of the 1939 final standings—the placing of Detroit over Chicago. But the margin between the two teams was small—359 to 346.

Washington, Philadelphia, and St. Louis took over the last three positions without much competition.

Only one writer dared to select the Browns for as high as sixth. Eleven placed them seventh and the remainder saw no hopes for better than eighth.

WEAK CLUBS GAIN POWER FOR RACE IN ASSOCIATION

President Predicts Tight Battle for Pennant.

Columbus, O., April 13 (AP).—George M. Trautman, president of the American association today predicted it will experience in 1940 its tightest pennant race in years.

The campaign for the thirty-ninth association flag gets under way Thursday with Minneapolis at Louisville, St. Paul at Indianapolis, Kansas City at Toledo, and Milwaukee at Columbus.

Trautman declared officials of the eight clubs were unanimous in rating the teams more evenly matched than they were in 1939 when the Kansas City Blues won the pennant and Louisville grabbed the laurels in the playoff and the little world series.

Teams Lose Star Pitchers.

Kansas City has surrendered Pitchers Marvin Breuer, Tommy Reis, Al Piechota, and Johnny Babich of the 1939 staff—and that quartet won 67 games for the Blues. Minneapolis, which finished in second place, appears strong, but the loss of hurlers Herb Hash and Wilburn Butland, who won 41 contests for the Millers, will be felt.

Indianapolis and Louisville, which rounded out the first division, have strengthened considerably, but the greatest gain in talent has been made by last year's second division squads.

The Toledo Mud Hens, last placers in 1939, have received valuable assistance from the St. Louis Browns. Columbus, which finished seventh, has been promised a first division club by the St. Louis Cardinals. St. Paul, which slumped to fifth after winning the 1938 flag, is powerful again, while Milwaukee's added strength presages trouble for all opponents.

A Sellout in Louisville.

"Four clubs are going to finish in the second division, that's sure," Trautman said, "but it would take the seventh son of a seventh son to forecast at this time just which four will be down there."

Louisville's box and reserved seats have been sold out for weeks, while Columbus and Toledo will compete for a permanent opening day attendance cup, indicating that fans will flock to the parks in the eastern half of the circuit for the curtain raisers.

Umpire assignments for the opening series:

At Louisville, John B. Molenda, Forrest Peters, and George H. Johnson.
At Indianapolis—John B. Conlan, Ernest D. Stewart.
At Toledo—James B. McCutcheon, Dan F. Tehan, and William J. Guthrie.
At Columbus—Paul W. Genshlea and Hal J. Weafer.

MILLS AND COALS OPEN PRACTICE SESSIONS TODAY

The Mills and Spencer Coals semi-pro baseball teams will start spring practice in Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street, and Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, this afternoon. The season will start May 5.

Three members of last year's team will return to the Mills this season. They include Nick Polly, third baseman; Joe Rizzo, second baseman, and Jake Hautekamer, pitcher. Polly, one time member of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was the team's leading hitter last season. However, Bill Harley, manager of the Mills, will have to find replacements for several positions. Five regulars of last year's team have been graduated to organized baseball.

Nate Shyer, manager of the Coals, is expected to have practically the same team as last year. The players who will again play with the team include Joe Desiardo, third baseman; Joe Canizzo, shortstop; Hal Mossman, second baseman; Bill [Lefty] Stevens, pitcher, and Bill Grandboise, first baseman.

PROS INCREASE PLAYER LIMIT TO 33 MEN FOR 1940

Turn Down Boston's Bid for Franchise.

New York, April 13 (AP).—The National Football league turned down a Boston application for a franchise today, then boosted the cost of new franchises from $10,000 to $50,000 and increased the player limit at the second session of its annual meeting today.

The application of William A. Shea for a franchise for a new Boston club was returned, President Carl Storck explained, because the league has no western club to match a new eastern member. It was decided to continue the present 10 club setup, with five teams in each division, for the 1940 season. In returning the application, Storck informed Shea that if at any time there is a western team to pair up with a new eastern member, his application will be carefully considered. Boston formerly operated a national league club which was shifted to Washington.

Trades Are Missing.

The new price for franchises applies only to those granted to new members. The price for the transfer of an operating franchise to a new owner would be based entirely upon its market value.

The raising of the player limit from 27 to 33 players was the only other important business transacted.

Perhaps the most surprising feature of this meeting has been the absence of trades. One man very much interested in making a few deals is Curly Lambeau of the Packers. The Green Bay coach expects that most of his draft men will be heavy favorites in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's All-Star poll and probably will be playing against the Packers in that game. He's willing to trade them off for some talent already in the league. As yet he has had no takers.

Jock Wants Goldberg.

Lambeau is very serious about winning the All-Star game. One reason is that his Packers were beaten, 6 to 0, in 1937, when his veterans were slow in rounding into form. He wants no such slip to happen again.

Steve Owen of the Giants, Potsy Clark of the Detroit Lions and Dutch Clark of the Cleveland Rams were in brisk conversation, but reached no decision. Later Owner Dan Topping, Coach Jock Sutherland, and Business Manager Denny Shea of the Dodgers were in conference with Art Rooney and Walter Kiesling of the Pittsburgh Steelers. Nothing happened there either.

Sutherland also had a talk with Jimmy Conzelman, new coach of the Chicago Cardinals. He was interested in prying the Cards loose from his favorite football player, Marshall Goldberg, once his pupil at Pitt. But Conzelman merely grinned at the idea of parting with Mad Marshall.

FISHING LURES OF NEW SEASON HARD TO RESIST

1940 Accessories Appear Attractive, Useful.

BY BOB BECKER.

Beginning with the month of March the fisherman always can drop into a sporting goods store and develop a rise in temperature over a brand new fishing gadget. It may be a new trout fly, a new kind of bass bug, a creel of a different type, or some other accessory that a fisherman wants to own, for all of us who like to fish can be depended on to succumb to a new lure when spring is in the air.

When we browsed around the tackle shops a few days ago we found just what we expected—more new fishing accessories to make us "oh" and "ah." The first item to catch our attention was an extremely fine, fragile-appearing wire leader for bait casting which looks no bigger than heavy thread yet tests 27 pounds. This new wire of tremendous strength should get a big welcome from the bait casters. Measuring one of these new wire leaders with a micrometer we found that one testing 18 pounds actually had the diameter of a gut trout leader with a test of only 2¼ pounds.

Lures are Beauties.

The new bait casting lures for 1940 are beauties. Among the novelties are the rattlebug which we saw for the first time at the outdoor show in February, twin spinner underwater lures made of plastic material, and a new type of weighted spinner lure and bucktail, which has a triple attraction—a wobbling action, a flashing spinner and color in the bucktail. A new deep diving transparent plug which goes way down when reeled in seems to be making a big hit with the bait casters. This is a small plug, easy to cast, and comes in many color variations. The new lure in this series has a large metal collar which forces it down where the big ones are. For early-season wall-eye fishing this ought to be a killer. We used a plug of this general type near Hayward, Wis., last year when we floated down the Chippewa. It fooled the wall-eyes easily.

We have a hunch that the fly rod bass fisherman is going to go overboard for a popping fly rod floater lure that is brand new. The body is made of cork. It has a hollow head so that every jerk on the retrieve makes it gedunk itself and give an explosive pop that stirs a black bass into action.

This lure comes with either a short feather tail or a floating streamer fly.

Should Last Lifetime.

Another new fishing accessory that's bound to intrigue the trout fishermen is a creel of generous size, reinforced beautifully with strong leather and made so sturdily that it should last a lifetime. We were surprised to learn that this creel is manufactured by an organization of blind men and is just being introduced to trout fishermen. In addition to this fine creel interesting fishing equipment this year includes the balanced fly rod outfit with a bamboo rod, reel and line assembled as a unit for perfect balance and efficient action; and a new upstream wet fly for trout. This is a fly sparsely tied so it won't float, yet with enough hair in the pattern to give it a lot of action in the water when it drifts with the current.

How About It, Golfer? Have You a C.D.G.A. Rating Card?

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The fourth year of the official handicap system and course rating method of the Chicago District Golf association is now in progress, and it's going to be the biggest of all, if the officers of the association in general and Thomas G. McMahon, originator of the plan, in particular, have anything to say about it.

The system has supplied handicapping service to more than 50,000 golfers in the Chicago district within the last three years, but many members have not fully appreciated its benefits. To this end, Maynard G. Fessenden, president of the C. D. G. A., and his board, are going to devote the next few weeks to a campaign of preliminary education, so that every recipient of a C. D. G. A. handicap card will be thoroly aware of its merits.

It Costs One Dollar.

Fessenden announced that every president of the 70 member clubs of the association should be prepared for two actions in the immediate future. One will be a letter composed by him and McMahon. This will be sent to each club president to acquaint him with the workings of the handicap system. Shortly after the letter had been received each club president will be invited to confer with a member of the C. D. G. A. board. There are 20 members on the board, and each of these will be appointed to present the plan in detail to three or four clubs.

The card costs only one dollar per year. The handicap system of the C. D. G. A. provides the association with its only revenue, and all of it is expended in paying the salaries of employés in the district headquarters. A number of golfers in C. D. G. A. clubs inadvertently have taken advantage of the service without sending the association the fee. This situation, the association feels, is doubtless the result of improper distribution of the cards and explanatory booklets within the individual clubs.

Booklet Explains Plan.

Hence, the planned campaign thru letters and personal visits to the presidents this year. McMahon, the energetic little Irishman from Skokie, who conceived the plan and has fought a successful three year fight to make it a reality, has written a 32 page booklet explaining the system in detail. It also carries course ratings of all member clubs and a chart by which official handicaps can be computed easily. These booklets, together with official cards, will be delivered to each member club on or about April 20. If any member wishes the booklet before that he can obtain same at the C. D. G. A. headquarters on the 18th floor of the La Salle hotel.

In addition to the cards and booklets, each club will receive a special stamping machine, so that the club handicapper can officially validate each handicap with the C. D. G. A. seal. Handicaps are brought up to date by C. D. G. A. employés every two weeks thruout the season.

It's Not Compulsory.

The C. D. G. A. does not intend to make ownership of a handicap card compulsory among players in its member clubs, stressing the fact that it is a matter of individual discretion. A number of clubs were lukewarm on the idea at its inception, but records show that most of them have progressed to a point where a 100% ownership of handicap cards is in effect. This is true of such clubs as Westmoreland and Park Ridge.

The advantage of the C. D. G. A. handicap card? McMahon is quick to fire a number of them at you.

"For one thing," Thomas avers, "it identifies you as a member of the C. D. G. A. It has been gratifying to us to learn that playing privileges have been granted by many out of town clubs on the mere presentation of the C. D. G. A. card. It also proves membership in the private club listed on the card.

"The card establishes the player's handicap as recorded at his club and in the C. D. G. A. office records. If kept up to date and properly validated, it will show both current and past handicaps for the present and previous seasons. When competing for prizes, cash or glory, there is no satisfaction in achievement without honor. Therefore, golf handicaps must be equitable and unquestioned. All doubt as to the correctness of your handicap and all chance of suspicion and embarrassment can be avoided by having a validated C. D. G. A. card in your possession."

Even Jones Is Interested.

The handicap system has made such strides in its first three years that it has become a model for other associations and clubs thruout the United States and Canada. Among the organizations and cities who either have copied it directly or have sought information on it with a view to copying it are the Philadelphia D. G. A., the Buffalo D. G. A., the Southern G. A., the Milwaukee D. G. A., Cleveland, Ann Arbor, Hartford, Indianapolis, Peoria, Toronto, and Honolulu. The United States Golf association frequently requests copies of the booklet, and a pretty fair scratch golfer named Robert T. Jones Jr., was interested enough to write for the plan.

WEIGHT LIFTERS TO HOLD TEAM EVENT TODAY

Frank Kay, National A. A. U. runner-up in the 181 pound division, will lead the Chicago Weight Lifting club in its drive for the Central A. A. U. five-man team weight lifting championship in the Northwest Weight Lifting club, 1640 North Drake street, today at 2:30 o'clock. This is the final event of the season in which the Chicago Park district, the Y. M. C. A., and ten other weight lifting clubs have participated in this sport.

The team event will determine the outstanding club of the year and the personnel of the Central A. A. U. squad which will defend its title in the National Junior tournament, April 28, in Detroit. The meet also will have a bearing in determining the group to appear in the national senior tournament in Madison Square Garden May 25. Six teams will bid for a record total of 3,130 pounds set by the German American A. C. last year. Besides the defending champion they are: the Chicago Weight Lifting club, Northwest Weight Lifting club, Englewood Y. M. C. A., Aurora Y. M. C. A., and Decatur Y. M. C. A.

DANDURAND AND SHORE MAY TAKE OVER CANADIENS

MONTREAL, Que., April 13 (AP).—Possibility that Eddie Shore, veteran hockey star, and Leo Dandurand, Montreal sportsman, would be placed in complete charge of the reorganized Canadiens next year was indicated today by General Manager Tommy Gorman.

"If Dandurand and Shore are available they would make excellent men," Gorman said. "Both have contributed greatly to the success of professional hockey."

It is understood that if Shore ties up with the Canadiens the team may use his Springfield Indians of the International-American league as a farm club. Shore finished the season playing both with his own club and the New York Americans after being sold to the latter club by the Boston Bruins.

STANFORD BREAKS WORLD RECORD FOR MILE RELAY

Palo Alto, Cal., April 13 (AP).—Stanford university's mile relay team clipped one and one-tenth seconds off the world record today in a dual meet in which the Indians defeated the University of California at Los Angeles, 90⅓ to 40⅔.

With Capt. Clyde Jeffrey running the anchor lap, the Stanford quartet covered the mile in 3 minutes, 10.5 seconds. This bettered the record of 3 minutes 11.6 seconds set in 1936 by a University of Southern California team.

Charles Shaw ran the opening lap for Stanford in 47.5 seconds as he built up a 20 yard lead. Ernie Clark added 10 yards to the lead as he ran the quarter in 48.3 seconds. Altho getting a poor pass, Craig Williamson traveled his lap in 47.4 seconds and then Jeffrey, who has equaled the world record for 100 yards, ripped off the final quarter in 47.3 seconds.

JUDGE ORDERS ROOKIE'S WIFE TO READ RULES

Cincinnati, O., April 13 (AP).—Mrs. Charles Barrett figures her husband's prospects with the Cincinnati Reds are pretty good, so Judge A. L. Luebbers warned her today to learn Cincinnati driving laws.

Arraigned on a charge of ignoring a red light, the wife of the rookie pitcher from North Hollywood said: "In California you may proceed thru a light change if you are within 50 feet of the intersection."

"How long do you expect to reside in Cincinnati?" the judge inquired.

"Well, now, that depends on Red and the Cincinnati club," she replied. "But I expect to remain during the baseball season because Red is going to have a good year."

So the judge fined her the costs, remitted, and told her to read up on the rules.

HONEY CLOUD IS VICTOR AGAIN IN $5,000 HANDICAP

Wins Bowie Closing Day Feature Second Time.

Bowie, Md., April 13 (AP).—Honey Cloud, a chestnut gelding with a special fondness for the Bowie track, ran away with the $5,000 added Southern Maryland handicap today.

Before a closing-day crowd of 13,000, Honey Cloud, owned by Mrs. A. J. Abel, took the lead at the break and held it all the way over the mile and a sixteenth route to pull down the winner's purse of $4,075.

It was Honey Cloud's second victory in the 6 year old stake. He won last year's renewal, defeating Challephen and Unhearalded, which finished second and third, respectively.

Ably ridden by Danny Driscoll, Honey Cloud went to the lead at the start and stayed there until Rodin, owned by J. Wormser, challenged him in the stretch. Then the Abel colorbearer came on again to win by a scant neck. Isadore Bieber's Conde Rico ran third and his stablemate, Confiado, was last in the field of four.

The 6 year old son of High Cloud and Honey Pot was fortunate to be in the middle of the track, where the going was good, when the real test came. He traveled the distance in 1:48 to reward his supporters with $2.90 for each $2 ticket. Because of the small field only straight betting was allowed in the mutuel pool.

DERBY NOMINEE RUNS 4TH.

Lexington, Ky., April 13 (AP).—June Bee, owned by the Bomar stable, outrun a Kentucky Derby eligible in winning the $2,500 added Ashland stakes, today's feature event at Keeneland.

The daughter of Jean Valjean-Princess Pan, defeated Midkiff and Wells' Flying Jane by five lengths in the six furlong event for 3 year old fillies over a good track.

Woodvale stable's Woodvale Lass, only member of the field of six nominated for the Derby, never was a contender and finished fourth, back of D. McKinley's Miss Co-Ed, which lost the place by a nose.

June Bee, capably handled by Jockey Kenneth McCombs, raced into a commanding lead after the first quarter and never left the issue in doubt. Flying Jane closed with a rush but could not threaten the winner. June Bee paid $7 in the $2 mutuels and won $2,575. She ran the distance in 1:13 4-5.

RACKATACK WINS SPRECKELS.

San Francisco, Cal., Apjril 13 (AP).—Rackatack, owned by C. S. Howard of San Francisco, won the seventh annual A. B. Spreckels handicap at Tanforan today by a length. The favorite, Sales Talk, finished out of the running. Leonard Scott booted the winner home in 1:01 2-5 over the five furlond course. Rackatack paid $23.40, $10 and $7. Ira Pan finished second to pay $24 and $12.60. Strong Arm, third, returned $6.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Scarlet O. $7.30 straight, $3.70 place, $2.80 show; Breezing Along $3.70 place, $2.60 show; Schley Goree $3.80 show.

SCARLET O., under steadying restraint while racing in first flight, took command when called upon approaching half pole and drew out, winning easily. Breezing Along, outrun early, came gamely in closing test. SCHLEY GOREE was under punishment after a half, but Durando appeared to ride overconfidently and lost the place. HENRYEL'S PICK was hard ridden and had no excuses. SCORIA closed some ground. LIMERICK was used up setting pace and stopped.

Arlington Park Owners Weigh Offer by Allen

to have represented a group of wealthy Chicago business men.

Sportsmen Gain Control.

Several days after announcement of this deal, the Dressel syndicate was reported to include Terry Druggan, west side beer baron, and his notorious partner, Frankie Lake. Stockholders threatened suit to force out Druggan and Lake, but before the matter came to a head, Charles McCulloch, widely known capitalist, announced he was heading a syndicate of 20 of the wealthiest men in Chicago to purchase controling interest in the plant.

McCulloch's announcement brought the names of Hertz, Otto Lehmann, John R. Thompson Jr., Laurance Armour, Ralph Hines, and Warren Wright into the affairs of Arlington. Lehmann is now president of the track.

Under the direction of these men, Arlington Park became one of the world's leading racing courses. Operated on a nonprofit basis it has offered rich purses and has attracted the country's leading thorobreds. It has become the playground of society and annually its meetings are regarded as the highlight of the summer racing season.

TAMPA TRACK SOLD.

Tampa, Fla., April 13 (AP).—Purchase of the former Tampa Downs horse track by an eastern syndicate for $60,000 was disclosed today when a deed for transfer of the property was filed in court records. The syndicate, according to information here, plans to build and operate a racing plant next winter under the name of the Florida West Coast Jockey club.

The deed transfering the 330 acre tract from Laura H. McIntosh of New Port Richey, Fla., to the West Coast Jockey club carried the names of Louis Smith of Boston as president of the club and Muriel Service of New York as secretary.

3 NEW SCHOOLS JOIN INDIANA PREP LEAGUE

South Bend, Ind., April 13 [Special].—The eastern and western divisions of the northern Indiana High School conference became equal in membership today when John Adams of South Bend and North Side of Fort Wayne were voted into the eastern section, and Tolleston of Gary was admitted into the western division. The action was taken at the annual spring meeting of conference officials. Both divisions now number 11 schools. North Side is the first Fort Wayne school to be admitted to the conference.

The new members must wait one year before they may schedule conference members in all branches of athletics. John Adams is the only school which has not had athletic competition. The South Bend institution is now nearing completion and will open for the first time next fall.

It was voted to arrange football and basketball schedules two years in advance, and if disputes arise from scheduling, the power of smoothing details will rest with a committee appointed by the conference president.

Two conference meet dates were selected. Elkhart was awarded the conference track meeting on May 4, and La Porte was awarded the golf tournament on May 11.

A new slate of officers was chosen. Fred Benson, principal of Hammond Tech, was named president; Louis Burkett, Hammond Tech basketball coach, secretary treasurer, and R. F. Robinson of East Chicago's Washington, vice president.

MONTY R. BEATS BLOCKADE IN STEEPLECHASE

Monkton, Md., April 13 (AP).—Lewis A. Randall's Monty R., with Johnny Merryman up, won the 32d running of My Lady's Manor point-to-point steeplechase today, finishing two lengths ahead of Blockade, the favorite.

Monty R. overtook Blockade, with J. Fred Colwill up, at the 15th post and rail barrier. They took the last two fences almost as a team, but Monty R. had the most to spare. The winner's time was 6.20 over the three mile course.

Espadin, ridden by Lewis Merryman Jr., was third, tailed by Reconsidered, with Richard P. Hamilton up.

NEW YORK READY TO TEST MUTUELS AT JAMAICA PARK

Opinions Vary on Effect of Innovation.

New York, April 13 [Special].—The New York racing season, with parimutuel betting, will start Monday with this part of the country the last of many sections to adopt the mechanical form of wagering.

Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the racing commission, recently described the Jamaica meeting, where racing starts and continues until May 11, as an experiment others agree. Depending on how things go at Jamaica the cloth will be cut for the racing to come at Belmont Park, Aqueduct, Empire City, and Saratoga.

The Paumonk handicap, first run in 1906 and a traditional Jamaica feature, will headline the opening day, but whether New York racing will continue in the traditional New York manner, or make a turn-about and carry on like other mutuel tracks in other parts of the country is the question to be decided.

Two New York Theories.

One school of thought is that the public will figuratively knock down the gates to get in and bet now that the bookmakers at the track have been eliminated and the admission price dropped to $1.50. Another group, and this includes many of the substantial folk in the sport, believes there will be a big increase in attendance and revenue, but that it will not be sensational, nor so big as to be unhealthy, as has been the case in virgin racing territory.

Behind the scenes, and saying very little, is a smaller group devoted to the thorobred horse and racing, which feels there is too much racing. They fear the boomerang effect of excessive gambling, and gambling of a kind which attracts patrons from the lower wage earning groups. Formerly New York racing was an expensive proposition for all but those who enjoyed a substantial income. Now it is on a par with baseball.

Senator to Buy First Ticket.

The totalisator installed at Jamaica was tested and approved today by the state tax commission and the state racing commission.

Newcomers are expected to be numerous on opening day, and elaborate rules have been established for their guidance. But the regulars who have been part of the sport for years, are expected to be back, and the biggest change they will see will be the betting windows.

These stretch in long rows in the betting shed that formerly housed the bookmakers' betting ring, under the grandstand, and in the clubhouse, and in the paddock areas. This change is the result of a long fight led strongly since 1932 by Senator John J. Dunnigan and the senator is to be given the honor of purchasing the first $2 ticket.

The 124th Field Artillery Remount association polo team of Mike Healy, Bobby Nichoalds and Lt. Nichoalds paced the attack with eight goals as against his average of seven per game thruout the season. The Remount team scored five times in the final period.

Outscoring their opponents in every period, the Ranchers, who hold the Metropolitan League junior division title, defeated the Woodland Polo club of Hinsdale, 13 to 7, in the first game. Jim Healy scored five goals. His brother Tom and Lt. Carl Johnson each scored four. Lineups:

ARMORED SCOUT CARS SPEED UP NATIONAL GUARD

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—Twenty new armored scout cars are being equipped in the National Guard armory here as the 23d Reconnaissance squadron. The cars are interesting from an automotive as well as a military standpoint. These mechanized cavalry units cruise highways at 55 miles an hour with top speeds of 75 miles an hour. They are also built to cross fields, ditches, and hills off the roads.

The car has a short wheelbase. A six cylinder engine develops 110 horse power. Eight forward gear ratios furnish a maximum flexibility in delivering the power to all four wheels. Loaded the weight is 11,660 pounds.

Tires Are Bullet Proof.

Big, heavy tires are described as bullet proof. Liquid inside the casing seals punctures to prevent deflation. Steel shutters protect the radiator from small caliber bullets, and a metal cover with two portholes can be lowered to displace the windshield glass.

Mounted on the front bumper with shock absorbers is a roller about a foot in diameter. This enables the truck to rise after dipping its nose into a ditch, providing it can get traction either on the front or the rear wheels.

Accommodates Eight Men.

There are bucket seats for eight men in the car, including the driver. In field duty, there is no top on the vehicle. The armored sides are high enough to form a shield from small ground arms, but an antitank gun, of course, would stop it.

Two 30 caliber machine guns are mounted on a rail around the side. These can be used against air or ground targets and on a rail in the front is a 50 caliber machine gun, the effective size against tanks. The squad, in addition to side arms, also carries a 45 caliber submachine gun. A two way radio has a radius of from 60 to 80 miles. By this means, air, car, and horse scouting are coördinated.

Its Duty Is Scouting.

"As scouts, the mechanized cavalry avoids combat unless necessary to accomplish its mission," said Maj. Mark Plaisted, commander of this 23d Reconnaissance squadron. "Its normal mission is to obtain information about the enemy and about the field of operations. A second function is as a security detachment on points, flanks, or rear.

"Mechanized cavalry does not supplant horse cavalry reconnaissance, but relieves horse cavalry, before close contact, of the tremendous burden of locating enemy forces over a relatively wide and distant front.

The car should not be expected to perform the duties of normal close-in security detachments, as the mounted trooper still is the most efficient means of seeking out the small hostile patrol and of reconnoitering in connection with close-in security."

They'll Be Brought to Chicago.

These 20 new armored scout cars will take part in a 33d division military show on the nights of June 29 and 30 in Soldiers' field, Chicago. New rifles and 14 new planes also will be displayed, and 10,000 soldiers will take part. Receipts, after expenses are paid, will be divided among the participating units for sports equipment and club room furnishings for enlisted men.

Ford Retail Deliveries Up 26 Per Cent for Quarter

Detroit, Mich., April 13 (AP).—The Ford Motor company reported today retail delivery of 216,935 Ford and Mercury passenger cars and Ford trucks during the first quarter of 1940, an increase of 45,120 units, or 26.3 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. Mercury deliveries increased 43.4 per cent over the 1939 period, the company said.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

BLAMES AUTO DESIGN.

Boston, Mass., April 6.—How ruthless it is to kill or maim a little child thru selfish obstinacy in defying ordinary principles of sound sense!

Again, the daily press records a wholly unnecessary accident to a little girl who was being returned from a children's party to her home in a car driven by a fond and loving relative, her own aunt. The little girl alighted from the car at her home, and her aunt, thinking the child was perfectly safe, started her car. The little girl had stepped in front of the car, and there, squarely in front, yet out of sight of her aunt, and suspecting no possible injury from a car which was at rest, was swept to destruction. Merely another accident. Merely another victim. Merely another sacrifice to the obstinate disregard of established truth. The child could not properly be blamed. The aunt could not properly be blamed. Buried up to her ears in automobile, cooped up in a car from which she had no proper view of her surroundings, the aunt rushed her little niece without the slightest suspicion of danger. This is not an isolated case. There is hardly a person who cannot recall its parallel.

The cause of that accident was the bad designing of the car, which provided no adequate view of road and traffic conditions to the operator. No excuse can be presented on the ground of defective mechanism, bad driving, excessive speed, difficult highway conditions, inexperience in handling a car, disregard of signals, nor the use of intoxicating liquor. The faulty designing and styling of the car stands out in bold relief, unmitigated by any other fact or circumstance.

The brutality and heartlessness of measuring the lives of little children in terms of money is too apparent to call for argument, and the automobile manufacturers are responsible for their designers and their designs.

The fault is theirs. The initiative lies with them. ARTHUR W. STEVENS.

SPORTSMANSHIP.

Chicago, April 7.—Is it possible that one of our honorable jurists would humble himself enough to get behind the wheel of a taxicab? Most likely not, but it has been my experience to say yes.

Not long ago a man came up to my cab and asked me to give his car a shove. Being a public servant and striving to please, I agreed. After several attempts to push his car out of the snow, which was parked alongside of an undertaking establishment, I got stuck. So I put my back to his car and after a couple of heaves he was free to go. He paid me and was under no obligation to me. Others have left me stuck and laughed at me. Not this one, even tho he was in a hurry. He insisted on seeing my car was free. He helped push and when we could not budge my cab I told him to get behind the wheel and rock the cab. Reverse and second speed and my pushing got it out easily.

After another look at this gentleman I told him he looked familiar. His answer was, "Perhaps you've been in Traffic court?" Wow, was my face red! To think I told Judge Gutknecht to get into my cab and drive it. He was a good sport and I could see he was determined to return a favor. In other words, fair play was natural with him. A CABBIE.

LOW LICENSE NUMBERS.

Chicago, April 9.—I wonder why so many car owners want a low auto license number? For my part I would just as soon have the ten millionth number or even higher than that!

Ten years ago this coming summer [in 1930] I submitted an auto signal lamp system in two sets to the National Safety committee and the Illinois secretary of state. One set also included a license plate with cutout numbers instead of glass front for a front and rear lamp high up on the body. This number plate had numbers starting with A-1, B-1, C-1, D-1, etc., using the whole alphabet for No. 1, for No. 2, etc., thru Z.

In other words, there would be 26 cars with number 100 but each with a letter before the number 100 of its own. There also would be 26 cars with the number 1-A, etc.

This license plate system was not mentioned as unsuitable. I was only told that the extra lights were not allowed on a moving car. The lights for turning right and left also were submitted to the chief engineer, Sorenson, of Chicago's traffic system, who found the system best of several submitted to him.

For low license numbers use the alphabet and make it easier for police and civilians to read the numbers on cars operated by careless drivers. It also will help those who wish to have low numbers. IVAN O. ROSENQUIST.

SPRING IS HERE; TIME TO TUNE UP YOUR AUTOMOBILE

Summer Safety, Comfort Demand Action.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

This is tune up time for the family automobile. After the long winter engines and bodies need a thoro checking over in order to have them in the best condition for the long hard driving that summer will bring. And the safety factor is an important consideration.

Engineering departments of all the manufacturers at this season of the year are liberal with advice to the motorist. And if he takes advantage of it he may save himself a lot of grief when he is out on the highway—miles from a service station—during vacation days.

Pontiac's service department has outlined a plan of spring conditioning that will improve gas mileage and reduce repair bills. And this plan goes for practically every other make of car on the highway.

Change Oil First.

"First of all oil should be changed to the proper grade for warm weather driving and to relieve the crankcase of wornout winter oil," is the first word of advice. "Cold weather choking and 'sweating' cause condensation of moisture in the engine. Normally this moisture is thrown off by crank case ventilation, but in short winter dashes the car frequently fails to warm up enough to produce evaporation. Then the water passing into the crankcase dilutes the oil and forms sludge. Wise motorists will have this sludge removed before refilling the crankcase with summer oil."

Next the transmission lubricant should be replaced with one of the proper summer grade. The chassis should be thoroly lubricated and dirt from the highways and salt used on the streets during the winter should be removed.

Cooling System Is Important.

It's a good idea to have the cooling system cleaned thoroly. A good flushing will remove rust and oil. The radiator hose should be checked to avoid deterioration.

Ford engineers urge all car owners—regardless of the make of their car—in the interest of safety to see that the steering gear and wheel alignment is checked, particularly if the car has skidded into a curb at any time during the winter.

Tires should be examined for uneven wear. It is a good practice to change the tires about on the various wheels. Put the spare into use so as to give the other tires—one at a time—a rest. Windshield wipers, horns, and lights should be checked to see that they are functioning perfectly before one takes to the highway.

To get the most out of the car, the engine should have a good tune-up. This should include such operations as blowing out the fuel lines, cleaning and adjusting the carburetor, checking spark plugs, and distributor points. The car will ride easier if body bolts are tightened, shock absorbers are adjusted, and springs checked.

NEWS AND VIEWS

An automobile which in almost continuous operation over a three year period has run a total of 405,405 miles will be in operation on the streets of Chicago this week. The car, a Chevrolet, will be exhibited by B. J. Brady, Chevrolet Chicago zone manager, and G. F. Kleeburg, resident fleet sales executive. While in service for the New Jersey state highway department it ran the equivalent to 16 times around the globe. Minor repairs were made from time to time, but only one major overhaul was made—when the car had traveled 287,000 miles. The car was driven 24 hours a day.

"Packard sales in Cook county constantly are increasing in volume over a year ago," comments W. R. Bellows, vice president and general manager of Packard in Chicago. "Our increase was 112 per cent in March, with 460 deliveries against 218 a year ago."

V. A. Davison, assistant general sales manager of Pontiac, in charge of the west, and other factory executives, were in Chicago last week to confer with C. G. Riley, Chicago zone manager, and members of the Chicago district sales force. Davison and the others were optimistic over the sales outlook in view of the large number of sales made of the 1940 models. Pontiac sales in the first six months of the model year set an all time record for the company.

Sam L. Davis, Chicago distributor for Willys, will lead an air flight of 200 Willys dealers and customers to the Toledo branch of the company on April 17. The large party will leave the Chicago airport in American and United Air Lines for what is said to be one of the largest commercial flights in history. While in Toledo the party will be guests of Joseph W. Frazer, president of the Willys company.

Albert W. Rickenbacker, brother of Eddie W. Rickenbacker, noted American war ace and aviation official, is making a tour of the country in a Studebaker President in the interest of the Memorial Day race in Indianapolis. He was in Chicago last week.

Spartas Seek Title Today in Pittsburgh

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta Falstaffs, Chicago's candidates for the national soccer championship, left yesterday for Pittsburgh, Pa., where they will engage the Morgan Sport club in the second game of the series for the western division title today. The winner of the two game set, which will be decided on a total goal basis, will oppose the eastern title holder for the United States crown.

Headed by Manager Rudy Velk, 16 players departed for Pittsburgh at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Velk said there would be no change in the lineup which played a 1 to 1 tie with the Morgans in the opening game last Sunday in Sparta Stadium. All regulars came thru the contest without injury and are in perfect condition for the game this afternoon, Velk added.

LOUISVILLE GETS A FALL DATE ON GRAND CIRCUIT

Louisville, Ky., April 13 (AP).—Robert Jewell, manager of the Kentucky state fair board, today said purses totaling approximately $20,000 would be offered at the Grand Circuit racing program this year in Louisville, newly admitted member of harness racing's "major league."

Jewell said arrangements have been completed for a five day Grand circuit meeting at the state fair in September — between the circuit's Indianapolis and Lexington meetings.

Wildcats' Track Squad Entered in Kansas Relays

Northwestern university's track team will open its outdoor season at the Kansas relays next Saturday while the golf team is launching its 1940 campaign against Detroit at the Kildeer Country club, near Evanston. The baseball team completes the week's activity with a home and home series with Chicago Friday and Saturday.

Coach Frank Hill has nominated a squad of six men headed by Myron Piker, Big Ten sprint champion, for the Kansas relays. In addition to Piker, the other Wildcat entries consist of Joe Finch, hurdles; Jim Smith, high jump; Ed Thistlethwaite, pole vault; Don Clawson, discus, and Jack Ryan, javelin. All except the last two were point winners in the Big Ten indoor tournament.

The golf team opens its 10 match schedule with two lettermen available from last year's Big Ten championship squad. The veterans returning are Capt. Chet Bland, a senior, and Chase Fannon, a junior, individual conference titleholder last year. Players lost by graduation were Sid Richardson, twice winner of the conference title, Frank Perpich and Art Bedrosian.

Leading candidates to replace the graduated stars are a pair of sophomores, Dick Haskell of Seattle and Bill Kelley of Evanston, and Bill O'Neall, a letterman from two years ago. This trio will probably complete the quintet which will appear in the dual matches this spring.

The baseball team will make its first home appearance of the year when it meets Chicago in Roycemore field Saturday. The teams open their two game series on the midway Friday. John Goldak, a senior, and Dick Klein, sophomore, will handle the pitching duties for the Wildcats.

Shaw's $71,300 Leads Racers at Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Ind., April 13 (AP).—Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, who won last year's 500 mile auto race here, has become the biggest money winner in the history of the event. Officials dug back thru their records today and figured out that Shaw had pocketed $71,300 in winnings on the Indianapolis speedway since he first raced on the track in 1927.

His $20,000 first prize last year enabled him to pass Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., in prize money and his standing at the head of the parade apparently is secure because Meyer, who won three races and $69,000, has announced his retirement from the speed game.

Shaw finished fourth in 1927, second in 1933, 1935, and 1938; seventh in 1936, and first in 1937 and 1939.

Meyer was first in 1928, 1933, and 1936; second in 1929, and fourth in 1930 and 1937. Last year he seemed on the road to his fourth victory until two accidents in the last 100 miles put him out of the race at 492 miles.

Meyer has driven farther on the Indianapolis track than any other driver—5,249 miles. Tony Gulotta of Detroit is second with 4,880 miles, Cliff Bergere of Hollywood, Cal., third with 4,745, and Shaw fourth with 4,171.

Trailing Shaw and Meyer are Tommy Milton of Detroit, two time winner, $49,600; Harry Hartz of Los Angeles, never a winner but second three times and fourth twice, $37,000; the late Jimmy Murphy of Los Angeles, 1922 winner, $33,500; Fred Frame of Los Angeles, 1932 victor, $33,000; Ralph De Palma of New York, winner in 1915, $31.400; the late Bill Cummings of Indianapolis, 1934 winner, $30,200; Rene Thomas of Paris, France, winner in 1914, $30,000, and Jules Goux of Paris, France, 1913 victor, $28,500.

AVIATION STOCKS SHARE MARKET LEAD WITH SHIPS

Specialties Rise as Most of List Marks Time.

New York, April 13 (AP).—Usual stock market leaders lingered by the wayside today while aviation, shipbuilding and an assortment of specialty issues finished the week with a strong upward trend.

Prices were mixed from the start and, at the close, losses and gains running to as much as 2 points were pretty evenly divided. Several favorites bounced to new highs for the year or longer.

News Not Very Inspiring.

The day's news provided scant inspiration either way, and many traders cleared decks for possible foreign eventualities over the week-end. Lack of definite information regarding the British-German conflict in Scandinavia served to dim speculative ardor. Then, too, the cut in steel quotations yesterday still was a chilling market factor.

The brighter outlook for the shipping industry, due to bigger naval construction and replacement of European war sinkings, brought support for stocks in this group. Aircraft and air transport shares reflected the likelihood of larger orders for fighting planes and rapidly expanding domestic passenger traffic. Earnings prospects brought followings to individual issues.

Several New 1940 High.

Touching new 1940 peaks were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Lockheed, American Airlines, Eastern Airlines, Willys-Overland, common and preferred; Electric Boat, New York Shipbuilding, American-Hawaiian Steamship, Martin-Parry, and Chickasha Cotton Oil. Willys common was the volume leader.

General Motors and Chrysler were up ¼ each as talk of record first quarter net for these companies was heard. Improved also were Aviation corporation, Glenn Martin, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Texas corporation, Anaconda, and Montgomery Ward.

United States Steel and Bethlehem held declines to fractions, getting some support on forecasts next week's mill operations might be up a little. Easier were New York Central, Great Northern, Consolidated Edison, United States Rubber, Westinghouse, and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

DROUTH REPORTS VIE WITH WAR IN WHEAT MARKET

Sensational reports of prospective winter wheat crop losses in the southwestern states had relatively little effect on prices on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

Predictions by Chicago statisticians that a smaller crop would be harvested than was indicated by the department of agriculture on April 1 were about offset by uncertainty regarding the war in northern Europe.

Wheat prices held within a range of about 1 cent, breaking slightly in the early trading, but rallying later to close ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher.

Trading in corn and other grains was relatively light. Corn closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher. The steamer Wolfe cleared from Chicago late Friday with 320,000 bushels of corn for Sarnia, Ont. Liquidation developed in soybeans early, but a rally followed. The close was unchanged to ½ cent lower.

DEMAND FOR WAR METALS BOOSTS MARKET ACTIVITY

Copper Sales Rise; Lead Price Is Advanced.

Rounding out a week of active markets stimulated by new war demands, large amounts of copper were sold to European buyers at New York yesterday at 11½ cents a pound. Demand for the metal spread to domestic consumers.

What trade interests termed "a moderate buying wave" resulted in a boost of ¼ cent in the custom smelter and outside market price to 11½ cents a pound, thus eliminating the spread between the smelter and producer quotations. Brokers said copper now cannot be obtained from any source for less than 11½ cents.

Lead and Zinc Sales Rise.

A new influx of buying in the lead market resulted in a price lift of 10 points to 5.10 to 5.15 cents a pound. Zinc shared in the general increase in demand for nonferrous metals and sales were probably the largest for any week in several months, metal authorities said.

Speculative buying and week-end covering gave sugar futures market a firm tone. The refined market was aided by a 10 point advance in beet sugar announced by refiners on business in Chicago and western territory, which will be made on the basis of 4.30 cents. The Great Western, American Crystal, and Holly companies were among those making the increase. Eastern cane refiners continued to quote 4.50 cents.

Coffee futures were slightly lower, higher trends were reported in cottonseed oil, cocoa, hides, and rubber. Wool top futures were uneven.

IMPACT OF WAR SENDS SHUDDER THRU INDUSTRY

Outbreak Confuses Trade Prospects.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Economic complications incident to Germany's invasion of Denmark and Norway shook the framework of American business last week, and industry, confused as to the outlook, groped unsuccessfully to find a trend.

Automobile production showed a small gain, retail trade improved, wholesale orders expanded a little in some divisions, and there was more corporate financing than in the preceding week.

Other Indices Turn Down.

Among other indices, however, home building barely held its own, steel production declined, cotton textile mills curtailed schedules, bank clearings shrank, and electric power production and railroad freight movement failed to measure up to seasonal expectations.

From the standpoint of business men, the war developments had many aspects. One immediate effect of the campaign in Scandinavia was the abrupt closing of that market for American goods. Trade with Norway, Denmark and Sweden had been expanding rapidly. No United States ships may now enter that zone, President Roosevelt having barred them from the area.

Opens Up New Markets.

But even the isolation of the Scandinavian market is expected to have mixed effects in the United States. While some American enterprises will be deprived of customers, others have the prospect of being able to capture other foreign markets from Scandinavian competitors. The paralyzing of Scandinavian merchant fleets is expected to benefit United States shipbuilders and ship operators.

The chart traces the course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press' seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100, and shows a comparison with the corresponding weeks of last year.

American manufacturers of paper, pulp, and meat products apparently stand to get a better hold on world markets as a result of Germany's northward thrust. On the other hand, manufacturers of automobiles and farm machinery indicated they expect to lose trade.

Another complication resulting from the German move was further disruption of the flow of foreign exchange among nations.

Scandinavian Funds Frozen.

President Roosevelt issued an order forbidding any Danish or Norwegian credits or funds being moved out of the United States without permission of the American government. The aim was understood to be to keep Germany from getting possession of assets of Norwegian or Danish nationals.

The weekly index of industrial activity compiled by the Associated Press sank to the lowest level reached so far in 1940. The index, with component groups based on latest available figures, calculated on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

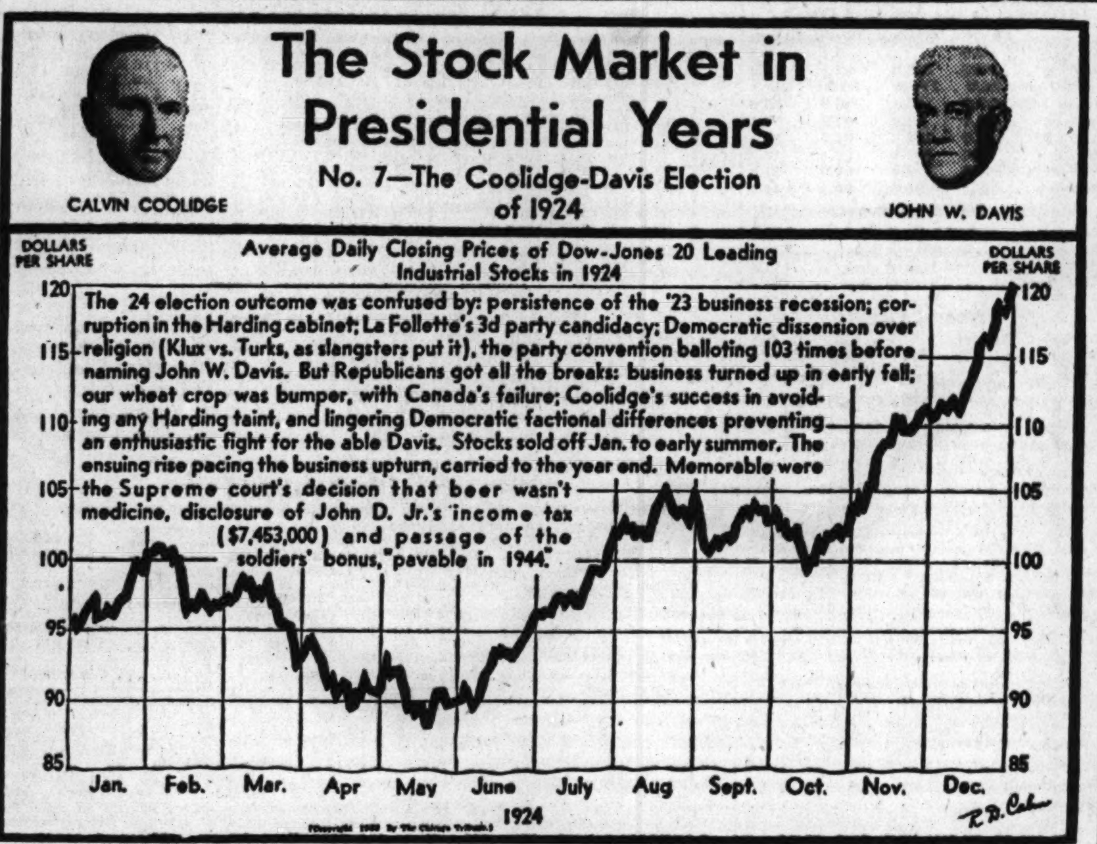
	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	*95.2	96.5	86.4
Automobile output	*92.5	93.1	69.2
Steel activity	82.3	82.8	69.9
Cotton mfg.	*116.2	119.0	111.1
Electricity use	*121.8	123.9	112.5
Home building	82.3	82.3	89.2
Rail loadings	*67.6	68.2	58.7

*1940 low.

Steel mills operated at the rate of 61.3 per cent of capacity, compared with 61.7 per cent in the preceding week.

Meantime the mills formally announced reductions of $4 a ton in steel sheets used by the automobile industry in what was said to be increased competition for auto makers' business.

Automobile production was 102,940 units, compared with 101,655 in the preceding week and 88,050 in the corresponding 1939 week.



Pure Oil Profit Much Higher, Dawes Says

Pure Oil company's profits so far in 1940 have been much larger than in the early months of 1939, Henry M. Dawes, president, told stockholders yesterday at their annual meeting in Columbus, O. Pure Oil's main offices are in Chicago. He also reported discovery of a new oil field in Oklahoma.

Henry M. Dawes.

"The first quarter's earnings are not available," Dawes said, "but they seem to be continuing the favorable trend evidenced in the last quarter of 1939.

"The comparison with the earnings for the first quarter of 1939 probably will show so great an increase that it might be misleading if the same rate of gain were forecast for the rest of the year."

In this connection he said that last year there were short periods in which earnings showed radical variations. He said also that "extraordinary burdens were assimilated" in the first 1939 quarter.

Predicts Larger Income.

Dawes predicted that net income for all of 1940 will be "materially" larger than for last year.

In reporting the oil discovery, Dawes said:

"The company drilled a well in Marshall county, Oklahoma, which definitely indicates that it has discovered a new oil field. The well is in the center of a block of leases of about 20,000 acres, all of which is owned by the company except a half interest in one 200 acre lease. The well in its unfinished state has produced in a 14 hour period at the rate of 4,000 barrels daily."

Files 34,000 Reports.

Dawes said the field's location is advantageous because the oil can be made available to all of the company's refineries, either thru its wholly owned pipe lines or thru use of pipe lines in which Pure Oil has an interest.

Stockholders were told that in 1939 the company was required by federal, state, and local government bodies to answer 34,000 questionnaires. The cost of compiling the information demanded was estimated at $400,000.

The information which was required, stockholders were told, "presumably will be used for levying taxes on the company, regulating its management and furnishing data for new laws."

CHICAGO CHECK TOTAL DIPS, BUT BEATS YEAR AGO

Chicago banks last week cleared a smaller volume of checks than in the preceding week but a larger amount than in the corresponding 1939 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. Clearings were $314,500,000, compared with $323,600,000 and $305,400,000 a week and a year earlier respectively. The report follows:

FRANCE FREEZES ALL PRICES FOR THREE MONTHS FROM MAY 1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 13.—Effective May 1 and for a period of three months, it will be illegal to increase prices in France.

According to the terms of a decree law just promulgated, prices in effect on May 1 will be "frozen" for three months and even longer if the experiment is successful. A few exceptions will be permitted in the case of imported goods or products, but only after the national price fixing committee has ruled that such price increases are justified.

This decree is part of the government's campaign against war profiteering. It calls for a constant inspection and control. The law, which requires business men to post their prices in a prominent place, will be enforced with utmost vigor, Senator Rene Hachette, the new undersecretary for national economy, announced.

LAKES SHIPPING SEASON DUE TO OPEN TOMORROW

Cleveland, O., April 13 [Special].—The Great Lakes shipping season will open officially tomorrow when vessel insurance rates go into effect, but operators of large fleets said today that little shipping would be done before May 1.

In final preseason predictions today shipping company officials estimated that 50,000,000 tons of ore and 40,000,000 tons of bituminous coal would be shipped on the lakes. Limestone movements were estimated at 12,000,000 tons, but neither vessel men nor brokers would hazard a guess on the grain movement.

Bituminous coal stocks at lake docks and on railroad sidings are the largest in the history of the lakes due to unfavorable ice conditions on Lake Erie. It is estimated that 36,000 cars of coal are at lake ports waiting to be dumped into freighters, and 8,500 cars are on sidings between mines and the ports.

Elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur are holding about 85,000,000 bushels of grain, but no spring rush to lower lake ports is anticipated.

NEW ILLINOIS OIL SAND IS TAPPED BY CARMI WELL

Carmi, Ill., April 13 (AP).—A new oil producing formation in White county was established today when J. B. Barnes' No. 1, W. Martin, seven miles southwest of here on the edge of the Stokes pool, flowed from the St. Louis lime.

Dave Barnes, brother of the well operator, said the test flowed about 60 barrels of oil in 10 minutes. Depth of the formation, which lies just below the McClosky lime, was not revealed.

The Martin well was completed as a light producer in the McClosky last December, but recently was deepened to the St. Louis. Other productive levels in the county include the Waltersburg, Hardinsburg, Bethel, Aux Vases, Rosiclare, and McClosky.

Per Capita Income in Nation Is Put at $515 for 1938

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—National per capita income averaged $515 in 1938, as compared with $679 in 1929 and $376 in 1933, the commerce department reported today. Figures for 1939 have not been compiled, but the department estimated that the average would be higher than for 1938.

Urges SEC End 'Morgan Myth' of 'Influence'

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—An attorney for Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., New York investment firm, asked the securities commission today to end the "Morgan myth"—the belief that J. P. Morgan & Co. holds octopuslike control of numerous big business corporations.

Counsel for the SEC had contended that Morgan Stanley, thru intimate connection with Morgan & Co., technically was an affiliate of the Dayton Power and Light company, and, therefore, could not deal at "arm's length" with Dayton in the sale of securities as required by an SEC rule.

Terms Argument Nonsense.

Challenging the SEC staff's contention that Morgan & Co. controls Dayton, George A. Brownell, attorney for Morgan Stanley, said:

"That is the most far fetched example of the Morgan myth you have had in these halls in a long time. It is time for the commission to put a stop to that kind of—I can only say, nonsense."

He and Edward S. Pinney, attorney for Dayton, presented oral arguments before the commission on the question of whether arm's length bargaining was practiced in the sale of $25,000,000 worth of Dayton bonds. Morgan Stanley's $100,000 fee for managing the issue has been impounded pending a final determination, which ultimately may be made in the courts.

Calls Morgan Organizer.

The arm's length bargaining rule requires that utility firms shall be free to "shop around" in a competitive market for the best possible underwriting terms, without being influenced by any underwriter.

While defending the rule from Morgan Stanley and Dayton's charge that it exceeded the authority of the holding company act, John Houser, SEC counsel, contended today:

1. That Morgan and Company was one of two organizers of the United corporation, that United controls Columbia Gas and Electric company and that Columbia owns Dayton Power outright.

2. That Morgan partners largely financed and staffed Morgan, Stanley and Company as a legal fiction" in 1935 when Morgan and Company was forced out of the underwriting business by the banking act.

3. That the Morgan firm still "exerts influence" over United and is "in position to obtain for Morgan, Stanley" the underwriting business of United.

Disputes "Control" Charges.

In reply, Brownell argued that Morgan and Company and its partners now hold only ½ of 1 per cent of United stock, and that it hasn't had a director on the United board since March 28, 1938. He declared that, while Morgan partners did finance Morgan, Stanley, the relationship between the two is not a conspiracy to evade the law.

While Columbia Gas and Electric is by legal definition a subsidiary of United, Brownell contended, the latter exercised no "control" over Columbia, and owns only 19 per cent of its stock, that share being the largest block. He declared it was "the height of absurdity" to say that J. P. Morgan and Company controls United.

EMPIRE BUYING POLICIES DEAL FARMS A BLOW

Divert All Funds to Plane Purchases.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

With farm leaders urging that the Roosevelt administration act promptly to reopen foreign markets, an examination yesterday of trade figures disclosed how the wartime controls invoked by Britain and France have raised a virtual blockade against many American farm products.

Great Britain and France are conserving their credits in this country to assure themselves of a continued supply of the latest type of American military planes and other essential war materials. They are turning to other sources for their foodstuffs and the American farmer is feeling the pinch of shrinking foreign markets.

Propose Tieup with Plane Sales.

Proposals were made in Washington last week by farm leaders that the administration obtain from the empires commitments to purchase American farm products in return for the release to Britain and France of the latest types of American military aircraft. The dependence of those countries on American aircraft places the administration in a strategic bargaining position, it was claimed.

Data obtained from the department of commerce showed that when exports of American aircraft started to rise immediately after the lifting of the arms embargo last November export sales of many American farm products fell off. For a short period Canada took large quantities of American pork products and in turn shipped her own pork to England. Within the last few weeks, however, Canada placed a quota on imports of American pork, and purchases were drastically curtailed.

Wheat Exports at Minimum.

Exports of airplanes jumped immediately when the arms embargo was lifted. England and France alone spent $54,720,137 for planes, engines, and parts during November, December, January, and February, compared with $9,768,038 in the corresponding months a year earlier.

Meanwhile exports of wheat to Great Britain and France from last November thru February amounted to only 8,000 bushels. For the corresponding period a year earlier wheat to these countries totalled 13,810,627 bushels.

Wheat exports to Canada virtually have been shut off. They varied from 5 to 65 bushels a month between last November and February with a total of only 138 bushels for the four month period, compared to 1,314,473 bushels for the same months a year earlier.

Canada Cuts Pork Imports.

Until early this year Canada took substantial amounts of American pork and shipped her own pork to England at premium prices. This helped for a while to relieve the surplus of pork in the United States. Exports of pork and pork products to Canada in January and February totalled 23,409,221 pounds.

Now this outlet for United States pork has been cut to 1,625,000 pounds a month under a quota invoked by the Canadian government.

The quota was invoked when cheaper pork from this country began to undermine the price structure in Canada, where the British government guarantees a premium price.

Exports of cotton to Britain and France increased rapidly immediately after the start of the war, but have been falling off since. Tobacco exports have been drastically curtailed and exports of apples and citrus fruits have been virtually stopped.

Chicago Cost of Living Rises Some in February

Chicago wage earners' living costs in February rose 0.4 per cent over the January level and were 0.5 per cent above February, 1939, the National Industrial Conference board, a private research organization, reported yesterday. Food costs showed the largest increase, rising 1.6 per cent over January and 2.7 per cent over February, 1939.

Neutrals' Gold Flees Ahead of Nazi Invasions

The German war chest missed millions of dollars of Scandinavian gold by the foresight of Swedish and Norwegian bankers, it was indicated yesterday. Most of this gold is resting safely in the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The gold reserves of the two countries had been transferred to this country in increasing volume in the last four months.

Approximately $22,500,000 of gold has been received during the last few days while naval battles have been raging in Scandinavian waters, making further shipments doubtful. Most of the gold was consigned to the New York Federal Reserve bank. Included in the recent arrivals were $4,500,000 from Sweden, $7,300,000 from Italy, and $5,500,000 from Switzerland. The remainder consisted of private shipments, of which the Guaranty Trust company received more than $2,000,000 from Holland and Switzerland.

Finn War Increases Flow.

Altho federal reserve bank officials have withheld disclosure of the gold reserves of individual governments and central banks held under earmark in the United States, they reported that the total of such holdings at the end of March was $1,299,463,000. Most of this foreign gold is to the account of England and France.

The largest part of shipments of the monetary metal from Scandinavia is believed to have entered the earmarked hoard during the political unsettlement of 1938 and 1939, but a substantial portion was sent here during Russia's invasion of Finland.

The heaviest flow of gold from Norway and Sweden, however, began in February and was ascribed to the fear that the arena of the Europen conflict would be shifted into neutral territory.

Bankers Anticipate Move.

Altho the German invasion of Denmark and Norway last week took most of the world by surprise, financial circles in northern Europe apparently anticipated a lightning shift from the tense stalemate on the French-German front. Threats by German leaders that decisive action would be taken this spring created further nervousness among neutral countries.

The sudden increase of gold shipments from Norway and Sweden were the visible evidence that Scandinavia felt its security threatened. The exports of gold from Denmark have not been large in relation to those of its neighboring countries and exact figures are not reported by the federal reserve board.

Sweden was the largest shipper of the yellow metal from northern Europe. Since Jan. 1, this year, $115,000,000 in gold [at $35 an ounce] has arrived in New York from Sweden, the commerce department reported. Of this amount $21,935,485 was shipped in the week ended April 3 alone. Several weeks ago the Swedish government barred exports of private gold. The latest exports, therefore, were understood to have been for government account.

Norway Triples Exports.

Last year Sweden exported $28,715,000 in gold to the United States, including $19,743,000 sent in December. Shipments during 1938 totaled $60,146,000. In previous years gold shipments from Sweden were negligible. The Munich crisis in September, 1938, caused the heavy flow of gold seeking refuge that year.

Norwegian gold shipments to this country thus far this year exceeded $33,000,000 and were three times the $11,000,000 exported in 1939. Before last December Norway's gold shipments were too small to be noted separately in the reserve board's reports. Norway's growing fear of embroilment in the war was revealed in the shipment of $6,414,000 in December

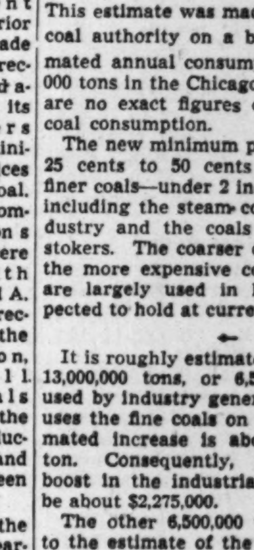
MINIMUM PRICES OF COAL FOR ALL FIELDS REVEALED

Schedule Is Filed After 2 Years of Public Hearings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—The bituminous coal division of the department of interior today made public recommendations of its examiners for the minimum prices of soft coal. The recommendations which were filed with Howard A. Gray, director of the division, cover all soft coals mined in the country except in minor coal producing areas in the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast states, which had been announced previously.



Howard A. Gray.

The minimum price schedule is the result of two years of public hearings and investigation of coal prices, occasioned when courts declared illegal the price schedule fixed by the National Bituminous Coal commission, the name of the coal division before it was absorbed by the interior department.

Court Battle Expected.

The new set of government dictated prices is expected to provoke another series of court battles as the government has persisted in its efforts to fix minimum prices despite the admission that such action will boost the national coal bill by 44 million dollars annually.

The cost will come out of the pockets of consumers. The proposed increase will raise the cost of coal used for heating and cooking by an average of 9 to 11 cents a ton.

Following is the estimated minimum average income per ton which the industry in each price area would receive under the recommended minimum prices compared with the average cost per ton for the area:

Price area.	Average mine income per ton.	Average mine cost per ton.
No. 1—Pa., Md., W. Va., Va., Ohio., Mich., eastern Ky., and northeastern Tenn.	$2.088	$2.128
No. 2—Western Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa	$1.814	$1.762
No. 3—Alabama and southeastern Tennessee	$2.463	$2.438
No. 4—Arkansas and part of Oklahoma	$3.650	$3.608
No. 5—Missouri, Kansas, Texas and part of Oklahoma	$2.047	$2.039
No. 6—Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona	$2.718	$2.739
No. 7—Wyoming and part of Idaho	$2.184	$2.169
No. 8—[The Dakotas, exempted from prices because no bituminous coal is produced there.]
No. 9—Montana	$1.496	$1.485
No. 10—Oregon and Washington	$3.257	$3.225

The coal division announced that excerpts from the price schedules, showing the recommended prices for

CHICAGO'S COAL BILL MAY RISE 3½ MILLION DOLLARS

Chicago's annual coal bill may be increased by $3,412,500 as a result of the minimum prices schedules announced in Washington yesterday. This estimate was made by a Chicago coal authority on a basis of an estimated annual consumption of 13,000,000 tons in the Chicago district. There are no exact figures on the Chicago coal consumption.

The new minimum prices add about 25 cents to 50 cents a ton on the finer coals—under 2 inch screenings—including the steam coals used by industry and the coals used in home stokers. The coarser coals, which are the more expensive coals and which are largely used in homes, are expected to hold at current price ranges.

It is roughly estimated that half the 13,000,000 tons, or 6,500,000 tons, is used by industry generally. Industry uses the fine coals on which the estimated increase is about 35 cents a ton. Consequently, the estimated boost in the industrial coal bill will be about $2,275,000.

The other 6,500,000 tons, according to the estimate of the coal authority, are used for domestic purposes, and of this amount about half, or 3,250,000 tons, is the fine stoker coal on which the average 35 cents a ton will take effect. The increase on this coal is estimated to total about $1,137,500.

Present prices of the West Virginia coals, which are largely used in the Chicago area, range from $1.60 to $1.80 a ton for the slack to $3.25 to $3.35 a ton for the top grade. These prices, which are wholesale prices, do not include the freight rate of $3.39 a ton from West Virginia to Chicago.

The southern Illinois wholesale prices range from $1.50 to $1.70 a ton for screenings to $2.65 for lump. The freight rate to Chicago is $2.50 a ton.

Indiana, fifth vein coal, ranges $1.00 to $1.50 a ton for screenings to $1.50 to $2.40 a ton for the lump. Freight rates are $1.65 to $1.90 a ton.

1,300 Striking Kentucky Miners Will Return to Jobs

Harlan, Ky., April 13 (AP).—Approximately 1,300 striking Harlan county miners agreed late today to return to work Monday, Secretary-Treasurer George Titler of the district United Mine Workers' union [C. I. O.] announced. The walkout, a week ago, followed a dispute growing out of what one coal company described as the loading of "dirty coal." Titler said the strike was unauthorized but added that "every miner on strike" had "unsettled grievances with the company."

UNITED STATES HAD BIG TRADE IN SCANDINAVIA

Commerce of 288 Million Dollars at Stake.

Washington, D. C., April 13 [Special].—An American export trade of nearly $200,000,000 and import trade of $88,000,000 annually are at stake in the war raging for possession of Scandinavia, it was estimated today.

Exports from the United States to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Finland have increased since the beginning of 1939, and this rising tendency was accentuated in the months following the outbreak of the war.

In the first eight months of 1939 the increase over the corresponding period of 1938 amounted to only 10 per cent. In the four closing months of 1939 the rise amounted to 78 per cent, and for the six war months—September, 1939, thru February, 1940—there was a gain of 81 per cent over the corresponding months a year earlier.

1939 Value 166 Millions.

In value, the trade in 1939 reached $166,000,000, a rise of $42,000,000 over the total of $124,000,000 in 1938, and $30,000,000 over the average of the five year period, 1926-'30.

In percentage of total United States exports, the four countries took 5.2 per cent in 1939, against 4 per cent in 1938 and 2.9 per cent in 1926-'30. In the six months from September, 1939, thru February, 1940, the percentage rose to 5.8 per cent.

Shipments to Norway and Denmark alone amounted to $56,000,000 in 1939. This was 1.8 per cent of the total United States export trade.

American exports to Denmark in 1939 were $23,882,000, and in 1938, $24,814,000, according to a department of commerce statement. The most important items in 1939 were vegetable food products and beverages, $2,632,000; such inedible vegetable products as tires, gums, resins, soy beans, and tobacco, $2,373,000; textile fibers and manufactures, $2,243,000; nonmetallic minerals such as gasoline and oils, $6,827,000; metals and manufactures except machinery and vehicles, $1,256,000; machinery and vehicles, $6,430,000.

Exports to Norway.

American exports to Norway totaled $32,105,000 in 1939 and $22,567,000 in 1938. Principal items were vegetable food products and beverages, $5,850,000; inedible vegetable products, $3,058,000; textile fibers and manufactures, $2,452,000; nonmetallic minerals, metals and manufactures, $4,983,000; machinery and vehicles, $5,759,000.

Exports to Sweden were $96,661,000 in 1939 and $64,227,000 in 1938. The largest items were textile fibers and manufactures, $13,685,000; non-metallic minerals, $16,000,000; metals and manufactures, $15,596,000; machinery and vehicles, $25,460,000.

Exports to Finland were $13,442,000 in 1939 and $11,991,000 in 1938. The principal items were vegetable food products and beverages, $1,797,000; textile fibers and manufactures, $1,311,000; non-metallic minerals, $1,639,000; metals and manufactures, $2,267,000; machinery and vehicles, $4,596,000.

Imports from Scandinavia.

American import trade from the four Scandinavian countries totaled $88,364,000 in 1939; $82,191,000 in 1938 and $109,055,000 in 1937. Wood pulp and paper comprised a relatively large proportion of these imports, except from Denmark Wood pulp imports from Norway, Sweden, and Finland constituted 64 per cent of the total quantity of United States imports of wood pulp in 1939 compared to 66 per cent in 1938.

The next largest import group from both Sweden and Norway consisted of ores and metals. Imports of iron and steel from Sweden in 1939 increased to 24,037 tons from 15,373 tons in 1938. Imports of iron and steel, principally ferro-manganese, from Norway increased to 20,877 tons in 1939 from 14,615 tons in 1938.

Fish and fish oil imports from Norway increased from 36,433,000 pounds in 1938 to 43,004,000 pounds in 1939. Imports from Denmark normally consisted of meats, cheese, grass and forage seeds other agricultural products, and cement.

WAR NEWS STEPS UP HOG BUYING; PORK PRICES RISE

Live Stock Markets Most Active in Months.

New developments in the European war last week jolted pork and hog markets out of the rut they had been in for many months. The turn of events was largely responsible for the sharp upswing of prices of other live stock too, packers and live stock traders said yesterday.

The surrender of Denmark to German military rule, shutting off an important source of pork supplies to England, may eventually expand sales of American products to the United Kingdom. This possibility, and the fact that hogs are abnormally low compared with all other meat animals, stimulated buying by packers and resulted in the sharpest rise in hog prices in four months.

Gains Range to $1 a Hundred.

Advances in the various classes of stock during the week ranged from 15 cents to $1.00 a hundred pounds, representing the sharpest rise since the declaration of war by England more than seven months ago. The three principal classes of live stock, steers, hogs, and lambs, together averaged $8.30 a hundred pounds, the highest weekly average since early last November. The six day steer average rose 50 cents, to 9.30. Hogs, at $5.15, showed 25 cents advance, while the lamb price increased 35 cents, to $10.45.

Price advances occurred despite larger supplies of cattle and hogs in the Chicago stockyards. The market handled the heaviest supplies of these animals in a month's time. Practically all classes of meats rose also, despite the increase in slaughtering, and there was less surplus in packing houses at each day's close than there had been when prices of meats were at a lower level. Fresh pork loins led the meat rise, closing $2.50 to $3.50 a hundred pounds above a week ago. Lamb meat was generally $1.00 higher for the six days, while beef showed an average increase of about 50 cents.

Final Prices Best of Week.

Final prices for all live stock were highest of the week. Top lambs late in the week soared to $11.00, equaling the highest mark since September, 1937. It was third highest for April since 1929. The close for lambs was mostly 40 to 50 cents above a week earlier. Yearling wethers showed a gain of 25 cents, while old sheep finished mostly 15 cents higher.

Advances of 50 to 75 cents for the week were general in all steers, yearlings and beef cows. Heifers showed a rise of 50 cents. Calves jumped $1.00, making the biggest advance of all stock. Farmers paid 25 to 50 cents more for replacement stock than at the close of the week previous.

Light hogs and pigs, under 170 pounds in weight, scored an advance of 35 to 60 cents, the lighest kinds that recently flooded the market making the strongest comeback. Most other hogs showed gains of 20 to 40 cents.

MINIMUM COAL PRICE SCHEDULE RECOMMENDED

Covers All of Nation's Producing Fields.

commonly known coals, applicable to selected key cities and sections thruout the country will be given out as soon as mechanics permit. Permission to examine the schedule filed with Director Gray for specific prices in particular areas was not granted. It was said that when these are duplicated and mailed to interested parties they would be made available to for other distributon.

It was said that the recommended prices will give the industry an estimated minimum national income of $2,072 a ton. The minimum average income under the recommended prices represents an average of about 11 cents a ton more than the $1.964 per ton which the industry received in 1937, the most recent period for which figures are available, the division said.

Prices Subject to Approval.

It was emphasized that the examiners' recommendations are not necessarily final. Director Gray will study the recommendations and shortly announce the date on which he will begin to hear exceptions to them.

Then under the terms of the bituminous coal act of 1937, he will make his determinations of the minimum prices and marketing rules and announce the date for them to become effective. His final orders are subject to the approval of the secretary of the interior, but will have full legal effect unless altered by the secretary.

The 1937 act is under attack in the Supreme court. If the attack is sustained the administration would be forced to discard the latest of its series of attempts to fix coal prices.

Outlines Its Methods.

In a lengthy announcement of the mine prices the division commission outlined the factors employed in establishing minimum prices and the difficulties which confronted the examiners.

The examiners recommended a minimum price for each separate kind, quality, and size of coal produced at each mine operated by more than 13,500 members of the bituminous coal code. Prices ranged from 10 cents a ton for inferior coal to $4.80 for the finest grade of domestic coal.

In the division's hearings 300 coal producers and 100 consumer groups gave testimony which filled 26,000 legal pages and introduced some 2,000 exhibits. The testimony covered every phase of production, marketing, and use of coal.

RAILROAD BONDS LEAD GENERAL RISE IN MARKET

New York, April 13 (AP).—Low priced railroad bonds commanded wide interest in today's market, many rising major fractions to around 3 points. Most corporate, government, and some foreign dollar loans tilted upward.

Announcement at Washington that the interstate commerce commission had issued a plan of reorganization for the Erie railroad caused advances in that company's listed bonds of ½ to 3⅜ points.

Dollar bonds of Norway, Denmark, and Italy were higher but declines occurred in those of Belgium, Estonia, City of Milan, and France.

ADDRESS F O 170, TRIBUNE

NEXT APPOINTEE TO SEC IS BIG '?' FACING FINANCE

Choice of Member Held Vital to Markets.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—What sort of person will the President appoint to the Securities and Exchange commission?

That is the question pondered by the financial and business houses which come under the jurisdiction of the government's powerful overlord of the financial markets.

To business and financial quarters the appointment to a vacancy caused by the resignation of George C. Mathews, Wisconsin Republican, is a matter of vital importance. Of course, the appointment is important within the administration, too, but not to the same extent, because it knows the answer. Business does not.

Conservative Would Aid.

Selection of an outright New Dealer of the radical school will swing the commission far to the left. Appointment of a conservative would tend to pull it back into line. Recently, there has been a seesaw tendency in commission decisions with Chairman Jerome Frank wavering between the right and left flanks.

Frank, a New Dealer of long standing and one time cataloged with the most radical of the inner circlers, has been disposed to modify his earlier viewpoints and display more rational views since assuming the responsibility of the chairmanship. Several close swipes with a threatened congressional investigation, it is believed, may have had something to do with this.

Restraining influences on the commission have been Mathews and Robert E. Healy, both Republicans and on the commission since its creation. They are believers in the law which they administer, but they have never shown the power-thirsty appetites inherent in New Deal commissioners.

Eicher Supports New Deal.

The latter would include Leon Henderson, latest appointee to the commission and former secretary of the administration's monopoly hunting committee, and Edward C. Eicher, who was appointed to the commission while a lame duck New Deal congressman from Iowa. Eicher was also a member of the monopoly committee and held the balance of power on the committee which he swung in favor of the New Deal.

Since the last two members of the commission have come from the monopoly probing committee it is believed likely that the President is again studying its membership for a likely candidate. He must pick some one outside of the Democratic party, as the law allows no more than three members of one party. Frank, Henderson, and Eicher fill that quota. So the President is expected to look for the most new dealish Republican he can find, or else some hybrid party member who leans with the New Deal.

Choice of Conservative Unlikely.

Those competent observers within the administration who know the President declare that there isn't a chance of his picking a conservative business man for the post, such as urged by the National Association of Manufacturers. They believe rather that he will tend to the other extreme, especially since the attack of the Investment Bankers association on the SEC and the laws it administers. That has been his usual reaction.

Few names have been mentioned in connection with the prospective appointment, but among those regarded as eligibles is Willis J. Ballinger, economic adviser to the Federal Trade commission and chief of special studies for the SEC between 1934 and 1937. A Harvard graduate and 39 years old, a former professor, one of the New Deal's left wingers, and listed as a Progressive, Ballinger would probably please Mr. Roosevelt, it is believed, but not business. At any rate, those qualifications are expected to apply to the appointee, no matter who he is.

British, Canadian, French Moneys Rise Against Dollar

Canadian, British, and French currencies climbed in value in terms of the American dollar at New York yesterday. Dealers reported a broadening travel and commercial demand for the Canadian dollar, which rose 1¼ cents for the day to 86 cents in United States money. The pound closed 3½ cents higher at $3.52½, and the French franc, at 1.99625 cents, was up 0.01625 cent.

FCC Blocks Sale of Half Interest in Radio Company

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—The federal communications commission today denied without comment an application by Chester A. Thompson for authority to sell to Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., his half interest in the Vee-Bee corporation, licensee of radio station WPAY, Portsmouth, O., for $11,500.

FILE NEW CHARGE IN INSULL ASSET DIVERSION CASE

Additional charges of misappropriation and diversion of assets of the old Insull utility system prior to its collapse eight years ago have been made in a Delaware court, it was disclosed yesterday. Attorney George I. Haight of Chicago, counsel for trustees of the Midland Utilities company, filed last Friday a 126 page document containing the charges.

The proceeding was in connection with a claim for $24,807,262 in direct indebtedness and $48,742,703 representing the value of certain securities. The Midland Utilities trustees' claim is against the Midland United company, which also is in bankruptcy. Both Midland Utilities company and Midland United were units of the Insull system.

Haight's petition, supplemented with excerpts of correspondence in the intercompany dealings complained of, asserted that Samuel Insull Jr. actually was in charge of the finances of the Insull system in the early months of 1931. Attorneys said that was the most critical time in the system's affairs.

WARNS HOSIERY MERCHANTS ALL WON'T GET NYLON

New York, April 13 (AP).—Earl Constantine, president of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, today warned wholesale buyers of hosiery that Nylon hose would be available for less than 10 per cent of present silk stocking purchasers for at least a year.

Nylon goes on the counters May 15. But only 100,000 dozen pairs will be available for consumers by May 15, Constantine said, compared with last year's average daily consumption of 150,000 dozen pairs of silk hose. Nylon hose are being rationed.

He said du Pont expects, in the year beginning next June, to produce 4 million pounds of Nylon yarn, enough for 5 million dozen pairs.

LEVERAGE.

When a common stock is said to have "leverage" it is not subject to some mysterious force, as some inquirers seem to think. Leverage simply means that earnings applicable to the common stock rise or fall more rapidly than the total net income.

This occurs when the common stock is preceded by preferred stock, funded debt or both. The bonds have the first lien on earnings. The interest on the bonds is a prior and fixed charge on a company's income.

If the company also has preferred stock, dividends on this stock must be paid before any payment can be made on the common stock. Holders of the common stock are owners of the company and must wait until all other claims on income have been met before they can receive their share of the remaining profits, if any.

The leverage results, therefore, from the priority of the bonds or the preferred stock to which the common stock is subject. When earnings increase beyond the point required to meet bond interest or preferred dividends, any further rise above this level accrues to the common stock at an accelerated rate. Conversely, when earnings drop toward this "break-even level" the profits applicable to the common stock disappear just as swiftly.

The influence of leverage may be demonstrated in the earnings of the Pure Oil company. The rate of increase of the company's total net income in 1939 compared with that of net income applicable to common stock as follows:

Total net inc...	$8,290,418	$5,412,903	53.2
Pref. dividends.	3,885,519	3,882,939	....
Net applicable to common stock	4,404,899	1,529,964	188.0

While total net income increased 53.2 per cent in 1939, the amount remaining after paying preferred dividends was 188 per cent larger than in 1938.

The "lever" of preferred dividend requirements, however, works both ways. A 28 per cent decline from 1938 net income to $3,885,519 [enough to cover the preferred dividends] would have wiped out any profits for the common stock.

In a period of steadily improving business, the earnings on common stocks subject to such leverage gain more rapidly than on common stocks not preceded by preferred issues. When earnings fall for several years, however, leverage common stocks often are submerged under a pile of unpaid preferred dividends.

Earnings applicable to common stocks, not subject to prior dividend charges, move at an even rate with net income. A 10 per cent gain or loss in net profit means a 10 per cent gain or loss in earnings on the common stock.

The influence of the leverage factor should be weighed carefully in buying common stocks.

I. C. C. ISSUES ITS PLAN FOR ERIE'S REORGANIZATION

Stockholders to Share in New Company.

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce commission issued a plan of reorganization today for the Erie Railroad company which sharply scales down its capitalization and fixed charges.

The plan reduces the Erie's capitalization from $490,953,630 to $332,692,250. Fixed charges of the Erie and the Chicago & Erie, a subsidiary, which amounted to $14,368,842 in 1938, would be reduced to $5,628,245.

Stockholders Get One for Five.

Holders of common and preferred stock would receive new no par common stock on the basis of one share for each five shares now held. In addition they would receive warrants entitling them to purchase common stock—1¼ shares for each share now held—for $37.17 a share.

The Erie has been in reorganization in the United States District court for the northern district of Ohio since Jan. 18, 1938.

If the ICC plan is approved by the court it will be submitted to eligible security holders for approval or rejection.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company owns 1,196,400 shares of the Erie's outstanding 2,148,681 shares, or 55.68 per cent of Erie's stock.

C. & O. May Keep Control.

Under the reorganization plan the holdings of the C. & O. would be reduced to approximately 10 per cent unless the road put up new money. If the C. & O. exercised all of its warrants at a cost roughly estimated at $40,000,000, it would retain voting control of the Erie.

Of the $332,692,250 capitalization provided, $138,289,887 would be fixed interest debt. The remaining capitalization would be divided as follows: $52,987,392, contingent interest debt; $39,001,323, 5 per cent preferred stock; $102,413,648, common stock, no par value [taken at $40 a share].

The following obligations would be paid in cash: New York and Erie second mortgage bonds, $2,135,000; New York and Erie third mortgage bonds, $4,616,000; Railroad Credit corporation notes, $686,928; balance due banks, $1,564,640.

Equipments Undisturbed.

Obligations remaining undisturbed would include $18,233,000 of equipment obligations; New York and Erie first mortgage bonds, $2,482,000; state of New York grade crossing obligations, $3,538,018; note to the National City bank, Cleveland, $171,244, and trustee's notes of $7,000,000.

The following distribution of new securities is provided for the holder of each $1,000 bond:

Prior lien bonds, $1,100 in first mortgage bonds; general lien bonds, $250 in first mortgage bonds, $500 in income bonds, and $350 in preferred stock; convertible bonds, $250 in first mortgage bonds, $250 in income bonds, and $590 in preferred stock; Erie and New Jersey bonds and Genessee river bonds, each $1,150 in first mortgage bonds; refunding and improvement bonds, series of 1927 and series of 1930, each $75 in first mortgage bonds, $150 in income bonds, $140 in preferred stock, and 20 shares of common stock.

CHICAGO BROKER BUYS 60 YEAR OLD AUCTIONEER FIRM

Ownership of the Williams, Barker & Severn company, auctioneering firm at 229 South Wabash avenue established in 1879, has been acquired by Barnet Faroll, Chicago grain broker, it was announced yesterday. He has become president of the company, succeeding the late Marvin A. Barlow, having purchased all of the stock from Barlow.

Richard Levy, president of Michael Tauber & Co., large Chicago auctioneering company, is now vice president of Williams, Barker & Severn, and will retain his position with the Tauber company. He said that he and Faroll, who is noted as an art collector, intend to develop an art gallery at Williams, Barker & Severn.

Faroll will retain his active interest in grain trading and continue as senior officer of Faroll Brothers, grain commission firm. Edward J. Turney is secretary and treasurer of Williams, Barker & Severn.

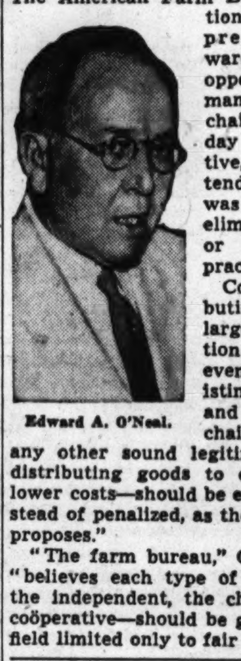
CHAIN STORE TAX BILL IS ASSAILED BY FARM BUREAU AS PUNITIVE

Washington, D. C., April 13 (AP).—The American Farm Bureau federation, thru its president, Edward A. O'Neal, opposed the Patman bill to tax chain stores today as "punitive," and contended that it was unlikely to eliminate unfair or monopolistic practices.



Edward A. O'Neal.

Costs of distribution are too large, the federation said, "under even the best existing system, and any plan—chain store or any other sound legitimate way of distributing goods to consumers at lower costs—should be encouraged instead of penalized, as the Patman bill proposes."

"The farm bureau," O'Neal added, "believes each type of distributor—the independent, the chain, and the coöperative—should be given an open field limited only to fair competition."

NEUTRALS' GOLD FLEES AHEAD OF NAZI INVASIONS

and the unprecedented sum of $19,527,000 in January.

The Scandinavian neutrals were not alone in their apprehension. The Netherlands, Switzerland, and Belgium sent their gold reserves to this country for safekeeping in large shipments. These small neutrals frequently have been under the threat of invasion by Germany.

Belgium Boosts Shipments.

The Netherlands exported $30,415,000 in gold last January and $16,181,000 in February to the New York reserve bank. This shipment was a continuation of the heavy flow of the yellow metal from that country since 1937. Last year $341,618,000 in Dutch gold arrived here and in 1938 $163,049,000.

Belgium sent $974,000 in the first two months of 1940, $165,122,000 in 1939, and $15,488,000 in 1938. Switzerland's gold exports to the United States of $13,931,000 in February were the largest since April, 1939, and compared with only $1,208,000 in January. Heavy shipments were reported in March and April but complete figures are not available. Switzerland's gold shipments in 1939 totaled $86,987,000 and in 1938 $1,363,000.

The use of the federal reserve bank's vaults as a strongbox for Europe's refugee gold has become commonplace since the Nazi land conquests started in 1938. The fear that the Germans would seize the gold holdings of the banks in annexed territory was based on the experience in Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland.

Germany's Total Uncertain.

Germany last reported its gold reserves in May, 1939, at $29,000,000. No later statistics are available to indicate whether Czecho-Slovakian gold reserves of $56,000,000 have been taken over by the Nazi banking system, nor whether Poland's $84,000,000 in gold has been similarly taken.

Known gold reserves of the belligerents and of the neutrals were as follows on March 1:

Belgium	$ 609,000,000
France	2,714,000,000
Germany	29,000,000
Denmark	53,000,000
Netherlands	690,000,000
Norway	84,000,000
Sweden	258,000,000
Switzerland	525,000,000

The United Kingdom was reported with gold reserves of $1,162,000,000 in August, 1939. On Sept. 6, 1939, soon after the outbreak of war, this fund was placed in the exchange equalization account which operates with complete secrecy. There is no way of appraising the present gold holdings of the British government.

Chicagoan's Texas Oil Gusher Still Out of Control

Austin, Tex., April 13 [Special].—Spouting oil high above the derrick at the rate of 75,000 barrels a day, a wildcat well in Crockett county, west Texas, was still out of control today. The principal stockholder of the Soma Oil and Gas company, which owns the well and a 1,200 acre lease upon which it is located, is James Gouras, a Chicago restaurant owner.

Chicago Steel Rate Will Rise Slightly This Week

Chicago district steel mills are expected to show a slight increase in their operating rate next week with an ingot production of 60.3 per cent of theoretical capacity. The rate at the beginning of last week was 60.1 per cent.

COTTON

A slightly easier undertone developed in cotton yesterday. There was some selling on the disappointing figures of mill consumption in March, the official returns being about 15,000 bales less than expected. Closing sales on futures were unchanged to .06 cent a pound lower.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent lower with New York 10.89 cents, New Orleans 10.70 cents, Houston 10.40 cents, and Galveston at 10.38 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Suburban Residential Construction Improves

HOME BUILDING SHOWS INCREASE DURING MARCH

Wilmette Leads Outlying Communities.

Home construction in the Chicago suburban area in the first quarter of this year totaled $5,530,002, showing a gain of $1,145,640, or 25 per cent, over the first quarter of 1939, according to a survey published yesterday by the Bell Savings Building and Loan association. The number of new homes for which permits were let totaled 833 in the first quarter, against 668 in 1939, a 26 per cent gain.

Arthur G. Erdmann.

Arthur G. Erdmann, president of the association, said that 81 communities were included in the survey.

The total for March was $2,831,727 for 440 homes, against $2,414,164 for 668 homes, in March, 1939.

The average cost per home in the first quarter was $6,639, against $6,538 for the entire year 1939.

General Construction Gains.

Building of all types in March totaled $3,550,582, compared with $3,554,942 in March, 1939. For the first quarter of this year the total was $8,642,692, a gain of $2,183,000, or 34 per cent, over the first quarter of last year.

Chicago permits in March totaled $3,008,789, including homes as well as other types of buildings. The total was one of the largest for any March in recent years.

Repairs, alterations, additions, and modernizations of homes made during March involved $287,175, compared with $298,067 in March, 1939, $279,808 in 1938, and $297,147 in 1937.

Wilmette Leads Suburbs.

Wilmette led Chicago area communities in construction of all types with a total of $217,650, compared with $56,700 in March, 1939. Industrial Gary was second with $207,143 against $155,267 a year ago.

Communities that took part in the survey for the first time included Bellwood, Northbrook, and Westchester. Last year A. L. Woolf, Bellwood building inspector, issued permits for 11 homes valued at $79,793. Herman Meier says Northbrook built 21 homes valued at $149,977, and J. O. Allison, Westchester building commissioner, reported 8 homes built last year at a cost of $50,000.

Realty Board President Urges Tax Bill Protests

Morgan Fitch, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, yesterday urged property owners in Cook county to protest certain portions of their 1939 real estate tax levies. It is expected the tax bills will be sent out in a few days. Fitch said he was urging property owners to protest on the ground that certain items in the levies are illegal. He said small property owners may file their complaints either with the board or with local realtors.

PIANO COMPANY MOVES PLANT TO CHICAGO HEIGHTS

The company now has a daily capacity of five pianos, but it recently entered into a contract which requires a great output, thereby making it necessary to increase manufacturing facilities.

The working force is to be increased to about 75 men, most of them skilled craftsmen. Charles H. Bartholomee is plant superintendent. It is said that the annual pay roll of the plant will be $200,000. One of the factors inducing the company to move to Chicago Heights was the excellent labor market there, it was said. Walter Schrage Jr. is president of the company.

Roscoe E. Woods of Roscoe E. Woods & Associates represented the National Tea company.

REALTY BOARD APPROVES NEW FHA LOAN RULE

The Chicago Real Estate board has approved of the recent action of the Federal Housing administration providing for the insurance of loans for modernization projects.

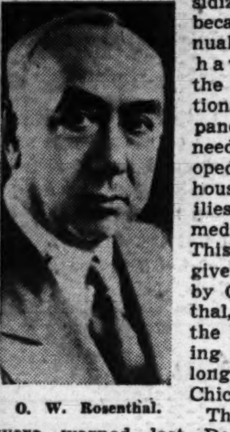
Declares Need for Moderate Priced Apartments Is Urgent

ROSENTHAL SAYS LARGE HOUSING FIELD IS OPEN

Urges Private Enterprise to Act on Need.



O. W. Rosenthal.

With about 600 families soon to be forced to move from publicly subsidized housing because their annual incomes have exceeded the legal limitations for occupancy, an acute need has developed for private housing for families with intermediate incomes. This warning was given yesterday by O. W. Rosenthal, chairman of the Illinois housing board and long a leading Chicago builder.

The families were warned last December that their growing incomes made it necessary to find new living quarters. They now are to be informed that they must hunt quarters at once, altho families with children in grade school may remain until June 30.

The affected families are residents in the publicly financed Jane Addams, Julia C. Lathrop and Trumbull park homes. The law provides that occupants may not have income of more than five nor less than three times the rental.

Low Rents Charged.

Rentals for the Jane Addams and Julia Lathrop homes are: two rooms, $18.75 a month; three rooms, $20.50; four rooms, $22.25, and five rooms, $24. Rentals for the Trumbull park homes are: three rooms, $24, four rooms, $26.50, and five rooms $27.50.

"The demolition of thousands of dwelling units thruout the community in the last several years, and the dearth of construction has made the housing shortage acute," Rosenthal said. "In fact the shortage has brought about a no man's land of housing in which there is no place for the family of moderate means.

"The state housing board is concerned over the difficulty in finding decent, adequate facilities for families whose earnings now exceed the limits permitted in the Chicago Housing authority's subsidized housing. These tenants face a most serious problem.

Difficult to Find.

"Many of these families have sought decent apartments, but could find nothing at prices they can afford to pay, save substandard dwellings in substandard neighborhoods. We must do all in our power to see that these people obtain homes which will permit a continuance of the standards ruling in the subsidized housing."

Rosenthal said that altho it would be impossible to charge rentals on apartments for the lowest income group that would give the private investor a return on his money, there is a group that offers a vast field for private enterprise. This group consists of the upper two thirds of the lower wage third of the population.

"These several hundred families who will have to move from the subsidized housing, together with thousands of others, are in a position to pay an economic return upon a reasonable investment. These families are a market for private enterprise and private enterprise has done nothing about it.

Money Cost Is Low.

"I realize that the cost of building, as well as limited earning capacity and family requirements somewhat limit the possibiliy of reaching this entire income field, but I also know that it is possible for private enterprise to meet the requirements of a majority of these families. We admit the cost of building may be high, but the cost of money is low and absolute safety surrounds this character of investment.

"There has been much criticism of public housing on the part of private enterprise, but private enterprise has done nothing thus far to meet the situation. The opporunity is here. The challenge is to private enterprise."

The group mentioned by Rosenthal is able to pay rentals of $30 to $50 a month, it was said. However, such rentals include gas, electricity and heat, which are also included in the subsidized rentals.

Expanding the Suburban Scene

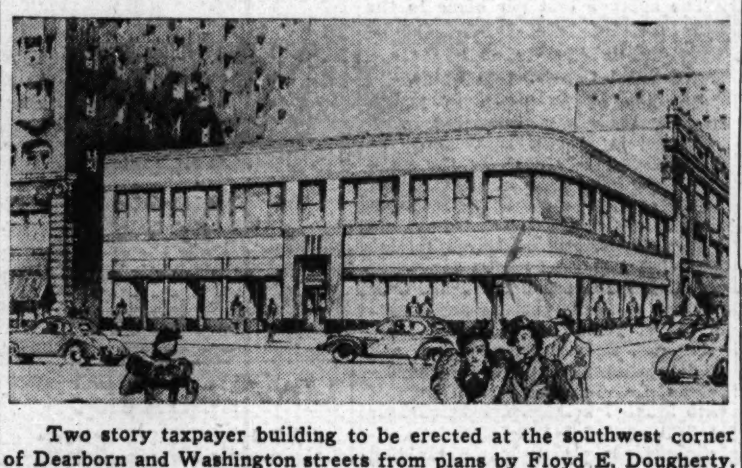
New Dearborn Street Taxpayer



Two story taxpayer building to be erected at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Washington streets from plans by Floyd E. Dougherty. It will take the place of the eight story 40 North Dearborn Street building, which is being razed because the subway would make necessary expensive precautionary measures during construction. Leonard H. Scane of Baird & Warner, managing agents, says there will be five ground floor shops and several on the second floor. Completion is scheduled for about Oct. 1.

REALTY GROUP TO DISCUSS NEW SELLING FIELD

Realtors from thruout the middle west will assemble in Grand Rapids starting Thursday for the annual Great Lakes regional conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. John W. Galbreath, vice president of the association, will preside.

J. W. Galbreath.

Newton C. Farr, Chicago, president of the national association, will be the principal speaker. He will tell the group of the opportunity the real estate business has in the sale of good reconditioned houses in established neighborhoods. It is proposed to make the houses attractive thru repairs and modernization.

The meetings will be concluded on Saturday.

Building Week Is Announced for May 13-18

Chicago's annual Building Industry week will be held from May 13 to 18, Paul D. Angell, secretary of the Chicago Building congress, announced yesterday. The congress sponsors a week during which architects, engineers, real estate men, builders, mortgage bankers, labor, and building material and equipment manufacturers unite to promote construction.

"The observance of Building Industry week, when conceived last year, was intended to become an annual activity," Angell said. "During the week those interested in building should tell their story to the public.

Prosperity Barometer.

"Construction activities are an excellent barometer of the prosperity of a community. When building trades workers, contractors, architects, manufacturers, and mortgage institutions are at work, they in turn create employment in other industries and thus promote the economic wellbeing of the community.

"Every branch of the building industry in Chicago will take part in the week's activities. We feel that observance of the event is of sufficient importance to enlist the support and coöperation of every public spirited group."

Has Many Questions.

Angell said that the public should be interested in finding the answer to a number of questions concerning the building industry. Among these he mentioned: What is new in methods and designs in home building? Is there any improvement in price and quality of equipment that goes into the modern home? Are building costs too high? Will they be lowered?

Experts in various lines of building activity will attempt to supply the answers.

Phone Company to Open Cicero-Monroe Office

The Illinois Bell Telephone company will open a west side office tomorrow in a new building at the northwest corner of Cicero and Monroe streets. It will handle business formerly transacted at 4458 West Madison street. The structure will house the headquarters of the Austin-Kedzie district office where about 115 persons are employed.

J. S. BACHE & CO. LEASES OFFICES IN FIELD BUILDING

Takes Corner at Clark and Adams Streets.

J. S. Bache & Co., one of the largest brokerage firms in the country, has leased the corner space on the second floor of the Field building at Clark and Adams streets, to which it will move about May 1 from the Board of Trade building.

Robert Carpenter, manager of the Field building, who negotiated the lease for the Field estate, said the furnishings of the new offices will be modern thruout, in harmony with the architecture of the building. The furnishings were designed by Paul Stevens of the building's engineering department.

New Lighting System.

A built-in fluorescent lighting system of high efficiency is being used in all offices and the board room. Ceilings are being treated with acoustical material to reduce noise. The customers' room will be equipped with latest model electrically operated quotation boards.

Henry Stefany is resident manager of the Chicago office, which employs about 95 persons. He has been on La Salle street for 29 years, having started as a runner. He has been with Bache for the last seven years.

Has 42 Branches.

"Our move to the Field building," Stefany said, "is our expression of faith in the future of the United States. No one should be pessimistic about a country so thoroly organized to do business."

Bache & Co. has 42 branch offices in the United States and Canada. It recently moved its head offices in New York to 36 Wall street after 40 years at 42 Broadway. Jules S. Bache is founder and head of the firm, which has 13 partners.

FINANCE FIRM LEASES OFFICE ON FRANKLIN ST.

The Commercial Credit company, auto finance concern, now located in the Continental Illinois National Bank building, has leased approximately 4,000 square feet of space on the sixth floor of the Jackson-Franklin building for a term of years. The new quarters will be occupied by the Chicago regional office, the credit department, and the domestic industrial department. The regional office has charge of branch offices in the Chicago area as well as in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa. H. C. Tresch, manager of the building for B. F. Lindheimer, represented both parties.

Coffee Company Leases in New Commerce Mart

The Abnate Coffee corporation, for several years at 241 East Illinois street, has leased 15,000 square feet on the sixth and seventh floors of the new Commerce Mart at 251 East Grand avenue. The lease is for five years, begining May 1.

LILACS TO BRING SPRING TO SHUT-INS

YOUTHS' RADIO PROGRAM WINS GREAT AUDIENCE

Parker High to Take Part in Show.

We're all behind you,
Our spirit will never die;
On Parker on,
Fling your banner high!

These words will ring out Wednesday night on W-G-N when the third "Citizens of Tomorrow" program will be heard in the W-G-N audience studio from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this entertainment quickly has taken the fancy of high school listeners thruout the middle west. Already it has become one of the most popular programs of young people and parents.

Miss Nellie Quinn.

Singing the above stanza will be 600 students of Parker High school, in the south part of Chicago. Lake View and Austin High schools have preceded Parker as guests of this new radio entertainment. Wells High school, in the northwest section of Chicago, will be honored on Wednesday, April 24.

Audiences Like "Jerry."

Chicagoland has fallen in love with "Jerry," one of the characters on "Citizens of Tomorrow." Played by 16 year old Dorothy Gregory of Park Ridge, she is the cute and lovable coed who is heard conversing with "The Principal," this character depicted by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Maxwell is director of The Tribune's annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field and this newspaper's Christmas time Good Fellow campaign. Extremely popular, too, is another star of the program, "The School Engineer," the rôle taken by Ed Sprague. Mr. Sprague is known to millions of radio listeners as "Mr. Silo" of the "Little Orphan Annie" radio show.

Miss Howe a Special Guest.

Special guests of the program Wednesday night will be Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, every high school choral conductor in the Chicago public schools, and Harold Kent, director of the public school radio council. Both Miss Howe and Mr. Kent are coöperating with Blair Walliser, the W-G-N producer of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Each Wednesday night a special group of guests will be present.

School radio chairmen and high school principals have attended the broadcast and next week school engineers will be invited.

A prominent place on the program Wednesday night will be taken by the Parker a cappella chorus, directed by Clyde Matson. The school principal, Miss Nellie Quinn, will be seated on the platform during the entertainment and will be introduced by Mr. Maxwell following the performance.

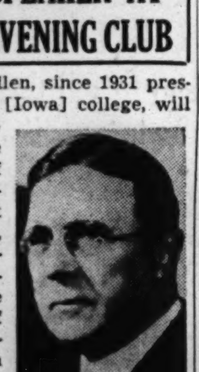
Cheers to Be Heard on Air.

Four Parker yell leaders will lead the student body in two rousing cheers which will be heard on the air. The leaders are Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt.

This new program offers more than just a radio entertainment for the students. Following each week's broadcast the talking film, "Trees to Tribunes," is shown to the 600 students and then 100 of the group are taken on a tour thru Tribune Tower, visiting the editorial, circulation, and stereotyping departments and the composing and press rooms.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT WILL BE SPEAKER AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dr. John S. Nollen, since 1931 president of Grinnell [Iowa] college, will make his first appearance before the audience of the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall, speaking on "Religion and Democracy." At one time president of Lake Forest college, Dr. Nollen was a neighbor of the club's president, Clifford W. Barnes, who will introduce the speaker and preside at the meeting. The scripture will be read by Donald S. McWilliams, vice president of the club.



Dr. John S. Nollen.

The Lake View and XIX. Century choruses, directed by Helen Leefelt, will combine in a musical program at the 7 o'clock meeting. The soloists will be Elsa Chandler, pianist; Lora Bergstrom, soprano, and Rachael Mueller, violinist.

Add Pep to Senn Musical Show

Dressed to catch the public's eye, these Senn High school baton twirlers hope to win the public's applause with a snappy drill. The exhibition will add a peppy touch to the musical extravaganza to be sponsored by the Senn Band and Orchestra Parents' association on Friday evening in the Rainbo Gardens, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. Massed bands, choruses, the R. O. T. C., the orchestra, and the Girls' Baton Twirling corps will perform. Lester Mehlman, 1319 Carmen avenue, a senior student, leads the corps of 15 girls. In this group are (left to right) Peggy Kendrick, 6323 Glenwood avenue; Jean Young, 6244 North Talman avenue; Mehlman, Muriel Wiselogel, 5062 Sheridan road, and Carol Reid, 550 Surf street.

Senn Musical Show to Help Uniform Fund

Five hundred singers, a massed band of 300 pieces, the R. O. T. C., the girls' baton twirling corps and the orchestra from Senn High school will be featured in a musical extravaganza on Friday night in the Rainbow gardens, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. The program is being sponsored by the Senn Band and Orchestra Parents' association.

Proceeds will be used to defray expenses in contests, buy new instruments and repair old ones. For several years the band has qualified in the city contests and entered the national competition. This year's national contest will be held in Battle Creek, Mich.

Lend Support to Fête.

North side business organizations and the American Legion are supporting the extravaganza. R. L. Squires, 1441 Hollywood avenue, general chairman of arrangements, is being assisted by the officers and directors of the parents' association.

Leslie Seibert is president, Howard Snapp, vice president; Mrs. Arthur Neunuebel, secretary; Charles Norris, treasurer; Mrs. R. L. Squires, ticket chairman, and Joseph Schwartz, publicity chairman.

Capt. Charles Ostergren, Senn band leader, is in charge of the program, assisted by Samuel R. Burkholder, director of the orchestra and choral groups. The chorus, outfitted in green robes, will sing the following numbers accompanied by the band: The words of "Hail, Bright Abode" to a march from "Tannhäuser"; "God Bless America," "The Last Chord," by Sullivan; "God of the Open Air," by Cain; "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte, and "Rain and the River," by Fox.

Numbers by Band.

The band alone will play "Invincible U. S. A.," and "March Slav." Other features will be the R. O. T. C. color advance, a comedy act by the R. O. T. C. "cracked" squad and the Queen Anne drill by the officers. Members of the R. O. T. C. will serve as ushers.

Members of the baton twirling corps who will offer a specialty number are Muriel Wesilogel, Carol Reid, Jean Young, Inez Baum, Peggy Kenduck, Marilyn Hudson, Jean and Betty Gerken, Elaine Anderson, Ruth Oppice, Leta Dawiane, Rochelle Hallis, Roslyn Stiegel, Shirley Hacin, and Beatrice Bensdorf. Lester Mehlman, a senior, will direct the corps.

P. E. O. CHAPTERS ARRANGE STATE PARLEY PROGRAM

Nine chapters of the P. E. O. sisterhood in north and northwest suburbs have been selected to arrange the program of entertainment at the state convention to be held in the Palmer House April 23, 24, and 25.

The chapters and their presidents are: Mrs. Grace Hoag, Waukegan; Mrs. Louise Wagner, Winnetka; Mrs. Mabel Herberling, Rogers Park; Mrs. Lucile Dougherty, Winnetka; Mrs. Olive Vercoe, Lake Forest; Mrs. Lillian Ackerburg, Park Ridge; Mrs. S. R. Paddock, Palatine; Mrs. C. H. Mills, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Cathryn Nelson, Niles Center.

TRAINS TO SPEED FLORAL GIFTS TO CITY PATIENTS

Plant Guild Starts Campaign Plans.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Bouquets of fresh lilac blooms from all over Chicago's flowerland will be put by the bedsides of thousands of shut-ins this spring in the twelfth annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, and THE TRIBUNE.

Altho the late spring is expected to delay the opening of the fragile blossoms, guild officials already are working out the intricate plans necessary for gathering and distributing them to hospitals, old people's homes, settlement houses, and other institutions that care for the sick. Theodore V. Purcell of Evanston, president of the guild, said yesterday that all arrangements would be completed well in advance of the dates for distribution.

Following an established custom, guild members again will direct the work of gathering the lilacs and loading them on suburban trains for free transportation to stations in Chicago. There they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and taken to the hospitals.

Forecast Profuse Blooms.

Early reports from gardeners in the west suburbs indicate there will be another heavy crop of lilac blooms this year, the second in a row. Most of the bushes have a high percentage of flowering buds as compared to leaf buds.

Each year the guild and THE TRIBUNE furnish the connecting link between those who grow lilacs and the shut-ins who receive them. The blooms come from thousands of home yards and gardens, parks, and estates scattered all over the Chicago area. They go to the sick rooms in the city, many of them charity wards where the only flowers the patients ever see are those that strangers share with them.

The campaign is unique in that all the work of getting the blossoms from bushes to bedsides is voluntary and yet is done with such precision that more than 20,000 shut-ins in nearly 150 institutions are given bouquets. The movement is the largest of its kind in the United States.

61 Lilac Trains in 1939.

Most of the lilacs are brought into the city on suburban trains. Boxes of blooms and individual bouquets are loaded on baggage cars, in vestibules, or piled in commuters' laps.

Last year nine railroads furnished 61 lilac trains on each of the two lilac days. The roads were the North Western, Milwaukee, North Shore Line, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore Line, and Pennsylvania.

Dates for this year's distribution of the lilacs will be set just as soon as guild officials can determine when most of the blooms will be ready to cut. This always depends entirely upon the weather. In nine of the last 11 years the dates have been between May 10 and 20.

There likely will be two lilac days again this year. The blooms along the north shore usually open a few days later than those to the south and west of the city.

Appoint Mrs. Plamondon.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton has been appointed chairman of the guild's executive committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, one of the founders of the guild and its executive committee chairman from the beginning. It was Mrs. McCormick who conceived the "Share Your Lilacs" idea and started the work in 1929.

More than 2,000 members of 85 garden clubs will coöperate with the guild this year in gathering lilacs in various suburban communities.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park is the new chairman of the guild's general committee that will direct the work. She succeeds Mrs. David L. Meyers of La Grange.

Chairmen of Divisions.

Each railroad line or division will have a suburban division chairman who will have active charge of the committees that assemble the lilacs and load them on trains.

They are:

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, Calanus lodge, St. Charles—Aurora and Elgin railway.

Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, 4541 Forest avenue, Downers Grove—Burlington railway.

Mrs. Robert J. Pabodie, 104 Oak street, Maywood—Galena division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Herschel Missey, 8000 Dante avenue, Chicago—Illinois Central.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, 1636 Forest avenue, Wilmette—Southern Milwaukee division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, 194 Lakeside manor, Highland Park—Northern Milwaukee division, North Western.

Mrs. Albert W. Torbet, Telegraph road, Deerfield—North Shore line.

Mrs. William O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, Chicago—Rock Island.

Mrs. Clyde B. Kennard, 1008 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines—Eastern Wisconsin division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington—Wisconsin division, North Western.

Working under the direction of the division chairmen will be the presidents and guild chairmen of the 85 suburban and community garden clubs. A complete list of these workers will be published later.

PLEA FOR DRAMA IN PARKS.

In last Sunday's Voice, Ham Fan wrote that he wants to see outdoor drama performances in the parks this summer. It's a wonderful idea and I would like to add a suggestion. If the park district should see fit to encourage outdoor drama it ought to stress Shakespeare. I'm sure the Bard of Avon would pull bigger crowds than even the park concerts.

HAMLET FAN.

URGES WAR ON WEEDS.

Summer is coming, and so are unnecessary deaths and injuries caused by weeds. Now is the time to start a campaign for the cutting of weeds in lots and thus save lives and limbs. Weeds growing six feet and more have been the cause of many a traffic accident which could have been avoided.

Scores of north side corner lots last summer were full of tall weeds which prevented auto drivers approaching intersections from seeing other cars about to cross their paths.

All north side civic organizations should take this problem seriously. I suggest that they include it on their programs and petition the city and park district to put men to work this spring and summer cutting weeds wherever they grow.

These municipal agencies would aid in the cause of safety and also help relieve the sufferings of hay fever victims. I would like to hear from others on this subject.

GROCER INVITES GOLD COAST TO GOLDEN JUBILEE

Charles Meyers Has Store Half Century.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

Fifty years ago tomorrow Charles L. Meyers opened a grocery at 1226 North Clark street. The fixtures were second hand, but, he says, "they were in good condition." And that they were, for they are still in use, all except the big handturning coffee mill, which he has replaced with a shiny electric grinder.

Tomorrow in the same old fashioned store with same clean scraped counters, the same flour, tea and coffee bins, with the same green and white woodwork and the oak shelves [now beginning to sag a little], 73 year old Charles Meyers will celebrate the 50th anniversary of his grocery.

Hell on Robbers.

Back in the horse car days when he opened his store he had a reputation, he says, "of being hell on robbers, and I've maintained that reputation ever since."

Burglars broke in the first week. It was late at night and Mr. Meyers, then 23 years old, heard them from his flat upstairs. He tiptoed down, a revolver in his hand. Three men, one with a gun, were opening the cash register.

The floor creaked under the grocer's feet. The men dashed thru the door which they had broken open. Meyers fired. He killed one and a policeman collared the other two.

Meyer's reputation got around. He wasn't bothered by burglars for another twenty years.

The second time he came upon seven young hoodlums ransacking the store. He chased them out. He tells about the robberies with a wry smile.

Total Loss Small.

"The first time," he recalls, "the burglars got three cents. The second time, twenty years later, they got away with more money, in fact, all that there was in the cash register that night." The smile widens. "It was a total of—16 cents."

Four years ago he again caught two burglars. It was their first offense and the judge freed them. There is no burglar alarm in the store. Mr. Meyers says he doesn't need one.

His sister, Miss Fanny Meyers, keeps house for him and his son Richard, 45 years old, who is his partner. Mr. Meyers' wife died 40 years ago. His father, who also was a grocer, had a store on the west side at the time of the great fire.

MUSICAL REVUE TO BE ANNUAL WAA-MU SHOW

A cast of 70, including 22 Chicagoans, was chosen from the 500 students who tried out for parts. The revue was written by Charles Nelson of Evanston, an alumnus, and the music by Lloyd Norlin, Sioux Falls, S. D., a junior in the school of music.

Lane Technical High dramatics club, the Mask and Shears, will present its 69th show, "What a Life," on Thursday and Friday evenings in the auditorium, Addison and Western avenues. Boys will portray all the parts in the play, which takes place in the principal's office in a small town high school.

Pleasantview Follies will be given for the 7th year by Boy Scout troop 21 of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the church recreation hall. The name is taken from the troop's cabin at Camp Evanbosco near the Deer Grove forest preserve.

The first part of the show will be an original camp play, "Apaches to the Rescue," by John Hall Woods, chairman of the troop committee, and the second will be a minstrel. The play is laid at Camp Wabaningo, Scout camp in Michigan. In the cast re Bob Jones, Bob Strong, Gordon Bradt, Bob Rogers, Lee Kent, Roger Coombs, Don Meyer, Craig Holloway, Jim Stormont, Bill Gillham, Kenneth Nickell, Dave Hardin, and Clark Webster.

Musical numbers will include opening and closing choruses and solos by Bob Rogers, Dick Jones, and Bud Bradt. The same boys will present the musical, with John Rundall and Charles Crumpacker as featured soloists.

The ugly duckling of today is pictured in "Twelve Hours Around the Clock," a comedy to be presented by the senior girls of Angel Guardian orphanage at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the hall at 2001 Devon avenue. The public is invited.

Alice Hubbard will portray the literary Ruth Wiley, Anna McNamara, persistent Arabella; Beatrice Orsetto, musical Sue Grant; Dorothy Robertson, hysterical Beatrice Gilbert; Frances Dunn, artistic Estelle Keith; Anne Yjalky, irresponsible Carol Clayton; Antoinette Boscarino, mysterious Ardis Hart, and Elvera Eberwein, disciplinary Aunt Letitia. The orphanage band will play popular melodies. Miss Annarita Constantino is the publicity chairman.

WILMETTE CLUB NAMES TWO FOR PIONEER HONORS

Mrs. Gates, Mrs. Dixon Receive Medals.

Candidates for the honor of being among the three pioneer clubwomen in the nation from the Woman's Club of Wilmette are Mrs. Henry B. Gates of Evanston and Mrs. Arthur J. Dixon of Wilmette. The club honored them on April 3 after the committee announced that Mrs. Gates, who was a charter member and five times club president, is "the woman who has the longest continuous membership and service in the club" and Mrs. Dixon "the woman who has served in the greatest number of offices or on committees and whose name appeared the greatest number of times in the club's year books." Mrs. George B. Williams, president, presented the medals.

The committee, composed of Mrs. R. E. P. Kline, chairman; Mrs. N. P. Colwell, Mrs. F. J. Scheidenhelm, and Mrs. Irvin R. Adkins, announced that the late Miss Ida Law, a charter member, had the longest continuous service record in the club. She organized the club in November, 1891, and offered her home for regular meetings for a long time. Miss Law died in 1923 in Springfield, Mo.

The last all day meeting will be held Wednesday. At the morning session, Mrs. Cyrus P. Barnum of Evanston will report on the work of the Y. W. C. A. in Chicago and on the north shore.

The business session will open at 2 o'clock with annual reports from the president and the treasurer, Mrs. Frank H. Crawford. Miss Agnes Jones and her Orchesis group will present the program.

Highland Park Club.

Tuesday the annual business meeting will open with luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. After election of officers and reports from officers and chairmen, the program chairman will present a spring musical featuring solo and trio work by club members. The artists will be Mrs. Arthur Byfield, soprano; Mrs. Jack Spachner, violinist; Mrs. Eugene Englehard, cellist, and Olga Sandor, accompanist.

Evanston Woman's Club.

Avis Clamitz Shulman, writer and lecturer, and Judge Malcolm Hatfield will address the club Tuesday. Mrs. Shulman will speak at 10:30 o'clock on "Tale from Three Cities" [Haifa, Tel Aviv, Jerusalem]. Mrs. Frederick C. Minkler will present her second speaker at 2 o'clock. Judge Hatfield has served as a probate and juvenile judge for eight years in Michigan and since 1934 has written a newspaper column, "Children in Court."

Garden Institute Friday.

The annual garden institute is scheduled for Friday. Lecturers will be Prof. H. W. Gilbert of the University of Illinois college of agriculture and Prof. Franz Aust, consulting landscape architect to the horticultural department of the University of Wisconsin. Prof. Gilbert will speak at 10:30 o'clock on "The Care and Pruning of Ornamental Shrubs and Trees" and Prof. Aust at 2 o'clock on "Mediocrity versus Individuality in the Garden."

Flower arrangements will be judged at noon and ribbons will be awarded in four classes: Living room, dining room centerpiece, miniatures, and miscellaneous.

Mrs. Edwin H. Smythe, chairman of the institute, will be assisted by Mrs. Roy L. Davis, Mrs. Edward F. Hill, Mrs. Wesley Polk, Mrs. Bruce Thayer, Mrs. Koogle, Mrs. Howard Kroehl, Mrs. W. W. News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

Without doubt, your church dollar is the largest dollar you ever spend. By that we mean it buys more and loses less than any other when it departs from the family purse. Now it may be that you belong to the great congregation of those who, having no connection with official agencies of the church, might wonder how much it costs to run a church and how much a church is worth in dollars and cents.

Dr. J. Allen Leas.

There are Chicago and suburban churches with capital assets of a million dollars or more, and annual budgets of $100,000. But not many of these! Most church folk go to average churches. But what is an average church—an average Protestant church, let us say? Our studied guess — tho no better than yours—would name Holy Trinity Lutheran church at Addison street and Maple Square avenue.

How the pastor and council of that congregation in that transient neighborhood do stretch the church dollars! And what church in the city is, or may not soon be, in a transient neighborhood? The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Allen Leas, has led Holy Trinity for 23 years, and the very architecture of Holy Trinity in its low Gothic, announces its permanency despite population currents.

In addition to well attended Sunday morning services, an annual budget of $7,552.53 maintains a flourishing Bible school, three growing Luther leagues, an active Men's brotherhood, and Women's Missionary society, an altar society known as E. X. E. [initials of Greek words meaning "Until the Christ come"], and two choirs.

In addition, however, to other current expenses such as light, heat, and gas, the budget includes generous contributions to missions, the synodical apportionment, gifts to Carthage college, Nachusa orphanage, and Inner missions.

The church report shows that the current budget is less than 9 per cent of the church's capital assets, and the congregation's total indebtedness is about 8 per cent of the capital account.

But the good will a stranger feels as he meets the friendly groups of this and other average congregations of Chicago cannot be included in any balance sheet.

The ceremonial new moon which at the spring equinox fixes the date of Easter is troublesome this year. It set Easter early for Western Christians and late for Eastern Orthodox worshippers. Greek churches will observe April 28. It also sets the Jewish passover beginning April 23. . . . Presbyterians will open their debate on union with the Episcopalians at General assembly opening May 23 at Rochester, N. Y.

Every person can become a marvelous dancer, but you must learn how.
GOOD DANCERS do not employ physical effort below the shoulders.
The man moves the girl thru his arms, and she moves herself over the floor by taking the man's lead thru her arms.
Girls can well afford to say something nice to men who ask them for a dance. Tell him you enjoyed the dance. Or tell him he is a fine dancer. Or develop some nice remarks of your own. Men enjoy hearing these nice things as much as the girls do. It costs little and pays much.
HOW PERSONABLE ARE YOU?
Personality, or personal magnetism, means more to a human being than any other attraction one may possess. We ask: What attraction in a person do you pronounce personality? In a ballroom it means a great deal. The girl who can smile under all conditions is so much more attractive to all people than the one who will nurse a grouch upon the slightest provocation. Nursing a grouch will develop an unattractive contour of the face of any person.
The ballroom can do more towards developing personality than any other influence we can think of. Look pleasant at all times, and you will soon win the admiration of the opposite sex.
Girls who are strangers in a ballroom must take the same chance the man takes in accepting partners for a dance. Our advice always is: If a man asks a girl for a dance, that she accept him gracefully and with a smile. He may not be as attractive to her as she would like, but he may be a GOOD DANCER, and that matters so much in a ballroom.

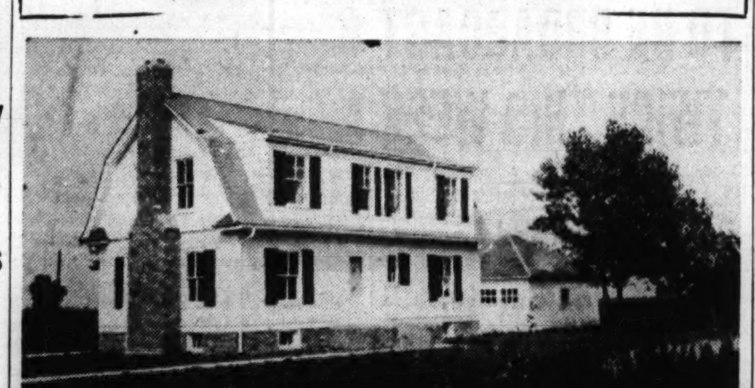
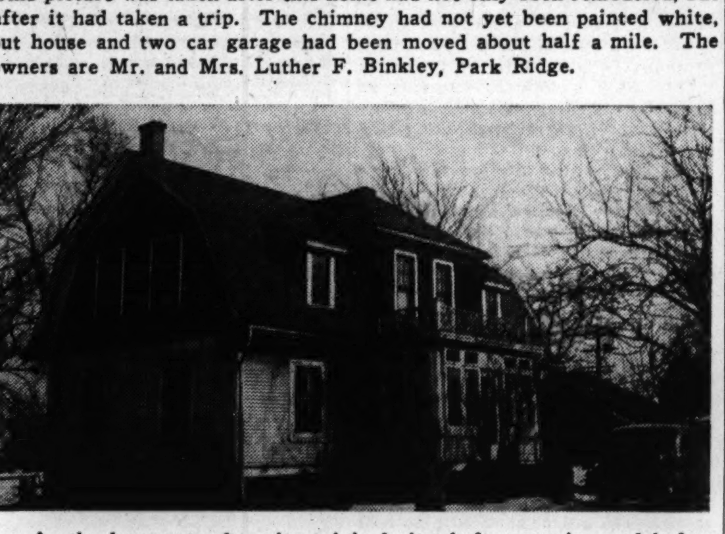
House Taken for Ride



Very interesting, this modernization, from a number of standpoints! This picture was taken after this home had not only been remodeled, but after it had taken a trip. The chimney had not yet been painted white, but house and two car garage had been moved about half a mile. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Binkley, Park Ridge.



As the house stood on its original site, before moving and before modernization. In course of the change the front entrance porch was removed, small dormers eliminated in favor of one long continuous dormer, and rear service stairs placed inside of home.

HOUSE IS MOVED HALF MILE; THEN HAS FACE LIFTED

Old Dormers, Porch Go Into Discard.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Luther Binkley, Park Ridge, decided not only to modernize their home inside and out, but they decided to move it as well.

The original site of the Binkley home was at 715 Prospect avenue. The present site is 750 North Washington street, about half a mile away.

W. F. McCaughey, architect, Park Ridge, handled the work, drew the plans for the home in its present form, and specified exterior and interior changes.

The modernization was extensive and mirrors many present patterns and trends. It was a house which might have felt it was growing old; slowing up in its capacity to give its owners all they wanted. Then, presto, came the renovation, and it emerged new, weather resisting, and breathing a brighter atmosphere of easier, more gracious living.

Large Porch Removed.

The theme of many a family discussion these days is what to do for the house these coming months. Each home makes its own personal, absorbing claims, as each family's preferences and purse dictate what is to be done. These times find as peculiarly alert to planning for the future as well as the present, and yet with a love for the past evident on every side.

The exterior of the Binkley home was improved in a number of definite ways.

First, there was the large front entrance porch which was removed. At the back there was a covered service entrance. This also was removed and the service stairs were placed inside the main part of the house with new service entry.

Small Dormers Go.

In the original home there were small dormers across the front which added little to the façade. These were removed and the effect greatly simplified and improved by one long continuous dormer across the front.

The trip which both house and garage made took place in wintry weather but was accomplished successfully. And in course of modernization, the second floor ceiling was insulated, and likewise the walls.

Inside the home, walls and floors were completely refinished, and a number of improvements made. On the second floor a new modern bath was installed and a new lavatory put in on the first floor.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 15.

The bulbs in the outdoor beds should all be uncovered by this time, especially if a heavy mulching was given them last fall. Scattering a bit of nitrate of soda over the beds after the mulch is removed and gently working it into the soil between the bulbs will stimulate them and produce better blooms. A complete plant food, which is sold by all hardware stores, is equally good and probably easier to obtain.

Tuesday, April 16.

You can enjoy a wonderful garden by sowing annuals. The hardy kinds should be sown early, such as calendula, petunia, phlox, flowering tobacco, sweet alyssum, larkspur, verbena, nigella, poppy, portulaca, and others that require a long period to flower. Annuals delight in a friable, rich, well drained soil.

Wednesday, April 17.

Never permit worms to ruin the foliage of currants and gooseberries; spray with arsenate of lead. Hedges are effective only when the plants grow close to the ground; they should be trimmed before growth starts. If there has been a severe winter freezing cut all the plants back to within six or 12 inches of the ground to force a heavy growth from the base.

Thursday, April 18.

Gardeners living in congested areas of the city will find the four o'clock one of the finest plants to grow. It is good for hedges, for use in borders, as a specimen, or for any location not in dense shade. The portulaca or sunplant is one of the best plants for hot or congested areas.

Friday, April 19.

Spray the soil around the roses with bordeaux or any recommended ungicide to eliminate spores that may exist. Spray the foliage as soon as it begins to grow and adopt a regular spraying calendar. A new lawn can be made at this time, altho autumn is the very best time. Use a high grade lawn seed.

Saturday, April 20.

Examine house plants and transplant those that need it. Save the bulbs that have flowered indoors and plant them outdoors next fall. Some very fine amaryllis bulbs are now available. If your bulb is not doing well, plant it in the garden this summer, encourage it to grow until autumn and before frost take it up and pot it.

TEMPLE SHOLOM MARKET DAY TO MIMIC SPRING

Annual Benefit Project Is Set for Wednesday.

Whatever the weather on the streets, spring has been promised by the decoration committee for Temple Sholom center on Market day Wednesday. Mrs. Jules Trock, 520 Addison street, is general chairman of the benefit event which has been conducted by the sisterhood annually since the organization was started 36 years ago.

It is one project which, for success, demands the coöperation of every member. Last year Market day netted $4,000. The proceeds have increased $1,000 for the last three years. One booth which is always sold out by noon and usually turns in the largest sum is the cakes and cookies booth.

Mrs. A. S. Davis, a pioneer member who has been in charge of this department for many years, has learned to start early in the year to get contributions of homemade goodies in order to fill her orders and still have enough for a display on Market day. Eye catching boxes and colorful cellophane wrappings, in addition to the aroma of fresh bread, cinnamon and chocolate attract every shopper to this booth.

Market day will open at 11 o'clock, luncheon will be served from 11:30 until 1:30 o'clock and dinner from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Entertainment features will be a fortune teller, surprise programs for luncheon and dinner guests and a matinée for the children at 4 o'clock.

Proceeds are used for the educational and philanthropic projects of the sisterhood. These include a library, the religious school, and a scholarship fund for the Hebrew Union college in Cincinnati, O. The fund is named for Abram Hirschberg, rabbi emeritus of Temple Sholom.

Assisting Mrs. Trock on the general committee are Mrs. Melvin Jacobs and Mrs. Frank Dry, co-chairmen; Mrs. Erwin Mautner, bulletin and special notices; Mrs. Richard Weil, executive secretary; Mrs. Bernard Ecker, publicity; Mrs. Irving Ungar, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Frank, decorations, and Mrs. Louis Binstock and Mrs. Samuel Schwartz, advisers.

PAINTED DREAMS DRAMA REACHES EXCITING CLIMAX

The high spot in the plot of "Painted Dreams," W-G-N's serial, will be reached this week during exciting scenes between Mother Moynihan, played by Jane Green, and Mrs. Oliphant, played by Hope Summers. Kay Chase, author of the W-G-N hit show, said that these episodes of "Painted Dreams" would be the most interesting in a long time. Recently Ted Oliphant, a character, met death in the Far East.

At home, his wife, Lily, one of the young folks whom Mother Moynihan regards as her "children," was having a baby at the time, and the news was withheld from her. The baby is now born and the elder Mrs. Oliphant has just learned of the marriage and subsequent death of her son. What happens when Mrs. Oliphant, in great fury, sees Mother Moynihan and the developments between Lily Oliphant and her mother-in-law, create five days of thrilling radio drama.

"Painted Dreams" is aired week days, at 11:30 a. m., on W-G-N.

IREENE WICKER TO BE FEATURED IN 'STRIFE' TODAY

Ireene Wicker, radio actress and story teller; Maurice Carnovsky of the Group theater, and Conway Wingfield, Louis Hector, and Ara Gerald, noted British players, will be featured in John Galsworthy's "Strife," the great play to be presented over WENR at 1 p. m. today. In presenting this story of an English mill town strike, Director Charles Warburton is planning to use more narration than usual.

Thelma Naufel to Sing on Steelmakers Program

Thelma Naufel, a talented young soprano whose father is employed in a Wheeling steel factory, and Irvin Green, a flutist who works in the main office, will combine their talents as guest headliners on Mutual's Musical Steelmakers over W-G-N from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m., today. They will render "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark."

Shirley Bell Will Sing 'On a Sunday Afternoon'

"On a Sunday Afternoon," W-G-N's matinée musical program directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Shirley Bell and the music of the dance orchestra, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and Mutual.

Miss Bell will do "I've Got My Eyes on You," and will join the Four Grenadiers in "It's a Blue World." The Grenadiers also will sing "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

5TH ROW CENTER TO BE BROADCAST TWICE THIS WEEK

Dame Whitty and Carmen Miranda Guests.

Two performances of Fifth Row Center, W-G-N's special guest artist presentation which has been a featured attraction on the station since the first of the year, will be offered listeners this week.

Dame May Whitty, noted British stage and screen actress, will be heard on a special Fifth Row Center program from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow night. At 7 o'clock Friday evening Fifth Row Center will present Carmen Miranda, sensational young Brazilian songstress.

The special presentation tomorrow is occasioned by the fact that Dame May Whitty cannot reach Chicago from San Francisco in time for a performance this afternoon at 5 p. m., which has been the regular Fifth Row Center hour. She is expected to arrive from the west by plane today.

In San Francisco she has been playing with Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet." They are all to open in the same play at the Auditorium theater Wednesday night.

On Stage for 60 Years.

The noted British actress, who has been on the stage for 60 years, will be heard in a special radio play entitled "Incident in Singapore."

The Friday night presentation of Fifth Row Center is the first of a new series. The show moves to this day and hour regularly after this week.

Miss Miranda, who has been hailed as one of the theatrical "finds" of the decade, opens tonight in "The Streets of Paris," musical revue, at the Grand Opera house.

Sings in Portuguese.

On Fifth Row Center Miss Miranda will sing several of the Portuguese songs which have made her famous. Miss Miranda came to the United States from Rio de Janeiro a year ago. She was an overnight hit in "The Streets of Paris." Besides her stage appearances, she has made a motion picture and been heard on the air.

She will sing over W-G-N, accompanied by the six native instrumentalists who are with her in "The Streets of Paris." She is co-starred in the musical revue with Bobby Clark and Luella Gear, who will be heard later on Fifth Row Center. Carmen Miranda is said to be responsible for a fashion craze which has swept around the world. She, it is said, was the first to wear the very high crowned hats and massive jewelry that are now popular.

NORTHERNERS TO MIX OLD TUNES WITH NEW HITS

Hit tunes of yesteryear and music of the current season will be aired on the Northerners program at 9:30 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N. The featured vocalist will be Irene Verner.

The octet will sing "Marcheta," "The Singing Hills," "Love Song of Renaldo," and "Open Your Eyes." Miss Verner will sing for her solo, "My Johanne," by Edvard Grieg.

The entire Northerners cast will join in singing selections from Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly," including "Beautiful Ship from Toyland," and "Giannina Mia."

Griff Williams to Mark 7th Anniversary Wednesday

Four of the most popular songs of 1933, the year Griff Williams organized his orchestra will be featured on his broadcast over W-G-N at 12:30 next Wednesday night from the Continental Room of the Stevens hotel.

The songs Griff has chosen to commemorate the seventh anniversary of his band on the air are, "Love in Bloom," "Stars Fell on Alabama," "Last Roundup," and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking." His singing stars, Buddy Moreno, Walter King, and Bob Kirk will handle the vocals.

Primaries, Scandinavian War, Topic of Broadcast

"Outcome of Primaries," and "Scandinavian Blitzkrieg" will be discussed by Prof. James Hart, Prof. Frederick Mueller, and Prof. Charles O'Donnell on the weekly broadcast of "The Changing Scene," aired over WIND from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today.

On 5th Row Center

Dame May Whitty, famous British stage and screen actress, who will be starred in a special play, "Incident in Singapore," on Fifth Row Center on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 tomorrow night.

HAL KEMP SEEKS QUIET LIFE AFTER 12,000 MILE TOUR

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a 12,000 mile tour of "one nighters" Hal Kemp and his bandsmen are delighted to settle down for a stretch of regular performing at the Palmer House and broadcasting over W-G-N and Mutual. A "one nighter," in case you are in doubt, is a one night dance engagement.

Hal Kemp.

After playing a one night stand the bandsmen sleep a few hours and then travel over hill and dale to another town usually from 200 to 400 miles distant and do it all over again. That goes on week after week. And in this particular case it continued for months.

The Kemp caravansary of eight cars, two trailers and a truck endured fire and flood—but fortunately no famine during this tour. Southern cooking agrees with Kemp, who is a North Carolinian, so he added twelve pounds despite the rigors of winter below the Mason and Dixon line.

Planned as a Vacation.

The tour was planned as a sort of "vacation"—something to break the montony of winter in the north. But as soon as the Kemp parade hit Virginia they encountered blizzards. Before they finally returned north to Chicago they were treated to assorted downpours of snow, sleet, rain and hail with plenty of ice underfoot.

And there was more than enough adventure. In Asheville, Singer Bob Allen and Bandsmen Porky Dankers, Eddie Kusby and Clayton Cash, riding in Alex Holden's de luxe trailer, returned from a dance to find the conveyance in flames.

In Atlanta, where Hal once lived, he and Mrs. Kemp celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Johnny Van Epps and Leo Moran, two bandsmen, married their childhood sweethearts, and Jack Le Maire, comic vocalist, became the father of a seven pound son.

Trailer Skids, Overturns.

Near Lula, Ga., the trailer skidded on an icy road and overturned. When the boys got to Eddie Kusby it looked like he was bleeding to death. But he was only plastered with raspberry jam.

Le Maire really experienced the most adventures. Near Spartansburg, S. C., he got stuck in a snowdrift; in Opelousas, La., he awoke to find his hotel room on fire. At Johnson City, Tenn., he lost his overcoat. Near Indianapolis, driving in a fog he smashed thru a rail fence with his car.

Near Birmingham, Ala., the band truck driven by Louis Puccinio burned out a bearing with the result that the instruments he was hauling never got to the dance for that night at all.

In Tampa, Fla., Hal was tricked into riding thru two blazing walls of fire with Lucky Teeter, daredevil racing driver. Hal was jittery for days.

Now, Hal has settled down patiently to await the Fourth of July. Independence day has been set by the doctor for the arrival of Mrs. Kemp's first baby!

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Ugly Fat Now Lost
without strict diet lists, exercising or taking drugs
IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.
Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.
Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice It is so rich and thick you can add ¼ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

LILACS TO BRING SPRING TO SHUT-INS

YOUTHS' RADIO PROGRAM WINS GREAT AUDIENCE

Parker High to Take Part in Show.

We're all behind you,
Our spirit will never die;
On Parker on,
Fling your banner high!

These words will ring out Wednesday night on W-G-N when the third "Citizens of Tomorrow" program will be heard in the W-G-N audience studio from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this entertainment quickly has taken the fancy of high school listeners thruout the middle west. Already it has become one of the most popular programs of young people and parents.

Miss Nellie Quinn.

Singing the above stanza will be 600 students of Parker High school, in the south part of Chicago. Lake View and Austin High schools have preceded Parker as guests of this new radio entertainment. Wells High school, in the northwest section of Chicago, will be honored on Wednesday, April 24.

Audiences Like "Jerry."

Chicagoland has fallen in love with "Jerry," one of the characters on "Citizens of Tomorrow." Played by 16 year old Dorothy Gregory of Park Ridge, she is the cute and lovable coed who is heard conversing with "The Principal," this character depicted by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Maxwell is director of The Tribune's annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field and this newspaper's Christmas time Good Fellow campaign. Extremely popular, too, is another star of the program, "The School Engineer," the rôle taken by Ed Sprague. Mr. Sprague is known to millions of radio listeners as "Mr. Silo" of the "Little Orphan Annie" radio show.

Miss Howe a Special Guest.

Special guests of the program Wednesday night will be Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, every high school choral conductor in the Chicago public schools, and Harold Kent, director of the public school radio council. Both Miss Howe and Mr. Kent are coöperating with Blair Walliser, the W-G-N producer of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Each Wednesday night a special group of guests will be present.

School radio chairmen and high school principals have attended the broadcast and next week school engineers will be invited.

A prominent place on the program Wednesday night will be taken by the Parker a cappella chorus, directed by Clyde Matson. The school principal, Miss Nellie Quinn, will be seated on the platform during the entertainment and will be introduced by Mr. Maxwell following the performance.

Cheers to Be Heard on Air.

Four Parker yell leaders will lead the student body in two rousing cheers which will be heard on the air. The leaders are Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt.

This new program offers more than just a radio entertainment for the students. Following each week's broadcast the talking film, "Trees to Tribunes," is shown to the 600 students and then 100 of the group are taken on a tour thru Tribune Tower, visiting the editorial, circulation, and stereotyping departments and the composing and press rooms.

WRIGHT COLLEGE TO NAME SPEECH CONTEST WINNER

The final elimination contest for the nine speech cla ses of Wright Junior college will be held in the auditorium, 3030 North Mobile avenue, at 3:30 o'clock next Wednesday. The winner, besides receiving a cash prize, will represent the school in the forthcoming Northern Illinois Junior college conference. Second place winner will represent the school at the conference contest in extemporaneous speaking. John N. Link, faculty sponsor and speech instructor, will have charge of the contest.

Czecho-Slovaks to Offer Program Saturday Night

Czecho-Slovay singers, dancers, and artists will perform next Saturday night at a meeting of the Edward Benes chapter of the Czech-American National alliance in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Among those taking part in the program are Albin Polasek, professor and head of the department of sculpture at the Art institute; Miss Eugénie Fichtenova, violinist; Milo Luka, baritone; Mrs. Mildred Gray-Heller, soprano; Miss Vlasta Potuznikova and Miss Vera and Miss Nada Hajdasovaa.d Blazena, dancers.

It's Tea for Four in Taft High Operetta

Before Dec. 16, 1773, tea parties were all the rage among colonial housewives. On that day came the Boston tea party, leaving in its wake a tea-totaller in every Boston home. Those stirring events will be related in song next Thursday afternoon and Friday afternoon by members of the choruses at Taft High school, 5625 North Natoma avenue. They will sing Noble Cain's two act operetta, "The Boston Tea Party." Among the guests at the last party before tea was taboo were these good dames represented by students (left to right) Lucille Nitsche, June Swanson, Eleanore Rapisardi, Marion Ellickson, and Gladys Thor. Mrs. Eleanor S. Keats will direct the production. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cash Piles Up as Park Ridge Frowns on Improving Streets

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

Park Ridge, rich northwest suburb, is trying to unravel a problem which old King Midas grew thin and peaked trying to solve. Like that ancient potentate, this modern village has more money than it knows how to spend.

There is $40,000 in the town treasury that should be spent, and the sum grows at the rate of from $1,000 to $1,400 a month. Harassed city fathers grow haggard trying to think of ways to get rid of it. Irate citizens hold massmeetings to protest against every plan offered by the council. And the money continues to roll in, welcome as a flood on a mud flat.

There are two reasons why spending the money presents a poser. One is that being revenue from the motor fuel tax, the state insists that it be used to improve arterial streets. The other is that people in Park Ridge like their streets just as they are.

As Is, Good Enough.

The streets may be rough and narrow; they may be mere cinder paths; they may be nonexistent—mere open places in the prairie. But nobody except Mayor Arthur L. Jones and members of the city council wants to see them improved. As they are they are believed to be safe, since speeding is impossible. The tree bordered lanes are also picturesque and quiet—prime virtues in a residential town.

Six months ago, when the council proposed to pave and widen Belle Plaine avenue, a storm of protests broke out. Park Ridge trooped to meetings and threatened councilmen with petitions. The aldermen, money burning in their pockets, agreed to abandon the plan.

Early last month a new suggestion was offered. By unanimous vote the council agreed that a three block stretch of Elm street between Prospect avenue and the Northwest highway be widened and paved.

Again They Protest.

That was the signal for history to repeat itself, and it did. On March 29 a vociferous delegation gathered in the city hall and shouted down every argument the aldermen offered. This time, however, members of the council were not completely cowed.

Leopold E. Fleissner, chairman of the streets and alleys committee, promised last week that the improvement would be made.

"We won't touch a tree," he as- from 20 feet to 32 feet, making it serted. "We shall widen the street wide enough so that cars can pass without scraping fenders. And 32 feet is not a dangerous width for pedestrians. With a stop sign at each end of a stretch three blocks long the notion that it may become a race track is fantastic. If we give in on this project we'll never be able to spend our gas tax money."

Plans in Abeyance.

Next Tuesday night the council will meet again. It has already voted to instruct city engineers to prepare plans for the project, but there is the matter of a petition of protest still before the body. Arthur Consoer, city engineer, said last week that he was not proceeding with the plans until he had more definite instructions. After all, his blue prints for the Belle Plaine avenue project are still on the shelf.

One circumstance cheered the city council last week. Plans for paving Morris avenue, an unimproved lane between Busse and Northwest highways, had been sent to Springfield for the approval of the department of highways. If the state has no objection that project can begin right away. It is expected to take care of some $18,000 to $20,000 of that embarrassing surplus $40,000.

The people of Park Ridge have no objection to paving Morris avenue. Nobody lives on it.

TRAINS TO SPEED FLORAL GIFTS TO CITY PATIENTS

Plant Guild Starts Campaign Plans.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Bouquets of fresh lilac blooms from all over Chicago's flowerland will be put by the bedsides of thousands of shut-ins this spring in the twelfth annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, and THE TRIBUNE.

Altho the late spring is expected to delay the opening of the fragile blossoms, guild officials already are working out the intricate plans necessary for gathering and distributing them to hospitals, old people's homes, settlement houses, and other institutions that care for the sick. Theodore V. Purcell of Evanston, president of the guild, said yesterday that all arrangements would be completed well in advance of the dates for distribution.

Following an established custom, guild members again will direct the work of gathering the lilacs and loading them on suburban trains for free transportation to stations in Chicago. There they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and taken to the hospitals.

Forecast Profuse Blooms.

Early reports from gardeners in the west suburbs indicate there will be another heavy crop of lilac blooms this year, the second in a row. Most of the bushes have a high percentage of flowering buds as compared to leaf buds.

Each year the guild and THE TRIBUNE furnish the connecting link between those who grow lilacs and the shut-ins who receive them. The blooms come from thousands of home yards and gardens, parks, and estates scattered all over the Chicago area. They go to the sick rooms in the city, many of them charity wards where the only flowers the patients ever see are those that strangers share with them.

The campaign is unique in that all the work of getting the blossoms from bushes to bedsides is voluntary and yet is done with such precision that more than 20,000 shut-ins in nearly 150 institutions are given bouquets. The movement is the largest of its kind in the United States.

61 Lilac Trains in 1939.

Most of the lilacs are brought into the city on suburban trains. Boxes of blooms and individual bouquets are loaded on baggage cars, in vestibules, or piled in commuters' laps.

Last year nine railroads furnished 61 lilac trains on each of the two lilac days. The roads were the North Western, Milwaukee, North Shore Line, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore Line, and Pennsylvania.

Dates for this year's distribution of the lilacs will be set just as soon as guild officials can determine when most of the blooms will be ready to cut. This always depends entirely upon the weather. In nine of the last 11 years the dates have been between May 10 and 20.

There likely will be two lilac days again this year. The blooms along the north shore usually open a few days later than those to the south and west of the city.

Appoint Mrs. Plamondon.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton has been appointed chairman of the guild's executive committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, one of the founders of the guild and its executive committee chairman from the beginning. It was Mrs. McCormick who conceived the "Share Your Lilacs" idea and started the work in 1929.

More than 2,000 members of 85 garden clubs will coöperate with the guild this year in gathering lilacs in various suburban communities.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park is the new chairman of the guild's general committee that will direct the work. She succeeds Mrs. David L. Meyers of La Grange.

Chairmen of Divisions.

Each railroad line or division will have a suburban division chairman who will have active charge of the committees that assemble the lilacs and load them on trains.

They are:

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, Calanus lodge, St. Charles—Aurora and Elgin railway.

Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, 4541 Forest avenue, Downers Grove—Burlington railway.

Mrs. Robert J. Pabodie, 104 Oak street, Maywood—Galena division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Herschel Missey, 8000 Dante avenue, Chicago—Illinois Central.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, 1636 Forest avenue, Wilmette—Southern Milwaukee division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, 194 Lakeside manor, Highland Park—Northern Milwaukee division, North Western.

Mrs. Albert W. Torbet, Telegraph road, Deerfield—North Shore line.

Mrs. William O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, Chicago—Rock Island.

Mrs. Clyde B. Kennard, 1008 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines—Eastern Wisconsin division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington—Wisconsin division, North Western.

Working under the direction of the division chairmen will be the presidents and guild chairmen of the 85 suburban and community garden clubs. A complete list of these workers will be published later.

ONE WAY CONFUSION.

It probably was a good idea to make these seven or eight streets around the six corners [Milwaukee and Cicero avenues and Irving Park road] one way streets. I don't doubt that the engineers were right in predicting that the system would relieve traffic congestion and reduce accidents.

But we never shall find out whether it is going to work unless the law is enforced. We heard some weeks ago that extra policemen would be assigned to the corners. So far I haven't seen any besides those regularly assigned at the intersection. As a result there is great confusion. People enter from the wrong direction and have to back out. Many of them force their way thru opposing traffic, apparently ignorant of the regulations.

If it is impossible to obtain efficient police regulation there I think there are only two other alternatives. One is larger signs. The other is to abandon the system entirely. Conditions now are worse than they were before.

TELIDA B. MCDOWELL.

A DANGEROUS INTERSECTION.

This is another plea for traffic signals at Division street and Homan avenue. Two more accidents have occurred at this corner. Altho there is a small amount of traffic in the evening, I think the lights are justified. Amount of traffic is not the only guide to the need for lights.

I would like to mention that it takes only two automobiles to have an accident. These accidents are caused by drivers who cross Homan avenue by shifting gears from third into second and back into third or even going across without slowing down. These drivers, seeing that there is very little traffic at night, ignore the stop sign for Homan avenue. Such drivers would obey regular traffic signals.

W. W. K.

WANTS NIGHT SCHOOL.

What I'd like to see on the northwest side is an evening high school at Steinmetz or Foreman. Those who wish to continue their studies now have a choice of going to Schurz or Wells, or possibly Austin. For me the distance is so great I have to spend almost as much time on the street cars as in class. Other buildings stand idle as much as 16 hours a day—seemingly a waste of facilities which cost taxpayers a great deal of money.

SUBWAYS SEEN AS SOLUTION OF TRAFFIC WOES

Motor Council Group Is to Study Plan.

An alternative to the demand for the elevation of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks thru Norwood Park and Edison Park was recommended last week to members of the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club. F. Russell Lyon, chairman of the grade crossing committee, suggested that subways at the intersections might be a more practical solution.

"The cost of elevating the tracks would be so great that we can scarcely ever hope to see it done," he said, "but building the five or six subways that we would need would require no more money than could be available for the project in a year or two. In some instances the work could be done cheaply, since the track is partially elevated and the street would need to be depressed only two or three feet."

The council agreed to refer the suggestion to the committee for a more thoro study.

A resolution was adopted requesting that violators of the city ordinance prohibiting parking on the west side of Milwaukee avenue between Giddings and Halsted streets between 6:30 and 8:30 a. m. be arrested.

Police Magistrate Oscar K. Stahle of Park Ridge reported that the suburb was recently named the fourth safest city of its size in the United States in 1939. The council voted to send a letter of commendation to village officials.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

Without doubt, your church dollar is the largest dollar you ever spend. By that we mean it buys more and loses less than any other when it departs from the family purse. Now it may be that you belong to the great congregation of those who, having no connection with official agencies of the church, might wonder how much it costs to run a church and how much a church is worth in dollars and cents.

Dr. J. Allen Leas.

There are Chicago and suburban churches with capital assets of a million dollars or more, and annual budgets of $100,000. But not many of these! Most church folk go to average churches. But what is an average church—an average Protestant church, let us say? Our studied guess — tho no better than yours—would name Holy Trinity Lutheran church at Addison street and Maple Square avenue.

How the pastor and council of that congregation in that transient neighborhood do stretch the church dollars! And what church in the city is, or may not soon be, in a transient neighborhood? The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Allen Leas, has led Holy Trinity for 23 years, and the very architecture of Holy Trinity in its low Gothic, announces its permanency despite population currents.

In addition to well attended Sunday morning services, an annual budget of $7,552.53 maintains a flourishing Bible school, three growing Luther leagues, an active Men's brotherhood, and Women's Missionary society, an altar society known as E. X. E. [initials of Greek words meaning "Until the Christ come"], and two choirs.

In addition, however, to other current expenses such as light, heat, and gas, the budget includes generous contributions to missions, the synodical apportionment, gifts to Carthage college, Nachusa orphanage, and Inner missions.

The church report shows that the current budget is less than 9 per cent of the church's capital assets, and the congregation's total indebtedness is about 8 per cent of the capital account.

HOUSE IS MOVED HALF MILE; THEN HAS FACE LIFTED

Old Dormers and Porch Go Into the Discard.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Luther Binkley, Park Ridge, decided not only to modernize their home inside and out, but they decided to move it as well.

The original site of the Binkley home was at 715 Prospect avenue. The present site is 750 North Washington street, about half a mile away.

W. F. McCaughey, architect, Park Ridge, handled the work, drew the plans for the home in its present form, and specified exterior and interior changes.

The modernization was extensive and mirrors many present patterns and trends. It was a house which might have felt it was growing old; slowing up in its capacity to give its owners all they wanted. Then, presto, came the renovation, and it emerged new, weather resisting, and breathing a brighter atmosphere of easier, more gracious living.

Large Porch Removed.

The theme of many a family discussion these days is what to do for the house these coming months. Each home makes its own personal, absorbing claims, as each family's preferences and purse dictate what is to be done. These times find as peculiarly alert to planning for the future as well as the present, and yet with a love for the past evident on every side. There are those who cling to houses in the English or French or mediterranean spirit; those who incline to the Cape Cod, or the Colonial Virginia of Williamsburg days, or the storied, romantic south.

The exterior of the Binkley home was improved in a number of definite ways.

First, there was the large front entrance porch which was removed. At the back there was a covered service entrance. This also was removed and the service stairs were placed inside the main part of the house with new service entry.

Small Dormers Go.

In the original home there were small dormers across the front which added little to the façade. These were removed and the effect greatly simplified and improved by one long continuous dormer across the front.

The trip which both house and garage made took place in wintry weather but was accomplished successfully. And in course of modernization, the second floor ceiling was insulated, and likewise the walls. This as a means of paving the way for a new forced air heating system, gas fueled. The house also was rewired and a new wood burning fireplace was built.

Inside the home, walls and floors were completely refinished, and a number of improvements made. On the second floor a new modern bath was installed and a new lavatory put in on the first floor.

Returns Good Dividend.

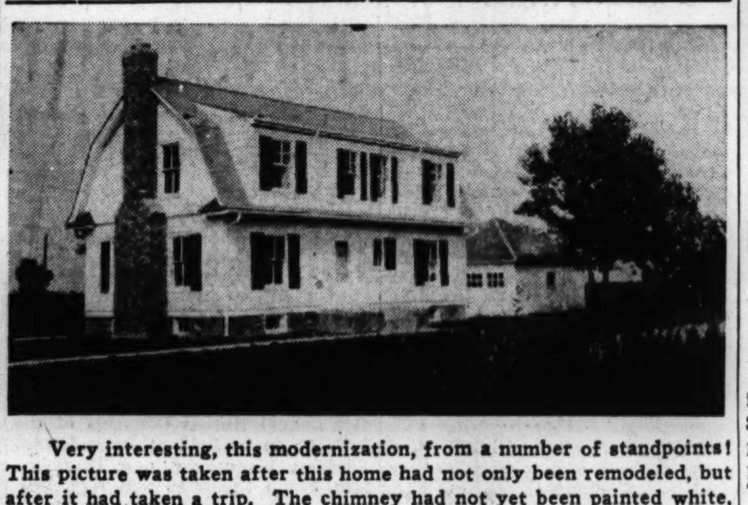
Remodeling is the way out for many home owners. Those whose houses are in no manner ready for discard, but houses which have the passing years too roughly etched on their roofs and walls, and whose interior equipment is lagging behind the times.

Such work returns a neat dollar and cents dividend, if that is what's wanted. Such work returns an inestimable dividend in everyday comfort and everyday enjoment.

You can have a "different" house in more ways than one. Sometimes by drastic renovation, sometimes by very small changes indeed.

Modernization is versatile and potent. Amazingly so, in clever hands, with discretion and thought behind it!

House Taken for Ride



Very interesting, this modernization, from a number of standpoints! This picture was taken after this home had not only been remodeled, but after it had taken a trip. The chimney had not yet been painted white, but house and two car garage had been moved about half a mile. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Binkley, Park Ridge.

As the house stood on its original site, before moving and before modernization. In course of the change the front entrance porch was removed, small dormers eliminated in favor of one long continuous dormer, and rear service stairs placed inside of home.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 15.

The bulbs in the outdoor beds should all be uncovered by this time, especially if a heavy mulching was given them last fall. Scattering a bit of nitrate of soda over the beds after the mulch is removed and gently working it into the soil between the bulbs will stimulate them and produce better blooms. A complete plant food, which is sold by all hardware stores, is equally good and probably easier to obtain. Many soils lack certain elements that are essential for plant growth and when applied early in spring the plants produce better foliage and flowers. Unless the lawn has been fertilized, make the application immediately to encourage early growth. Use four pounds to each 100 square feet of lawn area. Roll the lawn. The perennial borders should be given an application of plant food. Divide those plants which require it, restrict the growth of the strong, spreading kinds, and replant as soon as possible.

Tuesday, April 16.

You can enjoy a wonderful garden by sowing annuals. The hardy kinds should be sown early, such as calendula, petunia, phlox, flowering tobacco, sweet alyssum, larkspur, verbena, nigella, poppy, portulaca, and others that require a long period to flower. Annuals delight in a friable, rich, well drained soil. Various combinations can be easily arranged; study the seed and plant catalogs. Use plenty of vines, such as the scarlet runner, morning glories, cobaea, and hyacinth bean. The gourds grow rapidly and the fruits can be dried and painted or arranged to suit the individual. Many of them should be started early because they require a long season. Plant the Boston ivy on stone, brick, or stucco walls. It is unnecessary to cover the walls entirely to obtain a fine effect. Plants can be purchased from any supply source. Do not sow annuals too thick.

Wednesday, April 17.

Never permit worms to ruin the foliage of currants and gooseberries; spray with arsenate of lead. Hedges are effective only when the plants grow close to the ground; they should be trimmed before growth starts. If there has been a severe winter freezing cut all the plants back to within six or 12 inches of the ground to force a heavy growth from the base. If a plant has died replace it with a strong plant. Gladiolus corms should be planted early and later at 10 to 15 day intervals to enjoy a succession of bloom.

Thursday, April 18.

Gardeners living in congested areas of the city will find the four o'clock one of the finest plants to grow. It is good for hedges, for use in borders, as a specimen, or for any location not in dense shade. The portulaca or sunplant is one of the best plants for hot or congested areas.

Friday, April 19.

Spray the soil around the roses with bordeaux or any recommended ungicide to eliminate spores that may exist. Spray the foliage as soon as it begins to grow and adopt a regular spraying calendar. A new lawn can be made at this time, altho autumn is the very best time. Use a high grade lawn seed. Rake the soil to a fine seedbed. Delay rolling until the grass is an inch high.

Saturday, April 20.

Examine house plants and transplant those that need it. Save the bulbs that have flowered indoors and plant them outdoors next fall. Some very fine amaryllis bulbs are now available. If your bulb is not doing well, plant it in the garden this summer, encourage it to grow until autumn and before frost take it up and pot it. Set out pansy plants and keep the withered flowers picked.

MARILYN'S LEG BROKEN, BUT SHE TEACHES DANCE

11 Year Old Also Writes Fairyland Play.

Marilyn Feigh, 1406 North Lawler avenue, an 11 year old sixth grader, slipped on the ice and broke her leg. That happened 11 weeks ago and today her leg is still in the cast. But that's just the beginning of the story.

Marilyn Feigh.

Marilyn, since her first grade teeth fell out, has loved to dance. So has her brother, Jack, a year older, and together they have made a team—"not professionally, but just for the fun of it." Then Marilyn broke her leg. Now she teaches dancing to the little girls on her street.

After school, when the "Lawler Avenue Girls club" [all fifth and sixth graders] came in to see her, Marilyn read them the play she was writing, "Jennie in Fairyland." It had five scenes and as much entertainment as a triple feature movie, with songs, pantomimes, and dances galore.

Girls Are Dressed Up.

The girls were all cast for the play and dressed up by aid of the Feigh costume box, which included a gray wig, a formal, angel robes, a Dutch boy's suit, and many cosmopolitan accessories. Everything in it was used.

Marilyn taught the girls all the dances she had planned. As rehearsals were in the Feigh basement recreation room, where brother Jack keeps his punching bag, he was in the way, so the girls put him into the play with a specialty dance number.

Jack Feigh.

When Mr. Feigh came home from work and went down to fix the furnace he got himself all tangled up with cellophane fairies and stage curtains. So they made him stage manager. Mrs. Feigh was elected social director. She serves cake and milk after rehearsal and feeds crumbs to the sound effects—two live baby chicks.

Goes to Fairyland.

In the play Jennie goes to Fairyland on a pass, where Mother Goose friends give her the time of her life. Because of its present possibilities as a co-star with Tom, Tom the Piper's son, Marilyn and Jack now regret that the live pig they bought last fall for an Irish jig they did was finally led by a leash to the butcher's.

However, as it is, it's so amusing a play that even the audience forgets that the Fairy Queen is on crutches.

Schurz Evening Students to Dance Saturday Night

The annual spring frolic and dance for students of Schurz Evening school, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, will be held at the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday night. Allan Hendrickson is president of the Student Relations council which is sponsoring the dance.

Learning to Read Maps

ParkRidge Community Is Free of Debt.

A mortgage burning ceremony will take place at the Park Ridge Community church at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, to celebrate the freedom from indebtedness of the church property, valued at $150,000. The occasion is the 23d anniversary of the church. The choir, directed by Mrs. Esther Hawkins, will sing, and church laymen will give five-minute sketches on the background of the church and of community house activities.

Rev. Orvis F. Jordon, the pastor, will deliver the main address on "The Community Church and Its Community." A pageant reviewing the main events in church history will be presented by Mrs. Alma Platts. There will be a social hour in the church parlors, where recognition badges will be awarded.

Pioneer Heads Directors.

W. H. Colman, for more than 50 years a resident of Park Ridge, is chairman of the board of directors of the church. Charles W. Forbrich has been chairman of the finance committee, which raised the funds to free the property of debt. Harry W. Youngberg was chairman of the building committee which erected the Community house.

The church property is in the heart of the business district, and includes a triangular piece of land with streets all the way around it adjacent to Hodges park.

Buildings on Site.

Here stands the old brick building once occupied by the Congregational church of Park Ridge, as well as the Community, which was erected in 1926.

The Community house is a modern parish building which has equipment for community activities, a stage, gymnasium, dining room, women's parlors and equipment for the Sunday school. The congregation spent $98,000 in the last 14 years on the Community house. Services have been conducted there since January because the congregation has been too large for the old church building.

TRIBUNE PLACES ORDER FOR 235 R. O. T. C. MEDALS

Two hundred thirty-five gold and silver medals were ordered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last week for the outstanding R. O. T. C. cadets of metropolitan Chicago. Awards are given semiannually by THE TRIBUNE in 35 high schools on the basis of one for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen. They will be awarded during the federal inspection ceremonies in May.

Lane Tech will be given the largest number, 18 gold and three silver. Next highest allotments among the 27 city public schools are Crane Tech, 10 and 1; Lake View, 8 and 2; Tilden, 8 and 1, and Austin, 8 and 1. Other schools which will get eight gold medals are Lindblom and Schurz.

St. Mel High school cadets will receive 11 gold and 4 silver medals. Awards also are given each semester to R. O. T. C. units in Waukegan, Gary, Evanston, and Joliet.

2 HIGH SCHOOLS ARE TO PRESENT SPRING CONCERTS

Wells and Maine Talent Will Be Heard.

Musical organizations in Wells and Maine Township High schools will offer their annual spring concerts this week. More than 200 students in the a cappella choir, junior choir, orchestra, and band will take part in the concert in the Maine gymnasium at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The concert orchestra and band will play in the Wells auditorium, 936 North Ashland avenue, at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

The first part of the program at Maine will be devoted to selections by the orchestra and choirs. Soloists will be Lois Pearson, Josephine Glaeser, George Carlson, James Eck, Mildred Stropek, and Jack Gow.

A girls sextet composed of Mildred Stropek, Barbara Carroll, Marilyn Reigert, Violet and Virginia Fallberg, and Shirley Carlson will sing.

Band to Be Heard.

The second part of the concert will consist of selections by the band. Alexander M. Harley and Fred M. Vierow will direct the program.

Two student conductors, Virginia Placzkiewicz and Evelyn Shefte, will assist Chammon Krupsky, instructor in music, in directing the band and orchestra at Wells. They will lead through the first three selections, "The Star Spangled Banner," "Gypsy Overture," and "Passacaglia and Fughetta."

Offer Special Features.

Special features will be a saxaphone solo by James Bavetta, a comic novelty entitled "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with William Lanzi as narrator, and a display by a group of baton twirlers. A string ensemble composed of Zdislaw Chmielewicz, Teddy Wrobel, Virginia Carynski, Richard Brynicki, Evelyn Shefte, Dolores Swierzke, and Dan Hussey will play "Minuet in E Minor" by Mozart and "Naila" by Delibes.

The overture to "Figaro" will be played by a saxaphone quartet consisting of James Bavetta, Marie Konopa, Alex Schulik, and Dominic Cattero.

Ugly Fat —Now Lost—

without strict diet lists, exercising or taking drugs

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—

First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . . mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce calories considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice. If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ½ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

HAL KEMP SEEKS QUIET LIFE AFTER 12,000 MILE TOUR

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a 12,000 mile tour of "one nighters" Hal Kemp and his bandsmen are delighted to settle down for a stretch of regular performing at the Palmer House and broadcasting over W-G-N and Mutual. A "one nighter," in case you are in doubt, is a one night dance engagement.

Hal Kemp.

After playing a one night stand the bandsmen sleep a few hours and then travel over hill and dale to another town usually from 200 to 400 miles distant and do it all over again. That goes on week after week. And in this particular case it continued for months.

The Kemp caravansary of eight cars, two trailers and a truck endured fire and flood—but fortunately no famine during this tour. Southern cooking agrees with Kemp, who is a North Carolinian, so he added twelve pounds despite the rigors of winter below the Mason and Dixon line.

Planned as a Vacation.

The tour was planned as a sort of "vacation"—something to break the montony of winter in the north. But as soon as the Kemp parade hit Virginia they encountered blizzards. Before they finally returned north to Chicago they were treated to assorted downpours of snow, sleet, rain and hail with plenty of ice underfoot.

And there was more than enough adventure. In Asheville, Singer Bob Allen and Bandsmen Porky Dankers, Eddie Kusby and Clayton Cash, riding in Alex Holden's de luxe trailer, returned from a dance to find the conveyance in flames.

In Atlanta, where Hal once lived, he and Mrs. Kemp celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Johnny Van Epps and Leo Moran, two bandsmen, married their childhood sweethearts, and Jack Le Maire, comic vocalist, became the father of a seven pound son.

Trailer Skids, Overturns.

Near Lula, Ga., the trailer skidded on an icy road and overturned. When the boys got to Eddie Kusby it looked like he was bleeding to death. But he was only plastered with raspberry jam.

Le Maire really experienced the most adventures. Near Spartansburg, S. C., he got stuck in a snowdrift; in Opelousas, La., he awoke to find his hotel room on fire. At Johnson City, Tenn., he lost his overcoat.

Now, Hal has settled down patiently to await the Fourth of July. Independence day has been set by the doctor for the arrival of Mrs. Kemp's first baby!

PAINTED DREAMS DRAMA REACHES EXCITING CLIMAX

The high spot in the plot of "Painted Dreams," W-G-N's serial, will be reached this week during exciting scenes between Mother Moynihan, played by Jane Green, and Mrs. Oliphant, played by Hope Summers. Kay Chase, author of the W-G-N hit show, said that these episodes of "Painted Dreams" would be the most interesting in a long time. Recently Ted Oliphant, a character, met death in the Far East.

At home, his wife, Lily, one of the young folks whom Mother Moynihan regards as her "children," was having a baby at the time, and the news was withheld from her. The baby is now born and the elder Mrs. Oliphant has just learned of the marriage and subsequent death of her son. What happens when Mrs. Oliphant, in great fury, sees Mother Moynihan and the developments between Lily Oliphant and her mother-in-law, create five days of thrilling radio drama.

"Painted Dreams" is aired week days, at 11:30 a. m., on W-G-N.

On 5th Row Center

Dame May Whitty, famous British stage and screen actress, who will be starred in a special play, "Incident in Singapore," on Fifth Row Center on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 tomorrow night.

5TH ROW CENTER TO BE BROADCAST TWICE THIS WEEK

Dame Whitty, Miranda to Be Guests.

Two performances of Fifth Row Center, W-G-N's special guest artist presentation which has been a featured attraction on the station since the first of the year, will be offered listeners this week.

Dame May Whitty, noted British stage and screen actress, will be heard on a special Fifth Row Center program from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow night. At 7 o'clock Friday evening Fifth Row Center will present Carmen Miranda, sensational young Brazilian songstress.

The special presentation tomorrow is occasioned by the fact that Dame May Whitty cannot reach Chicago from San Francisco in time for a performance this afternoon at 5 p. m., which has been the regular Fifth Row Center hour. She is expected to arrive from the west by plane today.

In San Francisco she has been playing with Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet." They are all to open in the same play at the Auditorium theater Wednesday night.

On Stage for 60 Years.

The noted British actress, who has been on the stage for 60 years, will be heard in a special radio play entitled "Incident in Singapore."

The Friday night presentation of Fifth Row Center is the first of a new series. The show moves to this day and hour regularly after this week.

Miss Miranda, who has been hailed as one of the theatrical "finds" of the decade, opens tonight in "The Streets of Paris," musical revue, at the Grand Opera house.

Sings in Portuguese.

On Fifth Row Center Miss Miranda will sing several of the Portuguese songs which have made her famous. Miss Miranda came to the United States from Rio de Janeiro a year ago. She was an overnight hit in "The Streets of Paris." Besides her stage appearances, she has made a motion picture and been heard on the air.

She will sing over W-G-N, accompanied by the six native instrumentalists who are with her in "The Streets of Paris." She is co-starred in the musical revue with Bobby Clark and Luella Gear, who will be heard later on Fifth Row Center. Carmen Miranda is said to be responsible for a fashion craze which has swept around the world. She, it is said, was the first to wear the very high crowned hats and massive jewelry that are now popular.

Primaries, Scandinavian War, Topic of Broadcast

"Outcome of Primaries," and "Scandinavian Blitzkrieg" will be discussed by Prof. James Hart, Prof. Frederick Mueller, and Prof. Charles O'Donnell on the weekly broadcast of "The Changing Scene," aired over WIND from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today.

STUDENTS IN TWO SCHOOLS TO GIVE MUSICAL SHOWS

Taft, Kelvyn Park Youths Take Stage Roles.

Days of the early American colonists will be recalled in song and drama this week at Taft and Kelvyn Park High schools. Members of the choruses and the orchestra will offer "The Boston Tea Party," an operetta by Noble Cain, Thursday afternoon and Friday night in the Taft auditorium, 5625 North Natoma avenue.

"Manhattan Magnates," a musical comedy set in the Nieuw Amsterdam of Peter Stuyvesant, will be presented at 8 o'clock Friday night as the principal feature of the annual music festival at Kelvyn Park, 4343 Wrightwood avenue. The story runs like Rip Van Winkle in reverse. Two boys fall asleep in modern Central park and wake up in old Nieuw Amsterdam.

Stuyvesant and Tammany.

Among the people they meet are Peter Stuyvesant, played by Lester Roberts; his secretary, Katrinka, played by Lorraine Harding, and Chief Tammany, played by Al Dvorin. The two visitors from modern Manhattan will be Robert Kimberly and Robert Hayward. Edward Merdinger will appear as their attendant and Robert Campbell as a tax collector.

A girls' trio consisting of Doris Green, Radine Miner, and Tur Helm will sing. Mrs. Florence T. Love. with the assistance of Virginia Neumann and Goldie Class, will direct the musical comedy. Miss Frances L. Fischer will direct the band and orchestra.

Principals in Taft Show.

Two casts of principals will alternate in the leading rôles of the Taft operetta. Those on Thursday afternoon will be William Lingenfelter, William Cameron, William Loeschen, Hal Lloyd, William Ruhl, Betty McQuilkin, Marionelle De Roech, and Margaret Konczyk. LILACS TO BRING SPRING TO SHUT-INS

YOUTHS' RADIO PROGRAM WINS GREAT AUDIENCE

Parker High to Take Part in Show.

We're all behind you,
Our spirit will never die;
On Parker on,
Fling your banner high!

These words will ring out Wednesday night on W-G-N when the third "Citizens of Tomorrow" program will be heard in the W-G-N audience studio from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this entertainment quickly has taken the fancy of high school listeners thruout the middle west. Already it has become one of the most popular programs of young people and parents.

Miss Nellie Quinn.

Singing the above stanza will be [illegible]00 students of Parker High school, in the south part of Chicago. Lake View and Austin High schools have preceded Parker as guests of this new radio entertainment. Wells High school, in the northwest section of Chicago, will be honored on Wednesday, April 24.

Audiences Like "Jerry."

Chicagoland has fallen in love with "Jerry," one of the characters on "Citizens of Tomorrow." Played by 16 year old Dorothy Gregory of Park Ridge, she is the cute and lovable co-ed who is heard conversing with "The Principal," this character depicted by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Maxwell is director of The Tribune's annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field and this newspaper's Christmas time Good Fellow campaign. Extremely popular, too, is another star of the program, "The School Engineer," the rôle taken by Ed Sprague. Mr. Sprague is known to millions of radio listeners as "Mr. Silo" of the "Little Orphan Annie" radio show.

Miss Howe a Special Guest.

Special guests of the program Wednesday night will be Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, every high school choral conductor in the Chicago public schools, and Harold Kent, director of the public school radio council. Both Miss Howe and Mr. Kent are coöperating with Blair Walliser, the W-G-N producer of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Each Wednesday night a special group of guests will be present.

School radio chairmen and high school principals have attended the broadcast and next week school engineers will be invited.

A prominent place on the program Wednesday night will be taken by the Parker a cappella chorus, directed by Clyde Matson. The school principal, Miss Nellie Quinn, will be seated on the platform during the entertainment and will be introduced by Mr. Maxwell following the performance.

Cheers to Be Heard on Air.

Four Parker yell leaders will lead the student body in two rousing cheers which will be heard on the air. The leaders are Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt.

This new program offers more than just a radio entertainment for the students. Following each week's broadcast the talking film, "Trees to Tribunes," is shown to the 600 students and then 100 of the group are taken on a tour thru Tribune Tower, visiting the editorial, circulation, and stereotyping departments and the composing and press rooms.

MASQUE PLAYERS OFFER COMEDY ON WEDNESDAY

Out Early to Learn How Garden Grows

Here's a classroom where all the pupils really dig in and work. The walls of the room are a garden's hedges and the blue sky is its ceiling. Like little Mistress Mary, the pupils are taking a course in how does your garden grow. Frank and Joyce are in the kindergarten class of St. Patrick's academy, 2300 Washington boulevard. The sunbonnet was handmade as the first get-ready-for-spring project. Now it's seed planting time in the kindergarten garden, a plot that thrives in the school yard annually under the ardent attention of chubby hands. Frank is the son of Mrs. Mary Gilligan, Oak Park, and Joyce is the daughter of Mrs. Loretta O'Connell, 1149 North Lawler avenue.

Asked for Hard Jobs and She's Still at Them

Long ago Mrs. Olive Bruner, a pretty young school teacher just graduated from Chicago Normal, asked for the hard jobs. She wanted to teach the subnormal child who was said to be unable to learn. She hungered to teach reading to the child whose eyes were so poor that he couldn't see the printed page. So Mrs. Bruner got the hard jobs.

Mrs. Olive Bruner.
[Allied News Photo.]

Her most recent is the principalship of Spalding school, 1628 Washington boulevard, where, amidst a complex problem of physical therapy treatments, cardiac examinations, nursing, rest, recreation, and special diet, the west side's handicapped children learn reading, writing, and arithmetic. Mrs. Bruner has to know 900 individual stories and prescribes 900 individual courses of study.

Gets the Physically Unfit.

She is constantly getting new pupils who are physically unable to attend school anywhere else. Mrs. Bruner came to Spalding from the Jahn school, where 150 handicapped children are enrolled, and she succeeds Miss Thecla Doniat, recently retired.

Her job is to welcome and adjust to a normal routine the children whom physicians declare are "by reason of disease, accident, or congenital deformity unable to attend a regular school with safety and profit."

There have been compensations for taking the hard jobs. In the line of duty Mrs. Bruner met her husband, Dr. Frank Bruner, then director of special rooms for the Chicago board

ST. ANTHONY'S PARISH WILL NOTE SILVER JUBILEE OF PASTOR

Members of St. Anthony's parish, Cicero, federation of societies, and friends from near and far, tonight will meet in the parish hall for a testimonial dinner for the pastor, the Rev. H. J. Vaiciunas, on the 25th anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood.

The Rev. H. J. Vaiciunas.

The Rev. Mr. Vaiciunas was one of a number of young men taking their vows at Holy Name cathedral in 1915. Soon afterward, he was assigned as administrator of St. George's parish in Chicago, where he served until 1918, when he was transferred to St. Anthony's parish, Cicero.

During his pastorate the parish property has expanded from a small building to the present church, rectory, school, and convent. When the church was built in 1925, there was a debt of $103,000, of which only $8,000 is now outstanding.

Not only at home but also in Lithuania, the Rev. Mr. Vaiciunas has been recognized for his philanthropic work in connection with hospitals, care of the aged, child welfare, and schools.

Thousand New Lilac Bushes for Lombard

At least 1,000 new lilac bushes in Lombard is the goal recently set by the Lombard Garden club and the Lombard Lions club in their joint project, "Lilac Planting Day in Lombard." Date of the distributions will be Wednesday, when plants will be given to children in the village schools.

Schools will be dismissed early for the day and the children will go to the Du Page theater, where movies of lilac time in Lombard in 1938 and 1939 will be shown. Louis Hagerman of Lilacia Park will tell "How to Plant Lilacs."

Plan Essay Contest.

Leading up to lilac planting day, an essay contest on the subject, "How Can I Help Beautify My Town," will be held in the seventh and eighth grades at the schools.

After the showing of the movies, those attending the theater will proceed to Lilacia Park to witness the planting of a lilac commemorating the 71st anniversary of obtaining a charter for the village of Lombard.

TRAINS TO SPEED FLORAL GIFTS TO CITY PATIENTS

Plant Guild Starts Campaign Plans.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Bouquets of fresh lilac blooms from all over Chicago's flowerland will be put by the bedsides of thousands of shut-ins this spring in the twelfth annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, and THE TRIBUNE.

Altho the late spring is expected to delay the opening of the fragile blossoms, guild officials already are working out the intricate plans necessary for gathering and distributing them to hospitals, old people's homes, settlement houses, and other institutions that care for the sick. Theodore V. Purcell of Evanston, president of the guild, said yesterday that all arrangements would be completed well in advance of the dates for distribution.

Following an established custom, guild members again will direct the work of gathering the lilacs and loading them on suburban trains for free transportation to stations in Chicago. There they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and taken to the hospitals.

Forecast Profuse Blooms.

Early reports from gardeners in the west suburbs indicate there will be another heavy crop of lilac blooms this year, the second in a row. Most of the bushes have a high percentage of flowering buds as compared to leaf buds.

Each year the guild and THE TRIBUNE furnish the connecting link between those who grow lilacs and the shut-ins who receive them. The blooms come from thousands of home yards and gardens, parks, and estates scattered all over the Chicago area. They go to the sick rooms in the city, many of them charity wards where the only flowers the patients ever see are those that strangers share with them.

The campaign is unique in that all the work of getting the blossoms from bushes to bedsides is voluntary and yet is done with such precision that more than 20,000 shut-ins in nearly 150 institutions are given bouquets. The movement is the largest of its kind in the United States.

61 Lilac Trains in 1939.

Most of the lilacs are brought into the city on suburban trains. Boxes of blooms and individual bouquets are loaded on baggage cars, in vestibules, or piled in commuters' laps.

Last year nine railroads furnished 61 lilac trains on each of the two lilac days. The roads were the North Western, Milwaukee, North Shore Line, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore Line, and Pennsylvania.

Dates for this year's distribution of the lilacs will be set just as soon as guild officials can determine when most of the blooms will be ready to cut. This always depends entirely upon the weather. In nine of the last 11 years the dates have been between May 10 and 20.

There likely will be two lilac days again this year. The blooms along the north shore usually open a few days later than those to the south and west of the city.

Appoint Mrs. Plamondon.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton has been appointed chairman of the guild's executive committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, one of the founders of the guild and its executive committee chairman from the beginning. It was Mrs. McCormick who conceived the "Share Your Lilacs" idea and started the work in 1929.

More than 2,000 members of 85 garden clubs will coöperate with the guild this year in gathering lilacs in various suburban communities.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park is the new chairman of the guild's general committee that will direct the work. She succeeds Mrs. David L. Meyers of La Grange.

Chairmen of Divisions.

Each railroad line or division will have a suburban division chairman who will have active charge of the committees that assemble the lilacs and load them on trains.

They are:

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, Calanus lodge, St. Charles—Aurora and Elgin railway.

Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, 4541 Forest avenue, Downers Grove—Burlington railway.

Mrs. Robert J. Pabodie, 104 Oak street, Maywood—Galena division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Herschel Missey, 8000 Dante avenue, Chicago—Illinois Central.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, 1636 Forest avenue, Wilmette—Southern Milwaukee division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, 194 Lakeside manor, Highland Park—Northern Milwaukee division, North Western.

Mrs. Albert W. Torbet, Telegraph road, Deerfield—North Shore line.

Mrs. William O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, Chicago—Rock Island.

Mrs. Clyde B. Kennard, 1008 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines—Eastern Wisconsin division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington—Wisconsin division, North Western.

Working under the direction of the division chairmen will be the presidents and guild chairmen of the 85 suburban and community garden clubs. A complete list of these workers will be published later.

THIS COMPLAINING WORLD.

People are so complaining and nasty sometimes I wonder how they manage to live. I know a bus driver who told me his name had been turned in for fast driving on a west side boulevard when he was just driving to make his schedule. Imagine any one who thinks for a dime he can dictate the speed of a bus which is also carrying many other passengers. The others are probably in a hurry and don't mind hitting the bumps a little hard. I wish old petulant women and dyspeptic men would stay home.

JOHN K.

BEGGING AT CLUB MEETINGS.

I am a member of a west side woman's club because I want to hear good lectures, good concerts, and know other women. But I think I'll have to quit. I get the lectures and the concerts, but the other women are constantly begging for money. I not only pay dues but give to this fund and that fund until I can't go to meetings any more without a full purse. It's too bad that the clubs feel they must support the universe and salve all its wounds with my dimes and nickels.

MRS. MARY T.

NEED CROSS PATHS ON WEST SIDE.

Two of the longest blocks in the city are on the west side. They are Madison street from Kedzie to Homan and from Hamlin to Pulaski. From Madison north to Kinzie these blocks have no cross streets. Some kind of walking paths in these streets would be appreciated by pedestrians.

F. R.

LOMBARD'S GIFT OF LILACS.

One of the reasons why I'm glad it's spring is because Lombard will have its lilacs. The story of a man willing his lilacs to posterity touches me because how much better that is than leaving a purse of gold that could buy evil as well as good.

Lilacs will always bloom in Lombard and folks who live in tiny apartments or great estates will come from blocks or miles to receive inspiration from the bits of scented heaven that grow on bushes in a man's garden.

TAXPAYER GROUP SETS UP FIVE POINT PROGRAM

Seven Civic Clubs Form Executive Unit.

Delegates from seven west area civic clubs who were organized in January as the executive committee of taxpayers' asociations, recently adopted a five point platform. Each of the member organizations is permitted four delegates to the executive committee which meets the first Wednesday evening of each month in the Vojta Naprstek school, 2548 South Homan avenue.

The clubs united by the executive committee are the 21st Ward Taxpayers' association, the Home Owners' association of the 21st ward, First Taxpayers' club of Berwyn, Lawndale Taxpayers' association of the 22d ward, Czech Taxpayers' club of the 23d ward, Town of Lake Taxpayers' League of the 15th ward, and the Czecho-Slovak Taxpayers' Association of Cicero.

Program of Efforts.

The committee has promised its member organizations to, first, fight high taxes; second, protest "mass production" tactics of the law-making bodies in introducing bills for the sake of introducing them; third, stop squandering of taxpayers' money; fourth, promulgate review of existing "horse and buggy" laws and recommend revision to fit the 20th century; fifth, to conduct the affairs of the executive committee only for the benefit of the taxpayers.

Officers elected for the new central organization are Jaroslav Ruzicka, 2502 South Christiana avenue, president; Victor Falout, 2521 West 47th street, vice president; Joseph Boucek, Cicero, committee attorney and corresponding secretary; Joseph A. Husek, 1540 West 18th place, secretary; Zdenka Cermak, 2718 South Springfield avenue, financial secretary and treasurer.

Has Made Recommendations.

In its first two months of existence the committee has recommended a seven cent fare on street cars from Chicago to Berwyn by way of Cicero, has urged that low housing projects, as they are known, be discontinued, and has studied the FHA home financing situation.

The committee objects to low housing projects because, according to Mr. Husek, "slum districts exist in almost every large city in the United States and those people who are in the slums are moved out and in the new buildings are housed those lucky individuals who can pass the 'entrance exams'."

Mr. Husek also explains "We feel that the really poor people who can't pass the 'exams' must move out of the locality to start up another 'slum' so they can exist until another project goes up to clean up the 'slum' again."

Wed Recently

REVIVE ONE WAY DRIVE EXTENSION FOR WEST AREA

Motor Council Proposes Laramie Terminus.

The West Area council of the Chicago Motor club recently revived its plan for a system of one way streets to relieve traffic congestion of the west side and suburban area. A council committee received the support of council members to proceed with a program designed for the area from Garfield park to Laramie avenue.

The present one way system uses Washington boulevard and Warren avenue from Garfield park to Union park. The extension according to Ray McCarthy of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, chairman of the committee, is relatively inexpensive and easy to install. He pointed out that the worst traffic snarls on Washington boulevard are at Pulaski road.

Report Boulevard Hazards.

Motor club engineers reported a serious condition on Jackson boulevard near Morgan street. A traffic count at the location showed as high as 720 cars per hour using the westbound lane of the street during the evening rush hour. Intersection traffic was proportionately higher. Engineers recommended immediate installation of signal lights.

County, city and street car officials have been informed of the difficulties that will arise with the opening of the new Central avenue bridge just north of North avenue. It is pointed out that at the intersection the present jog in Central avenue creates a traffic problem, and that increased traffic expected with the improvement will aggravate the difficulty.

The council voted to file a formal application with the Illinois Commerce commission for construction of an underpass at Harlem and Harrison on the boundary of Oak Park and Forest Park. Traffic studies show this is the busiest grade crossing in the western area and one with the greatest potential threat to life.

Members at Meeting.

The roster of those attending the meeting to represent various civic and political organizations included Frank S. Bates, Austin Kiwanis club; E. O. Bloche, Oak Park Optimist club; Walter J. Kelly, Garfield Park Business Men's association; C. H. Bullen, Franklin Park Kiwanis club; B. H. Childs, Oak Park club; R. H. Cooper, Oak Park Chamber of Commerce; Fred A. Grove and Albert L. Hall, Oak Park.

Robert L. Holmes, Oak Park elementary schools; Arthur M. Kaindl, state representative of the 11th district; Erwin Thoendel and Henry C. Rieck, Forest Park Chamber of Commerce; Stuart H. Sinclair, Greater Maywood association; Eleanor Deka, Polish Alma Mater; Hugh W. Donaldson, Illinois Commerce commission; Lee J. Walsh, North Oak Park Improvement association; G. B. Waterstraat, Oak Park real estate board; Warren Stevens, Chicago, and J. E. Bulger, Fred Dettmar and Harold W. Moore, traffic engineer, all of the Chicago Motor club.

Robert Wigglesworth.

When in France during the world war Chief Wigglesworth saw action in the battles of the Somme, St. Mihiel, Meuse, Argonne, Conflans, and Metz. His citations and decorations include the distinguished service cross, French Croix de Guerre with palm, and Italian war cross for merit.

During the Century of Progress Exposition Col. Wigglesworth was chief of guides. He has been chief of police in Melrose Park since 1937.

SPRING IS HERE! PARKS OFFERING BAIT CASTING

Bait and fly casting for the tired business man, miniature aircraft for the kite flying age and sand boxes for the very young are bringing spring to west side parks. Several new clubs and departments are opening other recreational opportunities now that winter sports have gone with the snow.

Those who follow angling may apply for membership in a bait and fly casting club now being organized by the Chicago park district in the Douglas park fieldhouse, 14th street and Albany avenue. Instruction in fly tying is under the direction of Steven Podmorski, 1951 Shelby court. The club will also promote casting tournaments, excursions, and social events.

Jack Scaletta will preside as temporary chairman of the group, which will meet at 7:30 o'clock each Tuesday and Friday evening. Sumner Webb is park supervisor at Douglas.

The Chicago Aeronuts club, a group of young men interested in constructing, flying, and designing miniature aircraft, is now occupying new quarters in the craft shop of Garfield Park Recreation center, 100 North Central Park avenue. Applications for membership in the club are being received by Leonard Sterling, park supervisor of recreation.

Officers of the club are Joseph P. Matulis, president; Edward Lidgard, vice president; Walter Fromm, secretary, and Peter Vacco, treasurer.

Club advisers are Carl Goldberg, a national authority on model plane design, and Frank Nekimken of the Chicago park district staff.

Mothers of boys and girls of 4 and 5 years old may bring the children to Garfield park's playland located in the recreation center building.

$10 GIVES START TO LIBRARY FOR NEGRO CHILDREN

Old West Lake Street Store to House Books.

Several weeks ago three Negro citizens in the 28th ward dipped into their pocket books for the down payment on a public library. It cost the three of them a total of $10.

Mrs. Ruth Apilado. [Dubow Photo.]

That sum was the beginning of a project that will mean a free reading room for hundreds of Negro children in the east end of the ward who have been spending their time, as they put it, "jes bein' a jittahbug." Now they can read books. An old store building at 2221 Lake street will be formally opened next Sunday afternoon as a free children's library. Adults may use the library in the evenings.

Until the people of the ward banded to make a library of their own, the nearest free place to rent books was at Lewis institute, Damen avenue at Madison street. Some of the children had to walk a mile or more and cross heavily traveled streets to borrow a book. They weren't allowed to take books home from the school library.

Not Thru at 4 P. M.

Mrs. Ruth Apilado, a teacher at Hayes school, 258 North Leavitt street, watched the children of her race turned loose after school to roam the streets. Mrs. Apilado says her job isn't over at 4 o'clock when the dismissal bell rings.

A few weeks ago this teacher, who was once a Hayes school pupil herself, decided to somehow get the children a library. She talked it over with the school principal, Samuel Nowinson. He referred her to Napoleon Blueitt, Union Park director, the man behind the current community clean-up campaign and the civic leader of the district. He pledged Mrs. Apilado his support.

These two and a former librarian, Mrs. Frances Yancy, searched for a site. The vacant store building would do except for the rental fee, which was too high. When the building owner, Maynard T. Bartholomew, heard about their project, he came down to $10 on the rental. The three paid it and started out after paint, shelves, and some books.

Lend Their Help.

They told the professional and business men what they wanted to do. Dr. E. T. Boatwright, a dentist, gave them the paint. Dr. James M. Brown gave toward the linoleum for the floor. Dr. Sam Mercer, another dentist, gave some book shelves. Robert Tyler gave some chairs. Wetzel Connie, decorator, put the paint on the walls free of charge. Mr. Nowinson gave books. Other people, neighbors and friends from other wards and communities, sent books. They have 300 volumes as a starter.

Mrs. Apilado and Mrs. Yancy will volunteer their time as librarians and, in the summer months, the two women will conduct story hours in the vacant lot next door. By that time Mrs. Apilado hopes the lot will be a garden.

Negro social and civic clubs have pledged their support in maintaining the reading room and paying the rent in the months to come. They are the West Side Woman's club, Mrs. Fannie Carter, president; the Amphitrons club, Mrs. Jane Beetle, president; the Gardenias club, Miss Ella Williams, president; Tri-S club, Mrs. Ann Bowman, president, and Debutantes, Miss Lois Brooks, president.

Room for 150 to Read.

As many as 150 children can be accommodated in the reading room at one time. Mrs. Apilado wants them to come there to read. Books may go out also into their homes. However, the idea is to give the Negro child a place to go when school is dismissed.

The committee of three and the clubs plan to give a motion picture a week in the reading room. With the pennies that will be charged for admittance new books will be bought for the library.

Children from any school and any area will be admitted to the new center. Most of them are expected to come from the Hayes and Tennyson schools.

Race Relations.

Dr. James M. Yard, executive secretary of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, will speak on "Race Relations" at a 2 o'clock meeting Wednesday afternoon of the Austin Presbyterian Service guild, 5720 Fulton avenue.

of education. They were married in 1921.

"There is also the satisfaction of seeing miracles seemingly take place as the special teacher, with patience and skill, shows the blind child how 'to see' and the deaf child 'to hear,'" she says.

Must Answer Needs.

When a child comes to Mrs. Bruner with a physician's certificate of admittance, she must answer that child's needs with a certain kind of diet, exercise, or rest in addition to the regular course of study. She is assisted in this program by Mrs. Frances Gaffney.

There is a swimming pool used for underwater treatments and for afternoon recreational swimming. Some pupils have included in their course of study a period of ultraviolet rays in addition to geography and history. Some must sleep on the two large rest porches on the third floor. There are those who are given regular doses of cod liver oil.

Mrs. Bruner gained 10 years of experience at the Jahn school where she was a teacher for four years and a principal for six. She also taught in the subnormal room at Gary school and the sight saving room at Lincoln school. Included in her 20 years of taking the hard jobs she taught the children in the fresh air room at the old Montefiore building.

Holds Two Degrees.

She holds a bachelor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago and a master's from Northwestern university. Mrs. Bruner was born and reared in Chicago until her high school days when her family moved to the village of Clyde, when she attended the J. Sterling Morton High school.

Plans are underway by the board of education to build a Spalding High School for Crippled Children adjacent to the grade school. The property is now occupied by the Home for Destitute Crippled Children. That will be Mrs. Bruner's next hard job. She's looking forward to working on the extended curriculum.

Will Hold Party.

Carroll court No. 160, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold a party Tuesday evening in McEnerny hall, 4039 West Madison street. Mrs. Ray Corris, 4250 West Monroe street, is chairman.

HOUSE IS MOVED HALF MILE; THEN HAS FACE LIFTED

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Luther Binkley, Park Ridge, decided not only to modernize their home inside and out, but they decided to move it as well.

The original site of the Binkley home was at 715 Prospect avenue. The present site is 750 North Washington street, about half a mile away.

W. F. McCaughey, architect, Park Ridge, handled the work, drew the plans for the home in its present form, and specified exterior and interior changes.

The modernization was extensive and mirrors many present patterns and trends. It was a house which might have felt it was growing old; slowing up in its capacity to give its owners all they wanted. Then, presto, came the renovation, and it emerged new, weather resisting, and breathing a brighter atmosphere of easier, more gracious living.

Large Porch Removed.

The theme of many a family discussion these days is what to do for the house these coming months. Each home makes its own personal, absorbing claims, as each family's preferences and purse dictate what is to be done. These times find as peculiarly alert to planning for the future as well as the present, and yet with a love for the past evident on every side. There are those who cling to houses in the English or French or mediterranean spirit; those who incline to the Cape Cod, or the Colonial Virginia of Williamsburg days, or the storied, romantic south.

The exterior of the Binkley home was improved in a number of definite ways.

First, there was the large front entrance porch which was removed. At the back there was a covered service entrance. This also was removed and the service stairs were placed inside the main part of the house with new service entry.

Small Dormers Go.

In the original home there were small dormers across the front which added little to the façade. These were removed and the effect greatly simplified and improved by one long continuous dormer across the front.

The trip which both house and garage made took place in wintry weather but was accomplished successfully. And in course of modernization, the second floor ceiling was insulated, and likewise the walls. This as a means of paving the way for a new forced air heating system, gas fueled. The house also was rewired and a new wood burning fireplace was built.

Inside the home, walls and floors were completely refinished, and a number of improvements made. On the second floor a new modern bath was installed and a new lavatory put in on the first floor.

Returns Good Dividend.

Remodeling is the way out for many home owners. Those whose houses are in no manner ready for discard, but houses which have the passing years too roughly etched on their roofs and walls, and whose interior equipment is lagging behind the times.

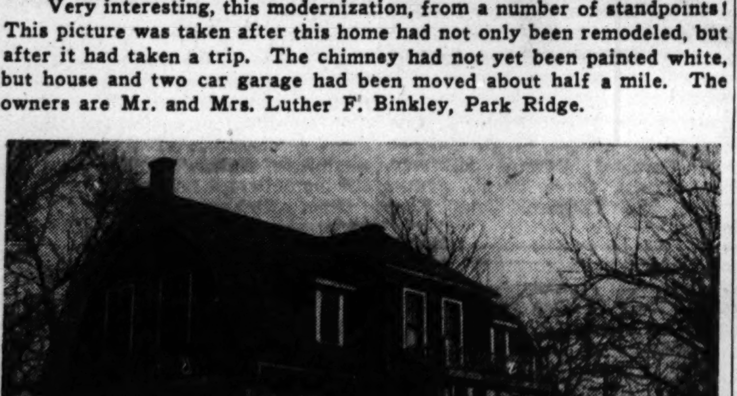
Such work returns a neat dollar and cents dividend, if that is what's wanted. Such work returns an inestimable dividend in everyday comfort and everyday enjoment.

You can have a "different" house in more ways than one. Sometimes by drastic renovation, sometimes by very small changes indeed.

Modernization is versatile and potent. Amazingly so, in clever hands, with discretion and thought behind it!

House Taken for Ride

Very interesting, this modernization, from a number of standpoints! This picture was taken after this home had not only been remodeled, but after it had taken a trip. The chimney had not yet been painted white, but house and two car garage had been moved about half a mile. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Binkley, Park Ridge.



As the house stood on its original site, before moving and before modernization. In course of the change the front entrance porch was removed, small dormers eliminated in favor of one long continuous dormer, and rear service stairs placed inside of home.

NEW FOOTBRIDGE AT RIVERSIDE TO AID PUPILS

Will Span Des Plaines at Stanley Avenue.

Construction of a suspension footbridge across the Des Plaines river at Stanley avenue in Riverside as one of the projects of the Cook county highway department for this spring will restore a landmark that dates back to the early nineties, when Riverside Lawn was first subdivided.

The bridge will connect Riverside with an unincorporated community between Riverside and Lyons and will be located at one of the most picturesque points of the winding river. The original structure was of suspension design. Parts of the anchors were ultilized for a second bridge after flood waters had carried away the superstructure. Two years ago it was condemned as unsafe and was repaired last fall.

Will Aid Children.

The new bridge will mean much to some 40 children residing in Riverside Lawn who attend school in Riverside. Without the footbridge it would be necessary to walk at least a mile farther in crossing the river.

When the bridge was first built during World's Fair year, right of way frontage was donated by the Riverside Improvement company, builders of the nearby Riverside hotel which was a famous summer resort in the 1870's. The refectory still stands near the east end of the bridge. Great numbers of Chicagoans attended dancing parties at the hotel in early days, and it is recalled that one of the guests was Buffalo Bill.

Delight of Hikers.

The footbridge across the Des Plaines with its wooded shores, has for many years been the delight of hikers. Two hundred yards away are Bourbon Springs, where the Cook county militia held its first election.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 15.

The bulbs in the outdoor beds should all be uncovered by this time, especially if a heavy mulching was given them last fall. Scattering a bit of nitrate of soda over the beds after the mulch is removed and gently working it into the soil between the bulbs will stimulate them and produce better blooms. A complete plant food, which is sold by all hardware stores, is equally good and probably easier to obtain. Many soils lack certain elements that are essential for plant growth and when applied early in spring the plants produce better foliage and flowers. Unless the lawn has been fertilized, make the application immediately to encourage early growth. Use four pounds to each 100 square feet of lawn area. Roll the lawn. The perennial borders should be given an application of plant food. Divide those plants which require it, restrict the growth of the strong, spreading kinds, and replant as soon as possible.

Tuesday, April 16.

You can enjoy a wonderful garden by sowing annuals. The hardy kinds should be sown early, such as calendula, petunia, phlox, flowering tobacco, sweet alyssum, larkspur, verbena, nigella, poppy, portulaca, and others that require a long period to flower. Annuals delight in a friable, rich, well drained soil. Various combinations can be easily arranged; study the seed and plant catalogs. Use plenty of vines, such as the scarlet runner, morning glories, cobaea, and hyacinth bean. The gourds grow rapidly and the fruits can be dried and painted or arranged to suit the individual. Many of them should be started early because they require a long season. Plant the Boston ivy on stone, brick, or stucco walls.

Wednesday, April 17.

Never permit worms to ruin the foliage of currants and gooseberries; spray with arsenate of lead. Hedges are effective only when the plants grow close to the ground; they should be trimmed before growth starts. If there has been a severe winter freezing cut all the plants back to within six or 12 inches of the ground to force a heavy growth from the base. If a plant has died replace it with a strong plant.

Thursday, April 18.

Gardeners living in congested areas of the city will find the four o'clock one of the finest plants to grow. It is good for hedges, for use in borders, as a specimen, or for any location not in dense shade. The portulaca or sunplant is one of the best plants for hot or congested areas.

Friday, April 19.

Spray the soil around the roses with bordeaux or any recommended ungicide to eliminate spores that may exist. Spray the foliage as soon as it begins to grow and adopt a regular spraying calendar. A new lawn can be made at this time, altho autumn is the very best time. Use a high grade lawn seed. Rake the soil to a fine seedbed. Delay rolling until the grass is an inch high.

Saturday, April 20.

Examine house plants and transplant those that need it. Save the bulbs that have flowered indoors and plant them outdoors next fall. Some very fine amaryllis bulbs are now available. If your bulb is not doing well, plant it in the garden this summer, encourage it to grow until autumn and before frost take it up and pot it. Set out pansy plants and keep the withered flowers picked.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

Without doubt, your church dollar is the largest dollar you ever spend. By that we mean it buys more and loses less than any other when it departs from the family purse. Now it may be that you belong to the great congregation of those who, having no connection with official agencies of the church, might wonder how much it costs to run a church and how much a church is worth in dollars and cents.

Dr. J. Allen Leas.

There are Chicago and suburban churches with capital assets of a million dollars or more, and annual budgets of $100,000. But not many of these! Most church folk go to average churches. But what is an average church—an average Protestant church, let us say? Our studied guess — tho no better than yours—would name Holy Trinity Lutheran church at Addison street and Maple Square avenue.

How the pastor and council of that congregation in that transient neighborhood do stretch the church dollars! And what church in the city is, or may not soon be, in a transient neighborhood? The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Allen Leas, has led Holy Trinity for 23 years, and the very architecture of Holy Trinity in its low Gothic, announces its permanency despite population currents.

In addition to well attended Sunday morning services, an annual budget of $7,552.53 maintains a flourishing Bible school, three growing Luther leagues, an active Men's brotherhood, and Women's Missionary society, an altar society known as E. X. E. [initials of Greek words meaning "Until the Christ come"], and two choirs.

In addition, however, to other current expenses such as light, heat, and gas, the budget includes generous contributions to missions, the synodical apportionment, gifts to Carthage college, Nachusa orphanage, and Inner missions.

The church report shows that the current budget is less than 9 per cent of the church's capital assets, and the congregation's total indebtedness is about 8 per cent of the capital account.

But the good will a stranger feels as he meets the friendly groups of this and other average congregations of Chicago cannot be included in any balance sheet.

The ceremonial new moon which at the spring equinox fixes the date of Easter is troublesome this year. It set Easter early for Western Christians and late for Eastern Orthodox worshippers. Greek churches will observe April 28. It also sets the Jewish passover beginning April 23. . . . Presbyterians will open their debate on union with the Episcopalians at General assembly opening May 23 at Rochester, N. Y. . . . Episcopalians will have their say at the Kansas City general convention in the fall. . . . Both sides predict lots of forensics . . . little action . . . William H. Sexton heads the committee on a memorial altar for Cardinal Mundelein in Holy Name cathedral . . . the altar was originally designed for use at the silver jubilee of Cardinal Mundelein as an archbishop in October.

The Rev. John Paul Stafford Jr. is the spiritual census director at Malta. At least, as pastor of the Methodist church of that village, the Rev. Mr. Stafford has become embued with the spirit of the decennial census and has led his congregation to reckon the spiritual assets of the village by means of a parallel canvass. One of the questions to be asked by "enumerators" is: "When was the last time you admitted to your wife [husband] that you were wrong?" But you wouldn't have to answer this question to the enumerator. "Only to God," the pastor explains.

PLAY TO ASSIST SETTLEMENT'S FUND FOR CAMP

Fourteen years ago a band of women, who wanted to help with the expenses of operating Marcy center, organized and called themselves Queen Esthers. That was when Marcy was located at Newberry avenue and Maxwell street for the benefit of neighborhood Jewish families.

By adding nickels and pennies they were able to give $1,000 toward the building fund for the modern settlement now at 1539 South Springfield avenue, maintained by Methodist women thruout the United States. Again the Queen Esthers are working for the settlement. They want to found a camp for needy boys, girls, and tired mothers and name it for Miss Anna Helstad, who retired recently from Marcy after serving 30 years as superintendent.

Most of the settlement improvements have been pushed toward completion by the Queen Esthers. They hold plays and parties. They give and earn. As their initial move toward raising money for a Camp Marcy they will present a three act comedy entitled "His Women Folks" at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in the center gymnasium.

There is now a Junior and Senior Queen Esther circle and both are under the direction of Miss Daves, director of the girls' department.

NEW PASTOR LINKS BAPTIST SEMINARY WITH PARENT CHURCH

In 1913 Northern Baptist Theological seminary was founded in the parlors of Second Baptist church, Jackson boulevard and Wolcott avenue. Recently one of the seminary's graduates, its public speaking teacher and alumni association president, became pastor of 75 year old Second Baptist.

The Rev. W. A. Diman

Easter Sunday when the Rev. W. A. Diman spoke from the pulpit, old ties were reunited between the seminary and the mother church. The pastor is still a student there for he is working toward his master of theology degree while serving on the faculty in the public speaking department.

The first president of the seminary was Dr. John Marvin Dean who was then pastor of Second Baptist. He volunteered his services to the school without pay. One of the church deacons became chairman of the school's board of trustees and another, L. J. Lipert, became secretary. Mr. Lipert holds this same job today.

The Rev. Mr. Diman is a native of Chicago. He was graduated from Tilden Technical High school, took his first year of college work at the University of Chicago, and completed undergraduate work at William Jewell college, Liberty, Mo. For five years Mr. Diman has been pastor of the First Baptist church of Elmhurst.

Ugly Fat Now Lost

without strict diet lists, exercising or taking drugs

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—

First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ½ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ½ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice

If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ½ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

PAINTED DREAMS DRAMA REACHES EXCITING CLIMAX

The high spot in the plot of "Painted Dreams," W-G-N's serial, will be reached this week during exciting scenes between Mother Moynihan, played by Jane Green, and Mrs. Oliphant, played by Hope Summers. Kay Chase, author of the W-G-N hit show, said that these episodes of "Painted Dreams" would be the most interesting in a long time. Recently Ted Oliphant, a character, met death in the Far East.

At home, his wife, Lily, one of the young folks whom Mother Moynihan regards as her "children," was having a baby at the time, and the news was withheld from her. The baby is now born and the elder Mrs. Oliphant has just learned of the marriage and subsequent death of her son. What happens when Mrs. Oliphant, in great fury, sees Mother Moynihan and the developments between Lily Oliphant and her mother-in-law, create five days of thrilling radio drama.

"Painted Dreams" is aired week days, at 11:30 a. m., on W-G-N.

Griff Williams to Mark 7th Anniversary Wednesday

Four of the most popular songs of 1933, the year Griff Williams organized his orchestra will be featured on his broadcast over W-G-N at 12:30 next Wednesday night from the Continental Room of the Stevens hotel.

The songs Griff has chosen to commemorate the seventh anniversary of his band on the air are, "Love in Bloom," "Stars Fell on Alabama," "Last Roundup," and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking." His singing stars, Buddy Moreno, Walter King, and Bob Kirk will handle the vocals.

Thelma Naufel to Sing on Steelmakers Program

Thelma Naufel, a talented young soprano whose father is employed in a Wheeling steel factory, and Irvin Green, a flutist who works in the main office, will combine their talents as guest headliners on Mutual's Musical Steelmakers over W-G-N from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m., today. They will render "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark."

HAL KEMP SEEKS QUIET LIFE AFTER 12,000 MILE TOUR

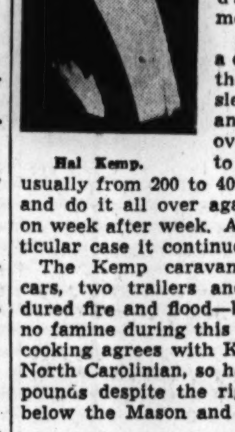
BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a 12,000 mile tour of "one nighters" Hal Kemp and his bandsmen are delighted to settle down for a stretch of regular performing at the Palmer House and broadcasting over W-G-N and Mutual. A "one nighter," in case you are in doubt, is a one night dance engagement.



Hal Kemp.

After playing a one night stand the bandsmen sleep a few hours and then travel over hill and dale to another town usually from 200 to 400 miles distant and do it all over again. That goes on week after week. And in this particular case it continued for months.

The Kemp caravansary of eight cars, two trailers and a truck endured fire and flood—but fortunately no famine during this tour. Southern cooking agrees with Kemp, who is a North Carolinian, so he added twelve pounds despite the rigors of winter below the Mason and Dixon line.

Planned as a Vacation.

The tour was planned as a sort of "vacation"—something to break the montony of winter in the north. But as soon as the Kemp parade hit Virginia they encountered blizzards. Before they finally returned north to Chicago they were treated to assorted downpours of snow, sleet, rain and hail with plenty of ice underfoot.

And there was more than enough adventure. In Asheville, Singer Bob Allen and Bandsmen Porky Dankers, Eddie Kusby and Clayton Cash, riding in Alex Holden's de luxe trailer, returned from a dance to find the conveyance in flames.

In Atlanta, where Hal once lived, he and Mrs. Kemp celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Johnny Van Epps and Leo Moran, two bandsmen, married their childhood sweethearts, and Jack Le Maire, comic vocalist, became the father of a seven pound son.

Trailer Skids, Overturns.

Near Lula, Ga., the trailer skidded on an icy road and overturned. When the boys got to Eddie Kusby it looked like he was bleeding to death. But he was only plastered with raspberry jam.

Le Maire really experienced the most adventures. Near Spartansburg, S. C., he got stuck in a snowdrift; in Opelousas, La., he awoke to find his hotel room on fire. At Johnson City, Tenn., he lost his overcoat.

Now, Hal has settled down patiently to await the Fourth of July. Independence day has been set by the doctor for the arrival of Mrs. Kemp's first baby!

Jack Teagarden Orchestra on Show of Week Today

Jack Teagarden, torrid trombonist and his orchestra will be heard on Mutual's Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 tonight. Kitty Kallen will sing.

On April 21 Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker will be heard. Of course, they'll feature "Oh, Johnny," the tune that has skyrocketed them to success.

On 5th Row Center

Dame May Whitty, famous British stage and screen actress, who will be starred in a special play, "Incident in Singapore," on Fifth Row Center on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 tomorrow night.

5TH ROW CENTER TO BE BROADCAST TWICE THIS WEEK

Dame Whitty, Miranda to Be Guests.

Two performances of Fifth Row Center, W-G-N's special guest artist presentation which has been a featured attraction on the station since the first of the year, will be offered listeners this week.

Dame May Whitty, noted British stage and screen actress, will be heard on a special Fifth Row Center program from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow night. At 7 o'clock Friday evening Fifth Row Center will present Carmen Miranda, sensational young Brazilian songstress.

The special presentation tomorrow is occasioned by the fact that Dame May Whitty cannot reach Chicago from San Francisco in time for a performance this afternoon at 5 p. m., which has been the regular Fifth Row Center hour. She is expected to arrive from the west by plane today.

In San Francisco she has been playing with Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet." They are all to open in the same play at the Auditorium theater Wednesday night.

On Stage for 60 Years.

The noted British actress, who has been on the stage for 60 years, will be heard in a special radio play entitled "Incident in Singapore."

The Friday night presentation of Fifth Row Center is the first of a new series. The show moves to this day and hour regularly after this week.

Miss Miranda, who has been hailed as one of the theatrical "finds" of the decade, opens tonight in "The Streets of Paris," musical revue, at the Grand Opera house.

Sings in Portuguese.

On Fifth Row Center Miss Miranda will sing several of the Portuguese songs which have made her famous. Miss Miranda came to the United States from Rio de Janeiro a year ago. She was an overnight hit in "The Streets of Paris." Besides her stage appearances, she has made a motion picture and been heard on the air.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

LILACS TO BRING SPRING TO SHUT-INS

YOUTHS' RADIO PROGRAM WINS GREAT AUDIENCE

Parker High to Take Part in Show.

We're all behind you,
Our spirit will never die;
On Parker on,
Fling your banner high!

These words will ring out Wednesday night on W-G-N when the third "Citizens of Tomorrow" program will be heard in the W-G-N audience studio from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this entertainment quickly has taken the fancy of high school listeners thruout the middle west. Already it has become one of the most popular programs of young people and parents.

Miss Nellie Quinn.

Singing the above stanza will be 600 students of Parker High school, in the south part of Chicago. Lake View and Austin High schools have preceded Parker as guests of this new radio entertainment. Wells High school, in the northwest section of Chicago, will be honored on Wednesday, April 24.

Audiences Like "Jerry."

Chicagoland has fallen in love with "Jerry," one of the characters on "Citizens of Tomorrow." Played by 16 year old Dorothy Gregory of Park Ridge, she is the cute and lovable co-ed who is heard conversing with "The Principal," this character depicted by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Maxwell is director of The Tribune's annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field and this newspaper's Christmas time Good Fellow campaign. Extremely popular, too, is another star of the program, "The School Engineer," the rôle taken by Ed Sprague. Mr. Sprague is known to millions of radio listeners as "Mr. Silo" of the "Little Orphan Annie" radio show.

Miss Howe a Special Guest.

Special guests of the program Wednesday night will be Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, every high school choral conductor in the Chicago public schools, and Harold Kent, director of the public school radio council. Both Miss Howe and Mr. Kent are coöperating with Blair Walliser, the W-G-N producer of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Each Wednesday night a special group of guests will be present.

School radio chairmen and high school principals have attended the broadcast and next week school engineers will be invited.

A prominent place on the program Wednesday night will be taken by the Parker a cappella chorus, directed by Clyde Matson. The school principal, Miss Nellie Quinn, will be seated on the platform during the entertainment and will be introduced by Mr. Maxwell following the performance.

Cheers to Be Heard on Air.

Four Parker yell leaders will lead the student body in two rousing cheers which will be heard on the air. The leaders are Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt. Miss Mabelle Daly, an administrative aid at Parker and the school's radio chairman, has helped plan Parker's participation in the radio show. She will assist at a rehearsal at 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday.

This new program offers more than just a radio entertainment for the students. Following each week's broadcast the talking film, "Trees to Tribunes," is shown to the 600 students and then 100 of the group are taken on a tour thru Tribune Tower, visiting the editorial, circulation, and stereotyping departments and the composing and press rooms.

ST. SABINA YOUNG PEOPLE TO OPEN SHOW TUESDAY

The Young People's club of St. Sabina's parish will stage the Minstrel Frolics of 1940 in the Sabina auditorium, 78th and Throop streets, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The musical features a chorus of 60.

An old fashioned minstrel lineup has Daniel Curley Sr., as interlocutor, and Earl Greensley, Robert Larkin, James Haggerty, Roy Greensley, John Fabish, and Ray Phelan as end men. Miss Betty Kuenster will take part in this act.

A southern plantation jubilee scene will be set for the second act. Joseph Cognac is in charge of all musical arrangements and will furnish the musical accompaniment.

Drexel Park Presbyterian Mothers' Class Is to Meet

Sam Campbell, "philosopher of the forest," will lecture and show illustrative movies at a meeting of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church mothers class on Tuesday at 8 o'clock. The class will meet at the church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. Mrs. J. W. Malcolm is president of the mothers' class.

Sure to Make Them Cheer

When the cheers of 600 Parker High school students resound over the W-G-N airways Wednesday evening the traditional yelling will be the result of animated antics on the part of (left to right) Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt. They are some of Parker's star cheer leaders and are scheduled to play important background roles when the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program swings southward this week to dramatize the personality, history, and achievements of their alma mater. The show, which is heard from 7 to 7:30 o'clock each Wednesday evening over station W-G-N, is sponsored by The Chicago Tribune and is dedicated to the high school students of Chicago. Jeers Punish Chinese Who Evade War Aid

BY PAUL HEALY.

For three and a half years the Chinese Relief committee of Chicago has been sending monthly contributions of approximately $35,000 to the people of war-stricken China. The donations regularly are made up of at least 25 per cent of the income of every employed local Chinese, most of whom live in the Chinatown district centering around 22d street and Wentworth avenue.

Spokesman for these facts last week was Tay Chung, erudite bartender of the Bamboo Gardens, 202 West Cermak road, and known thruout the community as "the professor." Affable, gray haired, and keen eyed, Chung is one of 32 members of the Chinese Relief committee elected by the six or seven thousand Chinese in the Chicago area. A resident of 238 East 25th street, he can speak Russian, Chinese, Japanese, and fluent English, is a graduate of the De Paul university law school, and once was granted a captain's commission in the army of Korea.

Sure China Will Win.

"The Chinese are going to win this war with Japan," he says with quiet confidence. "It is hard to defeat a nation with the kind of spirit being shown by our people both in and out of China. The contributions from Chinese outside the mother country, particularly in the United States and in Singapore, keeps many millions of poor people in China from starvation. Probably the war will go on for many years, but ultimately we will win."

He estimates that nearly four million dollars [Chinese value] has been sent from the United States, including about $1,500,000 from the local relief committee, since the war began. Each month every Chinese with an ordinary job must give at least $18 and every Chinese business man at least $25 to the fund.

In the Bamboo Gardens, for instance, where waiters earn $30 a month in pay and perhaps another $40 in tips, it means that they are contributing at least one-fourth of their income.

"Voluntary donations? No," Tay Chung laughs, "not strictly. The committee has fixed these quotas arbitrarily and while nearly every one is willing to give his share, a few occasionally lag behind in payments. We deal with them by tying drums on their backs, placing signs on their chests indicating how much they owe, and marching them up and down the streets of Chinatown with boys following and beating the drums to attract attention."

May Return to Korea.

Tay Chung is watching developments in the Chinese-Japanese conflict with much interest, because it is not unlikely that he may return to his native Korea if China wins and Korea again becomes free of Japan's domination. He was born there in 1886, a descendant of "politicians and scholars" [words which are practically synonymous in Korea], and came to the United States in 1907 to learn law and military organization.

He began his American education in a "special, large chair" in the third grade of an elementary school in Seattle, Wash. After graduation he moved to Salt Lake City, then went to high school in Lincoln, Neb.

In 1911 at Hasting college, near Lincoln, he was baptized a Presbyterian and studied with other Koreans invited there by the trustees of the school. He also attended the Young Koreans Military academy, operated by Young Park, who had been a political figure in Korea, and was graduated as a captain.

In 1913 C. M. Barr, superintendent of public schools in Hastings, helped him obtain a one year scholarship to the University of Chicago, and he has lived here ever since. In 1920 he obtained his law degree from De Paul.

Until he became a bartender last fall he had been successively a salesman, grocer, food merchant, and clerk in a law office. He is not eligible to take the state bar examinations because he cannot become a citizen, according to the Chinese exclusion act passed in 1905.

Has a Family.

He married Miss Anna Chan in 1927 and is the father of Laverne, 14; Tay, 12; Alvin, 8, and Helen, 4 years old. His favorite diversion is studying, and he is very proud of other scholarly Koreans, such as Dr. Younghill Kang, author and professor of English at New York university, and Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the provisional government of Korea, now in Washington, D. C.

"When it is called upon, the spirit of the Chinese is remarkable," he summed up. "Before the war we weren't very conscious of our loyalty to China and most of us disliked the conduct of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Once the fight began, however, every one was behind Chiang Kai-shek 100 per cent and contributions to the cause were not hard to get.

"Frequently thruout the city Chinese restaurant owners are still holding 'open houses,' where food and drink is supplied free by the management and customers respond with liberal donations to the fund."

Five "Citizens of Tomorrow" whose voices will be heard by radio listeners from station W-G-N Wednesday evening are, left to right (front), Meredith Kern, Darlene White, and Marilyn Beier, and (rear) Walter Rees and Gerald Dunkman. They are part of the Parker High school chorus of 100 boys and girls which will have a featured part on the W-G-N program "Citizens of Tomorrow."

MOTHERS OF LEO STUDENTS GIVING PARTY ON FRIDAY

The Mothers club of Leo High school will hold its annual spring card party Friday evening in the school auditorium, 70th and Peoria streets. Mrs. John J. Mangan, 9240 Laflin street, is in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Raymond Schofield, 8049 South Paulina street.

Men Ask Equal Share in Tips on Marriage

When Miss Blanche McLaughlin, branch librarian at Auburn Park, set aside a rack of how-to-be-happily-married books last winter, she labeled the collection "A Marriage Course for Women." The women saw the books, checked them out, read them.

Their husbands saw the books, too. Soon a few husbands dropped in at the library to inform Miss McLaughlin that they, the husbands, were fairly important in this marriage business. They explained that they felt slighted and asked about a marriage course for men.

Miss McLaughlin went to work. For a month now, men in Auburn Park have been reading all the best advice on how to be happily married. Miss McLaughlin says the course is destined, evidently, to go on and on and on. There has been no falling off of requests.

Older Men Timid.

"The majority of the men marriage course readers are young and single," she says. "I find that the older men are more timid in asking for the books. The men from 19 to 25, however, are quite as frank in their requests as the young women in that age group. Older women ask for the books as frequently as the younger women."

Women want books on personality development, beauty, and good grooming and streamlining the figure included on their marriage course. Men are a trifle more reserved in asking for the personality cultivation books, but they read them.

On Miss McLaughlin's "When a Man Marries" shelf are: Pitkin's "Secret of Happiness," Strain's "Love at the Threshold," Folsom's "Plan for Marriage," and Hambridge's "Six Rooms Make a World."

For Older Readers.

For the older reader she has included "Middle Age Is What You Make It," by Sokolov. These books are only a beginning. She keeps the lists short in order "not to scare the men away before they start reading."

As the course progresses and interest develops, men are likely to find themselves reading all about mental hygiene and budget problems.

Young men have been demanding books on preparing for fatherhood. "So maybe I'll have to arrange a brand new course one of these days," the librarian explains.

Auburn Park branch is on 79th street three doors east of Halsted street.

Those in the cast include Paul Fleischmann, Lenore Trowitch, Vernon Pragman, Roberta Holum, Ralph Thurn, Wilette Stange, Dorothy Crites, Henry Schroeder, Gladys Penson, and Werner Albrecht.

TRAINS TO SPEED FLORAL GIFTS TO CITY PATIENTS

Plant Guild Starts Campaign Plans.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Bouquets of fresh lilac blooms from all over Chicago's flowerland will be put by the bedsides of thousands of shut-ins this spring in the twelfth annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, and THE TRIBUNE.

Altho the late spring is expected to delay the opening of the fragile blossoms, guild officials already are working out the intricate plans necessary for gathering and distributing them to hospitals, old people's homes, settlement houses, and other institutions that care for the sick. Theodore V. Purcell of Evanston, president of the guild, said yesterday that all arrangements would be completed well in advance of the dates for distribution.

Following an established custom, guild members again will direct the work of gathering the lilacs and loading them on suburban trains for free transportation to stations in Chicago. There they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and taken to the hospitals.

Forecast Profuse Blooms.

Early reports from gardeners in the west suburbs indicate there will be another heavy crop of lilac blooms this year, the second in a row. Most of the bushes have a high percentage of flowering buds as compared to leaf buds.

Each year the guild and THE TRIBUNE furnish the connecting link between those who grow lilacs and the shut-ins who receive them. The blooms come from thousands of home yards and gardens, parks, and estates scattered all over the Chicago area. They go to the sick rooms in the city, many of them charity wards where the only flowers the patients ever see are those that strangers share with them.

The campaign is unique in that all the work of getting the blossoms from bushes to bedsides is voluntary and yet is done with such precision that more than 20,000 shut-ins in nearly 150 institutions are given bouquets. The movement is the largest of its kind in the United States.

61 Lilac Trains in 1939.

Most of the lilacs are brought into the city on suburban trains. Boxes of blooms and individual bouquets are loaded on baggage cars, in vestibules, or piled in commuters' laps.

Last year nine railroads furnished 61 lilac trains on each of the two lilac days. The roads were the North Western, Milwaukee, North Shore Line, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore Line, and Pennsylvania.

Dates for this year's distribution of the lilacs will be set just as soon as guild officials can determine when most of the blooms will be ready to cut. This always depends entirely upon the weather. In nine of the last 11 years the dates have been between May 10 and 20.

There likely will be two lilac days again this year. The blooms along the north shore usually open a few days later than those to the south and west of the city.

Appoint Mrs. Plamondon.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton has been appointed chairman of the guild's executive committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, one of the founders of the guild and its executive committee chairman from the beginning. It was Mrs. McCormick who conceived the "Share Your Lilacs" idea and started the work in 1929.

More than 2,000 members of 85 garden clubs will coöperate with the guild this year in gathering lilacs in various suburban communities.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park is the new chairman of the guild's general committee that will direct the work. She succeeds Mrs. David L. Meyers of La Grange.

Chairmen of Divisions.

Each railroad line or division will have a suburban division chairman who will have active charge of the committees that assemble the lilacs and load them on trains.

They are:

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, Calamus lodge, St. Charles—Aurora and Elgin railway.

Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, 4541 Forest avenue, Downers Grove—Burlington railway.

Mrs. Robert J. Pabodie, 104 Oak street, Maywood—Galena division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Herschel Missey, 8000 Dante avenue, Chicago—Illinois Central.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, 1636 Forest avenue, Wilmette—Southern Milwaukee division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, 194 Lakeside manor, Highland Park—Northern Milwaukee division, North Western.

Mrs. Albert W. Torbet, Telegraph road, Deerfield—North Shore line.

Mrs. William O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, Chicago—Rock Island.

Mrs. Clyde B. Kennard, 1008 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines—Eastern Wisconsin division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington—Wisconsin division, North Western.

Working under the direction of the division chairmen will be the presidents and guild chairmen of the 85 suburban and community garden clubs. A complete list of these workers will be published later.

WHERE'S THAT POOL?

Routine election promise for the southwest side is the Foster park fieldhouse and swimming pool. For more than two years politicians speaking in this area have been talking about what a fine fieldhouse and swimming pool would be built. So far nothing has been done beyond making promises.

A little workhouse on the premises furnishes accommodations for club meetings and some recreation. However, the facilities are far below what the community needs.

Foster park is at 85th and Loomis streets. Residents out in the neighborhood are anxious to have a fieldhouse. Now that summer and the vacation season are coming a pool also would be greatly appreciated. FOSTER PARKER.

POLICE CAPTAIN PRAISED.

Congratulations to Capt. E. R. Goudie for his work in organizing the Roseland Community Boys' club. Capt. Goudie opened the second and third floors of the Kensington police station in October for a boys' clubhouse. At the beginning there were six lads in the club. When Goudie was transferred from Kensington station to headquarters recently there were 450 boys enrolled. Capt. Mark Boyle, who takes Capt. Goudie's place in Kensington, is continuing to coöperate in the boys' club work.

Organizations in the community are backing the project, but all are indebted to Capt. Goudie for getting the work really started and making a place off the street where the boys can congregate.

BLIND AND DEAF, WOMAN IS CHIEF OF INDIAN BAND

Braves, However, Are 2 to 16 Years Old.

Miss Ada Youmans of 14510 Kentucky avenue, Harvey, writes books. She writes a birthday column in a monthly magazine. She keeps 50 boys and girls of 2 to 16 years of age interested in her organization, the Twentieth Century Indians.

Miss Youmans is blind and she is deaf. Interviewing Miss Youmans means talking on a glove. She slips it onto her left hand. The glove has the letters of the alphabet printed on it. Its wearer knows the positions of the letters and spells out the words as her guest presses the different places. Hed old time friends don't use the glove. They know their glove ABC's as well as Miss Youmans.

Miss Youmans was born in England, and was brought to this country when she was four months old. Her father was a Chicago optician. She became blind after an operation for cataracts when she was 9 and lost her hearing at the age of 1[illegible].

Still Takes Interest.

Now she is a gray-haired woman—she takes care not to tell any one her age—and is as active and as interested in what goes on as tho she had never lost two of the most valued senses.

Several years ago she published a little joke book, "Laughs," and has assisted in establishing Braille magazines. The publication for which she writes now is "Our Special," a magazine for women, "but the men like it, too," Miss Youmans says. "I'm supposed to send in 75 words, but you can't say anything in 75 words, not if you're a woman. I write lots more!"

Birthdays go into Miss Youmans' column, and she makes up recipes, too. "I can't cook, but I can tell other folks how!" She makes up contests, too, Solves a Problem.

Three years ago she thought of a way of solving the problem of getting her mail read. She wrote to Red Cross headquarters in Washington, D. C., and asked Miss Adelaide Hoyt of the Braille transcribing service if it might be possible for Red Cross chapters in large cities to provide Braille transcribing service free of charge to the blind.

She found that the Red Cross does have such a service supplied free of charge where investigation shows that it is definitely needed. Mrs. Richardson Dunham is chairman of the Braille service of the Chicago Red Cross chapter, and is interested in establishing contacts between Braille transcription volunteers and blind persons.

A volunteer, Mrs. E. R. Forbes, lives near Miss Youmans in Harvey. Mrs. Forbes met Miss Youmans just last week, but she expects to see her frequently now and to take Miss Youmans' correspondence and tap it out into Braille on a special little machine.

Three Years in Harvey.

Miss Youmans has lived in Harvey three years. She stays with Lena Ray Wright, Miss Madeleine Ray, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore. There is a small white dog, "Patcy," in the household, too, and Miss Youmans and the dog go walking together.

The blind woman makes quilts. She is working on one now which she says "isn't very pretty. I can tell, you know." She collects old belts from wash or wool dresses and sews what she calls her "belt" quilts. She hopes to get belts from every state in the Union, and so far she says she has "held up 17 states for belts."

Those 50 youngsters in her Indian gang call her "Aunt Ada" or "Powwow." Last summer they had a coronation, and Miss Youmans put on an old bathrobe and played the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Chairman of Fashion Show

Miss Annamarie Berk of 1506 Marquette road is president of the Student Activities council at Mundelein college and general chairman of the card party and fashion revue which the council will give in the Stevens hotel Thursday evening. Climax of the fashion revue will be a bridal party showing gowns for a bride, maid of honor, and attendants. [Carlos Photo.]

PAINTED DREAMS DRAMA REACHES EXCITING CLIMAX

The high spot in the plot of "Painted Dreams," W-G-N's serial, will be reached this week during exciting scenes between Mother Moynihan, played by Jane Green, and Mrs. Oliphant, played by Hope Summers. Kay Chase, author of the W-G-N hit show, said that these episodes of "Painted Dreams" would be the most interesting in a long time. Recently Ted Oliphant, a character, met death in the Far East.

At home, his wife, Lily, one of the young folks whom Mother Moynihan regards as her "children," was having a baby at the time, and the news was withheld from her. The baby is now born and the elder Mrs. Oliphant has just learned of the marriage and subsequent death of her son. What happens when Mrs. Oliphant, in great fury, sees Mother Moynihan and the developments between Lily Oliphant and her mother-in-law, create five days of thrilling radio drama.

"Painted Dreams" is aired week days, at 11:30 a. m., on W-G-N.

Where's War Boom?' Topic of Round Table Program

W. Lloyd Warner, associate professor of sociology, will join two fellow University of Chicago faculty members, Neil H. Jacoby, assistant professor of finance, and T. O. Yntema, professor of statistics, in a discussion of "Where's That War Boom?" on the University of Chicago Round Table, at 1:30 p. m., today over WMAQ—NBC.

Jack Teagarden Orchestra on Show of Week Today

Jack Teagarden, torrid trombonist and his orchestra will be heard on Mutual's Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 tonight. Kitty Kallen will sing.

On April 21 Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker will be heard. Of course, they'll feature "Oh, Johnny," the tune that has skyrocketed them to success.

On Style Show

Virginia Clark, star of the Romance of Helen Trent on CBS, will be the mistress of ceremonies for the fashion show of the North Shore Country club on Tuesday, April 30. Alice Blue, W-G-N pianist, will provide the musical background.

Thelma Naufel to Sing on Steelmakers Program

Thelma Naufel, a talented young soprano whose father is employed in a Wheeling steel factory, and Irvin Green, a flutist who works in the main office, will combine their talents as guest headliners on Mutual's Musical Steelmakers over W-G-N from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m., today. They will render "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark."

Shirley Bell Will Sing 'On a Sunday Afternoon'

"On a Sunday Afternoon," W-G-N's matinée musical program directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Shirley Bell and the music of the dance orchestra, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and Mutual.

5TH ROW CENTER TO BE BROADCAST TWICE THIS WEEK

Dame Whitty and Carmen Miranda Guests.

Two performances of Fifth Row Center, W-G-N's special guest artist presentation which has been a featured attraction on the station since the first of the year, will be offered listeners this week.

Dame May Whitty, noted British stage and screen actress, will be heard on a special Fifth Row Center program from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow night. At 7 o'clock Friday evening Fifth Row Center will present Carmen Miranda, sensational young Brazilian songstress.

The special presentation tomorrow is occasioned by the fact that Dame May Whitty cannot reach Chicago from San Francisco in time for a performance this afternoon at 5 p. m., which has been the regular Fifth Row Center hour. She is expected to arrive from the west by plane today.

In San Francisco she has been playing with Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet." They are all to open in the same play at the Auditorium theater Wednesday night.

On Stage for 60 Years.

The noted British actress, who has been on the stage for 60 years, will be heard in a special radio play entitled "Incident in Singapore."

The Friday night presentation of Fifth Row Center is the first of a new series. The show moves to this day and hour regularly after this week.

Miss Miranda, who has been hailed as one of the theatrical "finds" of the decade, opens tonight in "The Streets of Paris," musical revue, at the Grand Opera house.

Sings in Portuguese.

On Fifth Row Center Miss Miranda will sing several of the Portuguese songs which have made her famous. Miss Miranda came to the United States from Rio de Janeiro a year ago. She was an overnight hit in "The Streets of Paris." Besides her stage appearances, she has made a motion picture and been heard on the air.

She will sing over W-G-N, accompanied by the six native instrumentalists who are with her in "The Streets of Paris." She is co-starred in the musical revue with Bobby Clark and Luella Gear, who will be heard later on Fifth Row Center. Carmen Miranda is said to be responsible for a fashion craze which has swept around the world. She, it is said, was the first to wear the very high crowned hats and massive jewelry that are now popular.

'ROMANCE' SHOW TO BE AIRED AT 5 P. M. ON W-G-N

"Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, usually heard Monday nights, will be broadcast from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today only, on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue will be featured with the dance orchestra.

Miss O'Dell will sing "And Love Was Born," and will join the chorus in "I Walk with Music." Salerno will do "The Gaucho Serenade," and with the chorus will sing "Ay Ay Ay." The Four Shades of Blue will sing the novelty number, "Run, Rabbit, Run."

"And the Angels Sing," conducted by Mr. Stokes, will feature the voices of Kathryn Witwer, Edna O'Dell, and the women's choir, from 8 to 8:30 tonight, on W-G-N. Miss Witwer will sing "Nothing But You," and with the chorus will do "Stars in My Eyes." Miss O'Dell will sing for her solo, "Too Romantic," and "Slumbering Time."

Griff Williams to Mark 7th Anniversary Wednesday

Four of the most popular songs of 1933, the year Griff Williams organized his orchestra will be featured on his broadcast over W-G-N at 12:30 next Wednesday night from the Continental Room of the Stevens hotel.

The songs Griff has chosen to commemorate the seventh anniversary of his band on the air are, "Love in Bloom," "Stars Fell on Alabama," "Last Roundup," and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking." His singing stars, Buddy Moreno, Walter King, and Bob Kirk will handle the vocals.

On 5th Row Center

Dame May Whitty, famous British stage and screen actress, who will be starred in a special play, "Incident in Singapore," on Fifth Row Center on W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 tomorrow night.

START NATIONAL TALENT HUNT ON 'CARTERS' SHOW

Mutual Winners to Get 2 Week Contracts.

An elaborate amateur talent hunt is to be launched over W-G-N and 85 stations of the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system by "The Carters of Elm Street," popular day time script program.

The contest will get under way this week. Within two months two winners will be picked, both of whom will be given two week contracts, with all expenses paid on the "Carters" show.

The talent contest, which will be known as the "Carrie Carter Talent Search" will be open to all girls and women over 15. One of the winners will be in the 15 to 25 year class, and the other will be in the group of women over 25.

The contest was inspired by Virginia Payne, who plays the starring rôle of Carrie Carter on the show. Remembering her own struggles to get to the top in radio, she suggested that this contest be held to aid those who might otherwise never have a chance.

Local contests will be conducted in 85 cities and towns. Recordings of the voices of the winners will be sent to regional centers, and recordings by the regional winners will in turn be sent to Chicago, where three judges will select the two national winners. Miss Payne will be chairman of the board of judges, and one of the other members will be an outstanding motion picture talent scout.

The winners will each be paid a salary of $112 a week for the two weeks.

NORTHERNERS TO MIX OLD TUNES WITH NEW HITS

Hit tunes of yesteryear and music of the current season will be aired on the Northerners program at 9:30 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N. The featured vocalist will be Irene Verner.

The octet will sing "Marcheta," "The Singing Hills," "Love Song of Renaldo," and "Open Your Eyes." Miss Verner will sing for her solo, "My Johanne," by Edvard Grieg.

The entire Northerners cast will join in singing selections from Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly," including "Beautiful Ship from Toyland," and "Giannina Mia."

IREENE WICKER TO BE FEATURED IN 'STRIFE' TODAY

Ireene Wicker, radio actress and story teller; Maurice Carnovsky of the Group theater, and Conway Wingfield, Louis Hector, and Ara Gerald, noted British players, will be featured in John Galsworthy's "Strife," the great play to be presented over WENR at 1 p. m. today. In presenting this story of an English mill town strike, Director Charles Warburton is planning to use more narration than usual.

HAL KEMP SEEKS QUIET LIFE AFTER 12,000 MILE TOUR

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a 12,000 mile tour of "one nighters" Hal Kemp and his bandsmen are delighted to settle down for a stretch of regular performing at the Palmer House and broadcasting over W-G-N and Mutual. A "one nighter," in case you are in doubt, is a one night dance engagement.

Hal Kemp.

After playing a one night stand the bandsmen sleep a few hours and then travel over hill and dale to another town usually from 200 to 400 miles distant and do it all over again. That goes on week after week. And in this particular case it continued for months.

The Kemp caravansary of eight cars, two trailers and a truck endured fire and flood—but fortunately no famine during this tour. Southern cooking agrees with Kemp, who is a North Carolinian, so he added twelve pounds despite the rigors of winter below the Mason and Dixon line.

Planned as a Vacation.

The tour was planned as a sort of "vacation"—something to break the montony of winter in the north. But as soon as the Kemp parade hit Virginia they encountered blizzards. Before they finally returned north to Chicago they were treated to assorted downpours of snow, sleet, rain and hail with plenty of ice underfoot.

And there was more than enough adventure. In Asheville, Singer Bob Allen and Bandsmen Porky Dankers, Eddie Kusby and Clayton Cash, riding in Alex Holden's de luxe trailer, returned from a dance to find the conveyance in flames.

In Atlanta, where Hal once lived, he and Mrs. Kemp celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Johnny Van Epps and Leo Moran, two bandsmen, married their childhood sweethearts, and Jack Le Maire, comic vocalist, became the father of a seven pound son.

Trailer Skids, Overturns.

Near Lula, Ga., the trailer skidded on an icy road and overturned. When the boys got to Eddie Kusby it looked like he was bleeding to death. But he was only plastered with raspberry jam.

Le Maire really experienced the most adventures. Near Spartansburg, S. C., he got stuck in a snowdrift; in Opelousas, La., he awoke to find his hotel room on fire. At Johnson City, Tenn., he lost his overcoat. Near Indianapolis, driving in a fog he smashed thru a rail fence with his car.

Near Birmingham, Ala., the band truck driven by Louis Puccinio burned out a bearing with the result that the instruments he was hauling never got to the dance for that night at all.

Uniforms Are Stolen.

In Tampa, Fla., Hal was tricked into riding thru two blazing walls of fire with Lucky Teeter, daredevil racing driver. Hal was jittery for days.

In Nashville, Tenn., sneak thieves broke into the band truck and stole a complete set of uniforms.

These, of course, were only the more sensational intrusions on what was expected to be an uneventful tour.

Now, Hal has settled down patiently to await the Fourth of July. Independence day has been set by the doctor for the arrival of Mrs. Kemp's first baby!

Ugly Fat Now Lost
without strict diet lists, exercising or taking drugs
IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.
Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

THEATER BENEFIT TO AID ROSELAND CLUB FOR BOYS

Police Captain Founder to Attend Program.

The Roseland Community Boys' club will receive a portion of the proceeds from a benefit show to be held at the Roseland State theater, 110th street and Michigan avenue, on Tuesday evening. The Boys' club share of the proceeds will be used to buy gymnasium equipment for their clubrooms above the Kensington police station.

Capt. R. A. Goudie organized the club last fall while he was commander of the Kensington police. He was interested in providing an off-the-street meeting place for the boys of the community. Public spirited citizens and local civic organizations assisted in the project, and the second and third floors of the police station were fitted up as a clubhouse.

A drive for funds for more equipment has been under way in Roseland for several weeks. Racine Thompson, past president of the Roseland Kiwanis club, is president of the Boys' club and in charge of the financial campaign. At the Tuesday show he will introduce Capt. Goudie and Capt. Mark Boyle, present captain of the Kensington district.

There will be a stage show, between 8 and 9 o'clock, in addition to the double feature program. Judge John Prystalski will administer the club pledge to 450 boys who are to be guests of the theater.

The stage program will include a boxing match between Alex and Nickie Adduci, with Sheldon W. Govier, clerk of the Appellate court, and Arthur Lindell, alderman of the 9th ward, as timekeepers. Policeman Ernest Monteen, athletic director of the Boys' club, will referee.

Community singing will take place. Harold Anderson will play the organ. Others on the program will be: Thomas and Marylin Glazina, adagio dancers; the Eveleigh sisters, singers; Joyce O'Rourke, ballet, toe, and acrobatic dancer; Jessie Stoll and Betty Courser, Fenger High school students, singers and yodelers. Club members to appear will be Paul Llanas, violinist; Livio Andreatta, Eugene Klimowski, and Raymond Passafume, who will present numbers on the accordion, cornet, and guitar.

House Taken for Ride

Very interesting, this modernization, from a number of standpoints! This picture was taken after this home had not only been remodeled, but after it had taken a trip. The chimney had not yet been painted white, but house and two car garage had been moved about half a mile. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Binkley, Park Ridge.

As the house stood on its original site, before moving and before modernization. In course of the change the front entrance porch was removed, small dormers eliminated in favor of one long continuous dormer, and rear service stairs placed inside of home.

HOUSE IS MOVED HALF MILE; THEN HAS FACE LIFTED

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Luther Binkley, Park Ridge, decided not only to modernize their home inside and out, but they decided to move it as well.

The original site of the Binkley home was at 715 Prospect avenue. The present site is 750 North Washington street, about half a mile away.

W. F. McCaughey, architect, Park Ridge, handled the work, drew the plans for the home in its present form, and specified exterior and interior changes.

The modernization was extensive and mirrors many present patterns and trends. It was a house which might have felt it was growing old; slowing up in its capacity to give its owners all they wanted. Then, presto, came the renovation, and it emerged new, weather resisting, and breathing a brighter atmosphere of easier, more gracious living.

Large Porch Removed.

The theme of many a family discussion these days is what to do for the house these coming months. Each home makes its own personal, absorbing claims, as each family's preferences and purse dictate what is to be done. These times find as peculiarly alert to planning for the future as well as the present, and yet with a love for the past evident on every side. There are those who cling to houses in the English or French or mediterranean spirit; those who incline to the Cape Cod, or the Colonial Virginia of Williamsburg days, or the storied, romantic south.

The exterior of the Binkley home was improved in a number of definite ways.

First, there was the large front entrance porch which was removed. At the back there was a covered service entrance. This also was removed and the service stairs were placed inside the main part of the house with new service entry.

Small Dormers Go.

In the original home there were small dormers across the front which added little to the façade. These were removed and the effect greatly simplified and improved by one long continuous dormer across the front.

The trip which both house and garage made took place in wintry weather but was accomplished successfully. And in course of modernization, the second floor ceiling was insulated, and likewise the walls. This as a means of paving the way for a new forced air heating system, gas fueled. The house also was rewired and a new wood burning fireplace was built.

Inside the home, walls and floors were completely refinished, and a number of improvements made. On the second floor a new modern bath was installed and a new lavatory put in on the first floor.

Returns Good Dividend.

Remodeling is the way out for many home owners. Those whose houses are in no manner ready for discard, but houses which have the passing years too roughly etched on their roofs and walls, and whose interior equipment is lagging behind the times.

Such work returns a neat dollar and cents dividend, if that is what's wanted. Such work returns an inestimable dividend in everyday comfort and everyday enjoment.

You can have a "different" house in more ways than one. Sometimes by drastic renovation, sometimes by very small changes indeed.

Modernization is versatile and potent. Amazingly so, in clever hands, with discretion and thought behind it!

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 15.

The bulbs in the outdoor beds should all be uncovered by this time, especially if a heavy mulching was given them last fall. Scattering a bit of nitrate of soda over the beds after the mulch is removed and gently working it into the soil between the bulbs will stimulate them and produce better blooms. A complete plant food, which is sold by all hardware stores, is equally good and probably easier to obtain. Many soils lack certain elements that are essential for plant growth and when applied early in spring the plants produce better foliage and flowers. Unless the lawn has been fertilized, make the application immediately to encourage early growth. Use four pounds to each 100 square feet of lawn area. Roll the lawn. The perennial borders should be given an application of plant food. Divide those plants which require it, restrict the growth of the strong, spreading kinds, and replant as soon as possible.

Tuesday, April 16.

You can enjoy a wonderful garden by sowing annuals. The hardy kinds should be sown early, such as calendula, petunia, phlox, flowering tobacco, sweet alyssum, larkspur, verbena, nigella, poppy, portulaca, and others that require a long period to flower. Annuals delight in a friable, rich, well drained soil. Various combinations can be easily arranged; study the seed and plant catalogs. Use plenty of vines, such as the scarlet runner, morning glories, cobaea, and hyacinth bean. The gourds grow rapidly and the fruits can be dried and painted or arranged to suit the individual. Many of them should be started early because they require a long season. Plant the Boston ivy on stone, brick, or stucco walls. It is unnecessary to cover the walls entirely to obtain a fine effect. Plants can be purchased from any supply source. Do not sow annuals too thick.

Wednesday, April 17.

Never permit worms to ruin the foliage of currants and gooseberries; spray with arsenate of lead. Hedges are effective only when the plants grow close to the ground; they should be trimmed before growth starts. If there has been a severe winter freezing cut all the plants back to within six or 12 inches of the ground to force a heavy growth from the base. If a plant has died replace it with a strong plant. Gladiolus corms should be planted early and later at 10 to 15 day intervals to enjoy a succession of bloom.

Thursday, April 18.

Gardeners living in congested areas of the city will find the four o'clock one of the finest plants to grow. It is good for hedges, for use in borders, as a specimen, or for any location not in dense shade. The portulaca or sunplant is one of the best plants for hot or congested areas.

Friday, April 19.

Spray the soil around the roses with bordeaux or any recommended ungicide to eliminate spores that may exist. Spray the foliage as soon as it begins to grow and adopt a regular spraying calendar. A new lawn can be made at this time, altho autumn is the very best time. Use a high grade lawn seed. Rake the soil to a fine seedbed. Delay rolling until the grass is an inch high.

Saturday, April 20.

Examine house plants and transplant those that need it. Save the bulbs that have flowered indoors and plant them outdoors next fall. Some very fine amaryllis bulbs are now available. If your bulb is not doing well, plant it in the garden this summer, encourage it to grow until autumn and before frost take it up and pot it. Set out pansy plants and keep the withered flowers picked.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

Without doubt, your church dollar is the largest dollar you ever spend. By that we mean it buys more and loses less than any other when it departs from the family purse. Now it may be that you belong to the great congregation of those who, having no connection with official agencies of the church, might wonder how much it costs to run a church and how much a church is worth in dollars and cents.

Dr. J. Allen Leas.

There are Chicago and suburban churches with capital assets of a million dollars or more, and annual budgets of $100,000. But not many of these! Most church folk go to average churches. But what is an average church—an average Protestant church, let us say? Our studied guess — tho no better than yours—would name Holy Trinity Lutheran church at Addison street and Maple Square avenue.

How the pastor and council of that congregation in that transient neighborhood do stretch the church dollars! And what church in the city is, or may not soon be, in a transient neighborhood? The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Allen Leas, has led Holy Trinity for 23 years, and the very architecture of Holy Trinity in its low Gothic, announces its permanency despite population currents.

In addition to well attended Sunday morning services, an annual budget of $7,552.53 maintains a flourishing Bible school, three growing Luther leagues, an active Men's brotherhood, and Women's Missionary society, an altar society known as E. X. E. [initials of Greek words meaning "Until the Christ come"], and two choirs.

The church report shows that the current budget is less than 9 per cent of the church's capital assets, and the congregation's total indebtedness is about 8 per cent of the capital account.

APRIL SHOWERS WILL Bring May Flowers IF YOU USE Kem

LIQUID PLANT FOOD

Even in well watered soil, cold-retarded flowers and grass can't make up for lost weeks — unless you see to it that every needed food element is available at once.

That is exactly what Kem supplies, in exactly the right proportions and in concentrated liquid form, instantly available to any kind of plant. No vitamin injections needed: Kem-fed plants make their own.

Simply by using a small amount of Kem you can make your plants and your grass grow rapidly, luxuriantly, healthily — in water or in the poorest soil. Bulbs that have started and stopped can be saved. Rose bushes will respond almost overnight. Velvety lawns and superior vegetables can be assured.

Kem is easy to use, economical. Just dilute with water and apply.

LILACS TO BRING SPRING TO SHUT-INS

YOUTHS' RADIO PROGRAM WINS GREAT AUDIENCE

Parker High to Take Part in Show.

We're all behind you,
Our spirit will never die;
On Parker on,
Fling your banner high!

These words will ring out Wednesday night on W-G-N when the third "Citizens of Tomorrow" program will be heard in the W-G-N audience studio from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, this entertainment quickly has taken the fancy of high school listeners thruout the middle west. Already it has become one of the most popular programs of young people and parents.

Miss Nellie Quinn.

Singing the above stanza will be 600 students of Parker High school, in the south part of Chicago. Lake View and Austin High schools have preceded Parker as guests of this new radio entertainment. Wells High school, in the northwest section of Chicago, will be honored on Wednesday, April 24.

Audiences Like "Jerry."

Chicagoland has fallen in love with "Jerry," one of the characters on "Citizens of Tomorrow." Played by 16 year old Dorothy Gregory of Park Ridge, she is the cute and lovable coed who is heard conversing with "The Principal," this character depicted by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE TRIBUNE.

Mr. Maxwell is director of The Tribune's annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field and this newspaper's Christmas time Good Fellow campaign. Extremely popular, too, is another star of the program, "The School Engineer," the rôle taken by Ed Sprague. Mr. Sprague is known to millions of radio listeners as "Mr. Silo" of the "Little Orphan Annie" radio show.

Miss Howe a Special Guest.

Special guests of the program Wednesday night will be Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools, every high school choral conductor in the Chicago public schools, and Harold Kent, director of the public school radio council. Both Miss Howe and Mr. Kent are coöperating with Blair Walliser, the W-G-N producer of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Each Wednesday night a special group of guests will be present.

School radio chairmen and high school principals have attended the broadcast and next week school engineers will be invited.

A prominent place on the program Wednesday night will be taken by the Parker a cappella chorus, directed by Clyde Matson. The school principal, Miss Nellie Quinn, will be seated on the platform during the entertainment and will be introduced by Mr. Maxwell following the performance.

Cheers to Be Heard on Air.

Four Parker yell leaders will lead the student body in two rousing cheers which will be heard on the air. The leaders are Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt. Miss Mabelle Daly, an administrative aid at Parker and the school's radio chairman, has helped plan Parker's participation in the radio show. She will assist at a rehearsal at 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday.

This new program offers more than just a radio entertainment for the students. Following each week's broadcast the talking film, "Trees to Tribunes," is shown to the 600 students and then 100 of the group are taken on a tour thru Tribune Tower, visiting the editorial, circulation, and stereotyping departments and the composing and press rooms.

ST. FELICITAS YOUTHS TO BOX TOMORROW NIGHT

Ten bouts have been scheduled for the fourth annual amateur boxing show sponsored by St. Felicitas Boys' club in St. Felicitas school auditorium, 83d place and Blackstone avenue, tomorrow evening. Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be a special guest.

South Side Catholic Club Will Meet on Thursday

The South Side Catholic Woman's club will meet at 1:30 o'clock on Thursday at the Southmoor hotel. Louise Dwyer French will review the "House of Hospitality" by Dorothy Day. Anne Williams Murphy will sing. Mrs. Peter J. Needham is president.

Sure to Make Them Cheer

When the cheers of 600 Parker High school students resound over the W-G-N airways Wednesday evening the traditional yelling will be the result of animated antics on the part of (left to right) Gerrie Wember, Eileen Watson, Marvin Himmel, and Robert Dankwardt. They are some of Parker's star cheer leaders and are scheduled to play important background roles when the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program swings southward this week to dramatize the personality, history, and achievements of their alma mater. The show, which is heard from 7 to 7:30 o'clock each Wednesday evening over station W-G-N, is sponsored by The Chicago Tribune and is dedicated to the high school students of Chicago. Jeers Punish Chinese Who Evade War Aid

BY PAUL HEALY.

For three and a half years the Chinese Relief committee of Chicago has been sending monthly contributions of approximately $35,000 to the people of war-stricken China. The donations regularly are made up of at least 25 per cent of the income of every employed local Chinese, most of whom live in the Chinatown district centering around 22d street and Wentworth avenue.

Spokesman for these facts last week was Tay Chung, erudite bartender of the Bamboo Gardens, 202 West Cermak road, and known thruout the community as "the professor." Affable, gray haired, and keen eyed, Chung is one of 32 members of the Chinese Relief committee elected by the six or seven thousand Chinese in the Chicago area. A resident of 238 East 25th street, he can speak Russian, Chinese, Japanese, and fluent English, is a graduate of the De Paul university law school, and once was granted a captain's commission in the army of Korea.

Sure China Will Win.

"The Chinese are going to win this war with Japan," he says with quiet confidence. "It is hard to defeat a nation with the kind of spirit being shown by our people both in and out of China. The contributions from Chinese outside the mother country, particularly in the United States and in Singapore, keeps many millions of poor people in China from starvation. Probably the war will go on for many years, but ultimately we will win."

He estimates that nearly four million dollars [Chinese value] has been sent from the United States, including about $1,500,000 from the local relief committee, since the war began. Each month every Chinese with an ordinary job must give at least $18 and every Chinese business man at least $25 to the fund.

In the Bamboo Gardens, for instance, where waiters earn $30 a month in pay and perhaps another $40 in tips, it means that they are contributing at least one-fourth of their income.

"Voluntary donations? No," Tay Chung laughs, "not strictly. The committee has fixed these quotas arbitrarily and while nearly every one is willing to give his share, a few occasionally lag behind in payments. We deal with them by tying drums on their backs, placing signs on their chests indicating how much they owe, and marching them up and down the streets of Chinatown with boys following and beating the drums to attract attention."

May Return to Korea.

Tay Chung is watching developments in the Chinese-Japanese conflict with much interest, because it is not unlikely that he may return to his native Korea if China wins and Korea again becomes free of Japan's domination. He was born there in 1886, a descendant of "politicians and scholars" [words which are practically synonymous in Korea], and came to the United States in 1907 to learn law and military organization.

He began his American education in a "special, large chair" in the third grade of an elementary school in Seattle, Wash. After graduation he moved to Salt Lake City, then went to high school in Lincoln, Neb.

In 1911 at Hasting college, near Lincoln, he was baptized a Presbyterian and studied with other Koreans invited there by the trustees of the school. He also attended the Young Koreans Military academy, operated by Young Park, who had been a political figure in Korea, and was graduated as a captain.

In 1913 C. M. Barr, superintendent of public schools in Hastings, helped him obtain a one year scholarship to the University of Chicago, and he has lived here ever since. In 1920 he obtained his law degree from De Paul.

Until he became a bartender last fall he had been successively a salesman, grocer, food merchant, and clerk in a law office. He is not eligible to take the state bar examinations because he cannot become a citizen, according to the Chinese exclusion act passed in 1905.

Has a Family.

He married Miss Anna Chan in 1927 and is the father of Laverne, 14; Tay, 12; Alvin, 8, and Helen, 4 years old. His favorite diversion is studying, and he is very proud of other scholarly Koreans, such as Dr. Younghill Kang, author and professor of English at New York university, and Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the provisional government of Korea, now in Washington, D. C.

"When it is called upon, the spirit of the Chinese is remarkable," he summed up. "Before the war we weren't very conscious of our loyalty to China and most of us disliked the conduct of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Once the fight began, however, every one was behind Chiang Kai-shek 100 per cent and contributions to the cause were not hard to get.

"Frequently thruout the city Chinese restaurant owners are still holding 'open houses,' where food and drink is supplied free by the management and customers respond with liberal donations to the fund."

Five "Citizens of Tomorrow" whose voices will be heard by radio listeners from station W-G-N Wednesday evening are, left to right (front), Meredith Kern, Darlene White, and Marilyn Beier, and (rear) Walter Rees and Gerald Dunkman. They are part of the Parker High school chorus of 100 boys and girls which will have a featured part on the W-G-N program "Citizens of Tomorrow."

KANSAS COLLEGE ALUMNI ARE TO HOLD MEETING

"The Second World War and After" will be the title of the address by Dr. Victor Gellhaus, O. S. B., before the south side alumni of St. Benedict's college, Atchison, Kas., tomorrow afternoon in the Mount Carmel High school gymnasium. The address is being sponsored by the Mount Carmel Dads' club.

Among the alumni who will be present are Gus Milak, 5939 Talman avenue; J. F. Ryan, 1152 West 80th street; Howard Manning, 6710 Stewart avenue; Frank Hickey, 6660 University avenue, and Don Herne, 7219 Wabash avenue.

Dr. Gellhaus is head of the department of history at St. Benedict's college. He obtained his doctor's degree from the University of Munich.

Dr. A. C. Ivy Is to Offer Arno B. Luckhardt Lecture

"The Influence of a Great Teacher" will be the title of the 7th annual Arno B. Luckhardt lecture by Dr. A. C. Ivy of Northwestern university Friday evening in the pathology building of the University of Chicago.

Men Ask Equal Share in Tips on Marriage

When Miss Blanche McLaughlin, branch librarian at Auburn Park, set aside a rack of how-to-be-happily-married books last winter, she labeled the collection "A Marriage Course for Women." The women saw the books, checked them out, read them.

Their husbands saw the books, too. Soon a few husbands dropped in at the library to inform Miss McLaughlin that they, the husbands, were fairly important in this marriage business. They explained that they felt slighted and asked about a marriage course for men.

Miss McLaughlin went to work. For a month now, men in Auburn Park have been reading all the best advice on how to be happily married. Miss McLaughlin says the course is destined, evidently, to go on and on and on. There has been no falling off of requests.

Older Men Timid.

"The majority of the men marriage course readers are young and single," she says. "I find that the older men are more timid in asking for the books. The men from 19 to 25, however, are quite as frank in their requests as the young women in that age group. Older women ask for the books as frequently as the younger women."

Women want books on personality development, beauty, and good grooming and streamlining the figure included on their marriage course. Men are a trifle more reserved in asking for the personality cultivation books, but they read them.

On Miss McLaughlin's "When a Man Marries" shelf are: Pitkin's "Secret of Happiness," Strain's "Love at the Threshold," Folsom's "Plan for Marriage," and Hambridge's "Six Rooms Make a World."

For Older Readers.

For the older reader she has included "Middle Age Is What You Make It," by Sokolov. These books are only a beginning. She keeps the lists short in order "not to scare the men away before they start reading."

As the course progresses and interest develops, men are likely to find themselves reading all about mental hygiene and budget problems.

Young men have been demanding books on preparing for fatherhood. "So maybe I'll have to arrange a brand new course one of these days," the librarian explains.

Auburn Park branch is on 79th street three doors east of Halsted street.

"Community Night" will be offered to members of the Woodlawn Kiwanis club tomorrow evening in the Midway Masonic temple, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Principal speaker will be Maj. L. N. Bittinger, commander of the department of Illinois of the American Legion.

Weekly dances will be held in the men's gymnasium of Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue, beginning Tuesday evening. Most of the program will consist of square dances.

372 to Remain After Trials Saturday.

More than 1,250 men, women, and children were qualified last week to represent 85 parks thruout the city next Saturday in the semi-finals of The Chicago Tribune kite flying contest.

In the senior division major award winners were Ken Carlson, Wilbur Darch, Bill Davis, George Declair, Harold Ellman, Lou Hoover, Dick Lindstrom, and Julius Nieman, and minor award winners were Charles Klineburg, and Seymour Reisman. Lightweight team members who were given major awards are LeRoy Branman, Bill Fortune, Julius Goldberg, Ray Klipp, Mel Lubershane, Phil Kriloff, Tom Manning, Sheldon Plotnick, Bill Rosenthal, and Bill Stott. Minor letters went to Jack Lyding, Paul Moreno, and Charles Webb.

Edward Rees, of 1434 East 60th place, will present three plays he has written, staged and directed Thursday evening in Kimball hall. He also finds time to play the leading rôle in one of the productions. Mr. Rees, who is 21 years old, entered the theater for the first time at the age of 14 and spent the following three summers on the road with stock companies. His plays will be offered in the "experimental manner." They are "The Hills Beyond," "Unto the Last," and a comedy, "So You're the Girl." His ambition? To continue in the theater, doing everything himself.

JOHN LEAHY, 7524 Parnell avenue, took off his police sergeant's uniform for the last time recently and began marshaling his 34 years of reminiscences. The 17 years before Sergt. Leahy's retirement were spent in the Englewood district. His first assignment was at the Brighton Park station. In 1929 he received a citation for capturing a bandit who was wanted for several robberies. He was married in 1913 and is the father of seven children.

COLLEGE ALUMNI PLAN BANQUET FOR THURSDAY

Chicago chapter of the Kalamazoo College Alumni association will hold its annual spring banquet in the Midland club Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Willis D. Pease, 7750 Indiana avenue, president of the organization is in charge of the plans. Mrs. Carl Chatters, 10726 South Hoyne avenue, is the vice president, and Dexter Johnson of La Grange is the secretary.

At the banquet the alumni plan to inaugurate an annual scholarship for some deserving high school student in the Chicago area. It is intended to raise at least $100 each year by direct contribution from the alumni. Kalamazoo college has agreed to match from its own scholarship endowment any amount the Chicagoans are able to guarantee.

The association is planning to hold a picnic this summer for the 200 members living in and around Chicago, a tea for the women, and a stag for the men.

TRAINS TO SPEED FLORAL GIFTS TO CITY PATIENTS

Plant Guild Starts Campaign Plans.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Bouquets of fresh lilac blooms from all over Chicago's flowerland will be put by the bedsides of thousands of shut-ins this spring in the twelfth annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored jointly by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, and THE TRIBUNE.

Altho the late spring is expected to delay the opening of the fragile blossoms, guild officials already are working out the intricate plans necessary for gathering and distributing them to hospitals, old people's homes, settlement houses, and other institutions that care for the sick. Theodore V. Purcell of Evanston, president of the guild, said yesterday that all arrangements would be completed well in advance of the dates for distribution.

Following an established custom, guild members again will direct the work of gathering the lilacs and loading them on suburban trains for free transportation to stations in Chicago. There they will be picked up by Tribune trucks and taken to the hospitals.

Forecast Profuse Blooms.

Early reports from gardeners in the west suburbs indicate there will be another heavy crop of lilac blooms this year, the second in a row. Most of the bushes have a high percentage of flowering buds as compared to leaf buds.

Each year the guild and THE TRIBUNE furnish the connecting link between those who grow lilacs and the shut-ins who receive them. The blooms come from thousands of home yards and gardens, parks, and estates scattered all over the Chicago area. They go to the sick rooms in the city, many of them charity wards where the only flowers the patients ever see are those that strangers share with them.

The campaign is unique in that all the work of getting the blossoms from bushes to bedsides is voluntary and yet is done with such precision that more than 20,000 shut-ins in nearly 150 institutions are given bouquets. The movement is the largest of its kind in the United States.

61 Lilac Trains in 1939.

Most of the lilacs are brought into the city on suburban trains. Boxes of blooms and individual bouquets are loaded on baggage cars, in vestibules, or piled in commuters' laps.

Last year nine railroads furnished 61 lilac trains on each of the two lilac days. The roads were the North Western, Milwaukee, North Shore Line, Aurora and Elgin, Burlington, Rock Island, Illinois Central, South Shore Line, and Pennsylvania.

Dates for this year's distribution of the lilacs will be set just as soon as guild officials can determine when most of the blooms will be ready to cut. This always depends entirely upon the weather. In nine of the last 11 years the dates have been between May 10 and 20.

There likely will be two lilac days again this year. The blooms along the north shore usually open a few days later than those to the south and west of the city.

Appoint Mrs. Plamondon.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton has been appointed chairman of the guild's executive committee. She succeeds the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, one of the founders of the guild and its executive committee chairman from the beginning. It was Mrs. McCormick who conceived the "Share Your Lilacs" idea and started the work in 1929.

More than 2,000 members of 85 garden clubs will coöperate with the guild this year in gathering lilacs in various suburban communities.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Highland Park is the new chairman of the guild's general committee that will direct the work. She succeeds Mrs. David L. Meyers of La Grange.

Chairmen of Divisions.

Each railroad line or division will have a suburban division chairman who will have active charge of the committees that assemble the lilacs and load them on trains.

They are:

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender, Calanus lodge, St. Charles—Aurora and Elgin railway.

Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin, 4541 Forest avenue, Downers Grove—Burlington railway.

Mrs. Robert J. Pabodie, 104 Oak street, Maywood—Galena division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Herschel Missey, 8000 Dante avenue, Chicago—Illinois Central.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, 1636 Forest avenue, Wilmette—Southern Milwaukee division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, 194 Lakeside manor, Highland Park—Northern Milwaukee division, North Western.

Mrs. Albert W. Torbet, Telegraph road, Deerfield—North Shore line.

Mrs. William O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, Chicago—Rock Island.

Mrs. Clyde B. Kennard, 1008 Greenview avenue, Des Plaines—Eastern Wisconsin division, North Western railway.

Mrs. Fred A. Record, Barrington—Wisconsin division, North Western.

Working under the direction of the division chairmen will be the presidents and guild chairmen of the 85 suburban and community garden clubs. A complete list of these workers will be published later.

FAVORS SQUARE DANCES.

As one who gets nervous just watching the antics of "jitterbugs," may I be the first to praise the Chicago park district for its encouragement of square dancing? I live near Grand Crossing park, where they teach this delightful and graceful mode of relaxation and where they will begin to hold regular weekly square dances soon.

After all, we're civilized — so why shouldn't we have civilized dancing? This jumping, stamping, twisting, and wriggling that goes on to the tunes [?] played by swing bands may be all right in the depths of the jungle, but it's a trifle weird and a good deal barbaric among supposedly dignified, cultured Americans. Compared to the merry, congenial rhythm of the square dance, it's downright harmful to our youngsters.

I'm no prude and I've never been called reactionary, but I do think old-fashioned dancing is best for us all.

MRS. J. K. S.

BUMPY STONY ISLAND.

I have a grandmother and an automobile, two excellent reasons for complaining about the pavement along Stony Island avenue between 79th and 95th streets. If I continue to drive along this route many more times I'm sure that both the grandmother and the car will be in pretty poor shape.

The holes are many and ugly, and if a person attempts to make any speed at all he's apt to jeopardize the position of his vertebrae. Why should gas tax paying motorists in Chicago have to put up with such a situation? If it were a side street it wouldn't be so bad, but Stony Island is a thru street, well populated, and, for some of us, absolutely necessary for quick transportation in autos.

Somebody told me action has been promised in paving the street. I hope so —but quick!

A MOTORIST.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS TO BE INSTALLED AT 3 CROSSINGS

Stony Island Paving Also Ordered.

Traffic signal lights are to be installed at three dangerous intersections on the south and southwest sides, members of the South Area council of the Chicago Motor club learned at a recent meeting. The lights are to be placed at 106th street and Indianapolis boulevard, Archer avenue and Pulaski road, and 47th street and Archer avenue.

Ald. Roy E. Olin [8th] reported the city council had ordered Stony Island avenue paved from 79th to 95th streets and that work may start before the end of the summer. The council voted to have an appropriate celebration at the opening. The Illinois Commerce commission has ordered the opening of 74th street over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks, according to a report received by the council.

A test of the new ordinance authorizing the tagging of illegally parked cars while the driver is absent will be made in the business section of the near north side this week. If it is found unsatisfactory, another solution to the parking problem on the south side will be sought.

Carl Buck, president of the South Deering Improvement association, referred the following dangerous grade crossings to the council for study: 112th street and Torrence avenue; 89th street and Loomis avenue; 89th street and Paulina avenue; 87th street and the B. & O. tracks; and 55th street and the Grand Trunk railroad tracks.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

Without doubt, your church dollar is the largest dollar you ever spend. By that we mean it buys more and loses less than any other when it departs from the family purse. Now it may be that you belong to the great congregation of those who, having no connection with official agencies of the church, might wonder how much it costs to run a church and how much a church is worth in dollars and cents.

Dr. J. Allen Leas.

There are Chicago and suburban churches with capital assets of a million dollars or more, and annual budgets of $100,000. But not many of these! Most church folk go to average churches. But what is an average church—an average Protestant church, let us say? Our studied guess — tho no better than yours—would name Holy Trinity Lutheran church at Addison street and Maple Square avenue.

How the pastor and council of that congregation in that transient neighborhood do stretch the church dollars! And what church in the city is, or may not soon be, in a transient neighborhood? The pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Allen Leas, has led Holy Trinity for 23 years, and the very architecture of Holy Trinity in its low Gothic, announces its permanency despite population currents.

In addition to well attended Sunday morning services, an annual budget of $7,552.53 maintains a flourishing Bible school, three growing Luther leagues, an active Men's brotherhood, and Women's Missionary society, an altar society known as E. X. E. [initials of Greek words meaning "Until the Christ come"], and two choirs.

The church report shows that the current budget is less than 9 per cent of the church's capital assets, and the congregation's total indebtedness is about 8 per cent of the capital account.

But the good will a stranger feels as he meets the friendly groups of this and other average congregations of Chicago cannot be included in any balance sheet.

Ugly Fat —Now Lost—

without strict diet lists, exercising or taking drugs

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—

First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ¼ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice

If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

START NATIONAL TALENT HUNT ON 'CARTERS' SHOW

Mutual Winners to Get 2 Week Contracts.

An elaborate amateur talent hunt is to be launched over W-G-N and 85 stations of the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system by "The Carters of Elm Street," popular day time script program.

The contest will get under way this week. Within two months two winners will be picked, both of whom will be given two week contracts, with all expenses paid on the "Carters" show.

The talent contest, which will be known as the "Carrie Carter Talent Search" will be open to all girls and women over 15. One of the winners will be in the 15 to 25 year class, and the other will be in the group of women over 25.

The contest was inspired by Virginia Payne, who plays the starring rôle of Carrie Carter on the show. Remembering her own struggles to get to the top in radio, she suggested that this contest be held to aid those who might otherwise never have a chance.

Local contests will be conducted in 85 cities and towns. Recordings of the voices of the winners will be sent to regional centers, and recordings by the regional winners will in turn be sent to Chicago, where three judges will select the two national winners. Miss Payne will be chairman of the board of judges, and one of the other members will be an outstanding motion picture talent scout.

The winners will each be paid a salary of $112 a week for the two weeks.

Jack Teagarden Orchestra on Show of Week Today

Jack Teagarden, torrid trombonist and his orchestra will be heard on Mutual's Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 tonight. Kitty Kallen will sing.

On April 21 Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker will be heard. Of course, they'll feature "Oh, Johnny," the tune that has skyrocketed them to success.

On Style Show

Virginia Clark, star of the Romance of Helen Trent on CBS, will be the mistress of ceremonies for the fashion show of the North Shore Country club on Tuesday, April 30. Alice Blue, W-G-N pianist, will provide the musical background.

IREENE WICKER TO BE FEATURED IN 'STRIFE' TODAY

Ireene Wicker, radio actress and story teller; Maurice Carnovsky of the Group theater, and Conway Wingfield, Louis Hector, and Ara Gerald, noted British players, will be featured in John Galsworthy's "Strife," the great play to be presented over WENR at 1 p. m. today. In presenting this story of an English mill town strike, Director Charles Warburton is planning to use more narration than usual.

Primaries, Scandinavian War, Topic of Broadcast

"Outcome of Primaries," and "Scandanavian Blitzkrieg" will be discussed by Prof. James Hart, Prof. Frederick Mueller, and Prof. Charles O'Donnell on the weekly broadcast of "The Changing Scene," aired over WIND from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today.

5TH ROW CENTER TO BE BROADCAST TWICE THIS WEEK

Dame Whitty and Carmen Miranda Guests.

Two performances of Fifth Row Center, W-G-N's special guest artist presentation which has been a featured attraction on the station since the first of the year, will be offered listeners this week.

Dame May Whitty, noted British stage and screen actress, will be heard on a special Fifth Row Center program from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow night. At 7 o'clock Friday evening Fifth Row Center will present Carmen Miranda, sensational young Brazilian songstress.

The special presentation tomorrow is occasioned by the fact that Dame May Whitty cannot reach Chicago from San Francisco in time for a performance this afternoon at 5 p. m., which has been the regular Fifth Row Center hour. She is expected to arrive from the west by plane today.

In San Francisco she has been playing with Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet." They are all to open in the same play at the Auditorium theater Wednesday night.

On Stage for 60 Years.

The noted British actress, who has been on the stage for 60 years, will be heard in a special radio play entitled "Incident in Singapore."

The Friday night presentation of Fifth Row Center is the first of a new series. The show moves to this day and hour regularly after this week.

Miss Miranda, who has been hailed as one of the theatrical "finds" of the decade, opens tonight in "The Streets of Paris," musical revue, at the Grand Opera house.

Sings in Portuguese.

On Fifth Row Center Miss Miranda will sing several of the Portuguese songs which have made her famous. Miss Miranda came to the United States from Rio de Janeiro a year ago. She was an overnight hit in "The Streets of Paris." Besides her stage appearances, she has made a motion picture and been heard on the air.

She will sing over W-G-N, accompanied by the six native instrumentalists who are with her in "The Streets of Paris." She is co-starred in the musical revue with Bobby Clark and Luella Gear, who will be heard later on Fifth Row Center. Carmen Miranda is said to be responsible for a fashion craze which has swept around the world. She, it is said, was the first to wear the very high crowned hats and massive jewelry that are now popular.

PAINTED DREAMS DRAMA REACHES EXCITING CLIMAX

The high spot in the plot of "Painted Dreams," W-G-N's serial, will be reached this week during exciting scenes between Mother Moynihan, played by Jane Green, and Mrs. Oliphant, played by Hope Summers. Kay Chase, author of the W-G-N hit show, said that these episodes of "Painted Dreams" would be the most interesting in a long time. Recently Ted Oliphant, a character, met death in the Far East.

At home, his wife, Lily, one of the young folks whom Mother Moynihan regards as her "children," was having a baby at the time, and the news was withheld from her. The baby is now born and the elder Mrs. Oliphant has just learned of the marriage and subsequent death of her son. What happens when Mrs. Oliphant, in great fury, sees Mother Moynihan and the developments between Lily Oliphant and her mother-in-law, create five days of thrilling radio drama.

"Painted Dreams" is aired week days, at 11:30 a. m., on W-G-N.

Thelma Naufel to Sing on Steelmakers Program

Thelma Naufel, a talented young soprano whose father is employed in a Wheeling steel factory, and Irvin Green, a flutist who works in the main office, will combine their talents as guest headliners on Mutual's Musical Steelmakers over W-G-N from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m., today. They will render "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark."

Shirley Bell Will Sing 'On a Sunday Afternoon'

"On a Sunday Afternoon," W-G-N's matinée musical program directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Shirley Bell and the music of the dance orchestra, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and Mutual.

HAL KEMP SEEKS QUIET LIFE AFTER 12,000 MILE TOUR

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a 12,000 mile tour of "one nighters" Hal Kemp and his bandsmen are delighted to settle down for a stretch of regular performing at the Palmer House and broadcasting over W-G-N and Mutual. A "one nighter," in case you are in doubt, is a one night dance engagement.

Hal Kemp.

After playing a one night stand the bandsmen sleep a few hours and then travel over hill and dale to another town usually from 200 to 400 miles distant and do it all over again. That goes on week after week. And in this particular case it continued for months.

The Kemp caravansary of eight cars, two trailers and a truck endured fire and flood—but fortunately no famine during this tour. Southern cooking agrees with Kemp, who is a North Carolinian, so he added twelve pounds despite the rigors of winter below the Mason and Dixon line.

Planned as a Vacation.

The tour was planned as a sort of "vacation"—something to break the montony of winter in the north. But as soon as the Kemp parade hit Virginia they encountered blizzards. Before they finally returned north to Chicago they were treated to assorted downpours of snow, sleet, rain and hail with plenty of ice underfoot.

And there was more than enough adventure. In Asheville, Singer Bob Allen and Bandsmen Porky Dankers, Eddie Kusby and Clayton Cash, riding in Alex Holden's de luxe trailer, returned from a dance to find the conveyance in flames.

In Atlanta, where Hal once lived, he and Mrs. Kemp celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Johnny Van Epps and Leo Moran, two bandsmen, married their childhood sweethearts, and Jack Le Maire, comic vocalist, became the father of a seven pound son.

Trailer Skids, Overturns.

Near Lula, Ga., the trailer skidded on an icy road and overturned. When the boys got to Eddie Kusby it looked like he was bleeding to death. But he was only plastered with raspberry jam.

Le Maire really experienced the most adventures. Near Spartansburg, S. C., he got stuck in a snowdrift; in Opelousas, La., he awoke to find his hotel room on fire. At Johnson City, Tenn., he lost his overcoat. Near Indianapolis, driving in a fog he smashed thru a rail fence with his car.

Near Birmingham, Ala., the band truck driven by Louis Puccinio burned out a bearing with the result that the instruments he was hauling never got to the dance for that night at all.

Uniforms Are Stolen.

In Tampa, Fla., Hal was tricked into riding thru two blazing walls of fire with Lucky Teeter, daredevil racing driver. Hal was jittery for days.

In Nashville, Tenn., sneak thieves broke into the band truck and stole a complete set of uniforms.

These, of course, were only the more sensational intrusions on what was expected to be an uneventful tour.

Now, Hal has settled down patiently to await the Fourth of July. Independence day has been set by the doctor for the arrival of Mrs. Kemp's first baby!

HOUSE IS MOVED HALF MILE; THEN HAS FACE LIFTED

Old Dormers and Porch Go Into the Discard.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Luther Binkley, Park Ridge, decided not only to modernize their home inside and out, but they decided to move it as well.

The original site of the Binkley home was at 715 Prospect avenue. The present site is 750 North Washington street, about half a mile away.

W. F. McCaughey, architect, Park Ridge, handled the work, drew the plans for the home in its present form, and specified exterior and interior changes.

The modernization was extensive and mirrors many present patterns and trends. It was a house which might have felt it was growing old; slowing up in its capacity to give its owners all they wanted. Then, presto, came the renovation, and it emerged new, weather resisting, and breathing a brighter atmosphere of easier, more gracious living.

Large Porch Removed.

The theme of many a family discussion these days is what to do for the house these coming months. Each home makes its own personal, absorbing claims, as each family's preferences and purse dictate what is to be done. These times find as peculiarly alert to planning for the future as well as the present, and yet with a love for the past evident on every side. There are those who cling to houses in the English or French or mediterranean spirit; those who incline to the Cape Cod, or the Colonial Virginia of Williamsburg days, or the storied, romantic south.

The exterior of the Binkley home was improved in a number of definite ways.

First, there was the large front entrance porch which was removed. At the back there was a covered service entrance. This also was removed and the service stairs were placed inside the main part of the house with new service entry.

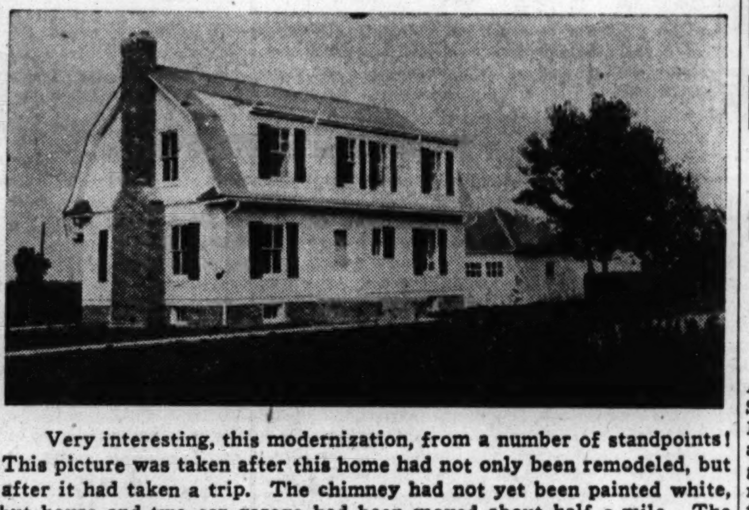
Small Dormers Go.

In the original home there were small dormers across the front which added little to the façade. These were removed and the effect greatly simplified and improved by one long continuous dormer across the front.

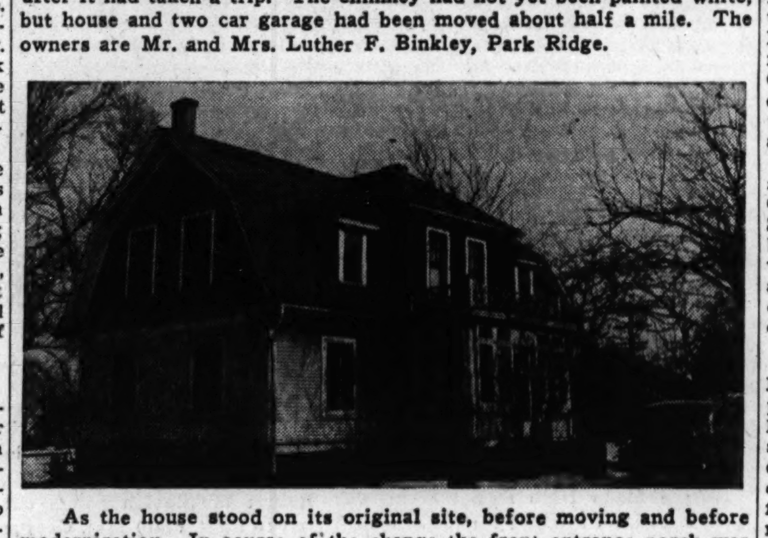
The trip which both house and garage made took place in wintry weather but was accomplished successfully. And in course of modernization, the second floor ceiling was insulated, and likewise the walls. This as a means of paving the way for a new forced air heating system, gas fueled. The house also was rewired and a new wood burning fireplace was built.

Inside the home, walls and floors were completely refinished, and a number of improvements made. On the second floor a new modern bath was installed and a new lavatory put in on the first floor.

House Taken for Ride



Very interesting, this modernization, from a number of standpoints! This picture was taken after this home had not only been remodeled, but after it had taken a trip. The chimney had not yet been painted white, but house and two car garage had been moved about half a mile. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Binkley, Park Ridge.



As the house stood on its original site, before moving and before modernization. In course of the change the front entrance porch was removed, small dormers eliminated in favor of one long continuous dormer, and rear service stairs placed inside of home.

Music Contestant

Miss Anita Vinograd, 5340 Cornell avenue, violinist, is one of 18 singers and instrumentalists who will appear in a talent contest program sponsored by the Greater South Side Four Arts league in the Southmoor hotel this afternoon. The winner will be given a formal recital debut in May.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 15.

The bulbs in the outdoor beds should all be uncovered by this time, especially if a heavy mulching was given them last fall. Scattering a bit of nitrate of soda over the beds after the mulch is removed and gently working it into the soil between the bulbs will stimulate them and produce better blooms. A complete plant food, which is sold by all hardware stores, is equally good and probably easier to obtain. Many soils lack certain elements that are essential for plant growth and when applied early in spring the plants produce better foliage and flowers. Unless the lawn has been fertilized, make the application immediately to encourage early growth. Use four pounds to each 100 square feet of lawn area. Roll the lawn. The perennial borders should be given an application of plant food. Divide those plants which require it, restrict the growth of the strong, spreading kinds, and replant as soon as possible.

Tuesday, April 16.

You can enjoy a wonderful garden by sowing annuals. The hardy kinds should be sown early, such as calendula, petunia, phlox, flowering tobacco, sweet alyssum, larkspur, verbena, nigella, poppy, portulaca, and others that require a long period to flower. Annuals delight in a friable, rich, well drained soil. Various combinations can be easily arranged; study the seed and plant catalogs. Use plenty of vines, such as the scarlet runner, morning glories, cobaea, and hyacinth bean. The gourds grow rapidly and the fruits can be dried and painted or arranged to suit the individual. Many of them should be started early because they require a long season. Plant the Boston ivy on stone, brick, or stucco walls. It is unnecessary to cover the walls entirely to obtain a fine effect. Plants can be purchased from any supply source. Do not sow annuals too thick.

Wednesday, April 17.

Never permit worms to ruin the foliage of currants and gooseberries; spray with arsenate of lead. Hedges are effective only when the plants grow close to the ground; they should be trimmed before growth starts. If there has been a severe winter freezing cut all the plants back to within six or 12 inches of the ground to force a heavy growth from the base. If a plant has died replace it with a strong plant. Gladiolus corms should be planted early and later at 10 to 15 day intervals to enjoy a succession of bloom.

Thursday, April 18.

Gardeners living in congested areas of the city will find the four o'clock one of the finest plants to grow. It is good for hedges, for use in borders, as a specimen, or for any location not in dense shade. The portulaca or sunplant is one of the best plants for hot or congested areas.

Friday, April 19.

Spray the soil around the roses with bordeaux or any recommended ungicide to eliminate spores that may exist. Spray the foliage as soon as it begins to grow and adopt a regular spraying calendar. A new lawn can be made at this time, altho autumn is the very best time. Use a high grade lawn seed. Rake the soil to a fine seedbed. Delay rolling until the grass is an inch high.

Saturday, April 20.

Examine house plants and transplant those that need it. Save the bulbs that have flowered indoors and plant them outdoors next fall. Some very fine amaryllis bulbs are now available. If your bulb is not doing well, plant it in the garden this summer, encourage it to grow until autumn and before frost take it up and pot it. Set out pansy plants and keep the withered flowers picked.

APRIL 14, 1940

Left: "The Streets of Paris," the revue opening at the Grand Opera house tonight, introduces to Chicago the "Brazilian Bombshell," Carmen Miranda.

Leigh and Olivier on Stage Here Wednesday

By Cecil Smith.

Next Wednesday evening, April 17, Laurence Olivier brings his own elaborate production of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" to the Auditorium theater for an engagement sternly limited to two and a half weeks. Mr. Olivier will appear as Romeo and Vivien Leigh, of "Gone with the Wind" fame, as Juliet. The entire production has been painstakingly and imaginatively prepared under Mr. Olivier's own direction. Both the distinctive cast and the details of the stage investiture promise a performance of extraordinary merit.

"Romeo and Juliet," in one form or another, has played an important rôle in the history of the Auditorium theater. Fifty years ago last December Gounod's operatic version of the Shakespeare tragedy was given as the first stage production in the then brand new house, with Adelina Patti as Juliet. In January, 1924, Amelita Galli-Curci, having fallen out with the Chicago Civic Opera company management, sang her last performance with the company in the same opera. Five years later, when the Civic Opera company was preparing to move into its new quarters in the Civic Opera house, "Romeo and Juliet," with Charles Hackett and Edith Mason, was again presented as a farewell to the historic home of opera in Chicago.

Four Stage Shows Continue Runs

Altho the four gala openings in prospect between now and April 22 naturally tend to occupy the focus of the theatrical spotlight, the Chicago playhouses also provide theatergoers with opportunities to see four continuing attractions.

Maxwell Anderson's serious poetic drama, "Key Largo," enters its third and final week at the Selwyn theater. Paul Muni, one of the most notable actors of the American stage, is seen as King McCloud, first a volunteer to the Loyalist army in Spain and later a deserter.

Clarence Day Jr.'s "Life with Father," turned into a hilarious stage comedy by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, pursues its endearing course at the Blackstone theater, with capacity audiences the rule rather than the exception. Lillian Gish as Mother and Percy Waram as Father head a cast of unusual ability.

At the Harris theater "The Man Who Came to Dinner" begins its seventeenth week. Clifton Webb is the central performer in the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart comedy of invective, a savage and merry satire upon the personality of Alexander Woollcott.

"Tropical Pinafore," an all-Negro swing version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore," continues at the Great Northern theater, where it began its career as recently as last Friday.

Bright Doings on Tap in Chicago's Night Life Sector

Vivien Leigh, Olivier Here on Wednesday

New York stage successes in "The Green Bay Tree" and "No Time for Comedy," Olivier made the acquaintance of a much larger audience in his recent motion pictures, "Wuthering Heights" and the current "Rebecca." Because "The Green Bay Tree" did not come here, and because Francis Lederer took over the Olivier part in "No Time for Comedy" long before the S. N. Behrman comedy set out on tour, "Romeo and Juliet" constitutes the British actor's first stage appearance in Chicago. Miss Leigh likewise has not acted on the stage here, altho there can scarcely be any one left in Chicago who has not seen her affecting performance in the moving picture, "Gone with the Wind."

In preparing his new production of "Romeo and Juliet," Mr. Olivier is seeking to give the fullest possible impression of the drama—its period and locale, its time lapse, and the continuity of its story. Actually the plot is unfolded within a remarkably short space of time; Romeo and Juliet meet for the first time on Sunday, and on Thursday they are dead together in the tomb.

An unusually large revolving stage 42 feet deep will obviate undesirable waits between scenes, keeping the action moving swiftly and unbrokenly. Elaborate, up-to-date lighting equipment will create the illusion of daybreak, midday and nightfall against a cyclorama 80 feet high, with shadows that shorten and lengthen as the day progresses, and color mixtures that enhance the appropriate impression. It is the elaborate scenic investiture that limits the cities visited by "Romeo and Juliet" to San Francisco, Chicago, and New York.

The stage designs are painted on rich-textured velour, instead of the canvas ordinarily used for stage scenery. Beyond the advantage of its quality and tone, the velour also eliminates the possibility of unintended reflection from footlights and spotlights. The costumes are likewise colorful and rich, and are derived from authentic styles in use at Verona in 1400.

Incidental music will be played by a full orchestra in the pit, conducted by Alexander Steinert, whose last appearance in Chicago was as conductor of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." The musical score includes, in addition to items lightly passed off as "traditional and ancient airs," some music by Mr. Olivier himself, a requiem by Walter S. Vale, and passages composed by Mr. Steinert.

Miss Leigh is acting the treasured rôle of Juliet for the first time. She is the youngest star to undertake the rôle professionally in this generation. Romeo is not a new part for Mr. Olivier, however. In London in 1935 he alternated the rôles of Romeo and Mercutio with John Gielgud, winning acclaim in both characters.

Dame May Whitty, one of the most celebrated actresses of the British stage, brings 60 years' active theatrical experience to the rôle of the nurse. Other members of an altogether outstanding supporting cast are Ben Webster [Montague], Halliwell Hobbs [Capulet], Alexander Pope [Friar Laurence], Edmond O'Brien [Mercutio], Wesley Addy [Benvolio], Wilton Graff [Prince Escalus], Cornel Wilde [Tybalt], Frank Downing [Paris], Katherine Warren [Lady Capulet], and Jack Merivale [Balthasar]. Robert Ross is associated with Mr. Olivier in the direction of the production.

"Romeo and Juliet" comes to Theater guild and American Theater society subscribers as the fifth play of their series. The sixth and final subscription play has not been announced.

The fourth guild subscription play is, of course, "The Philadelphia Story," opening tomorrow evening at the Erlanger theater. This is the modern comedy by Philip Barry which drew Katharine Hepburn back to the legitimate stage and gave her the first extended Broadway run of her career. The play has been promised and promised to Chicago, but its New York prosperity kept it at the Shubert theater there for a full year, so that the Theater guild is only now able to fulfill its commitment to local subscribers.

Mr. Barry, one of our chief playwrights of life in the upper crust, has gone to Philadelphia for the material of his new play. Miss Hepburn is seen as the high-born, spirited, willful daughter of an aristocratic family. Her somewhat glacial emotional life is ultimately thawed out by a visiting magazine reporter, assigned to write a feature story about her family. The play is fast moving, briskly and pointedly written, and well conceived as a vehicle for Miss Hepburn [for whom Mr. Barry specifically wrote it].

The Theater guild has taken the task of producing "The Philadelphia Story" with exemplary seriousness of purpose. The vigorous supporting cast includes Van Heflin, Joseph Cotten, Shirley Booth, Nicholas Joy, Viola Roache, Forrest Orr, Dan Tobin, Frank Fenton, and Lenore Lonergan. Robert B. Sinclair directed, and the settings were designed by no less important an artist than Robert Edmond Jones.

When "The Streets of Paris" opens at the Grand Opera house tonight take a good look at Ben Dova, the "rubber limbed" acrobat. If he had not elected to become a professional acrobat he might not be here now. For he was one of the passengers on the dirigible Hindenburg on the fateful occasion when the big airship went up in flames over the mooring field at Lakehurst, N. J. Nearly all the passengers were killed. But Ben Dova employed a stock acrobatic trick, and managed to get within 40 feet of the earth, clinging to a girder, before he was forced to leap. He suffered no more serious injury than a broken leg.

Dova is one among many specialists in "The Streets of Paris." For in addition to such headliners as Carmen Miranda, Bobby Clark, and Luella Gear, the cast of the revue includes many folk with highly specialized gifts. There is Billy Branch, the knife thrower, who throws not only knives but girls and Apaches, and who can pull off a slick bit of jujitsu. There is "Dr." Think-a-Drink Hoffman, who sets up a bar on the stage and creates—apparently from nowhere—the drinks demanded by the customers. There are Ward and Van, Italian boys from the west side of Chicago, who appear in the guise of street musicians, bringing forward painful duets upon the violin and harp. And, to make the list more complete, there are Gower and Jeanne, the young dancers who were equal to the ordeal, in 1939, of following Veloz and Yolanda into the Empire room; Marion and Hall, comics well known to local vaudeville patrons; Della Lind, an Austrian beauty who, as an "enemy alien," could not appear with the show in Canada, even tho she has left her native land behind her; Yvonne Bouvier, Gloria Gilbert, Milton Watson, and a host of others.

On Tuesday evening in Kimball hall Edward R. Rees, young Chicago playwright, will present three plays of his own authorship. They are stage transcriptions of radio scripts already successfully presented. The titles are "The Hills Beyond," "Unto the Least," and "So You're the Girl."

MUNI PLAY IN FINAL WEEK

On Saturday night Maxwell Anderson's "Key Largo" will end its brief run at the Selwyn theater. The play offers a magnificent performance by its star, Paul Muni.

Miss Miranda Opens Friday at Colony Club

Having had a flurry of band openings, the Chicago night life sector is anticipating two parties this week—one a coming out affair and the other a birthday. In addition, there is a one night stand by an old favorite, and the chance to catch up on a number of new acts that made their debuts over this week-end.

• • •

The coming out party is being staged Friday night in the Colony club for Carmen Miranda, the explosive Brazilian entertainer. Carmen was a hit with her dialect delivery of "South American Way" before even Benny Fields could start using the song, and has continued as one of the more colorful sparklers in the current entertainment fireworks display.

[Maurice Photo.]

Preceding Miss Miranda into the Colony are the La Playa dancers, six lithe exponents of the Latin dance routines. The three couples are scheduled as a more or less permanent feature of the Colony entertainment bill.

Carlos Molina, fast working himself into the status of a Colony fixture, continues his playing for dancers and entertainers. Bobby Ramos, his vocalist, doubles as master of ceremonies.

The birthday party will honor Griff Williams, Stevens hotel maestro. The Continental room will be turned into a big playroom for Griff's friends Wednesday night, and a cake will be shared by all celebrants. The seven candles that will appear on the cake will be accurate in number, for the occasion is not Griff's personal birthday, but his band's. It was seven years ago that the ex-medic student from Stanford gathered up his courage and his musical friends and wangled a two week contract out of the Mark Hopkins hotel, on San Francisco's Knob hill. The engagement was slightly successful, lasting two years.

A feature of the party Wednesday will be the band's rendition of a special medley of songs popular in 1933 when the orchestra was organized. Samples are "Love in Bloom," "Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf?" and "The Last Roundup."

Two other new acts now on display in Chicago night spots are Virginia Verrill and Everett West, Chez Paree import. Miss Verrill, a Chicago girl who has had considerable success in the movies, is making her Chicago café debut. West is familiar to Chez patrons, having been held there for a record 16 weeks last winter. His tenor voice is being used in a number of Fred Evans' production numbers, as well as in solo work.

These acts replace Beverly Roberts and the Oxford Boys, leaving Lou Holtz, Georges and Jalna, and Mimi Kellerman as the holdovers.

Winding up three popular years in the Empire room of the Palmer House, Phil Dooley will venture out of the intermission band field, and into the larger pastures of big orchestras. Phil has an idea that he and 11 other musicians hope to put into effective musical action—a combination of modified sweet and swing techniques. The result will be—he hopes—a brand of music paced by the solid rhythm of swing, without the "flashes" that make it objectionable to many, and given richness by the sweeter element of the orchestrations. Phil's departure is set for about May 15.

Hal Kemp, the Abbott Tiger girls, George Tapps and company, continue to attract the applause of capacity crowds in the Empire room.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Today's hottest candidate for song hit honors—"Where Do I Go from You?"—is admirably on tap these nights in two spots at least. Lou Breese does a particularly pleasing orchestral arrangement at Chez Paree, and The Fiddlers Three, strolling trio of L'Aiglon restaurant, give it words and music in their hauntingly effective manner. . . . Gower and Jean, the young dancers with the mature ability who scored such a popular hit in the Empire room over a year ago, are back in town, with "Streets of Paris." . . . Ozzie Nelson has a new tenor saxist, Buff Estes of Benny Goodman's band. . . . Bon Air club is hoping to open its dining room to night lifers May 28. . . . Manfred Gotthelf, pianist, is the entertainment attraction in the Morrison hotel's cocktail lounge, new bar, and Boston Oyster house. . . . Art Kassel, whose continued popularity with the regular patrons of the Bismarck hotel's Walnut room is a show business boast, has another of his novelties for the current revue: A musical version of "Cinderella," with the drummer illustrating Art's narrative by means of amusing cardboard puppets. . . . Odd angle to Art's adaptation of Ozzie Nelson's unpublished hit novelty, "Wave a Stick Blues," to fit his cute girl singer, Marion Holmes, is that Ozzie now wants to borrow Art's version for his own vocalist. . . . Charles Baum is a new band name due in Chicago in mid-May. . . . It is said Enric Madriguera will follow Dick Jurgens into the Aragon about that same time, with Shep Fields "on deck" and Freddy Martin "in the hole," to use the baseball jargon.

Organ Prelude, G Minor..........Bach-Siloti
Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue........Bach
Sonata, C Major, Op. 53 ["Waldstein"] ....Beethoven
Nocturne D-Flat Major; Three Etudes; Scherzo, C-Sharp Minor..........Chopin

Three items make up tomorrow night's program of the Illinois Symphony orchestra in the Studebaker theater. Izler Solomon will conduct them in the following order: Ballet Suite No. 1, arranged and drawn from Gluck's operatic music by Felix Mottl; MacDowell's Concerto No. 2 in D minor for piano and orchestra, and Dmitri Shostakovitch's Fifth Symphony.

This will be the second performance of the symphony in Chicago, and it was Mr. Solomon and the Illinois Symphony who introduced the work locally on Nov. 8, 1938. It had been the most favorably received of Shostakovitch's works since his First Symphony, and is regarded as the composition which restored him to the grace of the soviet rulers after a period of disfavor. The young Russian composer is now busy with two important productions: a Seventh Symphony and a recording of Moussorgsky's opera, "Boris Godounoff."

Mildred Waldman will be the soloist in the MacDowell concerto. A child prodigy of a decade ago, she appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra on its Young People's series at the age of ten. In the succeeding years she studied at the Juilliard School of Music, and is at present teaching at Mac Murray college in Jacksonville, Ill.

Mildred Waldman.

Mario Salvador, Chicago organist, will be presented in recital in Kimball hall tonight by the Loyola University Choral society. The chorus will take part in the program briefly, offering one short group and joining Mr. Salvador in the performance of his own composition, a scherzo. The program lists the following organ selections:

Toccata ....Gibert
Ave Maria...............................Reger
Prelude and Fugue, D Major............Bach
Scherzo ....Salvador
The Mill ....Cellier
Symphony, B Minor..........Abbé Jacquemin
Carillon ....Dupré
Nocturne ....Frederick Wood
Litany ....Alain
Pantomime ....De Falla
Matines ....Vierne
Toccata ....Lanquetuit

Under the auspices of the American Opera company Mr. and Mrs. Willard Andelin are presenting Verdi's "Rigoletto" in the Woman's Club theater this afternoon. Gilda will be sung by Julia Skrzydel, Maddalena by Alma Bedrit, the Duke by Iwin Burrichter, Rigoletto by Martin Boughan, Sparafucile by Charles Hax, and Monterone by Mr. Andelin. The conductor will be James Andelin.

Richard Czerwonky will give the second in his series of three violin recitals this afternoon at 4 o'clock in De Paul university's Little theater. Accompanied by Gregory Konold he will play the Bach Chaconne, Mendelssohn's Concerto in E minor, a group of his own compositions, and pieces by Joachim, Hubay, and Schwarenka. Two of the original works are being played for the first time today, a tarantella and "Old Spain."

The current adult music appreciation series being given by the American Concert orchestra will continue with the sixth concert on Friday at the Illinois Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street. Berlioz and Liszt are the two composers to be discussed and played. As usual Ralph Cissne will conduct, and Arnold Miller will take the solo part in Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy for piano and orchestra. The concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

James Lapsey, baritone, will give a concert today at 4 o'clock in the residence recreation hall of the Harriet Hammond McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 North Dearborn street.

Henschel's "Morning Hymn," Otis' "Toil and Rest" and Mendelssohn's "Be Not Afraid" will be the three anthems sung by the Central Church choir in Orchestra hall this morning under William Hughes' direction. The organist, Archer Lambuth, will play Mendelssohn's Second Sonata and pieces by Strauss and Bach.

Latin American music will be played and sung in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel on a program starting at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The event will serve to commemorate Pan-American day and the 50th anniversary of the Pan-American union. The concert has been arranged by the Good Neighbor forum and the Pan-American council of Chicago. Among the composers represented on the program will be Hector Villa-Lobos, the famous Brazilian "one man national music movement." The concert is open to the public without charge.

On Tuesday evening in Curtiss hall the Chicago Artists association will give a program presenting the following artists: Cora McAllister Knapp, Leonard Huber, Mae Doelling-Schmidt, Buenta Carter, Perry Crafton, Marian Daily, Dorothy Lange, and Gladys Vorbau. Mrs. Frank Grainger Logan will be the guest speaker.

Omega chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will hold its regular monthly musical today at 4 o'clock in the Woman's University club in the Fine Arts building. Appearing on the program are Virginia Franck and Prudence Burdock, sopranos, and Jane Van Dreese and Cora Mae Hebel, pianists.

Stokowski Tour

Leopold Stokowski's All-American Youth orchestra will give its first concert on July 4 in Washington, D. C. Mr. Stokowski is now in the process of searching for members for the orchestra in various key cities of the United States. These he will pick from musicians already selected by local judges from an estimated 10,000 applicants. On May 26 he will stop in Chicago and will wind up his search four days later in New York City. After a month of whipping the orchestra into shape and the initial concert in Washington the tour of South and Central America will begin. By Aug. 27 Mr. Stokowski and his unique group will have given concerts in Havana, Curaçao, Caracas, Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, Rosario, Bahia, St. Thomas, San Juan, and Ciudad Trujillo. Rumor has it that after the tour the noted conductor will continue the activities of the orchestra, attempting to "maintain its youthful character thru further recruiting of young musicians in future years."

Guest Artists for History of Music Series Announced

Fritz Kreisler to Open Season on October 20

By Edward Barry.

The History and Enjoyment of Music series, which ranks next to the Chicago Symphony orchestra itself as the city's most ambitious subscription concert course, this week announced artists and dates for the season of 1940-'41.

Fritz Kreisler, violinist, leads off the series on Oct. 20. The Philadelphia orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, will be presented on Oct. 29 with Artur Rubenstein as piano soloist. Paul Robeson, colored baritone, returns on Nov. 24 after a five year absence. Kirsten Flagstad, the renowned Wagnerian soprano, makes one of her rare local recital appearances on Dec. 8. The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo performs in the History and Enjoyment of Music series on Jan. 3. Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist, is due Jan. 19, and Argentinita and her Spanish ensemble [dancers], on Feb. 9. Lina Pagliughi, American born coloratura who has seven seasons at La Scala in Milan to her credit, brings the course to a close on Feb. 23. Mme. Pagliughi will be assisted by John Amadio, flutist.

Sergei Rachmaninoff.

Public preference was an important factor in the making of this list. At the last concert of the 1939-'40 series the audience was asked to make suggestions. The results were carefully tabulated, and the expressed will of the public was followed wherever possible. In at least one case—that of the Boston Symphony orchestra—an attraction which ranked high in the returns proved to be unavailable for the 1940-'41 season.

The History and Enjoyment of Music series was begun in the fall of 1935 in connection with a course in music which the University college of Northwestern university was offering. Lectures were given before each concert. Later this practice was abandoned, since the principal support for the venture was coming not from students working for credit but from the general public. However, Northwestern continued its sponsorship of the series thru last winter. Now the university has no further connection with the History and Enjoyment of Music series. A private organization, the same organization which has administered the course for Northwestern ever since its inception, will take full charge for the future.

All concerts of the 1940-'41 series, like those of the past, will be given in the Auditorium theater, where mail orders are now being received. Season ticket prices for the eight events range from $4 to $15, plus tax.

Coming back to the present season, and to the week which is upon us now, the Arts club is to bring the distinguished Hungarian composer, Béla Bartók, to Chicago and present him in its clubrooms in the Wrigley building next Friday night. Mr. Bartók and John Weicher, playing piano and violin, respectively, will be heard that evening in a first Chicago performance of a new rhapsody. The composer also will present excerpts from "MikroKosmos," a collection of short piano pieces which has existed in manuscript form since 1935 and is only now being published.

Mr. Bartók was born in Hungary 59 years ago, and early developed an interest in the folk music of that country. His research and his published works on that subject rank him as the foremost contemporary authority on Magyar music. However, his compositions are for the most part original. He has been affected, certainly, by his interest in and knowledge of folk music, but so has he been affected by the various movements in the more sophisticated music world of his time. Traces may be found in his works of what Virgil Thomson calls "the international neo-classical school" as well as of the influence of Schönberg and other pioneering contemporaries.

The primary purpose of this visit of Mr. Bartók in America is to appear in the Library of Congress Chamber Music festival in Washington, D. C. When the Arts club learned of his availablity it immediately engaged him for next Friday's recital.

For its 30th anniversary concert the Chicago Singverein, an important German-American choral society, will present Robert Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri." The performance is to take place next Wednesday evening in Orchestra hall. Erhardt Bergstrasser will conduct. Soloists are Margaret Heywood Wood, soprano; Freda Draper, contralto; Eugene Dressler, tenor, and Howard Berhalter, bass. Forty members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will assist.

"Paradise and the Peri" dates from the early 1840s, one of Schumann's very greatest creative periods. It is a setting of a rather free German translation of the second part of Thomas Moore's "Lalla Rookh."

Mr. Bergstrasser has only recently taken over the direction of the Chicago Singverein. He also is director of the Roosevelt High school chorus and orchestra and is in charge of music at Christ Lutheran church.

BLACKSTONE PIANO TEAM

Pliner and Earle, the piano teammates who have made their mark in the show world the past year as purveyors of "beguine" rhythm, are appearing nightly in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel in a four piece combination.

Drama Notes and News

The Theater Club, Inc., of New York, of which Mrs. John B. Bruns is president, recently awarded its annual prize, a gold medal, for the best play written by an American playwright during the current season to "Life with Father" [which you may see any night you choose, except Sunday, at the Blackstone theater, with Lillian Gish and Percy Waram]. Seventy-one per cent of the ballots favored the winning play. Since Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse are jointly responsible for the script, the club will have to strike two medals.

Paul Muni's Chicago engagement in Maxwell Anderson's "Key Largo" now begins its final week. The play and the star will tour westward to the Pacific coast in time for a brief stand in Los Angeles before Mr. Muni returns to his moving picture studio on June 1. The final decision about his next film has not been reached, but the choice may be John Steinbeck's "Tortilla Flat." In the fall he hopes that the Playwrights' company may be able to find another play for him.

The idea behind "Tropical Pinafore," now fresh in its starting days at the Great Northern theater, goes back to February, 1938. At that time Ramon Girvin, who has trained the Negro chorus for the swing version of the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, began rehearsing portions of "H. M. S. Pinafore." As long ago as last September the show was given a run-thru, minus costumes and settings, in the hope of interesting some backers. Now the American Negro Light Opera association has been able to provide the necessary backing, and the sponsors count upon the public to do the rest. The costumes, by the way, are by John Pratt, who costumed the Federal theater's sensational production of "The Mikado."

That was all wrong about the $3.30 top for "The Little Foxes," as reported in this column last week. The play will not be a guild subscription item, but it will play at a standard $2.75 top when it opens at the Selwyn theater Monday, April 22. With which correction this department decisively and finally withdraws from all attempt to discuss the price of anything, past, present, future or imaginary.

Any price is all right with me for "The Little Foxes," anyway. Lillian Hellman's drama of avarice and family bickering in the south is strong stuff, and Tallulah Bankhead has finally found in it dramatic material worthy of her gifts. "Reflected Glory" and "I Am Different," which we accepted on sufferance because we admired Miss Bankhead, are likely to pale into exceedingly dim memory once "The Little Foxes" has established itself in town. And Miss Bankhead's collaborating actors are remarkable—Patricia Collinge, one of the unsung first ladies of the stage; Frank Conroy, who played Mr. Brink in "On Borrowed Time" last season; and Charles Dingle, Carl Benton Reid, Lee Baker, Eugenia Rawls, Dan Duryea, Abbie Mitchell, and John Marriott.

Symphony to Close Season on Saturday

By Cecil Smith.

With a final rush of energetic activity, to the extent of four concerts in four consecutive days, the Chicago Symphony orchestra ends its 49th season this week. Frederick Stock will conduct all four concerts — the Wednesday afternoon young people's program, the Thursday evening-Friday afternoon subscription pair, and the closing popular concert on Saturday evening.

Frederick Stock.

After this week the orchestra will disband for more than two months, except for its annual May engagement at the Cornell college music festival in Mount Vernon, Ia. Our next opportunity to hear the orchestra in the Chicago region will be the opening of the Ravinia season, for which plans and prospects will be announced in a very few weeks. Presumably the Chicago Symphony orchestra also will figure in the summer series of outdoor concerts in Grant park, altho the schedule for the summer has not been revealed at this early date.

The summer over, the orchestra will return to Orchestra hall in mid-October. This will be an exciting moment, for it will mark the opening of the much anticipated 50th season. Gala concerts, with special programs of a festal nature, specially commissioned new works by American and European composers, and noted assisting artists, will be the weekly rule thruout the 50th season. With this prospect in mind, it may be noted parenthetically, the trustees of the Orchestral association are now engineering a campaign to raise $127,000 toward the maintenance of the orchestra.

Returning to more immediate matters, the closing Thursday-Friday subscription concerts promise to send the patrons away in a mood of exhilaration. Ottorino Respighi's symphonic poem, "The Pines of Rome," will be Dr. Stock's final present to his subscription patrons. It would be difficult to find, in the whole orchestral répertoire, a more sonorous closing fanfare than the one provided in the final section of the symphonic poem, "The Pines of the Appian Way." Evoking an imaginary picture of the Roman legions marching down the celebrated Roman avenue, the music rises in an unbroken crescendo to a climax so tremendous that several extra brass instrument players have to be hired in for the occasion.

Not all the Thursday-Friday program is quite so sensational. The symphony is one of the prime favorites of this musical generation, the Brahms first. And in tribute to American music, Dr. Stock has determined to repeat Samuel Barber's Overture to "The School for Scandal," which he introduced earlier this season. This, he feels, is one of the best American works the season has brought forth, a well wrought, clearly organized piece worthy of an immediate second hearing.

The complete program for Thursday and Friday follows:

Overture, "The Roman Carnival"....Berlioz
Symphony No. 1, C minor............Brahms
Overture to "The School for Scandal"..Barber
Moto Perpetuo, Opus 11............Paganini
[Played by all the violins.]
[Arranged by Frederick Stock.]
Symphonic Poem, "The Pines of Rome"......................Respighi

The final popular concert on Saturday evening is substantial in content and varied in style. The symphony is the popular "Unfinished" symphony by Franz Schubert, a work that can never be played too often, for fear that "Blossom Time" may at any time come back to town and misinform the public once again about the true qualities of Schubert's music. The concert opens with Dr. Stock's transcription for modern orchestra of Bach's chorale-prelude, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," and concludes with the richly colored suite drawn from Stravinsky's ballet, "The Fire Bird." The detailed program is as follows:

Chorale-prelude, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God"........................Bach
[Orchestrated by Frederick Stock.]
Symphony No. 8, B minor ["Unfinished"] ....Schubert
Overture, "Leonore," No. 3.......Beethoven
Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1...........Enesco
"In a Haunted Forest," from Suite, A minor ....MacDowell
Suite from "The Fire Bird"......Stravinsky

The young people's program on Wednesday afternoon is devoted to dance music, with Bach, Beethoven, and Tschaikowsky among the composers represented:

Polonaise, from "Eugen Onegin" ....Tschaikowsky
Air and Gavotte, from Suite No. 3, D major ....Bach
Tempo minuetto, from Symphony No. 8, F major ....Beethoven
Minuet for Strings..................Bolzoni
Mazurka, from "Scenes de Ballet"... ....Glazounoff
Song, "Psalm of Peace"..............Grieg
Polovtzian Dances, from "Prince Igor" ....Borodin

Notes on Music and Musicians

The Civic orchestra, the lively student group fostered by the Orchestral association and trained under the baton of Hans Lange, plays in Orchestra hall this afternoon. Mr. Lange will conduct the American première of a Symphonic prologue by Dr. Albert Noelte, head of the theory department in the music school of Northwestern university and teacher of theory to the young musicians of the Civic orchestra. In the second half of the concert the Lake Shore Choral society, a group which Mr. Lange has been rehearsing all year, will sing works by Brahms and Borodin. This afternoon's concert is the final Civic orchestra program of the year, except for the Civic Music festival in May, when the orchestra functions primarily as accompanist to Marx Oberndorfer's children's chorus.

Today's Civic orchestra program contains the following items:

Overture to "Egmont"............Beethoven
Symphony No. 8, B minor ["Unfinished"] ....Schubert
Symphonic Prologue......................Noelte
[First time in America.]
Song of Destiny [Schicksalslied].....Brahms
Lake Shore Choral society.
Polovtzian Dances, from "Prince Igor" ....Borodin
Lake Shore Choral society.

A debut recital will be given by Dorothy Weston, mezzo-soprano, in Kimball hall this afternoon. Her musical training has been garnered from such diverse cities as St. Louis, Boston, and Chicago. The program will be as follows:

"Die Stadt"; "Meine Mutter Hat's Gewolt"; "Schifferlied"..............Trunk
"Hat Dich die Liebe berührt"; "Waldseligheit" ....Marx
"Il Est Doux," from "Hérodiade"..Massenet
"L'Hiver"; "Le Thé"; "Si Tu le Yeux" ....Koechlin
"Vecchia Chitarra"......................Cimara
"Pioggia"..............................Respighi
"The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes" ....Carpenter
"Music I Heard with You"......Hageman
"Nightingale Lane"....................Barnett
"There Is a Medlar Tre"............Mollinson
"Ecstasy" ....Rummel

The Cuban coloratura soprano, Emma Otero, will appear for the first time before Chicago audiences on Friday night in the Civic theater. Her teacher and accompanist on her tour a year ago of the European capitals, Frank La Forge, will play for her. Two of his songs are included on Miss Otero's program, "Cupid Captive" and "Pastorale" the latter dedicated to the singer. The rest of the concert will be devoted to arias from Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix" and Thomas' "Hamlet," and songs by Paradies, Jomelli, Rosa, Rossini, Debussy, and various Spanish and Cuban composers.

The famous Russian violinist, Mischa Elman, will make his only Chicago appearance for the season a week from tonight, presenting his annual recital in the Civic Opera house. His program will include the Bach-Nachez Concerto in G minor, the Franck Sonata in A major, the Mendelssohn concerto, "The Chassid" by Chajes, "Doina" by Stone, the Chopin-Wilhelmj Nocturne, and Wieniawski's Polonaise in A major.

Mischa Elman.

Three choral groups will sing in downtown concert halls during the week. This afternoon the Federal Laredef glee clubs and the Beth Eden choir will give a concert in the Studebaker theater.

Tonight in the Woman's Club theater the Halevi choral society will give a program of Jewish music to celebrate its 13th anniversary. Many of the selections will be sung for the first time in this country. Hyman Reznick will conduct the ensemble, and the guest soloist will be Shulamit Silber, Palestinian violinist.

In Kimball hall on Tuesday the newly organized Mundy Junior Jubilee singers will give their first concert. Negro boys and girls, ranging in age from 15 to 25, form the choir, directed by James A. Mundy. B. Bristow Owsley, Chicago businessman whose avocation is song writing, has composed the lyrics and music for almost all the numbers on the program. These are in the vein of Negro spirituals and southern folk songs.

Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, will give a recital in the Sherwood Music school's recital hall in the Fine Arts building this afternoon at 3:15. The Sherwood chorus, which Mme. Arendt directs, will take part in the program.

War Threatens Intellectual Life of World

"Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans, education editor, outlines methods of selecting the right college or university for your son or daughter. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or the Tribune Tower, North Michigan avenue. Price, 10 cents; by mail, 13 cents.

By the Rev. John Evans.

The devastating effect of war on the intellectual life of the world is acutely revealed in the recently published annual report of the Rockefeller Foundation. Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman, writing under the caption "Night Over Europe" wails a lamentation over the results of the world war, and prophesies such dire ruin to result from the current war as to leave both Jeremiah and Cassandra in a complete blackout.

Stressing his belief that science, no less than art, knows neither race nor boundary, Dr. Fosdick substantiates the absolute interdependence of American and European thought and experiment in the fields of research. "Divided we fall," he says, and asserts that if chaos in Europe continues, even if only for five years, the consequences to the intellectual life of this country will be incalculable.

"America needs to be humble about this question of intellectual leadership," says Dr. Fosdick, "In spite of the anxiety and insecurity during these recent years, of the six Nobel prizes awarded in science in 1939, five went to Europe and one to the United States. In countless ways we are dependent upon Europe for stimulation and leadership in relation to many segments of our intellectual and cultural activity."

Achievements in science, Dr. Fosdick explains, almost always spring from cross-fertilization between laboratories and groups in different parts of the world. He cites the example of the breakdown of uranium in 1939; it began in Rome, continued in Berlin, then Paris and Copenhagen heard of the experiments which, but a few hours later having been informed by cable, were checked and extended at Columbia university, the Carnegie institution of Washington, and in Lawrence's laboratory at the University of California.

"The creative spirit of man cannot successfully be localized or nationalized. Ideas are starved when they are fenced in behind frontiers" Dr. Fosdick concludes "If, as a result of the present cataclysm on the other side of the Atlantic, Europe freezes into an arctic night, we shall not easily keep the fires lit in the universities and laboratories of America."

Examinations for the North Shore Prize scholarship, worth $2,200, awarded by Kenyon college, Gambier, O., will be held on the campus on April 27. The award is made on the basis of a personal interview, character recommendations, and school record in addition to the written tests. Kenyon college also offers 12 $1,600 scholarships, and men who enter the prize scholarship competition but fail to win that will automatically be considered for one of the latter.

In the prize scholarship the applicant selects one of many subjects and is examined on that one subject only. Like the scholarships at Oxford or Cambridge, the aim is that of positive approach—to give the student a chance to show his ability in a subject of his own choice rather than to reveal scattered weaknesses in several subjects.

"It is the experience in Kenyon college," Dr. Gordon K. Chalmers, president, said in explanation of this prize scholarship, "that an entering student especially strong in one important subject is probably also an interesting mind. In the long run, a man with an interesting mind and good habits of work proves valuable to the community."

Chicago contributes an average of 15 men to every Kenyon class and competition for this prize scholarship is keen among high school seniors of the North Shore area. The award runs for four years, the college contributing $400 annually, which an anonymous donor supplements with an additional $150 each year.

Folk Festival

This year Washington, D. C., will be host to the National Folk Festival, the 17th annual event of its kind. Under the sponsorship of the Washington Post Folk Festival association, the festival programs will be presented in Constitution hall on April 25, 26, and 27.

The festival was founded by its present national director, Sarah Gertrude Knott, with the avowed purpose "to bring together the folk groups from various sections of the United States in regional folk festivals and programs, inorder to keep alive traditional customs associated with the founding of this nation."

Some 30 states will be represented on the programs. The participating groups vary in size from two to 75 persons, their trips to Washington being financed by educational institutions and civic organizations from coast to coast. There will be cowboys from the southwestern plains, miners from Pennsylvania's anthracite region, lumberjacks from the great north woods and Negroes from the south. Besides offering native material, these and many other types of performers also will present the folk arts which have been transplanted from the old world, particularly those from the British Isles, Spain, France, and Germany.

Good Morning!

Deanna Durbin certainly leads a full life—in her pictures!

Not quite the weight of the world does she carry on her slender shoulders, but she DOES assume with gusto and assurance the responsibility of directing the lives of all those nearest and dearest to her. . . . A business fraught with complications and danger for anybody, but one that never daunts this singing heroine. . . . Of course, results aren't always what she has either expected or hoped for. Nevertheless scenario writers are invariably generous in providing H. E.'s for those ministered unto by the young Miss Fixit.

In "It's a Date" Deanna has a considerably more sophisticated rôle than is usual with her. But the child's growing up—and a heart throb now and then won't be amiss from now on.

Her current crush is Mr. Walter Pidgeon—who loves actress mother and NOT ingénue daughter. . . . But much water runs under innumerable bridges before Pamela learns that Georgia and not herself is to be Mrs. Arlen.

Does she care? Well, of course—for a fleeting moment she THINKS she does. Like the very divil! All her life Pamela has dramatized herself. The child of an actress—wouldn't it be natural that she should? Really, tho, she'd much rather have Mr. Arlen as a step-papa. Because marriage would undoubtedly interfere with her brightly budding histrionic career. While as for Mama—SHE welcomes the chance to be JUST A WIFE. [Ladies get like that as they grow older.]

Quite a clever little story has been written about the actress mother and her prodigy daughter who unwittingly and unwillingly becomes the elder woman's rival. . . . Nice part is that Daughter refuses to compete, and that Mother never knows her chee-ild is a competitor for a certain sugar plum rôle. . . .

Mr. Walter Pidgeon's advent proves a mighty solvent—after a time.

Deanna gives a superb account of herself. Her acting is acquiring a sheen and her voice grows richer and more rounded.

Kay Francis is delightful as Georgia. I hope producers will be more lavish with us in the matter of this fine actress in the future. . . . Walter Pidgeon—yum!

Sparkling characterizations are provided by Samuel S. Hinds, Cecilia Loftus, Fritz Feld, Henry Stephenson, and others. . . . Dialog's snappy, situations intrigue, direction is smart, and, technically, "It's a Date" is a honey.

See you tomorrow.

Norman Davis Honored at Red Cross Luncheon

By Cousin Eve.

If only the Blackstone ballroom could tell tales of its glamorous past, of balls, banquets, debuts, receptions, what a history we should have of stirring events! Yet nothing could stir one more than Wednesday's Red Cross luncheon in honor of Norman H. Davis, chairman of the central committee at Washington. It was also the annual meeting with an election in the wind, where James B. Forgan succeeded himself as president of the Chicago chapter for the fifteenth time, and the speakers' table was a long one banked with red and white tulips, lovely little flags. Here were seated Mr. Forgan, Mr. Davis, and of the officers, Augustus A. Carpenter, Albert A. Sprague, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Mrs. James B. Forgan, Mrs. Irene Sidley, Mrs. Frederic Upham, Gilbert Scribner, Mrs. Richard I. Stearns, Arthur Dixon, Britton Budd, Stuart Otis, Mrs. John MacMahon, and Joseph H. King. The ladies wore Red Cross aprons and veils faced with red, and the audience, which solidly filled the luncheon tables and balcony, was largely women in sedate gray Red Cross outfits, or French and British workers, all together under the flag of mercy. A highly representative group.

Mr. Davis spoke, quietly, calmly, relating at first the enormous output of the Red Cross toward Poland. The German reich has permitted the American Red Cross mission in Berlin, James Nicholson, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, and Ernest Swift, to turn over supplies to Polish Red Cross in Warsaw and Cracow, and to supervise distribution. One million surgical dressings, 239,000 sweaters, dresses, and baby layettes have gone over, and more supplies are en route. Mr. Davis read a letter from Mr. Nicholson from Cracow that made everybody weep—if only inwardly. Scores of wan, haggard, heartbroken old women on their knees, had struggled to kiss his hands.

The speaker said that in the last year there had been fifty-seven minor disasters taking $2,000,000 of Red Cross funds. So it was conceivable if the war got going that a Red Cross drive would have to be. Up to date the combatants have been concealing their hurts and minimizing their wounds, and handling the situation themselves.

Red Cross work, said Mr. Davis, did not create war spirit. On the contrary, it made us realize the waste and futility of it.

The sorrows of Poland are nothing new. There is a quaint story from Constantinople where, on New Year's day, they had an ancient custom at the sultan's court. Foreign envoys were received by the Turkish monarch in great state, each approaching the dais in order of precedence. "The ambassador of France," called the grand marshal, and "the minister of the low countries," and so on, until it was time for Poland.

"The Polish ambassador is unavoidably detained," cried out the major domo, but there had been no Polish ambassador for a period of 130 years. The Turks, however, were faithful, and in time the pendulum swung back and there was again a Polish ambassador to attend the New Year's levee at the Sublime Porte.

Artur Rubinstein kept Poland alive in our hearts at the Symphony, when he sat down at the piano with that incomparable way of sitting and played Saint-Saëns' No. 2 Concerto in G minor. The piano was his willing slave, and it was a thrill such as one seldom has from anything when the great pianist wove his spell. In response to an enormous ovation, this Polish ambassador extraordinary played a nocturne of Chopin. Plaintively, mournfully, the music ran from the great man's fingers, probably from his very soul. Chopin played by a Pole under such circumstances as we have in the world today is the ultimate in heartbreak. Again one feels the soft air of Polish summer. One smells lilacs, old box, the rich black Polish soil, and sees violet dusk fade into night.

Life is largely what we make it. And if Chicago celebrates a dozen golden jubilees this year, we can thank citizens of the gay '90s that they founded to some purpose.

The University of Chicago was born half a century ago and the elders of that seat of learning are planning to celebrate fitly with cakes and candles.

Marshall Field III., one of the trustees on the Midway, helped along the jubilation last week by deeding over Chicago property worth a million to the university. Mr. Field lives on a vast, beautifully wooded estate on Long Island. A thousand trees were blown down in the wild hurricane of 1938, but the big Georgian house stood up against the great wind. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cushing occupy a smaller Georgian house on the Field property. This estate is after the English way, with all outdoor sports, a race track, and small theater.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra dates from 1890 and has signed up the world's outstanding musicians and musical leaders to glorify its weekly concerts next year. And Hull House, a world famous social institution, opened its doors at the same time. The Visiting Nurse association, and the ever admirable literary Friday club also saw the light in the last decade of the 19th century.

The Friday club met for years, rent free, in the Newberry library, founded by the father of the famous Julia Newberry, whose charming and naïve little diary was found and published, after it had lain hidden 50 years. The Newberrys were rushing away to Europe, and an insistent lawyer writing Mr. Newberry's will got this idea from his impatient client: "Give it to a library." And from these five words our magnificent Newberry library came into being. Later the Friday club's large membership moved to the former Lathrop mansion in Bellevue place along with the Fortnightly and contemporary clubs.

The annual election of the Friday club officers took place last week, and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence was elected president. Mrs. Henry Isham retired from office after two years in the chair. Mrs. Nathaniel Owings is the new first vice president.

Mrs. Lawrence is a good presiding officer. Tall and handsome, she has distinction and chooses her words well. She came to Chicago from the east as the bride of Emmons Blaine Jr., and so is the daughter-in-law of Anita McCormick Blaine. Her elder daughter, Nancy Blaine, came out two years ago at a dance given by Mrs. Blaine in her Rush street house. The party was arranged in the style of the '90s with dance cards, lemonade, and an old fashioned ball supper with hot oysters, salads, and ices.

Benefits are still the order of these bright spring days. A week from Tuesday, which is April 23, the woman's board of the Children's Memorial hospital has a great novelty at the Esquire theater. It is a hat competition, a prize hat going to the plus beau. One hears that those divine Easter bonnets purchased for his family by Silas Strawn, led unwittingly to the slaughter on Easter Saturday, will be in the race.

There will be a movie later. The price of admission is some oddment that has ceased to please—maybe a dinner service—lamps, books, costumes, jewels. Mrs. Frank Hibbard thought of the hat race—she's definitely a factory for good ideas.

Mrs. William Greenlee is president of the hospital woman's board and her directors are Chicago's leading matrons: Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Harold Howard, and Mrs. Augustus Maxwell are a few of them. These spring movies have been the most profitable ventures of all for the Children's Memorial.

A week later, on April 30, the Woman Voters' league takes the Esquire theater for the same purpose—raising money. Mrs. Arthur Bissell's name sponsors this event.

Of artistic matters, an exhibition of Boris Lovet-Lorski's sculpture at 673 North Michigan avenue on April 16. Mrs. Harold Pynchon is director of the show and has chosen some up and coming names as sponsors and hostesses. There are Lillian Gish, Bobsey Goodspeed, Maud Hutchins, Inez Stark, Max Epstein, John Root, Dudley Crafts Watson, and Charles H. Worcester. And Mrs. Chauncey Borland, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Emily Owings, Mrs. H. B. Erminger Jr., and Mrs. Daniel Rich are among the ladies expected to pour tea that day.

There is an interesting sketch of Lorski's life, which began on an ancestral estate near St. Petersburg in the old Russia. His mother was English. He fought in the great war and later was aide de camp to Kerensky, which got him nowhere. Boris alternately taught sculpture and starved in New York, so he turned back again to Europe, settling in Paris. After exhibiting in the Salon and getting commissions from great French families he was acclaimed "the aristocrat among sculptors."

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schwab are among Chicago patrons and friends of Lovet-Lorski, and aware of this I went to see them and their beautiful collections. These are shown in a delightful, informal way in a large apartment of the Ambassador East. On the mantelpiece of the modernistic dining room is a pair of bronze horses by Lovet-Lorski that might have come out of Persia a thousand years ago. They are long-drawn-out, chic creatures, fabulous in form and eye filling. There are also portrait heads and masks by the same artist. The Schwab apartment is by way of being a Chinese museum, as well as an abiding place for examples of art of the Incas and early Persian murals. Martin Schwab's pink elephant of the Tang dynasty is one of the world's great potteries. The Chinese curator of the Field museum "discovered" the pink elephant, "lost" for a long period, in its glass case in the Schwab living room, and cried out with excitement upon seeing the delicious creature.

Also in this rare collection are two Persian mural paintings, both reproduced by Arthur N. Pope in his illustrated catalog on Persian frescoes. The paintings came from a magnificent mosque at Ispahan, salvaged from underneath a heavy coat of whitewash. Each painting is the portrait of a sloe-eyed oriental beauty, very much in the style of the ultramodern beauties of Marie Laurenciu. It is breath taking art, full of drama and also of dreams. Mr. Schwab's Persian pieces came out of the famous Musee Guimet in Paris.

From art to love and weddings. Announcement traveled overseas this week of the marriage of Miss Mary King Watts, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Watts, to Gerhard Gade, son of Herman Gade, in Quito, Ecuador. The ceremony took place on Dec. 17. Mr. Gade is first secretary of the American legation in Colombia, having been transferred from the American embassy in Rome. The bridegroom is a handsome man with prematurely white hair and black eyes. A day we met some years ago was a sizzling one in Athens in midsummer in Lincoln MacVeagh's frizzled up legation garden under the shadow of the Acropolis.

An odd thing about the Gades is that Herman Gade, head of the family, is a Norwegian diplomat liege to King Haakon of Norway and having "C. D." on his car [corps diplomatique] which does things for you in Paris.

And the son is an American diplomat, working for Uncle Sam. The wedding cards came from Mesnil-St.-Denis in France, where Mr. Gade has recently regained his château from King Zog and beautiful Queen Geraldine, and finds himself very busy with spring housecleaning these days. Another letter from below the equator tells of coming winter in Rio de Janeiro and the colorful life of Ambassador and Mrs. Jefferson Caffery in the capital of Brazil. Miss Gertrude McCarthy of Chicago and the brilliant bachelor diplomat [a career man], Jefferson Caffery, were married in Rio two and a half years ago. Their wedding took place in the cardinal's chapel and the ceremony was performed by his eminence, before the entire diplomatic corps in Rio. A fortnight ago a letter arrived from the Cafferys telling of the dinner party, attended by two cardinals, that took place at the American embassy. Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia and the Brazilian primate came in their glowing robes, with 30 guests at table. The two princes of the Roman church have wonderful social graces and charm, and the party was brilliant. The question came up at Mrs. Daniel McCarthy's luncheon how the two cardinals should be seated at the embassy dinner—which prelate should have the pas? Protocol in this case is quite simple—the hosts seat their reverend guests in their places, and take lesser seats down the glittering table for themselves.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 1, 1892.

Dear Julia: Your dear father was always so interested in the education of the Negro that I thought of you instantly when I read in a Chicago paper of a school for the colored people down in Tuskegee, Ala. So I have done up the paper and shall give it to the coachman to post at the corner with this letter.

Booker T. Washington.

The article in question tells of a new sort of institution . . . a Normal and Industrial school . . . where young colored people are being trained for useful occupations. Almost every account I've ever seen of Negro education has for its theme what northern white people are doing for their less fortunate fellow-beings. This is startlingly different. Here is a successful school begun and carried on by a Negro, with all-Negro associates. You will see pictures of buildings designed and built by colored people. They cut the timber, sawed the lumber, made and laid the brick for the buildings.

In nearby shops they are making and selling buggies, wagons, harness, boots and shoes . . . in fact, carrying on almost every industry known to the civilized world. What a fine object lesson they are teaching us! Will says such an achievement is a strong lever to overturn prejudices and cause both black and white to realize that the Negro, not so long out of slavery, has a future.

The man responsible for this school is Booker T. Washington, a graduate of Hampton institute, where he showed so plainly his gift for leadership that his name was suggested at once, when a small amount of money was appropriated by the Alabama legislature for a school for Negroes. No money had been allotted for buildings or equipment, but young Booker Washington was not daunted by this. He gathered his pupils together . . . 30 of them . . . in a little church building outside Tuskegee and began to teach them.

That was July 4, 1881. Eleven years have passed and the school has grown as if by magic. A farm was bought, where the Negro boys are learning practical agriculture. One of the best things taught, says Will, is that other things beside cotton can be raised in the south. It has too long been a one crop section.

The latest department to be added to the school is a school for training nurses. With the passing of the Negro mammy, whose gift for nursing is conceded, there is great need for training younger women to take her place. I was much interested, as I know you'll be, to find that the resident physician in the school is a woman, Dr. H. T. Dillon, educated in Philadelphia and so brilliant that the Alabama board of health, not knowing she was a woman and a Negro, gave her examination papers special commendation. She is the only woman physician in the state. Dr. Dillon is selecting the best adapted girls in school to be trained for the nursing profession.

Here in Chicago we are making a start in the training of colored nurses. Provident hospital, a small institution, at 29th and Dearborn streets, has only 14 beds, but its friends hope it will grow into an institution which will take care of many more and form a center of influence which will lower the death rate among the colored people which is far too high now. P. D. Armour and Potter Palmer have given money for its support and the Freer family has been interested, too. Sandy says every physician should help it on as the Negro health situation needs the training of medical students, interns and nurses. The medical staff of Provident hospital is composed largely of Negro physicians, under the leadership of Dr. Daniel H. Williams and Dr. George C. Hall. Miss Marion Hall, a white woman, is superintendent of nurses. When I visited the place last week with some canned fruit from our kitchen, I was pleased with the cleanliness and order I saw.

And now I close, much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes

Tuskegee Institute, founded in 1881, has now an enrollment of about 1,600 students, and is known around the world. Its president is Dr. F. D. Patterson. Provident hospital, too, has outgrown its old quarters and is established at 426 East 51st street, where last year it had an average of 150 hospital patients daily. Its clinic, the third largest in the city, served 117,000 patients in 1939. Claude A. Barnett is president of the board of Provident hospital, and Miss Belva Overton, a graduate of Provident Hospital Training school, is superintendent of nurses. From Provident hospital each spring go many Negro physicians to give the benefit of their experience to Negro physicians in the south, who gather at John Andrew clinic, Tuskegee Institute, for this event. This important clinic was held last week. At Tuskegee, Dr. George Washington Carver, one of the great scientists of all time, has discovered more than a hundred uses for the peanut, thus increasing the Negro farmer's market. Dr. Carver has just given his life savings, amounting to $33,000, to Tuskegee, to continue his scientific work after his death.

Old North Division High School.

In celebration of the 65th anniversary of the founding of North Division High school in 1875, an "old timers' reunion" of alumni and former members of the faculty of Waller High school, successor to North Division High school, will be held at the Germania club on the evening of April 17. Principals of this school, under its old name, were Francis Hanford, Henry H. Belfield, and Oliver S. Westcott. In 1900, it was renamed Robert A. Waller High school, honoring a member of Chicago's first civil service commission. The Waller family was closely identified with Buena Park.

Louis J. Keller has a framed autograph of Helen Keller [he is not related to Miss Keller] which she gave him in 1902.

Girl-Bid Dance Vogue Popular at Sarasota

By Marian Hobson.

SARASOTA, FLA.

Be it leap year or no, Sarasota girls feel no hesitancy whatsoever in inviting likely young men to trip the light fantastic with them—provided the event's one of the girl-bid, girl-break affairs that have dominated social activities among the younger set hereabouts for practically a dozen years.

Theoretically, the system ought to have cracked up a long time ago. What with boys, even young ones, being so fond of the reverse procedure, and girls being [supposedly] fond of waiting timorously at home for phone calls from hoped-for escorts.

But it's more firmly entrenched now than ever before, so much so that at the last girl-bid affair, a liltingly gay kid party of the 30 club, the high-chair enthroned door chairman was more amazed than otherwise when two boys [strangers, they were at home for spring holidays from Washington and Lee] presumed to pay their own and dates' admission instead of vice versa.

The custom's originators have remained anonymous. Like Topsy, it jus' growed. So that now there's an aura of impeccable rightness about the system that couldn't be banished by all the oh-ers and ah-ers in existence.

And it works nicely both ways. For lately there's come another custom on the scene—that of having girl-break tea dances followed by a "big dance" at the auditorium at which the boys do the breaking and the asking. But what boy, unless he were exceedingly cruel, would desert his tea dance escort between dances?

The two young men from Washington and Lee probably went on being surprised when they started dancing at the aforementioned 30 club kid party. For they had no say at all about which berompered young ladies danced with them.

As they danced they saw tall, short, and medium sized young men—who ordinarily wear reasonably dignified apparel—in Boy Scout outfits or polka dotted 'kerchiefs atop little boy shirts and shorts. Their hostesses, members of the 30 club, camouflaged daily appearances by dressing like little girls going to a party or little girls bound for the beach. Except for the young woman who doubled for Fanny Brice's Baby Snooks, and the other whose peasant dress was topped by an ostrich plume in a bright green Tyrolean hat.

The 30 club's name came from the newspaper term because the membership is limited to 30 and those admitted to the list must be between 20 and 30 years of age. Among former Chicagoans who belong to the group which divides its active and energetic interests between welfare and social life are Mrs. William J. Sullivan, Mrs. Bert Montressor, Miss Edith Peter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Peter, and Miss Helen Van Dame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Van Dame.

Many of the 30 club's girl-bid affairs have been staged in the high ceilinged, spacious dancing rooms of the Sarasota Bay Country club—ever so recently known as the North Shore Country club. For the name's just been changed again, the fourth time in 10 years. About the time the girl-break idea was being put into reality by the junior department of the Woman's club, the Sarasota Bay Country club was the Whitfield estate's country club.

The Longboat Key Yacht club, associated with the Longboat Cabana club, opens its new clubhouse station at the end of the city pier tomorrow afternoon with a formal reception. The decorating committee deserves at least an orchid per member for the nautically gay job they did with the interior of the building. Marine blue and natural wood paneled walls, hand carved ships' models atop the fireplace, well turned outfittings that would do fairly well on a good looking yacht, all this and extras in a building that's at the hub, currently, of Sarasota's boating activities.

The Community Concert association, protégé of the Woman's club of Sarasota, closed its season's concert series the other night with a concert by Mieczyslaw Munz, Polish pianist.

State P.-T. A. Is to Convene in Rock Island

By Betty Browning.

In the record of women's march toward responsible citizenship the 41st annual convention of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, to take place this week at Rock Island, deserves mention. For the first time the delegates are to vote on a legislative program which expresses in practical terms many of the organization's aims in behalf of children, the home, and the community.

Not only are the delegates to vote on the program, they are to do so after due study and discussion. Each of the congress' 165,384 members has had a chance to weigh the proposed measures since they were indorsed by the state board of directors in January, for the program was referred to the affiliated parent-teacher associations.

Thus the delegates will cast their votes as responsible representatives of the rank and file of members rather than as delegates too often do, simply at the behest of a board or committee, without previous preparation.

In the four decades since the congress' founding it has been brought home to members that they can protect their children and their homes only by concerning themselves with community conditions affecting both. The resolutions of early conventions were couched in rather general terms, but from year to year recommendations grew more specific, and legislation increasingly has become a consideration. Until now, however, the legislative program has been left entirely to the discretion of the board of managers.

There is another reason why a general vote of the congress on the legislative program is significant. Since the congress regards itself primarily as a force for influencing public opinion, this intensification of the members' interest in legislation is an important step toward reaching a larger public. The congress regards lobbying for bills in the legislature as secondary in importance to its work to educate public opinion on such bills.

Among the provisions on the legislative platform, to be proposed by Mrs. Paul E. Madden of Chicago, state legislative chairman, are an increased state distributive fund, including flat grants to high schools; larger units of school taxation and administration; a nonpartisan state board of education; higher standards for certification of teachers; higher minimum salaries of teachers and other educators; teacher tenure and pensions; a minimum nine month school year, and adequate provision for education of handicapped, dependent and delinquent children.

Among recommendations grouped under the heading, "public welfare," are laws for aid to dependent children and child labor regulation; improved adoption laws; a stronger drivers' license law; reapportionment of legislative districts; city manager enabling acts; a strengthened merit system law; better election laws; a "good" juvenile court law; a strengthened merit system law, and a "good" municipal budget law; laws for more efficient administration of relief; adequate appropriations for library service, and state health, education, and public welfare departments.

The women on juries law and laws for control of social disease, including premarriage examinations, are included as being in danger of repeal.

Among the legislative projects of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers which are on the Illinois congress' platform are abolition of block booking and blind selling of motion pictures; adequate support of federal offices of education, bureau of home economics, children's bureau, coöperative extension home demonstration, rural sanitation, and federal food and drug administration; federal aid for equalization of educational opportunity after maximum effort by states; extension of merit system; maximum local control for federal child welfare provisions.

Mrs. F. Russell Lyon of Chicago has been nominated without opposition to succeed Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, also of Chicago, as president of the Illinois congress. Mrs. Lyon now is first vice president and chairman of the important Chicago affairs committee.

Others nominated are Mrs. W. H. Withey of Springfield, now second vice president, for first vice president; Mrs. Frank A. Damm of Chicago, now state treasurer, for second vice president; Mrs. Walter S. Anderson of Chicago, now district 1 director, for treasurer. Mrs. Frank D. Williams and Mrs. Arthur M. Wilkinson, both of Chicago, are nominated as directors of districts 1 and 24 respectively.

"Home Defenses for Democracy" is the theme of the convention program, which opens Tuesday afternoon. Some 2,500 women are expected to attend the three day meeting. Dr. E. T. McSwain of the school of education at Northwestern university, and Dr. Allen A. Stockdale of New York, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, will speak at Tuesday's sessions.

A panel discussion on "What Is a Good School?" will be conducted Wednesday morning by Dr. D. E. Lindstrom of the University of Illinois department of rural sociology. Among those participating will be Mrs. William A. Hastings, chairman of character education of the national congress; Mrs. Gordon Fillingham of the rural life commission of Illinois; Lester R. Grimm, director of research of the Illinois Education association, and Harold Norman, vice president of the Illinois School Board association.

Discussion conferences on various phases of parent-teacher work will bring together experts in many fields Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. Wednesday evening the legislative program will be voted upon and Dr. Clyde R. Miller of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis of New York will speak on "Propaganda Analysis." New officers will be announced.

Thursday morning Mrs. Hastings and Mrs. Mulberry will speak on the convention theme from the standpoint of the home and the community respectively. At the closing banquet Thursday evening, Dr. Albert Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity school of Rochester, N. Y., will speak, and new officers will be installed. The new board of managers will choose standing committees at a caucus Wednesday evening and will hold its first meeting Friday morning.

Among the specialists who will address discussion conferences on parent-teacher activities will be Harold Kent, director of the radio council of Chicago schools; Miss Judith Waller and Mrs. Lavinia Schwartz, education directors for NBC and CBS respectively in this region; Prof. Harrison A. Dobbs of the University of Chicago social service department; J. Roy Byerley, assistant state superintendent of public instruction.

Others will be Edgar A. Drake, district supervisor, division for delinquency prevention, state department of public welfare; B. F. Shafer, president of the Illinois Education association; Dr. Leo Gamburg, director of the Rock Island county child guidance conference; John E. Gronseth, field representative of the National Recreation association; Aimee Zillmer, national social hygiene chairman; Dr. Lon W. Morrey, superintendent of public relations, American Dental association; Dr. Grace L. Wightman, chief of child hygiene and public health nursing of the state department of health, and Dr. R. R. Ferguson, chairman of the education committee, the Illinois Medical society.

Rayon Is Appearing in Many Roles in Field of Fabrics

It seems that there is plenty of news and interest for women in rayon. In less than 20 years it has achieved third place among textile fibers. Cotton still holds first place, and then wool. After these two long established fabrics is rayon, which appears is myriad different rôles.

Now we see it in draperies and rugs, table cloths, and curtains, and we also find it in upholsteries and clothes.

Cellulose is the basic substance from which it is made and the practical home maker can consider the points in its favor from a standpoint of durability.

Good rayon wears well, but it should also be well taken care of. Some rayons will wash beautifully, others should be dry cleaned. In buying rayon it is advisable to check and find out whether it should be washed or dry cleaned. There are tight, smooth rayons which usually wash well. Then there are the more loosely constructed fabrics which will look better in the long run if they are not subjected to soap and water.

Finney Estate Open All Year at Lake Geneva

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA.

The Knoll at Lake Geneva, country estate of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Finney, cannot truthfully be designated a summer home, as hardly a week goes by thruout the year that does not see Mrs. Finney and several of the children driving out from Winnetka to spend at least a day at the lake. Out of season, when it is too early or too late for winter sports, there is always horseback riding, of which the Finneys are inordinately fond. And whoever has visited the large rambling house and roamed or driven the seventy acres of parklike grounds on the east shore of Geneva bay can understand the family's desire to spend all the time possible at The Knoll.

There is a charming informality about the old-fashioned, verandahed white house itself, its generous sized rooms and attractive furnishings that make for complete relaxation, comfort, and contentment. The architecture is of no particular style nor period but a blending of the most livable of all styles. It was designed and built by the late Samuel H. Wheeler, Mrs. Finney's father, in 1906, shortly after the first Wheeler country home, located on the same site, burned to the ground. Mr. Wheeler was among the first Chicagoans to visit Lake Geneva in 1868, the year he graduated from Yale.

While Mr. Wheeler was not an architect, being in fact the Wheeler part of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine company, he was a builder and had many vigorous ideas on the subject of domestic architecture. To him is credited the first apartment houses ever erected in Chicago which were built, soon after the great fire, across from the Virginia hotel at Rush and Ohio streets.

Bathrooms were still more or less in the luxury class at the time The Knoll was built and one bathroom per family was considered ample. Mr. Wheeler was deemed a bit eccentric because he insisted upon having eight bathrooms installed.

Adding much to the charm of The Knoll are antiques and heirlooms from three families, Dr. Finney's family of Maryland, the Wheeler family of Chicago and Fairfield, Conn., and the Rumsey family of Chicago. Julian Sydney Rumsey, Chicago pioneer and mayor of the city in 1861, was Mrs. Finney's grandfather. An etching of the Rumsey home at Huron and Cass streets, which was destroyed in the Chicago fire of 1871, adorns the wall in the 60 foot living room of The Knoll near a high-backed mahogany settee from the old Finney homestead in Maryland. Hanging upon the back of the settee is a handsome patchwork quilt made from bits of brilliantly colored satin, silk, and velvet taken from the costumes of early southern belles, daughters of the Finneys many generations ago.

While there is a library and a study of considerable size at The Knoll, these rooms do not by any means contain all of the books which are to be found in great quantities in the living room, the morning room and the children's room on the main floor, and in all the innumerable second floor rooms, with a wide selection of everything for the book lover from "Plutarch's Lives" to "Gone with the Wind."

Dr. Finney's own special collections include books on arctic exploring, Queen Elizabeth, the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy, and books on Syria, where he lived for a number of years while teaching English in the Syrian Protestant college at Beirut. For a time he also was in charge of the astronomical observatory there. Dr. Finney is at present a member of the medical staff at Northwestern university. Previously for twelve years he was on the staff of the Mayo hospital, Rochester, Minn.

Mrs. Finney, who is better known by her maiden name, Dr. Theodora Wheeler, has won considerable fame for her work in epilepsy. She is a member of the Rush Medical college staff.

Dr. and Mrs. Finney received their medical degrees in 1916 in the same class at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. Their eldest daughter, Theodora, who was graduated from Vassar last June, is now attending Johns Hopkins university. The other Finney children are Pamela, William P. Jr., Ellen Rumsey and Samuel Wheeler. Incidentally, Theodora was the third generation of the family to attend Vassar. Her grandmother's sisters, Amelia and Martha, were students at Vassar as early as 1867. At that time their father, Julian Rumsey, was considered very revolutionary in his ideas because he sent his daughters to college.

While Mrs. Finney has several hobbies, the one dearest to her heart probably is Story Book Farm, the quaintly attractive tearoom and gift shop, once upon a time the farmhouse of the 200 acre Rumsey estate, located on Geneva's Lake Shore drive directly across the road from the grounds of the Finney country home. Story Book Farm, with its old-fashioned flower gardens and ancient horsedrawn equipages has become in the two years since its inception a most popular rendezvous for parties around Lake Geneva.

The roots of the Finney family strike deeply into the history of both Lake Geneva and Chicago. Mr. Rumsey was not only one of Chicago's pioneers, settling in Chicago as early as 1835, but he is also considered one of Lake Geneva's pioneer summer residents, first bringing his family of 10 children to the lake in the summer of 1871 because of the glowing descriptions of the place given by the Rumsey's Chicago neighbor, George Sturges. The story of the fleeing of the Rumsey family from the Chicago fire and their arrival, almost destitute, at Lake Geneva on Oct. 10, 1871, is a thrilling tale.

Miss Eliza Voluntine Rumsey, who with her sisters, Mrs. Samuel H. Wheeler, now of Fairfield, Conn., and Mrs. Treat Campbell of Pasadena, Cal., are the only living members of the Rumsey family, has written a most fascinating account of the fire episode and many others equally interesting in a small privately printed book entitled, "Recollections of a Pioneer's Daughter." Incidentally it is told that Mrs. Campbell with her friends, Mrs. Samuel Greeley and Mrs. Anthony Hunt, were the three residents of Winnetka who attended the Theodore Thomas concerts in Chicago at the time of the World's Fair of 1893. This is interesting when one remembers that today there is probably more musical appreciation per capita in Winnetka than any community in the country.

The kinship between Chicago and Lake Geneva may be said to be further exemplified by the fact that Mr. Rumsey's sister, Laura, was the wife of Julian Magill, brother of Mrs. John Kinzie, whose name meant much, not only in the early history of Chicago but in the early history of Lake Geneva, as Mrs. Kinzie was the first white woman to look upon the lake, in 1831, while accompanying her husband from Fort Dearborn to Fort Winnebago. Julian Magill died at Lake Geneva in 1891.

Looking from the north veranda of The Knoll, across a stretch of sloping lawn along the shore, half concealed by shrubs and trees, lie broken stone walls which are the ruins of what was once one of the most famous of the lake shore homes, Shadow Hill, the Rumsey home built in 1872. After Mr. Rumsey's death in 1886 the estate was sold to the late Dr. Ralph N. Isham. Within recent years, the charming old house was destroyed by fire.

Miami Social Life Keynote Is Informality

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Informal parties have replaced larger club and home events on the Miami social calendar. Tho ranks are thinning, there still are more invitations fluttering around than the most active can accept.

Mary Hughes Call, pianist, will be guest artist with the University of Miami symphony orchestra Monday night, closing the season's series. Mrs. Call is the guest of her parents, the George A. Hugheses, in Coral Gables. Mrs. Hughes will entertain eight friends, as is her custom at each of the series, a block of seats serving in lieu of boxes which are lacking.

Almost daily Chicagoans play the beautiful Indian Creek Country club golf course. Mrs. H. Teller Archibald, the David Molloys, who plan to leave the first of May; the junior William Atwills, the Fred Snites and their sons-in-law and daughter, the Terrance Dillons, the C. Russ Dashiells, and A. V. Jackson are among members who linger on to enjoy the perfect golfing weather.

Marta Darnett Andrade, formerly from Chicago, figures among the top flight players of the nation in weekend tennis games at the Coral Gables Country club. The Wrigley sisters, Miss Ada Blanche, student at Dobbs Ferry, and her sister, Miss Dorothy from Chicago's Latin school, have been missed from the Flamingo tennis courts since their return to their studies. They are the daughters of the Philip Wrigleys of Chicago.

Women anglers will come in for a fair share of the $10,000 in trophies to be awarded in the fifth annual metropolitan Miami fishing tournament Wednesday night at the Rod and Reel club on Hibiscus Island. Literally thousands of devotees have participated in the 99 day contest.

The tournament closes today and the gulf stream from Miami to Bimini will be generously sprinkled with fishing craft determined to catch that big one.

L. L. Paul, Chicago, with a 104½ pound white marlin held top place until a week ago when Mrs. A. S. Johnson of Grosse Pointe Woods won a 40 minute battle and boated one weighing 122. It was Mrs. Johnson's first salt water fishing and her first strike.

Philip Wiley, fishing fiction writer, held first place in the dolphin class until James T. Shealy of 152 North La Porte avenue landed a 38 pound dolphin. Mr. Shealy bought the beautiful cruiser from which he fished. Mrs. W. J. Gray, 2752 Hampden court, Chicago, established a new tournament record with her 19½ pound albacore, breaking the all time record of Bert Wallace of Chicago whose albacore of 19 pounds had held first place since 1938.

Mrs. Milton Lusk of Falmouth, Mass., took the prize of all prizes when she landed a 621 pound blue marlin. These will take firsts, if some one doesn't top them today.

The Bath club cabanas and pool will continue service until May 1, but other services will be suspended after today. Frederick A. Poor, club president, left Wednesday with a group of friends for a fishing cruise among the keys aboard his yacht Freda.

Young John L. Kellogg III., at the Pancoast with his mother, Mrs. John L. Kellogg II., celebrated his second birthday recently with children of the hotel as his guests. Mrs. Theodore T. Schmidt and daughter, Miss Rosalind Schmidt of Chicago, who have spent the winter in Palm Beach, have arrived at the Pancoast to spend the spring season. At the same hotel are the Norman G. Clarks of Evanston, who will spend several weeks there, going to Nassau for a few days next week.

Mrs. Fred Snite Jr. has transferred her membership from the Dayton Junior league to the Miami league. Harry L. Vaughn of Chicago was added to the Committee of One Hundred at the close of the season when membership is brought up to the established limit.

Rod and Reel club members cruised to the Key Largo Angler's club Saturday and will return today. Many members motored to the resort on the first key crossed by the Key West highway after leaving the mainland.

The junior George A. Getzes returned to Chicago Friday leaving the children and their nurse here. They will return May 1 for their annual tarpon fishing trip. Tarpon fishing is the favorite sport of both. The Virago, the Getz yacht, is somewhere among the keys with J. V. Morgan aboard.

City Galleries Display Fine Art Exhibits

By Eleanor Jewett.

There are many brilliant exhibitions at the various galleries about town this month. Possibly the most important is "Origins of Modern Art" at the Arts club [Wrigley tower] where some one has done a magnificent piece of work in gathering together impressive pictures telling the story of the development of trends in painting thru the centuries—the show runs as far back as a prehistoric wall painting and as close to the present as Picasso.

The underlying idea of the exhibit, upon which the exhibit is strung as brilliantly as colored beads on silken thread, is that modern art, the art of Rouault, Picasso, Gauguin, Derain, Leger, Matisse, Van Gogh, and the others, flowered from the art that came before it; that there is a logical development in art which makes kin such contrasts as Claude Monet's "Nympheas" and Picasso's "Still Life: Vive la . . ."

Even if you find the connection difficult to realize, even if instead of a relationship between the academic and the modernist the modernist appears to you a sport [that chance fruit of the productive vine], yet is this exhibition important. It contains many beautiful paintings, many that are fascinating and many to which one wants to return for that last look which is always regretfully taken.

The exhibit has been gathered from numerous sources; the pictures are lent from various collections, including that of Walter P. Chrysler Jr., who has one of the most complete modern collections in the country. The Chicago Art institute has lent several of its notable and beautiful French pictures, a Delacroix, a Renoir, a Poussin, a Puvis de Chavannes and a most delightful example of Pissarro, "The Court of the Grocer, Berneval," among others.

Whatever you do, do not miss this exhibition. It will hang to April 30.

Of equal importance, from a different point of view, is the splendid exhibit by members of the University of Illinois faculty at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue. It is an extremely interesting exhibit giving, as it does, a glimpse at the kind of painting being encouraged at one of our greater colleges. The quality which stands out in all the work is a consistent sincerity of purpose, altho the goals it finds are intriguingly different.

There are contrasting kinds of pictures in the show; a variety of techniques and a variety of media. C. V. Donavan offers a solid and fine landscape, "Spring in Illinois"; Warren Ford Doolittle has a particularly effective canvas in "Self-Portrait"; James Denton Hogan is very successful in "Jeanne in Wine Colored Jacket"; William Kennedy has the Georgian approach of Charles Sheeler in "Autumn in Farmer City," a splendid buildup of line and angle; Nicholas Britsky suggests the Italian primitive in his allegorical "Fertility," and Dale Nichols, resident artist this year at Illinois, shows his characteristic sensitive and clean cut approach to painting in "I Cultivate My Garden."

At the Findlay galleries, too, are the hauntingly lovely flower paintings by H. Dudley Murphy and his landscapes, not, for some reason, such miracles of color, and a group of water colors by Mrs. Murphy. These last are charming.

The exhibitions will continue to April 30.

Children are to the fore in several exhibitions. Children and, we should add, young people; the teen age does not like to be counted with those mere infants who write their age still with just one figure. An exhibit of work from the Illinois Art Project classes for children is hanging in the Illinois Art Project gallery, 211 North Michigan avenue. It will continue thru April 30.

The exhibition of student work from the Chicago public high schools has been one of the interesting features at the Chicago Public library this first half of April. The young people have a flair for brilliant color and a fluency of expression that find a surprisingly fine outlet in their pictures.

At Blackstone hall, Art institute, an exhibit of work by students of Stephen college closes today. It, too, is unusually interesting from the standpoint of the kind of art being done by today's younger generation.

Still another student exhibit is found in the main galleries of the Art center, Fine Arts building, where the work of students in nine Chicago art schools was placed on view yesterday. The exhibit will continue thru April; it was selected by a jury made up of an art director, an illustrator, a photographer, a typographic designer, and a business executive.

An exhibition of paintings by the late Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, and paintings collected by her, opens tomorrow afternoon with a preview and tea from 3:30 to 5 o'clock in gallery 53 of the Art institute. Mrs McCormick was well known as a painter and as a discriminating collector. Her work has been exhibited in various one-man shows at the Quest gallery and was found each spring in the annual Arts Club Members show. Mrs. McCormick painted many stunning canvases, still life, portraits, figure paintings, paintings of dogs [a favorite subject] and horses.

Mrs. McCormick chose outstanding examples of the various artists in whom she was interested for her collection. The jungle painting, richly green with monkeys and oranges scattered thru the sun-shot leaves, by Douanier Rousseau is counted one of the finest Rousseaus in existence. There are delightful canvases by Renoir and Redon in the collection and paintings by Survage, Utrillo, Dufy, Matisse, a fascinating Picasso—woman and cats—Cezanne, Gauguin, Chirico, Raeburn, and Goya.

The exhibition will remain on view to June 2 and is well worth seeing.

The Chicago Society of Etchers is holding its annual members show at the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building, to April 30. This is a sparkling exhibit, gay, pleasing and natural. Five prizes have been awarded. The Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize went to Malcolm Osborne for his brilliant drypoint portrait of Prof. A. Low, M. A., M. D. The Charles Muller prize was won by a color aquatint, "Morning Light, the Great Smoky Mountains," by F. Leslie Thompson. The Mrs. William B. Storey prize went to "Day's End, Driftway" by Kerr Eby, a winter landscape and one of the loveliest prints in the show.

The Chicago Society of Etchers prize was awarded to a beautiful and subtle work, "Penitente Prayer," by Gene Kloss, an exquisite and unusual drypoint and aquatint. The award for "imagination and technique" was anonymous and went to "Davey Jones' Locker," by Margaret Ann Gaug, a captivating undersea fantasy. A fairy tale print with a calico pony, eager rider and fleeing pig is "Pig Sticking," by Orovido, who is, in everyday life, the daughter of the noted French painter Pissarro. Orovido lives in London and has given herself her curious pen name so as not to be under obligation to her father's reputation for whatever glory she may bring upon herself.

James Swann, Bertha Jaques, Stanley Anderson, John Taylor Arms, Howard Brown, H. L. Doolittle, Gerald K. Geerlings [whose lovely "Dawn" is not for sale], Arthur W. Heintzelman, Morris Henry Hobbs, R. H. Palenske [with a glorious hunting scene, "Temptation"], Alexander Mastro-Valerio, Y. E. Soderberg, and Chauncey F. Ryder are splendidly represented. The exhibition is well worth seeing.

Still another brilliant show is that of water colors by Dwight Shepler in the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue. Shepler is a young man who has been excellently received in the east. This is his first Chicago show. If you enjoy snow, skiing, and mountain scenery, see this exhibit. Coupled with an exciting subject goes a craftmanship and power in painting which one associates with John Whorf. These water colors are superb. They give one a new lease on life as the realization is borne upon the spectator that this is the work of a young American artist of today. If we are still breeding such artists art has nothing to fear; it is off to a fresh start in a new generation which can easily rival the past.

No one should miss this exhibit. Unfortunately it is scheduled only to April 20.

At the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, there is the annual exhibition by members of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors. This must be discussed next Sunday as well as the exhibition of paintings by Aldro T. Hibbard at the Carson Pirie Scott galleries, another brilliant show.

Dwight Shepler is a graduate of Williams. At Gallery house, 17 East Elm street, is an exhibit by two graduates of the Yale school of fine arts, New Haven, Conn. Again there is cause for rejoicing. Edgar Steever shows himself a fine and imaginative artist, sensitive to pure, clear color and conscious of the power in delicate lines. His silverpoint of a dog's jaw, an odd subject, is a beautiful print. The several pieces of sculpture by him are thoroly delightful and a still life in oils is one of the nicest things you will see in some time.

Victor Christ-Janer is more of a modern artist as we know the word modern. He shows a group of carved panels that are fairly interesting and several challenging paintings.

An exhibit of recent work by Robert Jay Wolff, modernist, keen about color vibrations and formless rhythm, is hanging at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue, to May 1.

The Indiana Society of Print Makers is represented by a traveling exhibition which this month is hanging at the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive.

"SCOTCH ROSE AND SPIRAEA"

Herman Dudley Murphy is a great American flower painter. He and Mrs. Murphy have a delightful exhibit of flower pictures and landscapes at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, where, too, the University of Illinois Faculty exhibition is installed. Both exhibits will continue thru April 30.

C., is announced by her mother, Mrs. Harry Alexander Chetham of Washington, formerly of Chicago. Miss Chetham was graduated from the University High school and attended the University of Chicago. In June she will be graduated from the American university in Washington. Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Chicago. The wedding will take place in Chicago early this summer.

Filmland Comes to Tucson for Picture Making

By Lolita Linn.

TUCSON, ARIZ. The homeless dogs and pretty girls of Tucson are rejoicing—for the movies have come to town. Shooting was started on the film version of Clarence Budington Kelland's story "Arizona" and in consequence the dogs have a year's moratorium on life and the girls can live in hope that by some chance a famous director may look their way.

It seems that dogs roamed the streets at will in the frontier village around which the story was written, so the movies, which have spared no trouble or expense to make their set a perfect replica of old Tucson, have paid a year's license fees on all the dogs in the city pound, and have turned them loose in what is practically a canine paradise.

Tucson has been granted a rare privilege—that of seeing itself as it was "when it was very young." That youth is not so far distant. The adobe village created in the desert by the movies must call up vivid memories in the minds of old timers living in the modern city. They would recognize the half ruined wall originally built by early Mexican settlers to protect the tiny outpost against raiding Apaches. And the wagon train which wound its way down Rattlesnake pass on the first day of shooting would recall a day not so long ago when freighting was Tucson's only transportation service.

It is evident that the pioneers placed the safety of their live stock above their own, for the tiny dwellings, with the village church as the keystone, form a secondary wall of defense for the village animals. Pigs, goats, and chickens go as unconcernedly about their business amid the frantic bustle of picture making as they must have in the days when lawless cowboys "shot up the town" and thieving coyotes prowled the city wall after dark.

"Old Tucson" is to become the property of the city when the picture is finished, and thus a bit of Arizona's yesterday will be preserved for the visitors of tomorrow.

It is interesting to observe what a slight impression the make believe of moviedom has made on a city which has never renounced the color and pageantry of a cattle town. Of course, it is rather startling to find that a voluble and profane parrot, commandeered to ride with the wagon train, has taken up quarters in Nick Hall's office in the Santa Rita, but "Lucky Boy" William Holden, male lead of the picture, causes no particular furor in the Santa Rita lobby, rendezvous for many a year of handsome cowboys from the range.

Late comers to the Pioneer hotel in downtown Tucson are having the fun of watching the movie people at work. Among the onlookers are the Arnold W. Totmans of Winnetka; the G. G. O'Briens, Mrs Smith Christopher, and Miss Irene V. Curran, all of Chicago. January visitors who are staying on at the Pioneer until late spring are the A. W. Glessners of Chicago and the Edwin G. Fishers of Winnetka. Miss Julia Nye of Evanston has been at the Pioneer since the early part of March.

Jean Arthur, who plays the part of Phoebe in the movie, and her husband, Frank Ross, are staying at the Arizona inn. They are taking a house out in the Catalina foothills for the summer. The Lewis Barkers of Chicago, their son, Reid, and their daughter, Joyce, are making a return visit to the Arizona inn. Other visitors are the A. C. Browns of Park Ridge, and Mrs. W. J. O'Neil and John P. Willing, both of Chicago. Samuel Goldwyn, who is vacationing at the inn, says he is delighted with the picture possibilities of Arizona and that he expects to buy a home in Tucson shortly. Madame Quo Tai Chi has spent the season with her son at the Arizona inn.

Two of Tucson's leading attractions are churches—San Xavier del Bac, built by the Jesuits in 1692, and St. Philip's in the Hills, built in 1935 by a minister and congregation who believed that the desert and the mountains could be the inspiration of worship. They gave expression to this belief in the great circle topped window above the altar, thru which the congregation may look out on the ancient horseback trails from the desert to the Catalina mountains. No curtain is drawn across this window and at night the desert stars light up the Mexican tin cross which stands in the center of the altar. The architect is Josias T. Joesler, a Swiss, whose work reflects his sojourns in Spain and Mexico.

We were shown thru this church by a young architect who afterwards took us out to the tiny house which he and his wife have built in the desert. The house is so completely functional that it might well be called a "house of tomorrow," but the spirit which actuated its building was undoubtedly the same as that of the pioneers who built Tucson.

The Tracy Alexanders of Chicago are visiting in Tucson this month. The W. A. Pattersons of Kenilworth and their children, Billy and Patricia, and the John Blackburns of Chicago are staying at the Circle Z. ranch. Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Lundgren of Chicago are visiting at El Conquistador. The H. L. Hueninks of Evanston are at the Lodge on the Desert. Ralph Budd and his granddaughter, Georgiana Campbell, who have been guests at the lodge, returned to Chicago last week.

The William A. Smalls of Chicago will leave Tucson for their summer home at McHenry, Ill., as soon as school is out. Mr. Small, who is actively interested in a newspaper in Tucson, expects to commute between Illinois and Arizona all summer.

The Buel E. Hutchinsons of Chicago are opening an elementary school on their ranch, "The Little Outfit," near Patagonia.

The flowers at the San Marcos at Chandler are blooming brilliantly, almost as if they knew it was their farewell appearance. Among the late stayers who lunch every day in the beautiful gardens beside the pool are the Warren A. Lamsons and Col. and Mrs. Nathaniel L. Howard.

The Ben Alexanders of Lake Forest, who spent a large part of the season at the San Marcos with their twin sons, Tommy and Billy, are thinking of importing a bit of Arizona to their house warming this summer. If their plans work out, Chuck Abbott will bring his "chuck wagon" east, and Chicagoans will learn what Arizonans mean by a cowboy picnic, and just how good a juicy steak can be when eaten with the haunting music of the cattle range.

The John D. McKinneys of Muskegon, Mich., carried home a souvenir of their Arizona visit in the person of Panda, a wire haired terrier who had picked the San Marcos as a logical place to spend the winter. Panda had lived all his brief life on the desert and nearly suffered a heart attack when he found himself floundering in his first snowbank.

Walter Bimson, formerly of Chicago, directed the Indian ceremonial dances held in Phoenix last week-end. Among the new arrivals at Camelback who attended the colorful show were Mrs. Robert Tuttle of Glencoe, the H. E. McDonalds of Wilmette, the F. F. Skells of Kenilworth, and the William Moons of Chicago. After the dramatic fire dance the audience was invited down onto the grounds, and Hans Griesser, his son, Richard, and Paul Mullaney, all of Chicago, were chosen by the squaws to participate in their dance. There proved to be a catch in the invitation, however, for the squaws, who have not lost a whit of their native ability to torture white men, would not let the Chicagoans out of their stamping, weaving circle until they had paid a handsome ransom for their release.

Mrs. Hugh Elmer Brown and Mrs. Samuel Cady, both of Evanston, are staying at Wanada lodge outside of Phoenix. Mrs. Cady will leave for San Diego, Cal., next week, but Mrs. Brown expects to spend two months in Arizona.

"The Tribune was right"

"This new lipstick is a peach!"

What are the new ways to beautify the hair, hands, face, and figure? Chicago's largest constant audience of women looks daily to the Chicago Tribune for news on these important subjects.

In her "Thru the Looking Glass" column, Eleanor Nangle reports and illustrates her newest discoveries in and along Chicago's salons and beauty counters. Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor, analyzes and explains in detail the merits of each significant advance in beauty technique and exercise routine.

Last year 54,087 readers visited, telephoned, or wrote to the Chicago Tribune for competent advice on their individual beauty problems.

This response is but one measure of the widespread appreciation of the Tribune's many helpful services to its women readers. Whether it be on the subject of beauty, babies, or building a home, the Tribune each day mirrors the full range of feminine interests.

Giving women what they want in a newspaper is one of the factors which have won for the Tribune a circulation in excess of 1,000,000 on weekdays and over 1,200,000 on Sunday.

Art Notes

The exhibition of sculpture by Warner Williams at the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, is amazingly good. It is a charming show. One thinks perhaps of sculpture as a cold medium, but Mr. Williams makes it as warm and alive as the richest of paint. His bas-relief portraits are beautifully textured. Mr. Williams has made startling progress in his craft. His recent portraits are superb. Among the most interesting [perhaps because one knows the subjects] are the portraits of Wayman Adams, Wayman Adams Jr., Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Felix Borowski, and Elizabeth Orton Jones. The portrait of Conner Newman, a little boy carved in white marble, is exquisite. The double portrait of Frank and Margery Russo is charming and the bas-relief of Mr. Williams' own children is fascinating.

Two pieces of sculpture, not portraits, one "Anticipation," a lifesize vulture, and the other a decorative group of fish and wave, which would, enlarged, make a perfect fountain, add to the exhibition. Mr. Williams is to be congratulated upon having one of the finest exhibits in this month of superlatively brilliant shows.

An exhibition of American Primitives and copies of the Bishop Hill paintings by the Index of American Design is the attractive exhibit sponsored by the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago at 109 Goodspeed hall. The exhibit is open daily, except Sunday, from 2 until 5 o'clock.

Flying Latest Society Craze in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Socialites in Palm Beach this season are piloting their own planes in practice flights, looking down on the same territory where a few years ago the lowly Seminole was content to paddle his own canoe. Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau often accompanies her husband on hops. She maintains she is not a back seat pilot, but sits as quiet as a mouse, her soul flooded with admiration—and hope.

Harold S. Vanderbilt has ordered a new Lodestar to take the place of the Lockheed he is said to have sold recently to Chiang Kai-shek for a reported price of more than $100,000. The Chinese ruler will receive a very fancy job, as this plane is equipped as luxuriously as a club ship, with radio telephones, lounges, desks, and such. It is capable of high speed and long range. Mr. Vanderbilt recently was flown to New York in it in four hours and 19 minutes.

Bob Sweeny, fiancé of Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, has a student's permit for his 105-Stinson. Other sportsmen who fly their own planes include Grover Loening, Jimmy Donahue, Charles A. Munn Jr., Bruno Graf, George Arents III., Thorne Donnelley, Barclay Douglas, James J. Ryan, Tom Eastman, and Pike Noyes.

One of the largest and most beautiful events of the late season was the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis on Wednesday. The Davis house glistens white amid a wealth of tropical planting and the gardens possess unusual beauty and charm. Just now the flowers are at the peak of perfection, the lilies being particularly lovely. Old-fashioned hollyhock, too, bloom in this garden. Raising hollyhocks in Florida is an outstanding achievement and those in the Davis garden are aristocrats of the clan. Flowers used in the house were in blue and yellow to complement the surf blue and sand shades featured in the decor.

Mrs. Davis wore an afternoon ensemble of blue. Assisting her in entertaining were Mrs. Henry Havens Windsor, Mrs. J. Ross Beatty, Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau; also Mrs. Francis Shaughnessy and Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds of Jackson, Mich.; Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster of Morristown, N. J.; Mrs. James H. Kennedy of Boston; Mrs. Elsworth C. Warner of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Coleman Adkinson of Indianapolis.

Vinegar Darkens Silver.

It is advisable not to serve salads or sauces that contain vinegar in silver dishes; the vinegar might darken the silver. There would not be any disagreeable taste, but the dish would have to be cleaned after each using. Wooden, crockery, or china bowls are the best.

Lamb Chops.

Buy lamb chops for broiling from two-thirds to two inches thick. Lamb chops thinner than that will dry out before entirely cooked.

picked by foresighted and fashionable women for spring-to-summer

Paris couture has showered much approval on sheer fabrics. Notably Paquin, whose airy chiffons were accorded salvos of applause at the recent Openings. Forthwith, we adopted sheers for a brilliant collection in women's half-sizes. Adding the subtle flattery of vertical tucks. And achieving costumes of ingratiating grace and distinction.

League Is Urging Changes in the Juvenile Court

Removal of mothers' pensions from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, and improvement of its personnel, were among the recommendations submitted to the government and child welfare department of the Cook County League of Women Voters at the department's meeting Friday at league headquarters, 225 North Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Robert B. Brown, who prepared the recommendations, is chairman of a special committee which has visited the juvenile court, the boys' court, and the court of domestic relations daily since last October.

The juvenile court's calendar was found by the committee to be "seriously overcrowded." Further delay in the disposal of cases is caused by the inadequate facilities of the Institute for Juvenile Research, the committee reported. Owing to the institute's limited facilities, psychiatric examinations of serious offenders often must be postponed for several weeks, during which time the child usually is kept in the Juvenile Detention home, it was reported.

The committee's recommendations were: A merit examination to be held immediately for probation officers; provision for retirement of probation officers; assignment to the juvenile court of an assistant state's attorney having special training and experience in handling children; establishment of an additional unit of the Institute for Juvenile Research; removal of mothers' pensions from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court; mandatory jurisdiction of the court over all children of juvenile court age.

Mrs. T. H. Ludlow heads the child welfare department of the Cook County league. Mrs. Brown is vice chairman.

A Jaunt Along the Highway to Yesterday

By Alden Powell.

QUEBEC. With the passing of old customs and the crumbling of old landmarks, there remain little more than words and pictures to furnish clews as to how our ancestors lived. But it would appear that ancient France was saving something more tangible than memoirs for the benefit of posterity. Its customs were too good to entrust to literature and canvas alone. So it kept the past alive—and today it still lives in Quebec province.

A tour of this oldest section of Canada is a history lesson in itself. The province is endowed with cathedrals, shrines, and monuments, while battlefields and fortresses remind the visitor that Canada was not occupied without a struggle. It has changed probably less than any other section of the continent, and everywhere are to be seen landmarks that punctuate the centuries of its growth.

Quebec's charm, however, is not confined to such material things as stone and granite. It is found in the habits of its people, its colorful "habitant," and its absolute indifference to a changing world outside. The Isle of Orleans is a good illustration. Only a short distance from Quebec's capital, that region still lives in the past. Farmers sowing by hand, reaping with the scythe, threshing with the flail; women plying their looms and spinning wheels; plows and rickety carts drawn by long-horned oxen—these are some of Quebec's answers to a streamlined age.

In addition to its historic attractions, Quebec is a province of lakes, rivers, and mountains where the vacationist can find nearly every kind of sport and recreation. And no part of the dominion is more easily accessible to residents of the United States.

There's a touch of Paris in Montreal, Canada's largest city. With a population of more than one million, it is the second largest French-speaking city in the world. In the daytime there are many sights to thrill the tourist — cathedrals, convents, landmarks, and cobblestone streets—while at night the city goes modern, its "great white way" alive with theaters and night clubs.

Montreal is the second greatest seaport on the American continent. During the navigation season it is visited by ships from nearly every part of the world.

The cathedral of St. James, on Dominion square, is of interest to the visitor in that it bears a striking resemblance to St. Peter's at Rome. Another church to command attention is Notre Dame, one of the classic examples of ecclesiastical architecture in the new world. A giant illuminated cross on the crest of Mount Royal proclaims the devotion of the French-Canadian to his religion.

The journey from Montreal to Quebec City is like traveling along the road to yesterday. For the history of this city dates back nearly four centuries. Tho Montreal has retained much of its old world charm, it has kept one eye on the calendar. Quebec, on the other hand, has refused to "ring out the old."

For its wealth of historic interest, this city has few rivals on the American continent.

From the shores of the St. Lawrence it rises to a majestic height. The lower town, with its huddled, high-roofed dwellings, lies immediately below, while beyond lie the river and the town of Levis.

The lower town is virtually a reproduction of ancient France. With its narrow, winding streets, some paved with cobblestones, others with ancient planking, it has history lurking behind every corner. One street is so narrow that with outstretched arms it is almost possible to touch the houses on each side.

But Quebec is not insensible to modern development. Tho dedicated to the past, it is keeping up to date. Close to the old town are docks fitted with the latest handling appliances. Electric trams rumble thru the tortuous thorofares. There are many hotels, golf courses, and winter and summer resorts.

Historic highlights here include the Basilica of Notre Dame, built in 1647; the ramparts and citadel, the Plains of Abraham, and the Wolfe-Montcalm memorial. Nearby are the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, the Lorette Indian reservation, Montmorency falls, and the Kent house, built by the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria.

In the far-flung Laurentian mountains Quebec has one of Canada's fascinating vacationlands. These heavily-wooded hills, stretching almost to Montreal, are dotted with lakes and streams. Most of the lakes are stocked with bass, rainbow trout, and gray trout.

Golfing, tennis, riding, canoeing, hunting, and mountain climbing—minus Alpine hazards—are other pastimes in the hills.

Many districts frequented by tourists are only a few hours from the population centers. Altho the Laurentians head the popularity list, there are other delightful sections of the province accessible by rail or auto. Among them are the eastern townships, with their numerous woods, streams, and lakes.

Good fishing can be had almost anywhere in the province, but it is particularly good in the Gatineau district north of Ottawa. Such way points as Kazabazua, Gracefield, and Blue Sea help to solve the vacation problems of the angler, canoeist, and nature lover.

Other sections of Canada are liberally endowed with summer resorts, but only Quebec can supply the rare seasoning of antiquity. A visit to this province is a pilgrimage to the old world, a rendezvous with the past.

HE COULD JUMP, BUT HE PROBABLY WON'T

It is a mile down from where this tourist is standing, on the north rim of the Grand canyon, to the muddy Colorado river.

Locks at "the Soo" Will Be Opened to Summer Tourists

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 13.—The famous ship locks at Sault Ste. Marie, just north of the Straits of Mackinac in Michigan's upper peninsula, will be open to the public beginning June 15. This was announced today by Capt. H. P. Wilcox of Fort Brady, United States army post here.

The locks have been closed to foot traffic since the outbreak of war in Europe. Troops will remain on guard thruout the summer.

Operated about seven months a year, the locks handle a volume of marine tonnage about equal to that of the year round Panama, Suez, and Kiel canals combined. The ingenious raising and lowering of shipping around St. Mary's rapids and the spectacle of a nation's commerce on parade draw thousands of visitors to the scene each summer.

Here Are Bits of Old World in New Setting

MADISON, WIS. With spring stealing up the valley of the Mississippi, Wisconsin is extending an invitation to travelers to "discover a little of all the world" in this state.

Folklore is a bright facet of Wisconsin's appeal. A Norwegian village in a rock rimmed valley; the trumpeted notes of an alpenhorn calling home the herd at evening in a bit of Switzerland; new world Vikings reeling in their nets on the shore of an island that was the first Icelandic settlement in America; the rhythms of an Indian drum sounding thru the forest—these are among the experiences encountered here.

Belgians, Danes, Dutch, Finns, English, French, Germans, Irish, Italians, Norwegians, Poles, Swedes, Swiss, and the American Indians—Menominee, Chippewa, Potawatomi, Winnebago, Huron, St. Croix, Stockbridge, Brotherton, Fox, Sac—have peopled Wisconsin.

Here are dreamy islands like those in a far away sea, rolling moors and hills like those of England, forested lakelands like those of Finland; palisaded river valleys reminiscent of the Rhine, hidden coulees like sequestered Norwegian vales, and gorges to remind one of old world fjords."

Wisconsin also has wave struck cliffs like crumbling Mayan temples, dunes that shift like Sahara sands, rolling vistas suggestive of northern France, and waters like Scottish lochs.

Quaint fishing villages, leaping waterfalls, towering rocks like ancient castles, forests—visitors agree that there is no sameness in the Wisconsin scene.

Paganini Centenary Celebrations Planned

GENOA, Italy.—A series of orchestral concerts, commencing on May 15, will be the first of several interesting events to commemorate the first centenary of the death of Nicolo Paganini, world renowned genius of the violin. A pilgrimage to Paganini's tomb, and an exhibition of Paganini relics in the foyer of the Carlo Felice theater from May 15 to July 15 will also be featured. An international violin competition, in connection with the centenary, will be held in 1942 at the Universal exhibition in Rome.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

IN THE LAND OF MANANA.

Chicago, April 6.—To the Travel Editor: My wife and I returned recently from a delightful vacation in Guaymas, Mexico. We found that, while the west coast of that country is poorly settled and has few points of interest, our trip down it, and particularly our stay in Guaymas, was well worth while.

The weather was delightful. The mornings were comfortably warm, and one was inclined to lie down on a mat around the swimming pool and promptly go to sleep under the soothing rays of the Mexican sun. Shortly after noon each day a breeze came in from the bay, and this breeze, while not uncomfortable, made it wise to reach for a sweater or coat. The evenings were not too cold to go about without a hat. Contrary to nights at home, the air became more balmy as the night proceeded, so that at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning the atmosphere was ideal.

Guaymas is a little town, three miles inland from the gulf of California, and about 300 miles south of Tucson, Ariz. The one railroad serving that territory is a Southern Pacific subsidiary known as Sud-de-Pacifico. The principal hotel is situated on the seashore, in a little bay called the Boca, and surrounded by a horseshoe of low mountains which separate the inn from the town.

The hotel properties are only about four years old and have been built in the modern Spanish style. The bedroom wings surround a large patio in which there is an inviting swimming pool. The management operates a fleet of fishing boats, with experienced Mexican fishermen who guarantee you a catch on every trip.

The general atmosphere of the place, after one has been there a few days, takes on the character of country club life. There are tennis, horseback riding, and other sports facilities. The guests come principally from Chicago, New York, and intermediate points. There is usually a capacity guest list.

Leaving Guaymas, we proceeded down the coast to Mazatlan, another fishing center, some 500 miles farther south. From there we turned eastward toward Guadalajara and thence to Mexico City. The weather grew rather hot as we rode across the barren territory to Mazatlan, and remained so until we began to climb to the plateau—7,400 feet high—on which the capital stands.

The guide books told us we would have to wear topcoats early in the morning and late in the evening in Mexico City. But we found this unnecessary during our visit.

We spent three pleasant days there. Because we could not obtain reservations at any of the large hotels, we stopped at a small one, and found it clean and comfortable. The food there was good, as compared with the Mexican standard, which is never too good for the American stomach as a sustained diet. Most of the fellow tourists we talked to—and they are numberless this year in Mexico—were playing food and water from a conservative viewpoint and, like ourselves, seemed to be getting along without serious mishap.

Mexico City is a great place for the women. At the money exchange one gets nearly 600 Mexican dollars for 100 American dollars. With silver factories, Indian markets, perfume brokers and what not on every hand, you have no idea what an exciting shopping spree a woman can have with 600 pesos that cost her husband only $100.

In Mexico one quickly acquires the spirit of manana. I recommend a trip there for any one whose stomach is capable of holding out against the food.

PERCY WILSON.

This Church Has Interior of Baked Clay

By Frederic Babcock.

In a tour of any Latin American country, or any country in southern Europe, the tourist often runs across a cathedral or a church that, for one reason or another, compels him to pause and admire.

MORELIA, MICHOACAN, MEXICO.

Such a building is the Guadalupe church in Morelia. It stands out from all the others [or, at least, all the others this tourist has seen] in that its interior, instead of being made of wood or plaster covered with gold leaf, is made of baked clay covered with gold leaf. The result may not be one of the most beautiful churches in Mexico, but it is one of the most striking.

The effect is heightened by a fountain, not a great distance away, depicting three Tarascan Indians supporting a bowl of fruit—the whole structure highly colored, and all done in baked clay.

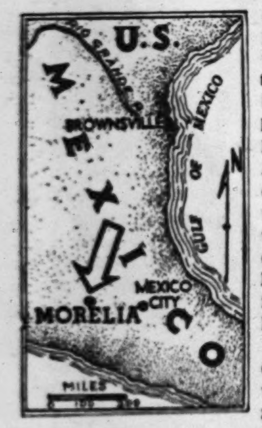
Morelia is crowded with these unusual effects. Not so well known as many other stopping off places in this country, it would be better known if the hurrying Americans could find time to devote a day or two to a little exploring around here.



In that case the visitors might be permitted to go thru the House of Morelos, built by the revolutionary patriot, and still presided over by his great-grandniece, Miss Concepcion Perez Morelos. There they would be intrigued by the "bostigos," the little windows within the large windows, and the stone steps leading up to them. It was from the bench forming the top step that the señoritas used to listen to the soft words of their lovers on the other side of the grating.

The visitors also would be taken to the pink stone cathedral that required 104 years to build; to the palace of government, with its three patios and majestic stairways; to the university that was founded in 1540 and therefore can claim the distinction of being the oldest in North America; to the Hotel Virrey de Mendoza, built as a private home in 1744, remodeled only two years ago, and now a stately reminder of the beauty of old-time Mexico; and, across the street, to the Iturbide hotel, the only ultramodern building in Morelia.

After that there would be the state museum, with its Tarascan pottery, along with its hieroglyphics painted by the Indians on their "ayates" [a material made of vegetable fiber]; the aqueduct, three miles long and boasting 254 arches; the Valladolid and Revolution markets, the Juarez and Cuauhtemoc parks, and the nearby Cointzio baths. One of the strangest of the sights would be that formed by the orchids as they covered the electric light wires above the streets and everywhere found space in which to grow on stray jars and bits of wood.

For our tour of all these places we were taken in tow by Rafael Calderon Aleman and 13 year old Felix Cerda. As director of the "Periodico Oficial" Señor Calderon has mastered English so well that he has taken to teaching it, and Felix is his prize pupil. As a test of his knowledge the boy was allowed, for the first time, to accompany an American about the city. He proved that he could speak English much better than we could speak Spanish.

Señor Calderon pointed out to us the fact that Morelia was the birthplace of both Augustin de Iturbide, who served as emperor for a few months in 1822, and José Morelos y Pavon, who led the rebellion against Iturbide. He recalled that Cardenas was governor here for six years before he became president of Mexico. He showed us how the government has taken over the university and is teaching the arts to the Indians. And he took justifiable pride in letting us know that this city of 40,000 is half way between Mexico City and Guadalajara, and that the new paved highway connecting those two metropolises runs right thru Madero avenue, the main street of Morelia.

RESIDENT OF WISCONSIN'S WOODLANDS

If you are a quiet and observing traveler, you may see, in the course of your early summer visit to Wisconsin, a sight such as this: A white-tailed fawn with its spotted coat. The range of deer is increasing annually in that state.

Cuba's 600 Mile Highway Offers an Interesting Trip

HAVANA, Cuba.—An auto journey from Havana to Santiago and return down the length of the island of Cuba, over the great Central highway is said to be a memorable travel experience by those who have made the trip. The distance to Santiago is a little over 600 miles, the road is excellent and the tropical scenery on either hand, rolling hills, sugar plantations and avenues of royal palms, has no equal in the western hemisphere. There are picturesque old towns with plazas and fountains where one may break the journey and spend the night. Santiago itself, a most interesting old city, was founded by the Spaniards over 300 years ago.

Floral Parades Mark May Day for Hawaiians

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 13.—Maytime visitors to the Hawaiian Islands will be afforded an opportunity to observe and take part in one of the most colorful May day celebrations in the world.

Perpetuating the Polynesian greeting custom in which islanders present visitors with scores of fresh flower garlands, May day becomes Lei day here. From the business executive to the flower girl, each of the more than 400,000 people of Hawaii will wear hand woven, fresh flower leis.

Biggest events on the program will be the pageants presided over by the queens. Parades with thousands of participants, including the Pa-U riders in their flowing gowns, and Polynesian men-of-war in feather caps, will choke the avenues.

Hundreds of Hula maidens, steel guitar orchestras, singing surfriders, and tropic troubadours are to march thru the streets. All major hotels will have all night dancing, and there will be an international radio broadcast.

Isle at Peace Again After Bloody Revolt

By Anson Brown.

Three shots fired from the fort at Coral Bay in St. John were the opening signal for the slave revolt. That was on Nov. 23, 1733.

ST. JOHN, VIRGIN ISLANDS.

Today, more than 200 years later, the bloodiness of that hopeless revolution blots the pages of this island's history in large red letters.

The Danes had been importing slaves from Africa for a number of years. Unfortunately for them, the colored men originally had been members of the Aming tribe, reputed to have been the fiercest and most warlike in Africa. They were whipped to work on the St. John cane plantations. They were denied the pleasures of their simple dances and songs. If one tried to escape and was caught he lost an ear and was given 150 lashes. Or, if any tried to kill his master, he was seared with a white hot iron and then tortured to death on the spiked wheel.

St. John is a beautiful little island, what with its coral lagoons and fringing palms. The slaves cleared out the underbrush from the sides of the low mountains. Green cane fields soon waved in the winds blowing in from the seas. The Danes grew rich and built large, expensive estates. But there were only 104 whites on the island. The Negroes numbered 2,400.

The ill treatment began to prey on the minds of the slaves. They were sullen and grumbly. They destroyed property at every opportunity. If caught, they were beaten and burned and their fingers cut off. The whole set-up was an excitable volcano on the outside of the mountains.

News of the planned revolt began to spread from estate to estate, but only the blacks knew of it. They set the date for July, and then a hurricane came along and ruined their plans. They were driven all the harder to clean up the débris.

On a warm Sunday in 1733, when all were resting, six Danish soldiers were laughing in the fort at Coral Bay. It was in the middle of the morning. Blue green water lapped the white sandy shore below. Small lizards sunned themselves on the rocks. A group of blacks trudged up the hill to the fort, carrying the coming week's supply of firewood.

"Halt, who goes there?"

"It's de slaves wid de wood fo de fire."

Given permission, they entered, ignored by the soldiers playing at a game of cards. Then suddenly the crafty slaves, as one man, drew cane knives from the fagot bundles and cut down the guards. Only one soldier escaped. He was in the guardhouse at the time, and plunged under a bed. The blacks, yelling in victory, climbed to the cannon and fired three shots.

Thruout the green valley at Coral Bay the volley echoed. Negroes poured from their shacks. They swarmed into the Caroline estate and murdered the owner and his family. They cut off his head and placed it on a pole and went marching into the hills. As they proceeded the crowd grew. Insane with victory, they pillaged place after place, burning, plundering, torturing as they had been tortured. The whites fell before them. St. John was virtually an Africa's No-Man's-Land.

But they hadn't counted on the Danish guard who had escaped. Making his way seven miles thru the island by another route, he came gasping into the main fort at Cruz Bay. The Negroes were still quiet. But it would be only a matter of time. Soldiers were rounded up and headed in boats for the Durloo estate at Reef Bay. A skiff was dispatched to the government at St. Thomas with the news.

Meantime the rebels marched from the other direction to the Durloo estate, only to find the Durloos, who had been forewarned, ready for action. A cannonade from the big house tore a great gap in the line. Surprised at this sudden repulsion, the invaders fled back into the valley. Night was coming on. Women and children were huddled in the basement. Fires were built around the house to lighten up the scene. There was a white man at every window.

At dawn the attack came again, and again the rebels were mowed down by cannon shot. But this time they weren't so easily repulsed. Gradually they crept closer and closer. But before the final command was given a boat was sighted coming into Reef Bay harbor. It carried soldiers from Cruz Bay. The Durloos were saved.

From that time on St. John was the devil's own country. Soldiers from St. Thomas couldn't locate the rebels because of the dense hills and valleys and because, likely as not, they would be ambushed and murdered if they separated. Reinforcements were brought from the English Tortola group nearby, with little success.

Two years went by, and by that time the blacks had burned every home on the island. The white men had to keep constant guard. The estates were gone and the cane fields had reverted to bush country. All investments were a total loss.

Enter the French. They came from Martinique and offered their services, including two ships, 228 men, and provisions for two months. Their soldiers were Creoles and hated the Amina tribe. They began to comb St. John from east to west; the enemy fell before them. Some groups of the Amina tribe committed mass suicide. A large number of them leaped from a high cliff and died in the churning sea below. In six weeks the Creloes had cleared the island under the guidance of the French, and had accomplished what the Danes and English had failed to do in two years.

After that St. John settled back to rest, and apparently has been resting ever since. The twelve whites and the 700 colored people on the island take everything easily. No more ambushing. No more lashing. With the exception of a few modern homes, St. John is like it was when Columbus sailed in.

A donkey will carry you down its lonely trails—trails lined with banana plants and mahogany trees. Butterflies and humming birds dart across your path. Huge, blue-green spiders spin their quiet web. St. John is a paradise, and will stay that way in spite of the invasion of tourists.

France Hides Treasures of Its Museums

By Mary Birkhead.

One of the strange things about Paris in wartime is the practical impossibility of visiting the PARIS. museums. Most of them are closed, and in many cases the important treasures have been hidden in carefully selected retreats far from the capital. Millions of sandbags cover precious sculptures and monuments that could not be transported.

Only recently, the celebrated high relief composition by Rude, at the right of the Arc de Triomphe as you mount the Champs-Elysées, has at last been completely covered, for which 45,000 bags of sand were needed. The obelisk in the Place de la Concorde has its pedestal covered, and part of its base, with a flaring effect of sandbags that prompted some wit, in one of the bright revues, to speak of its "crinoline."

The great libraries of Paris, too, including the Bibliothèque Nationale, probably the richest in the world in the number of its printed volumes and in the variety of its manuscript collections, have in recent months been occupied with the formidable task of seeking shelter "somewhere in France" for priceless incunabula, illustrated manuscripts, autographs of the famous, medals and coins of many epochs. For many years, certain of these treasures could only be consulted by accredited scholars in specially reserved rooms and in spite of all precautions, they suffered from vandalism, dilapidation, and the inevitable wear and tear of exposing ancient and fragile objects to even the most circumspect examination. Within the last generation hundreds of these rarer pieces have been reproduced in facsimile, which were communicated to researchers as often as possible instead of the originals.

The Paris National library and its associated institutions are showing, at the famous building in the Rue de Richelieu, the progress that has been made during the last three centuries in perfecting facsimile reproductions, not only in black, but in colors. A number of French societies have, in recent years, undertaken to reproduce the beautiful old illustrated manuscripts and other pieces from archives. The several hundred items on view include the original of Pascal's "Pensées," from that great philosopher's own handwriting, miniatures from the oldest Greek manuscripts of the French National library, illuminated drawings from medieval manuscripts.

The manuscript version of one collection of ancient tales was reproduced a few years ago under the auspices of a contribution furnished by the Princess de Polignac, born Singer, of the well known American family, and not far away, at the exhibition, may be seen the facsimile of the Prisse Papyrus and its variations, which is considered the oldest book in the world. Another item is an American pictographic manuscript, published in 1860.

The late Theodore Roosevelt wrote the preface for the oldest known work on hunting in England, Edward Duke of York's "The Master of Game," here shown with reproduction of the illuminated sketches in the French manuscript. Another item is "A Book of the Old Testament," with 13th century illustrations, part of which belongs to the Pierpont Morgan library in New York. Still another is the exact reproduction of the autograph manuscript, of which the original belongs to the library of the Paris Conservatory of Music, of Beethoven's "Appassionata Sonata."

Chicagoans Aid Pasadena Civic Life Functions

By Ruth Billheimer.

If Chicago suddenly were to call home all her sons and former residents, so many gaps PASADENA, CAL. would be left in Pasadena civic life that the Crown City would have to hustle about and fill them before some of the organizations about town could start functioning again!

Here is the former Jean Ericson, for instance, now Mrs. Norman Leffingwell Goss, who has just been made president of the Junior association of the Pasadena Civic orchestra. Its purpose is to raise funds thru benefit social events and concerts to provide section teachers for the volunteer musicians in the 90 piece orchestra which gives its free concerts to nearly 3,000 persons monthly at the civic auditorium.

Mrs. David E. Rhodes, who is vice president, is not herself a Chicagoan, but her husband comes of an old Chicago family and is the son of the Joseph Foster Rhodeses. Mr. Rhodes also is a member of the association and so is his brother, Kenneth, and his wife. Miss Judith Ridgway, secretary, is one of the seven daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Ridgway, ex-Chicagoans; and the treasurer is none other than Morris Mothershead, son of the John L. Mothersheads. Among the members, too, are Norman Goss, whose mother is Madeline Binkley Goss [Mrs. Joseph M.] and has relatives in Chicago; Mrs. Mothershead, of course; and one of Pasadena's most popular winter colonists, Miss Carolyn Crossett, daughter of the Edward C. Crossetts. The Crossetts, by the way, are looking about for a place in Pasadena for their next winter's visit before they leave for their summer home on Cape Cod.

Inspecting the roster of officers in the Pasadena Art institute, the first discovery one makes is to find near the head of the list as its vice president, H. Palmer Sabin. Its newest director is Stephens Wright. Just reelected are Dr. Robert A. Millikan and the artistic daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Dakin, Mrs. Richard Y. Dakin. She is the daughter of Susanna Bixby Bryant, and it is almost to be expected that the names of Fred G. Adamson, Mrs. John H. Hardin, Scott Brown, Myron Hunt, Albert B. Ruddock and Archibald B. Young should be listed on the board.

Weddings and wedding plans pretty well fill the social landscape and May 18 has been chosen by Miss Mary Elizabeth Spencer, daughter of Mrs. Earl E. Spencer, of San Marino, for her marriage in the Church of Our Saviour. This former Evanstonian will become the bride that day of Charles Ruggles Westbrook, son of the Edward S. Westbrooks who also were of Evanston. Richard Westbrook of Wilmette, brother of the benedict-elect, and Mrs. Westbrook will come west to be in the wedding party. He will be best man. Mrs. Carl Beekmann [Barbara Spencer] of San Francisco will be matron of honor.

Frederic Ervin White of Florida, formerly of Chicago, took as his bride Mrs. Marion Chase Paulton of Sioux Falls, S. D., in All Saints' by the Sea, Montecito, last week. The bridegroom is the father of Earle White of Highland Park, prominent Chicago attorney and bank official. The bride is a sister of Harold G. Chase of Santa Barbara, owner and subdivider of the famous Hope ranch. She is an aunt of Miss Pearl Chase, who thru a current national magazine article becomes known to the world as "Santa Barbara's Pearl."

Needlework a Popular Hobby; Simple Patterns Are Reasons Why

By LORETTA LEITNER

NEEDLEWORK is what, year in and year out, the women of America choose to call their greatest hobby. It is soothing and restful to shattered nerves; and consider the items which embroidery, crochet, and knitting needles can create!

The patterns on this page are indicative of the type of needlework which women find easy to do, becoming to wear, and attractive to use in the home, besides being extremely easy on the budget.

No. X-501, in the upper right-hand corner, is a crocheted guimpe pillbox hat, the crown of which is a mass of crocheted boûclé flowers.

No. X-320—Two views of a knitted bolero, created at minimum expense. It may be worn for day or evening and is the ideal "career" sweater for the business girl.

No. X-321—A crocheted rug fashioned from odds and ends of silk dresses, lingerie, and cast-off hosiery.

No. X-657—A hot-iron transfer pattern of six tulip designs is offered to those who like appliqué work or choose to embroider flowers in outline in a buttonhole stitch.

No. X-601—Fido's activities are recounted in cross-stitch on these days-of-the-week towels. The hot-iron transfer pattern includes detailed directions and color chart.

No. X-658—An embroidered panel of a Chinese vase, measuring 15x20 inches, may create a delightful color plaque, a motif on a bedspread, or a fire screen.

No. X-417—Canterbury bells and field flowers are popular accessories which are quick, inexpensive, and easy crochet jobs. Boucle, heavy crêpe wool, and guimpe are excellent mediums.

No. X-599—Hot-iron transfer design of summer fruits which may be embroidered in an outline stitch serve as excellent motifs for towels, luncheon sets, or curtains.

No. X-502—The newest knitted cardigan is the extra-length type with no buttons or buttonholes. The fronts are finished with matching grosgrain ribbons. The instructions for knitting this new sweater also include directions for making a cardigan of average length. Directions are available in 32, 34, and 36 inch bust measurements.

No. X-622—Motifs ranging from 2x4 inches to 6x6 inches may be used for towels, luncheon sets, or apron decorations. The hot-iron transfer pattern allows the reader to make a choice between appliqué and embroidery work.

No. X-949—Crocheted carnations and bright crocheted poppies are popular spring boutonnieres to be worn with suits and coats.

Crocheted hats which may be made at home follow minutely the millinery fashion trends stressing the combination of small hats and many flowers. ● Any of the vast army of knitters will eye with interest this newest and smartest treatment of the casual cardigan, which may be knitted quickly, using a high grade of wool, for approximately one-third the price of ready-to-wear garments. ● Today needlework for the home attractively expresses itself with the judicious use of color. Gay crocheted rugs may be created in a pattern from discarded clothing. The designs would cause our grandmothers a twinge of envy. Embroidery on towels, curtains, luncheon sets, and pillows serves to enhance the charm of these utility items, just as a new hat lifts the spirit of every modern woman. Color plaques, mottoes, or wall hangings embroidered in vivid wool add the finishing touch to a comfortable home.

For instructions in making these knitted, crocheted, and embroidered articles, send 10 cents in stamps or coin for EACH pattern you want to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, NEW YORK CITY. Specify accurately the patterns you wish, and, if such information is necessary, the size desired. If you wish, use this coupon for ordering.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The shirtwaist type of dress is so universally becoming that we've created designs for every age and figure, four of which are presented in our patterns today. They're grand models for late spring and thruout the summer, made of washable silks and cottons, plain or printed.

No. 2534 is a model with princess lines, high V neckline, "uppity" pockets, slim waist, flared skirt, puffed sleeves, and only buttons and a slender belt for contrast. Original is of polka-dotted pique.

No. 3293, a shirred, full, casual looking model with interesting yoke beneath traditional collar. Sleeves are full all the way to the wrists, where they are captured in snug cuffs. Pockets with novel detail grace the full skirt. Especially if you're slim you'll like this style for spectator sports.

No. 2620, a version for children, with shirring beneath shoulder yoke, a contrasting collar and cuffs, short puffed sleeves and plaited skirt. Buttons and belt should contrast.

No. 2679, a traditional model buttoned all the way down the front. Its collar is pointed and stitched to match detail on pocket and sleeve cuffs. This model is as good for informal social occasions and business life as it is for spectator sports, and is expressly designed for mature silhouettes.

Style No. 2534 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3293 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved dress.

Style No. 2620 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of contrasting.

Style No. 2679 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Beauty Parlor Manners Need Improvement

Ways of substituting charm for self-consciousness are suggested in the new booklet, entitled "Charm—Self - Consciousness: The First Is Gained by Conquering the Second." Send for a copy. Charm is within the reach of everybody. Five cents by mail; 3 cents at the Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby. By Helen Bartlett.

We have heard a great deal of informal conversation lately about beauty parlor manners. The blame for talking too much may be divided equally between operators and customers. They both are guilty. A beauty shop probably is the greatest exchange in the country for gossip and stories. Women seem to think nothing of divulging their personal lives to their beauty operators, and the operators give it as well as they take it, except in the all too few organizations in which they are instructed to restrain themselves conversationally unless they are spoken to.

These personal confessions are even more objectionable when they are shouted for all to hear from under the roaring drier. If you haven't heard a woman chatter, giggle, sing or even whistle above the noise of the drier you have no idea how disturbing it can be, disturbing even if you aren't interested in reading last year's movie magazine.

In these beauty and health salons in which the baths, massages and reducing exercises are given, it is customary to parade around in awkward, voluminous sheets, we know. But our observation is that, no matter how voluminous the sheet, the wearer never seems to manage to have it cover her, provided she is interested in putting it around her at all.

Most of the women who take these baths have figure faults. That is why they attend. And their imperfections are much more unattractive when exposed than they are when clothed. The lack of taste and modesty sometimes exhibited is revolting. Let us be the first to make a motion that these salon Salomes wear the robes that are given to them for the purpose when they are waltzing thru the corridors, and that they draw the curtains of their dressing rooms before disrobing.

• • •

Salon smokers are another menace. We don't object to the act of smoking, but we do dislike ashes and cigaret butts strewn around the floor and particularly on the table surfaces that are supposed to be so "sanitary." And while beauty operators and manicurists generally are smokers themselves, it is highly improbable that they like puffs of blue smoke blown directly into their faces when they are busily engaged in arranging the hair or tapering the nails. That is rudeness at any time.

The Builders

By Eleanor Jewett.

There is an urgent need of string
And twigs and wool and feathered stuff—
The trees are full of architects
Who cannot seem to get enough

Material with which to build
They search the lawn and window-sill
And when they spy a gaudy bit
They seize it in an eager bill.

The birds are in the elms and oaks,
Whistling, singing, quite at ease
Thirty feet above the ground—
Building castles in the trees.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Pockets reach new heights in this frivolous concoction that "yours truly" created for her early summer wardrobe. I like princess lines and, as far as I'm concerned, fashion trends to the contrary, they'll never be "out" because they are so universally flattering and style-right. The fabric for my own dress is polka-dotted crisp silk of the washable variety, with buttons and lace the only trimming. There's froth at the high neckline, on the pockets, and notched sleeve bottoms.

Because it's such a thoroly ingenue type of dress, you may wear almost any type of hat with it, as long as it is not overburdened with trimming. My own hat is a halo one of straw with ribbons in the back, as girlish as the dress itself.

One of the recommended features of this dress, in my private opinion, is that it will make up as well in cottons as it does in silk. I plan to use this same pattern for some other summer frocks, using various trimmings to make each frock different from the others.

Jam Cupboard Bare? Here Are Good Recipes

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mother Hubbard is likely to find her jam cupboard almost bare at this time of year, and so, since her poor children mustn't go jamless at breakfast and after school, she'd better do something about this unhappy situation.

Even the smart housewife who stocked her cupboard plentifully last summer, and can hold out until the fresh berry season, may want to get into a jam session with some of these recipes. There may be something here which she doesn't have on her shelves, and which her family would dearly love for a breadspread.

Take this rhubarb and pineapple marmalade, for example. It's easy to make, and almost everybody likes it.

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE MARMALADE.

6 cups brightly colored rhubarb, diced
1 cup diced fresh pineapple
2 lemons, juice and grated rind
4 cups sugar

Combine ingredients and boil until thick and clear. Boil as rapidly as possible in a rather shallow pan. Seal while hot, using paraffin and lids for the jelly glasses, or one of the new quick-sealing methods.

Drained, canned pineapple may be used in place of the fresh fruit. A half cup of chopped, blanched almonds or English walnuts may be added to make a conserve.

Carrot and orange marmalade is pretty and healthful. For this recipe both fruit and vegetable are ground.

CARROT AND ORANGE MARMALADE.

6 carrots, scraped and put thru food grinder
3 oranges, ground [peel included]
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
⅔ as much sugar as pulp and juice

Cook ground carrots until tender in as little water as possible. Add ground orange, lemon juice, and grated rind, and sugar. Boil rapidly in a shallow, wide pan until thick and clear. Pour into clean, hot jars, and seal.

RHUBARB AND ORANGE JAM.

2 pounds rhubarb, cut in half inch slices
2 cups thinly sliced orange [2 large oranges]
7 cups sugar
⅓ cup lemon juice

Cut unpeeled orange slices into eighths. Combine fruit and sugar and place over low heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Bring to boil and boil to the jelly test, stirring frequently. To test for jelly, dip a spoon into the sirup and lift it out. When thick, reluctant drops fall from the spoon, the jam is ready. Add lemon juice and boil again quickly to the jelly test. Seal while hot.

DRIED FRUIT CONSERVE.

½ pound dried peaches
½ pound dried apricots
½ pound dried prunes
½ cup white raisins
1 orange
3 cups sugar
¼ cup blanched chopped walnuts

Soak dried fruits together for several hours, then simmer until tender in a small amount of water. Remove prune pits and put the combination thru a coarse sieve. Mix with ground, whole orange, and sugar. Cook until thick. Add nuts and pour into clean, hot jars. Seal.

DRIED APRICOT JAM.
[With liquid pectin.]

4 cups crushed, cooked dried apricots and juice
7 cups sugar [3 pounds]
1 bottle liquid pectin

Soak fruit overnight before preparing. Simmer for half an hour. Drain, crush, and measure fruit and juice to make 4 cups. Add sugar, mix, and bring to a full rolling boil over high heat. [Use a large kettle.] Stir constantly. Boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat, stir in pectin. Skim and pour quickly. Paraffin while hot.

This jam is more unusual. It's as good as jam, and delicious as cake filling.

BANANA BUTTER.

3 cups mashed bananas [about 10]
6½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon butter
Juice of 1 lemon
1 bottle liquid pectin

Use thoroly ripe bananas. Crush or put thru sieve. Combine with sugar, butter, and lemon in a large kettle. Bring to full, rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in liquid pectin. Pour quickly and paraffin while hot.

The apricot jam recipe makes 11 8 ounce glasses and the banana butter fills 10 glasses of the same size. Some homemakers may wish to divide the recipes, and, using 1 bottle of pectin, make half of each.

HOUSEHOLD FORUM

[Have you some household help that lightens labor; is there some comfort you could enjoy; are there ways you've discovered to make the domestic wheels run more smoothly? Address Household Forum, Chicago Tribune. We'd like your ideas!]

Mrs. Adelaide Henry, St. Lous, Mo.: Quite a while ago I saw in your Why-Won't-They column a suggestion asking why peepholes weren't provided in the doors of all nurseries, so a parent could peep in and see how "baby" was getting along, without opening the door and perhaps awakening him. I had just such a peephole built in the door of the room where my year old sleeps—and has it been a help!

Helen Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa.: My husband discovered that when wasps build their houses under our porches and eaves, some vigorous puffs from our fly spray puts them to rout, and he runs no risk of stings.

Joyce King, Chicago: Why won't they cultivate potatoes without "peels," to help women with large families who have to prepare a dozen potatoes for every dinner?

Blouses Are a 'White Hope' of Suit Season

By Rea Seeger.

Blouse makers have launched a new wave of white for all the spring suits. There are more snowy white, sheer affairs, more spanking white piqués and linens, and more frills than have been seen in years. Fine handwork, such as tucks, fagoting, applique, and hemstitching, and yards of lace edgings and insertion mark the 1940 spring eye openers. Fragilely dainty embroidered organdies, sheer Swisses, lawns, dimities, and smooth linens have been used, and the results are the current showings of appealingly feminine white tops for dress parade and tailored street suits.

Long sleeves, the kind that are gathered into narrow cuffs, are new; so are the three-quarter length sleeves that end below the elbow, but the short sleeves predominate. Collarlines are mostly high and round, with a lot of the smartest blouses deliberately collarless, the better to slide under the streamlined jackets. Chiffons come in both the tailored blouses and the more dressmaker types, with long sleeves and ruffles and a bow at the throat. Dotted silk crêpes and chiffons are ideal suit skirt contrasts for street wear; so are the pastel tinted tucked chiffons in delicate tints of pink, blue, beige, and gray.

In a fashion classification by themselves are the suit tops without sleeves, the revived, old-fashioned but practical guimpes. Some are blouses without sleeves, others are fake fronts or dickeys with an elastic around the waistline, and still others are a double arrangement of front and back, also with the waist elastic. Organdy, plain and embroidered, linen, piqué, and chiffon, and even net are the materials used for these effective toppers worn with a suit. Later such items will come in gingham, novelty cottons, and linens in vivid colored stripes, small checks, or gay plaids. Such finds slide under summer suits of linen and cotton as well as the summertime woolens for immediate wear.

It's the frilly stuff that steals the spotlight. Unquestionably the most complete assortment of thin, fine blouses now is ready for the spring suit season. All are exquisitely made, not too fussy, the perfect white hope for a distinctive ensemble. Chest frills, deep vees, and plastron effects, jabots, double, circular cut ruffles cascading down the front, very effective cut-out designs, and fine handwork, and insertion embroidery and laces all combine to make these heart breakers of 1940.

Sketched are the smartest blouses of the season, spanking white accents to complete the most expensive suit, as well as to highlight the simple, modestly priced outfit. For "dated" suit rejuvenation they can't be equaled.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago. [To the Home Building Editor]—We have a home in a small town and tne renters say they are afraid o: back siphonage from the lavatories which are old type. The faucets are old style with openings below the overflow line.

Hamburg Raines.

Answer: A good many old style lavatories can be protected against back siphonage by having a plumber install modern type faucets elevated above overflow line. The only thing to d- is to call in a good plumber, have him examine lavatories and suggest remedy. He can tell whether it is possible to correct the condition by new type faucets, or if other treatment is necessary.

Chicago. [To the Home Building Editor]—Have heard there is a new material for building, concrete slabs of colored aggregates, with a broad range of colors. Are thes o the market yet for residential work? Who developed them?

John M.

Answer: Yes, houses have been built in some sections of the country from structural concrete slabs with surface of exposed colored aggregates. So far, in the development of this material, it has been largely used for industrial and commercial buildings. The slabs may be of very vivid colors or in quieter tones. John Joseph Earley, architect, Washington, D. C., more than any other man, is responsible for the development of these slabs.

Chicago. [To the Home Building Editor]—Is it possible to have a bathroom and kitche with walls of plain linoleum? Seems to me all I have seen are walls of tile, marble or wood effects.

George G.

Answer: Yes; new plain tones are now available. Believe they come in light azure, daisy yellow, foam white, light jade, dawn grey and a rose coral.

Cupid and Jobs Lend Impetus to Clothes Buying

Competition . romance and the business world is the impetus behind women's clothes purchases, it may be deduced from a recent survey conducted by the cost of living division of the U. S. Department of Labor. The statistics, gleaned from investigations of expenditures of 14,469 families of wage earners and clerical workers in 42 cities of the nation, reveal that 21 is the age at which women spend the greatest amount for clothes, and the age at which most of them are entering business or planning on marching to the altar.

The woman clerical worker spends more for clothes than do women employed in other fields, altho this fact is not as evident at the 21 level as it is when both types are 26. The woman in the home, the survey shows, spends least of all on her wardrobe.

The average woman divides her clothing budget [provided she has such a budget] thus:

	Pct.
Coats, dresses, blouses, etc.	42.1
Stockings, shoes, rubbers, etc.	30.7
Underwear	12.5
Miscellaneous accessories	8.6
Hats	6.1

The lower income group of women spends more for hats than for accessories, and women with the smaller clothes allowances find silk hosiery the heaviest annual expense, in terms of proportions of the budget. Women spending more money on fashions reported that silk and rayon dresses were their greatest expenditure.

A new heavy coat is purchased by the average woman once every four and a half years, and the average cost is about $32.

Harshness by Father Ruins Child's Regard

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Grimly determined not to have a spoiled child, are you perhaps a "spoiled boy" yourself? Have you ever heard your wife say so, in a frank and irritated moment?

Grown people need to grow up. Men with children must be men, responsible, thoughtful, fair minded, affectionate men. Those who don't grow up are sure to harm their children, and to lose those precious things, the children's confidence, trust and adoration, for children are ready to adore a father if he'll give them a chance.

Here are some of the "spoiled little boy" ways that fathers should grow out of:

"My husband roughs our small son and talks mock-tough to him, but if Jimmy does it back to him, sometimes he'll spank him. Jimmy is so hurt and bewildered," writes one wife.

"If one of the children is absorbed in her play and doesn't rush to the door with the others, my husband gets terribly angry at her," says another.

"My husband hates to be awakened, and if one of the children disturbs him, he treats him with a cold disapproval and won't speak to him all morning."

It's an endearing quality to every loving wife, the boyishness of her husband, but not when it's a spoiled boyishness.

• • •

Are you antagonistic toward your son?

Harshness is shown by many fathers toward their boys in their teens.

Often, and I've seen it, a readiness to criticize, even an active antagonism seems to develop in a man as his little boy grows into the youth approaching manhood.

Sometimes the cause is simple, sometimes it is complex, almost too complex to generalize about, involving things such as buried jealousy of his wife's pride in their son, or a resentment of the loss of authority that has to give way before a forceful young personality. Sometimes, too, such a man will be one who loves a baby and young dependent child more than the developed boy or girl. And also, this man may be one who loves and understands a daughter better than a son.

Be honest with yourself. If you feel an antagonism toward your son, face it and clear it away. If you've been favoring your daughter, stop it. Such attitudes on your part may mark the parting of the ways between you and your boy, just at the time when he needs you most and just when you might be beginning to enjoy each other, man to man.

Are you pretty hard boiled with your son? Are you determined that he will be a he man and that you're the one who will make him so?

Too often men live in dread of making their boys soft, or effeminate, or, to use the old word that's become general slang, "sissy." They seem to think that the man quality in a boy is nourished by Spartan treatment, that his masculinity won't survive or develop unless he is treated in a manner entirely different from that accorded his sister. These same men usually are delighted when their sons come home with a black eye, especially if they've given the other fellow two black eyes!

Manliness or masculinity, or whatever you choose to call it, isn't such a delicate attribute of the man child that warm, human, lenient understanding treatment will snuff it out! Even women sometimes cherish such an illusion. "Your boy is so very much a man," said a woman the other day to the mother and grandmother of a boy whose father had died when he was a little fellow. "I am constantly surprised at it and wonder how two women could do it."

We only have to look around us or review history [with its many cases of boys raised by widowed mothers] to discover how forceful is the inherent masculinity of a boy, and to see how superfluous are the strainings of parents to be stern or "hard boiled" in order to "make a man" of their son. Indeed, they're often worse than superfluous, these strainings, depriving a son of the warmth and friendliness and gentleness that he needs as much as a daughter does.

Do you come down hardest on your oldest son, whether he's in his teens, or only 8 or 10?

A child's rebellion, defiance, the desire to be always away from home, these and other disturbing emotions are often the culmination of years of the lack of a fine relationship between father and son.

These conflicts are in many cases traceable to an attitude that some men hold toward their first born, but not their other children. I've heard their wives explain it: "Jim is harsh with Jimmy Jr. He whips him for every little thing. He's dead set on obedience and respect. And he's always expected more of him than of any of the other children. The boy is sensitive and the reaction is not what it should be. I become increasingly discouraged over the outlook. I might add that the boy started out by adoring his father, but this attitude is rapidly changing. Due to father becoming more used to children, there is not so much conflict with the two younger ones."

Children are only alienated when a father gets into this attitude, instead of giving them friendship and affection. Such mistakes are almost sure to pile up trouble for the future.

Are you constantly at odds with your boy now that he's an "in between," between the ages of 8 or so and 11 or so?

With some fathers there seems to come a gap in interest and understanding when their sons [not so much their daughters] reach this in-between period.

They don't see the development of the child that's going on underneath all this. They don't recognize that this is, in a way, the last stand of childhood, the last fling of the carefree spirit of childhood. They have forgotten their own baseball-gang-irresponsible days that preceded the long approach to maturity which we call adolescence. So many fathers at this time come down so hard on their boys—are so critical of them, that they drive a wedge between themselves and their sons which it is often very hard to remove later on. Later on, when there needs to be such an open and friendly relationship, that his father's voice will be heard above the clamor of emotions and experiences that often accompany the adolescence of a boy, and confuse him.

This last question really sums up all the others. It is:

Are you a part of your children's lives?

They need you, and if you but knew it, you need them.

Pockets Still Are News, and French Frock Has Them

By Bettina Bedwell.

Pockets have been news, and continue to be news, in the fashion world. This simple, tailored dress from one of the leading French salons has two large pockets at the hipline, and a couple of smaller ones on the bodice. The wide revers to match the sleeve cuffs also are worthy of notice. Other than these departures from the established shirtwaist pattern, this frock is the standard type of tailored dress we all have learned to like so well. In the lightweight pastel woolen it is perfect for informal daytime occasions, office wear, and spectator sports. In silks and cottons it performs almost the same function.

The original is of soft flannel in heaven blue, with the buttons of medium pink. With it the mannequin who showed it wore a tiny sailor with a contrasting bow at the front. This utterly plain dress is one that calls upon your ingenuity to make of it your own individual creation. It has the stamp of Paris, and the utility which American wearers demand in their well chosen wardrobes.

Another styling scheme recommended by the creator of this frock is trimming of contrasting pique around collar and pocket flaps.

Style No. 5343 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Paris-Inspired Mode Apes the Mermaid Figure

By Bettina Bedwell.

Paris has announced an evening dress line with that poured-in look, noticeable whenever Mae West looms on the screen. The Paris version is a lot slimmer, but the idea is the same. Middlemen [they're mostly women] who are the go-betweens in introducing Paris styles to the American consumer, dub this silhouette the "mermaid." I've heard it called the "Lorelei" as well. In brief, it's a fish line you'll be asked to adopt for your new after dark silhouette this coming summer.

When well done, there's no more attractive line, because it aims at bringing out into the neon lights all the curves of the modern daughters of Venus. Dresses in this line slink so closely along the body lines under them that a sheet of tissue paper between the two would make a bulge. At the knees, or somewhere around that quarter, they burst into width à la tail of a mermaid. It's my belief that a complete check-up of your own personal assortment of curves is required before you rush to adopt such a silhouette as your very own. It takes a lot of wearing, and it's one of the worst tale bearers in the whole dress business. If you don't watch out and side up to such clothes with plenty of wariness, the whole world will know all there is to know about your figure, for better or worse.

The mermaid line can be adapted to your figure by some easing up in the right places, and such a process is certainly indicated. What you can take from the Paris offerings is the slim line, black evening dress, which is offered all over the place, with a trinket size bolero jacket in pastel-colored material, embroidered with jet. This particular edition of the mermaid line comes from Schiaparelli. Molyneux has another with a similar black dress and a light colored, bloused jacket over it. Molyneux's jackets are hip length and bloused to the waistline.

If your body lines are good enough, and I'd like to say that there are more beautiful body lines in America than I've seen anywhere else in the world I've visited, the mermaid evening dress is your chance.

Printed silks make many of these slender summer evening dresses, and almost all of them have little jacket wraps. Norman Hartnell, the London dressmaker, who also indorses the mermaid line, shows border-printed evening gowns and, with them, full length, flowing silk coats with stoles. Alix makes some of hers of dazzling white shantung, decorated with colorful flower bands.

I notice that when these slinky dresses have jackets they are quite low cut at the top, and when they are minus a wrap they have modest, day-high necklines and small sleeves. The whole idea is to cover you up so you can wear such clothes outdoors in summer and not feel as if you're living one of those exposure nightmares.

There's a new range of summer evening colors I'd like you to consider before you buy your wardrobes. These are ripe fruit colors, and among them apricot is up front in the favor of high powered customers. There are ripe orange and lemon, too, which may be combined in one dress, and they make a stunning pair. Peach red and peach green go together or make independent frocks to wear on warm evenings.

Made of delicate apricot colored silk crêpe is one fish line evening dress by Maggy Rouff of Paris. She made it with a high-topped blouse having short sleeves and a deep, V-shaped neckline. The slinky skirt is embroidered around the hips with gold and brown beads. A soft hat of apricot colored feathers makes a nice headline with this simple dress.

An Alix version of the mermaid silhouette is done in dazzling white shantung, skin-fitted to the knees and flared below. Gorgeous colored flowers are painted in a band around the lower skirt and down the back of the dress to the knees, while a jabot at the high neckline is likewise decorated.

Balenciaga signs an evening tailleur made of stiff, black and pink polka-dotted tie silk, with a tightly fitted, hip length jacket that has for ornament a gold chain set with crystal motifs at intervals, and with a small mirror set in gold and crystal at the end. The molded skirt flares stiffly below the knees.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Once upon a time I wrote an article in a highly facetious vein on the subject of bridge etiquet and ethics. In a misguided burst of humor I said, "... the man who slaps his wife for trumping his ace shows a lamentable lack of self-control—a gentleman would wait until the guests are gone." I am perfectly willing to admit that, as humor, this was a bit on the slapstick side, but I did think that that was the worst indictment to be made against it. Certainly I didn't expect any one to take me seriously! Hence my surprise—not to say chagrin—can be better imagined than described when I received a letter from a woman in Indianapolis, roundly berating me as an advocate of wife beating.

Since then I have been supercautious. So, in quoting S. Tupper Bigelow's hilarious advice to bridge players, as published in the current Bridge World Magazine, I sternly admonish my readers not to take it too seriously.

"There are three entirely separate departments of play: Play by the declarer, play by the dummy, and defensive play," Mr. Bigelow writes.

"Play by the declarer should be accompanied by bright continuous chatter, which should, of course, mislead the opponents as to the position of important cards.

"When playing, for instance, to A-Q on the board, having the king in the closed hand, hesitate before playing from the dummy as if considering a finesse. Then play the ace, saying, 'No, I guess I daren't risk it.' This will make each opponent think the other has the missing king, and will encourage a subsequent lead of that suit.

"When you get the bid, wait till the dummy is spread before playing to the trick. Count the tricks you will probably make. If you are likely to go down, say to your partner, 'O, partner, we should have bid a slam. Six spades is cold.' This will lull your opponents into a false sense of indifference, and will make them careless about the play. They will probably gum things up on the play so that you will be able to make your bid.

"When playing from a sequence of A-K-Q in the closed hand, play the queen, and say to your partner: 'If that goes around, the bid is cold.' This will discourage your opponents, who will probably lose interest in the hand, as well as making each of them annoyed at the other for not taking the trick.

"When you want a certain lead from an opponent, say to your partner, in a stage whisper, 'The bid's in, unless they lead a diamond.' They will probably lead a diamond, which gives you your bid, and serve them right, too, for being dishonest and trying to take advantage of you.

"If at about the seventh trick, you are not sure you can take the rest, lay down your hand and say: 'Well, there's no further argument; the rest are mine.' Your opponents will automatically lay their hands down, and probably you will get away with it. If they give you an argument, you have seen their hands, and know how to finesse the missing cards. There is a most unfair rule that says in such a case, you cannot finesse, but very few people have heard of it and anyway, there is no penalty for trying.

"A good conversationalist can learn what kind of deceptive conversation is most effective, and will soon have an extensive répertoire of small talk that will have his opponents picking imaginary objects out of their hair in utter confusion.

"Leading should be given careful study, as many points can be picked up by skilful leading, even out of the right hand.

"Leading out of the wrong hand should be done with great care. Bridge is getting to be such a popular game that a lot of players now know that, when you lead out of the wrong hand and they correct you, you must lead the same suit out of the right hand. With such finicky opponents, great care must be taken in so leading.

"When you intend to make a lead from dummy when the lead is in your own hand, be sure you have got yourself so boxed up in the play of a hand that a lead from your hand will lose you the contract, take lots of time. Finger all your cards and look from your own hand to dummy and back again a number of times. Pretend to be studying the hand, and say to the opponents, 'I know this can be done by a triple squeeze, but I'm not sure how.' Finally say, 'O, yes, I've got it now,' and make a gesture toward dummy's cards. If your opponents are awake, they will [in all probability tell you [before you touch one of dummy's cards] that the lead is in your hand. Nothing is lost, at all events. If your opponents are unethical players, however, they will wait until you touch a card, and then tell you that you must lead that suit from your own hand. Needless to say, you will not play again with such opponents. Life is too short to play with people who use such underhand methods to trap you into a mistake. However, if lots of time is taken, the opponents generally forget in which hand the lead is, and again skill will triumph over dumb luck and ignorance.

"The dummy, according to most bridge authorities, takes practically no part in the game. It is high time that this theory be exploded. The intelligent dummy can be a great help to his partner.

"As soon as his hand is laid down, he should look into his opponents' hands. After having done this, however, he is not allowed to go around the table and stand behind his partner and tell him what to play. But he knows, from elimination, the cards his partner has, and has, at least, a rough idea of how his partner will play the hand.

"If the trumps are banked in one opponent's hand, the dummy should say to that opponent, 'Why didn't you double spades?' Or if one opponent has a good hand, he should say, 'Why didn't you double?' This will materially assist your partner in the play of the hand. To an opponent having a generally weak hand, it is quite in order to shake your head commiseratingly and say, 'Too bad. You certainly haven't been holding them tonight.'

"It is often a good idea for dummy to engage one of the opponents in an argument about something that happened four or five hands before—say, for instance, to accuse him of having revoked. He will immediately get on the defensive, and you will have his concentration divided, which will probably have a beneficial result on the hand.

"Good defensive play is of two types: Misleading to the declarer, or abundantly clear to your partner. It is not easy to do both at once, so the dub should try to do one or the other.

"When the declarer is finessing you, play your card quickly if you have the missing card; if you haven't it, hesitate before playing. This will prove very baffling to your opponents. When they get on to it, vary your play accordingly.

"Likewise, in playing a singleton on declarer's lead, hesitate perceptibly and finger two or three cards before playing it.

"Important or significant cards should be played with a great deal of emphasis. Probably the best way of doing this is to detach the important card from your hand before it is your turn to play, and when you play, raise the card shoulder high and bang it down on the table. This is the same as saying, 'Partner, even you will be able to recognize that I have just played the eight of clubs, which means that I want you to lead clubs when you get in,' but such conversation would be disallowed as unethical.

"To indicate that you are leading from a doubleton, say, as you lead the seven from 7-3, 'They say this is a poor lead, but it's the best I have, partner.' This will make it clear to your partner that it is not a fourth best lead.

"To indicate a singleton lead, say, 'Well, I might as well get rid of this one.'

"When you have got in to lead thru declarer and your partner cannot count very well and is not sure whether to overtake or not, you should remove any possibility of doubt by snapping another card out of your hand and holding it in readiness to lead as soon as the first trick is gathered in. Even if he's a Mongolian idiot, he can scarcely miss that play."

Double Dummy Problem.

Hearts are trump. South's lead. North and South must take 7 of the 10 tricks against any possible defense.

Solution: South leads spade eight and ruffs in dummy. North cashes club ace. North leads heart to South's king and South returns the club five, ruffing in dummy. North then leads its last heart. East wins and South discards the diamond nine. East makes the best return of the diamond four and West's queen forces North's ace. North then returns the deuce of diamonds and East's best play is to go up with the king so as to keep West off lead. [If East ducks, South discards a club. West, on lead with the diamond 10, would then have to give South a club trick and the queen of spades.] When East, however, goes up with the diamond king, South discards the spade queen. East now can cash the spade 10, but then must lead into dummy's diamonds, thus giving North-South the required number of tricks.

Seems as if humans aren't the only beneficiaries of vitamin B. Now we have a liquid vitamin B for the plants in and around your home to stimulate their growth. It will stimulate the potted plants in your window, as well as add beauty and growth to the snapdragons and dahlias and tulips in your garden. And your cut flowers will last longer, too, if you give them this vitamin B solution. Its record for transplanting is equally fine, if you've tender seedlings you want to go on with their growing, without wilting or setbacks.

[Answer on page three.]

Propaganda Is Theme of New Sheean Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Ethel Barrymore is again playing her age, tho she doesn't look it. After two seasons devoted to Granny Whiteoaks, 103, and Ouma Gerart, 97, Miss Ethel is back as Mrs. Charles Rochester, lecturess, admitting a comfortable middle age and dressing it exquisitely in flowing lavender chiffons and such like aids to beauty.

Her new play is called "An International Incident." It is the first play of Vincent Sheean, the war correspondent who wrote recently of his adventures in "Personal History" and "Not Peace but a Sword." Mr. Sheean is still a fine recorder of life among the warriors, but a novice dramatist, which he is quick to assert when asked.

"An International Incident" has an attractive idea, based on satirical implications. It is a double-edged idea. First, that all English lecturers are subtle propagandists, which no one will deny; and, secondly, that all lecturers, English or not, are subjected to practically the same routine when they travel the American lyceum routes from coast to coast.

This Mrs. Rochester meets practically the same newspaper reporters, the same newspaper photographers, the same society committee of welcoming receptions in each city she visits. Showing, I suppose, not only how small the world is, but how human.

Among the New York reporters, however, is one who stands out enough to serve Mr. Sheehan as a would-be romantic hero. He is Hank Rogers of the Indiana Rogerses, and a second cousin, once removed, of Mrs. Rochester herself.

Hank is suspicious of his distinguished relative. He detects a line of propaganda of which she is entirely unconscious. She is in America, she explains, to talk about her English life and her English friends. Naturally, her friends include the best people, many statesmen, the titled gentry, and possibly a few politicians. But she knows nothing of any propaganda.

Gradually Hank becomes infatuated with his fair cousin. He follows her to Chicago. And to Detroit, where, of all things, there is a strike on. Hank takes Mrs. Rochester out to observe the workings of a picket line, that she may learn something of how labor conducts its wars. At the picket line she interferes with a brutal strikebreaker and is struck on the head by a policeman. The adventure lessens her interest in lecturing and increases it in the proletariat. When she goes back to England she thinks she will be, at least, a little antiimperialistic.

Ethel Barrymore.

As for Hank's romance, that dies a-bornin'. Mrs. Rochester is not going to be fooled by any belated heart stirrings. In the last act she goes back to her "Bertie"—the Right Honorable Charles Albert Clarke-Bates, C. B. He will be her fourth husband. And Hank goes on reporting.

A nice, capable performance. Nothing stimulating. Miss Ethel is in marvelous form. She is looking her best, and doing as much for Mr. Sheean's comedy as can be done. Kent Smith plays Hank, Cecil Humphreys "Bertie." Josephine Hull the omnipresent chairman of the reception committee.

It isn't polite to point, or I should point to the fact that whereas there are a dozen or more fine Hamlets roaming the earth, mostly in England, there is only one King Richard II, and his name is Maurice Evans. In other words, as fine a Hamlet as Mr. Evans has proved himself to be, I believe that, because the young Richard is simpler and more direct as a character study, he gives a more exciting performance in the latter piece.

This may well be because "King Richard II" is the fresher and more exciting of the two plays. It had never been played for this generation until Evans resurrected it and scored his first great American success in it three years ago. Then suddenly it was discovered as first class Shakespearean melodrama. It bears a little heavily on the word "poor." The love of poetry that dominated the master dramatist is much in evidence. There are numerous soliloquies of great poetic beauty, and Evans.

But there is a fine, challenging drama, too, in the earlier scenes of contest between Bolingbroke and Mowbray and in the later scenes of Richard's defeat and abdication, that, being beautifully read and played with spirit, give us the most exciting Shakespearean production of the year.

Mr. Evans has revived "King Richard II" for four weeks in New York and a quick spring tour across country. It should serve to cap his "Hamlet" adventures and further establish him as the first Shakespearean player of this day in America.

He has a new and stirring Bolingbroke in Donald Randolph, a new John of Gaunt in John Barclay, a new child queen in Carmen Mathews, a new Mobray in Sydney Smith, and all these are excellent.

You would not think that a trained seal could dominate an expensive musical comedy, would you? And, if you think that, you would just naturally know that there must be something wrong with the comedy, wouldn't you? And you would be right.

There is a trained seal in a new musical piece called "Higher and Higher." He bites the comedian in a haunted house and also in the rear. The comedian accuses another comedian of taking this liberty and the audience rocks with laughter. This, if you will consult the authorities, is a comedy situation that Cain and Abel used to play in Eden with their first trained goat. It probably would have been funny then, too, if either Cain or Abel had been blessed with what we dignify as a sense of humor, but humor was not born until several centuries later.

"Higher and Higher" was written by Gadys Hurlbut and Joshua Logan on an idea furnished by Irvin Pincus, and designed, no doubt, for the early world's fair trade. There are lyrics by Lorenz Hart and music by his pal, Richard Rodgers. There are three costars and two featured players in the cast. The stars are Jack Haley, back from picture making after six or seven years; Marta Eggert, a Viennese prima donna who is married to the Polish tenor, Jan Kiepura, and has never tried American musical comedy before, and Shirley Ross, a cinema blonde with a midnight soprano that is especially effective in night clubs. The featured players are two tall young men, Leif Erickson and Lee Dixon. Mr. Erickson, who has been a straight actor, also sings, and Dr. Dixon, who started as a dancer, is still at it.

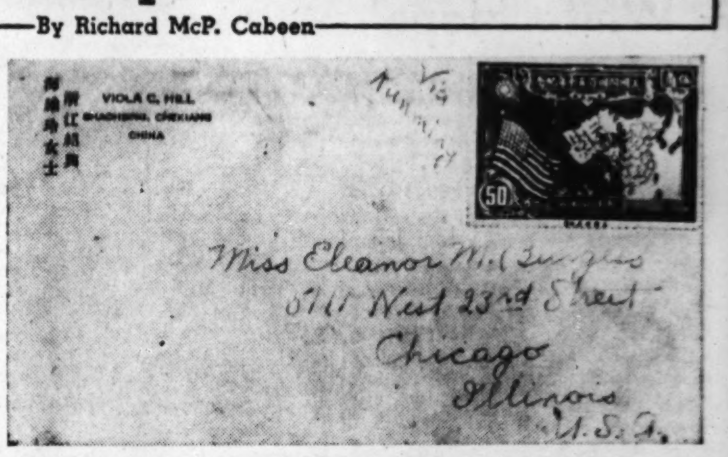
When you add perhaps the best singing and dancing chorus recently revealed the whole thing adds up to a lot of stage attraction and undoubtedly runs into money as a pay roll. And still I insist the trained seal is the feature of the entertainment that will cause the most talk and probably attract the most customers.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover shows an example of the large multi-colored series of stamps which the Republic of China issued in July, 1939, to commemorate the inauguration of the constitution of the United States.

The 10 cent value of the scientists' group of the Famous Americans series will be placed on sale in Chicago on April 26. This stamp will honor Jane Addams, founder of Hull House, and the first stamps will be sold in that institution, at contract postal station No. 10, of which Miss Addams was postmistress for 42 years.

Collectors desiring first day postmarks on covers bearing this stamp may send not to exceed 10 addressed envelopes together with a cash of postal money order remittance covering the exact cost of stamp to be affixed by the postmaster at Chicago. Mark each envelope in the upper right hand corner with a notation stating how many stamps are to be affixed.

Mail the prepared envelopes and the remittance in an envelope addressed to the postmaster at Chicago, and mark this envelope prominently in the lower left corner, "For first day cover service, Famous Americans series."

Collectors will obtain better impressions of the postmark if their prepared covers contain a filler which will simulate the thickness of an ordinary letter. All covers should be sealed or have the flaps tucked in to avoid damage in the canceling machines.

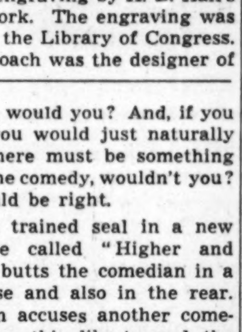
The 2 cent value of the educators' group of the Famous Americans series of postage stamps was issued in memory of Mark Hopkins, and was placed on first day sale at Williamstown, Mass., on March 14, 1940.

The design measures 85-100 by 98-100 inch and is uniform in design with other values of this group. The curved plates for the rotary presses contain 280 subjects arranged in four panes of 70 each. Plates bearing numbers 22524, 22525, and 22526 were prepared in January and the initial printing of 50 million stamps was started on Jan. 24 using the first two mentioned plates. The arrangement of markings on the plates classifies them as electric eye, convertible type, and the printed stamps may be perforated on any machine controlled by photo-electric cells.



Mark Hopkins.

The portrait of Hopkins used for this stamp was taken from a photograph of an engraving by H. B. Hall's Sons, New York. The engraving was furnished by the Library of Congress. William A. Roach was the designer of the stamp, Leo C. Kauffmann engraved the portrait, Carl T. Arlt, the frame, and James T. Vail and William B. Wells, the lettering.

Mark Hopkins was born at Stockbridge, Mass., on Feb. 4, 1802. He was graduated from Williams college in 1824 and after tutoring two years in that institution he entered Berkshire Medical college. In 1829 when about to begin the practice of medicine in New York City, he was offered the chair of moral philosophy and rhetoric at Williams college. This was the start of a lifetime devoted to teaching. In 1836 he was made president of Williams, a post which he held until 1872, and in the same first mentioned year he was ordained a minister of the gospel. His prominence in the field of education comes from his ability to direct the student in the development of his own mind. His death came on June 17, 1887, at Williamstown, Mass.

Slaughter an' runs a fine outfit of boys."

"Wouldn't I like to see Wess!" ejaculated Brazos, dreamily, following his host out of the saloon into a long corridor. The whitewashed walls were colorful with Indian blankets, as was also the earthen floor. There were windows on one side and doors on the other. Brazos was ushered into a room that spoke eloquently of the advance Doan's Crossing had made toward civilization.

"Dog-gone! Tom, this heah is mighty stylish for me. Wonder if I can sleep in thet bed."

"Wal, yu look like yu needed to," replied Doan, with a laugh. "I'll send some hot water. Yu got aboot half hour before supper."

Brazos laid off his sombrero, his gun, spurs, and chaps. Then he opened his saddle bags to take out his last clean shirt, scarf and socks, and also his shaving outfit. "Heigh-ho!" he sighed, and sat down on the bed. "Doan's Crossing. Jesse Chisholm's Trail . . . An' I'm a broken old man!"

A Mexican lad brought a bucket of hot water and towels. Then Brazos indulged in the luxury of a bath, a shave and some clean clothes. He was scrutinizing his lean brown face in the mirror, shaking his head dubiously, when the supper bell rang. Brazos did not forget to strap on his gunbelt. Then he went out. He had to be directed to the dining room, and found a dozen or more men ahead of him. Most of them were merry riders. Finding an empty seat Brazos stepped across the bench and sat down. The fellow next to him on the right was friendly, tho not curious. Still Brazos found himself the cynosure of all eyes. That Doan had mentioned his name seemed evident. A middle aged man, surely a rancher, sitting at Brazos' left, made himself agreeable. But presently Brazos discovered that he was a starved wolf, and that the meal was sumptuous. He ate until he felt ashamed of himself, and was the last to leave the table.

Haunted by Memories of the Neece Twins

After supper he went outdoors to walk a little. In the cool darkness Indians had a fire burning. It was pleasant for Brazos to watch and listen. The night wind was cold. He heard coyotes out on the prairie. Presently Brazos went into the post to lounge around in the background listening to the gossip of the trail that had once been his world. He shunned the saloon with its bright lights and gay riders. Then he strolled down the wide street, along the boardwalk from one end to the other, finding it like any other promenade of a frontier town.

The brightly lighted stores, the passers-by, a few of whom were giggling girls who made shy eyes at him, the rattle of a roulette wheel and the metallic clink of silver coins, the sound of music and gay song, loud voices, the bang of a gun, and then silence, all these things left Brazos uninterested and he returned to his room with the pang in his breast more leaden and heavy than when he had sat around his lonely camp fires.

He went to bed. But, tired as he was, he could not sleep. The bed felt too soft, too comfortable. He lay awake, thinking. It was as dark as pitch in his room. Only a hum of noises penetrated the thick walls. And June and Jan Neece filled his mind.

Strangely, tho, of all the nights he had been riding away, this one began to assume different and tremendous importance. Perhaps contact with men again had dispelled the dream, the fantasy, the unreality. Something had clarified his clouded mind. It seemed that thru all these days and nights he had been nearing the truth of his problem without being conscious of it. Jan and June Neece no longer existed in his consciousness as a single entity—one girl. He had separated them into the twins once again, as they had been at first.

In the dead of night in the blackness of his room at Doan's post, hundreds of miles from the scene of his downfall, he at last saw clearly. All the time, it had been June, and June alone. He had worshiped her, and worshiped her still. At the very onset both girls had won his sympathy, his championship. But it had been June who had uplifted and inspired him, called so deeply and poignantly to the finer side of him, that he had never known really existed. He had thought of June as a girl to work for, to change his nature, to make a home for him and be the mother of his children. All a dream! But he saw thru it clearly now.

Jan, the devil, the sweet counterpart of her twin sister, the natural coquette, had stimulated all the physical and the wild in Brazos. He had loved her, too. It was impossible not to. Yet he saw it now as singularly different. If it had been possible, failing to get June, he could have chosen Jan for a wife, realizing that instead of peace he would have found turmoil.

Sleep came very late to Brazos that night. He was awakened from a dead slumber of exhaustion by a pounding on his door. He sat up rubbing his eyes.

"Hey, Mister Keene, air yu daid?" called a voice Brazos recognized as belonging to the Texas lad.

"Mawnin', Tex. No I ain't daid yet. What's the row aboot?"

"I been tryin' to wake yu."

"What time of day is it?"

"Long after mid-day. I reckon 2 o'clock."

"Wal, what's the idee? Injuns or fire?"

"Wuss, for yu, Mister Brazos."

"Hell yu say! Look heah, Tex, I'm liable to bounce somethin' off yore haid. What yu mean—wuss?"

"I—yu . . . fact is, the Dodge City stage rolled in with some old friends of yores."

The lad's voice betrayed excitement if not confusion.

"Friends?" flashed Brazos, his slow blood quickening.

"Tanner an' some of his riders. I heered Doan tell him to come wake yu up. An' Wess said. 'Me wake Brazos Keene? Mebbe out on the trail, but not heah. Ump-umm!' They was afraid to wake yu, Brazos. An' I wasn't so damn happy aboot it, nuther."

"What'n hell yu all think—thet I ain't human?" yelled Brazos, as he leaped out of bed. "Tell Wess I'll be there in a jiffy."

Brazos laughed at the quick footfalls of the lad fading down the corridor. He washed and dressed as swiftly as if this summons had been a trail call. Warm thoughts attended his actions. He wagered that he would be as glad to see Wess Tanner as Wess would be to see him. Afraid to wake him? That was a good one. The damned old maverick hunter. Brazos buckled on his gunbelt and strode out into the corridor.

He halted at the door of the saloon. There were a dozen or more men at the bar, all strange to see, facing the corridor entrance. All unknown to Brazos, he noted at a glance; but that keen glance registered also that they knew him and looked uneasy.

Indians and riders grouped around the wide door. Outside there appeared to be a crowd. At the far and lighter end of the big post Doan appeared to have stopped waiting on a customer. Brazos saw him jerk a thumb toward the entrance, and following that cue Brazos espied half a dozen riders, standing a little to the left of a tall blonde fellow, lean and intent of face, with eyes like daggers.

Brazos recognized Wess Tanner and saw him suddenly jerk as if frozen blood had sustained a hot release. One other of the riders Brazos recognized in that quick glance. They all appeared under a restraint. It irritated Brazos. Why should friends act like strangers when he stalked in? That was one bitter price Brazos Keene had to pay. But he shook it off and advanced. When he reached Tanner only genuine gladness possessed him.

"Wess! Yu lean hungry lookin' old trail driver!" burst out Brazos. "My Gawd, I'm shore glad to see yu!"

"Pard . . . Yu damned ole, brown-skinned vaquero!" replied Tanner, unsteadily, as he met that proffered hand. "Brazos, I never expected to see this day. An' am I happy?"

They clasped hands and locked glances. It was a meeting between tried and true Texans who had slept and fought and toiled together thru unforgettable days.

"Brazos—meet my ootfit," said Tanner, presently. "Yu ought to remember Sam heah."

"Sam Jenkins, I shore do. Howdy, Sam," replied Brazos, offering his hand to the sleek dark Jenkins. "It shore is good to meet yu again. Can yu palm aces like yu used to and sing the herd quiet?"

"Howdy—Brazos," replied Jenkins, warming brightly. "Darn glad to see yu. . . . Shore I can do them same old tricks."

Brazos was introduced to the other riders, most of them striplings such as he had been when he first started herd driving. Obviously they were overcome at this meeting, and tho pleased and excited, they did not succeed in throwing off the restraint.

"Wal, Wess, I reckon yu're ridin' back to Santone for the winter. No more trail drivin' this year?"

"Not till spring, Brazos. An' mebbe not then. Pard, I shore have the grandest ranch bargain there is in all Texas. If I can only raise the backin'!"

"Same old Wess. Always dreamin' of thet grand ranch. I shore want to heah aboot it. Reckon yu'll lay over heah today?"

"We ain't in any hurry, Brazos."

"I'd kinda like to ride south with yu for a while. It's been lonely."

"Don't be hurt, pard. It ain't likely yu'll want to ride with us. But I'd shore like thet. Brazos, come aside over heah. I've news for yu. I'm scared stiff, yet——"

Brazos Learns He Has Been Followed

Wess led Brazos to a corner beside a window and faced him there hopefully yet apprehensively, with a pale face full of suppressed agitation that nonplussed Brazos and gave rise again to his former irritation.

"Scared stiff, yu?" he queried, darkly, almost bitterly. "Wess, I know I'm an outlaw—an' unfairly, by Gawd—but yu, my old pard who wouldn't have thet blonde scalp but for me——"

"Shet up, yu fire eater," interposed Wess. "I couldn't be no more ashamed of yu, Brazos Keene, than of my own brother."

"Hell, man!" exploded Brazos. "Yu didn't use to be so damn squeamish. Yu've heahed aboot that little Las Animas mess."

"Shore, Brazos—shore," agreed Wess, hurriedly. "Only it didn't seem little to me. Fact is it was big, big as Texas."

"Yeah? An' what of it?" rasped Brazos.

"Wal, for one thing Dodge City took it fine. Wild Bill hisself said to me: 'Wess, that's the sheriff for Dodge when I get mine!'"

"Hell he did? Wild Bill Hickock! Kind of a compliment at thet."

"Mebbe yu shouldn't have rode away from Las Animas so quick."

"I reckon yu think I should have got up a party an' swelled around town," said Brazos, sarcastically.

"Nope, net jest thet, tho the deal shore called for some red eye. Where'd yu stop an' soak up a load of likker?"

"Wess, I haven't taken one dod-blasted drink," declared Brazos.

"Thet settles it. Yu air crazy. I been afraid of it ever since—since—"

"Since what, yu tongue tied hombre? I'm gonna get sore pretty pronto."

"Brazos, for the life of me I cain't see why. If I was in yore boots I'd be so dod-blasted happy——"

"Yu been afraid since what? Since what?" flashed Brazos, grasping Wess's wrist with fingers of steel. There was something wrong about this old friend—something that had to be solved.

"Wal, then, old pard—since—since Miss Neece braced me on the street in Dodge."

"What? Miss——Neece?" Brazos' voice sounded faint in his thrumming ears. His hand fell away from Wess.

"Shore. Yore financée," replied Wess. "Pard, if I'd never heerd of yu I'd have been stricken by sight of thet lovely gurl."

"My financée? How'd yu know thet?"

"She told me."

"Good Gawd! Wess, wasn't she ashamed of thet?"

"Ha! Ha! I should smile she wasn't."

"Aw! But what for? How come? Was she visitin' Dodge with her Dad or friends an' heahed yu might know me?"

"No, she shore wasn't visitin' an' as for her Dad. Wal, never mind about him. Miss Neece was hot on yore trail, Brazos."

At that Brazos began to shake. What was this? His mind began to whirl. "Hot on my—trail?" he echoed, in a whisper.

"I said hot, pardner. It was this way. I happened to run into the Hotel Dodge to see Jeff—yu cain't have forgot Jeff Davis? He shore hadn't forgot yu. Wal, before I could say howdy even Jeff grabbed me an' turned to a gurl standin' there. I went stiff at sight of her. 'What luck!' burst out Jeff. 'Heah he is now. Wess, this is Miss Neece. She has been askin' if any Texas trail driver might know Brazos Keene. An' I told her yu, Wess Tanner, was an old pardner of his.' The gurl's white face went red, then paled again. 'Please come,' she said, and led me off out of the lobby into the parlor."

"'Yu know Brazos?' she asked, and she was trembling.

"'Wal, I used to, Miss,' I said.

"'Yu've heerd about me?'

"'No. Sorry to confess I haven't,' I had to tell her.

"'But yu have heerd about—what he did at Las Animas?'

"'Yes, Miss. Thet's town talk heah. But I never believe range gossip, much less about Brazos Keene.'

"'Oh! But it is all true—and I am his financée.'

"'Miss Neece, whatever Brazos done it was justified. He is a true blue Texan, as fine a boy as ever rode a hawse.' Wal, she thanked me with tears streamin' down her lovely face. An' then she told me yu an' she had had a lovers' quarrel. She was jealous of her twin sister. Yu had left her an' gone to town, where yu shot her dad's enemies, one of them the sheriff. Then yu rode away, thinkin' yu'd made yoreself an outlaw, which yu hadn't.

"She said she knew yu'd ride down into Texas an' she wanted me to undertake to find yu. Brazos, thet scared me to death. But no livin' cowboy could ever have resisted her eyes, her voice. I said it was aboot a shore thing thet I could. 'No matter what time it takes, what it'll cost. I'll find Brazos for yu. An' thet hombre will shoot my laig off for my pains.'

"'Shoot yu?' she cried. 'He'll bless yu all the rest of his life!'"

"Right yu were—Wess," mumbled Brazos, thickly, fighting the wave of emotion that swayed him. How terrible and sweet this news! "I'll shoot—yore laig off. Damn yu! Wasn't I miserable enough? But tell the rest now, if there is any."

"There's plenty, pard. Let's have a drink first."

"No! Plenty? Yes, I cain't stand much more. But the idee? What was her crazy idee, coaxin' yu to find me?"

"What do yu think, old pard?" queried Wess, drawing a deep breath.

"Think? I cain't think. Only that it was sweet of June. Tell me, or I'll choke it out of yu."

Wess clapped a heavy hand on Brazos' shoulder.

"Pard, Miss Neece's idee was to come with me till I found yu," replied Wess, his voice ringing.

"Come with yu?—Heavens above!"

"Thet was her idee, Brazos. An' she did come."

Brazos could only stare in fearful stupefaction into the pale face of his friend.

"She's heah!" rang out Wess.

Brazos went blind. His shaking hand groped for Wess, who met it with his own and steadied him.

"Heah—now?" gasped Brazos, rousing to sensations that had almost disrupted his consciousness.

"Right now, pard. She's in with Mrs. Doan."

"Right now! She's heah!" echoed Brazos, huskily. His legs went unsteady under him. He had to hold on to Wess. These were his physical reactions, which possessed him momentarily. Then, his mind released, wonder and joy followed, to lift him to a seventh heaven.

"Brazos! For the good Lord's sake!" Wess was saying in a far away voice, as he shook Brazos. "What ails yu? Man, yu should be the happiest fellow in all Texas. Why, I never seen yu like this. An' how many gurls have I seen yu crazy over? Shore, pard, this is different. This gurl is the real an' the last one. But—hellsfire, Brazos, yu haven't held up a bank or stole a hawse?"

WORLD'S GREATEST STORIES

THE BETTER HALF

FOREWORD

An unusual story of a love lost and a love found, and of the understanding that can come when a crisis is met, is this latest product of the facile pen of Phyllis Bottome. Three very strong characters are etched as cleanly as the mountain skyline that forms the background for the story.

"I think," Carol began again after a long pause, "I ought to tell you something. I don't believe Bob would have liked me if I hadn't somehow or other reminded him of his son Ted."

ONE moment Carol Endicott was edging her way on skis, in what she proudly felt was a workmanlike manner past a small ravine. The next, one ski had twisted in a bush higher than her head, and one ankle was unaccountably loose beneath her, so that her foot seemed to be turning round to look at her reproachfully. A mere mouthful of snow had dislodged itself under Carol's light weight and unobtrusively bundled both itself and her into the bottom of the ravine, but it had sufficed to work this sudden miracle.

For a moment Carol felt more guilty than hurt.

"I won't shout at once, till I see if I can't get out by myself," she thought defensively. "Bob would think me such a little idiot to fall in here, and he'd be rather proud of me if I found my own way out." [Many skiers have accidents, Carol reassured herself by thinking, and since there is only one rôle for a young English girl to play in any accident, and that is the rôle of an unruffled heroine, let her then play that!] The worst of having married a man who was a champion skier was that he was liable to think rather scornfully of an untrained wife, and also liable to be on the top of a mountain when his wife fell into a ravine at the bottom. In this case, Carol told herself mournfully, it wasn't even the same mountain.

But the fiery pain in her ankle did not die down. It became every instant more savage, and Carol found that, wriggle as she might, she could do nothing to dislodge the foot in the tree, nor make the injured one change its reproachful attitude. She rightly came to the conclusion that she had broken her ankle, and had better be helped out of the ravine. She gave a playful, ladylike shout, but there was no answer. Adolf Schieffrigger, her ski teacher, should be on the lookout for accidents like this, but as a matter of fact he had warned the school against the edges of ravines only the day before, and had not been watching Carol, who had from the first rather lagged behind the rest of them. Her first shout only reached the top of the ravine and the school was by now out of sight.

Carol Finds Herself Unable to Move

Schieffrigger had counted his flock several times over already and, having now succeeded in shepherding them into a circle of diminutive foothills, which, while reminding his pupils of the Matterhorn, seemed to him the merest child's play, he sat down on his wind-jacket and was proceeding to take an afternoon snack. No one heard anything more of Carol, altho one lady said afterward she had heard some one yodeling in the distance as she supposed for fun.

Silence closed over Carol. The sky above the ravine was a firm, intense blue, fitting over it like a lid.

The first thing to do in an avalanche, Bob had told Carol, was to get rid of your skis, but how could she get rid of hers when she couldn't reach the foot in the tree, and something warned her on no account to touch the other one? It was no use giving you rules for accidents, Carol thought, when the accidents themselves prevented you from carrying them out.

All she could do was to lie and look at the grim blue lid above her, or the odd and sometimes beautiful studies of the snow heaped on the bushes. She thought less pleasantly of these, when one of them hurled its entire contents without a hint of warning upon her upturned face. When Carol had shaken it off, she started shouting again and this time she found herself shouting in a much less ladylike way.

She was two miles away from the little town in Sauerfeld, but there might be farms well within reach, even if none of the school could still hear her.

Carol went on shouting at short intervals and with determination, but nothing happened. It was a cold day and the sun had begun to go down, when once it had gone there would be a very sharp drop of temperature indeed.

Carol didn't mean to be unkind to Bob, but she began to think that he had overlooked the main duty of a husband. Before the next half hour was over, without meaning to be unkind to Bob, Carol had gone very far down the road of marital vituperation, altho it did not do her any particular good. What was the use of beating an unresponsive image in your mind while the real Bob was gliding, with innocent exhilaration over far-away mountains?

The pathos of Bob's situation began to dawn upon Carol. She did not dare, somehow or other, to think about the pathos of her own. Poor Bob, so much older than she was—so brave, so reckless, so extremely competent, and having already had to face tragedy so many times! For Bob had lost both his sons by a previous marriage, each in a disaster, and probably neither of these clumsy fatalities would have occurred if their father had been there to deal with them! One son had been swept away by an avalanche, and the other killed on a motorcycle. What had drawn Bob to Carol had been her strange likeness to his younger boy. Lying there, slowly freezing in the trap of snow, Carol saw again the light leap into Bob's eyes at their first meeting.

He had caught sight of her across the floor of a Bauern Stube. She was dancing, and the party of skiers, to which Bob belonged, had come in for a drink on their way home.

Carol hadn't met Bob before, tho, like every one else in Sauerfeld, she knew him well by sight.

When those fierce, delighted eyes challenged her across the Stube, Carol had smiled back.

She had hardly been conscious of the invitation her eyes had held, but Bob had been conscious of it. He had crossed the room, in two swift strides, and taken her straight out of her partner's arms; nor had he let her go again till far on into the night.

A Voice Answers Her Last Outcry

Ah, if she could only feel once more the close, hard grip of his arms! Bob danced magnificently, as he did everything else. Carol tried to swallow a lump in her throat that seemed to be growing larger and larger. They had been wonderfully happy, even if he was 20 years older than she, and even if people had been horrible, too, about Bob's first wife! All the busybodies of Sauerfeld taking sides and behaving as if a perfectly ordinary undisputed divorce was a sort of crime!

Carol herself had never come into the case at all, and had been properly married to Bob. After the decree had been pronounced, even her own parents, tho tiresome about the marriage at first, had accepted it without a qualm, and yet people behaved as if Carol and Bob ought to leave Sauerfeld, just because that aggravating woman insisted on remaining there!

The first Mrs. Endicott was also a first class skier, but there were other places than Tyrol, where she could keep her tops of mountains to herself! Fortunately she didn't dance, and hadn't a café habit, so they weren't obliged to meet often. Still, with only one village street, Carol had got to know the lean, tall, muscular figure uncomfortably well by sight.

Carol started shivering; was it only the cold that made her flesh creep and her teeth chatter, or was it the memory of those light eyes in the lined, leathery face that never moved when the first Mrs. Endicott passed Carol in the street. They were like pools of glacier water, those hard eyes, so blue, so still, so cold!

People said freezing to death was easy, but those who said so couldn't have tried it. Carol wasn't comfortably sleepy, she was agonizingly awake. She felt as if the cold had invisible claws and was slowly pinching her to death between them. It had been a long time before the thought of death had reached Carol's conscious mind, but she began to think about it now. The pain in her ankle was furious, it was a grinding, demoralizing pain, stabbing at every nerve.

Carol still shouted at intervals, using her strength to its fullest limit; in between her shouts she cried till the tears froze her eyelashes together and made her stiffened cheeks immovable.

Carol began to feel confused. She lost the sense of where she was, or what was happening to her. The blue shadows between the trees took odd shapes, and once she was almost sure she saw a wolf with burning eyes.

She tried to fix her mind on Bob again. She couldn't remember their love, she could only remember the sorrow she had seen in his eyes for his dead sons. Once Bob had said to her, "Your hair is just like Ted's."

"I won't fail him," Carol roused herself to cry fiercely. "He shan't have to go thru it again. Not a third time!" She drew the last remaining strength of her body into one desperate call.

Was it an echo that answered her? "I suppose one can have mirages in one's ears, too," Carol told herself tremblingly, but the echo gave her courage to shout back, and then clearly, far more clearly than her own shout, Carol heard the answering voice. It was coming nearer her, it wasn't only in her brain, it was close by, the snow above the top of the ravine rustled under some one's feet. She saw a figure standing against the skyline, a tall, dark shadow that might be Bob himself. The figure took off its skis and tied them together. The neat movements, the small rustling sounds stretched time until it seemed to split. Very little of Carol was still conscious, her eyes were half filmed over, and she could not move her chin to shout again. But the rustling grew steadily louder, the figure needed no guidance, it was descending in carefully directed plunges. There was light enough left for Carol to see that weatherbeaten face and to look into those glacier eyes.

It was not Bob who had come to her rescue after all; it was Bob's wife, the first Mrs. Endicott. But had she come to her rescue? The clear eyes looked strangely into Carol's, they flickered as if the spirit behind them was unsure of its own purpose.

"Now she will kill me," Carol thought, roused to fresh terror, "or worse still just leave me here to die. She has a right to leave me. I made Bob leave her."

Love had swept them off their feet; how often Carol had fallen back on that consoling cliche. But there is always the question of where one's feet are first. Like the ravine, for instance, a foot or two farther from the edge would have made all the difference to the loosened snow.

"He didn't want to leave her at first," Carol reminded herself. "He said, 'I oughtn't to see you again; I'm married.' And Carol had answered, 'Does that matter?'"

"You seem to have got yourself into a pretty pickle," the first Mrs. Endicott said in a clear, cheerful voice. "That ankle's broken, isn't it? Well, we'll get the other foot out of the tree first, anyhow."

Bob's Former Wife Extricates Carol

Apparently she was going to save Carol. She freed the one foot from its precarious position, quickly and neatly snapping it out of its ski, then she dealt as neatly but much more carefully with the injured foot. She drew out a big pocket knife, split one of her sticks and cut the boot open, firmly binding the ankle between two pieces of stick with a ski binder. It hurt a good deal, but the ankle no longer felt so wickedly uncertain and, being set free to swell, lessened the sharpest agony.

"There is only one thing to do now," the unemotional, clipped voice remarked, "and that is for you to get on my back. I shall crouch close to you, you must roll toward me and put your arms round my neck. I can hold the bad leg steady, the other you must use to grip with. I shall have to have one hand free to climb out by."

But how could she get on to this creature's back, Carol asked herself querulously; how could she be supposed to move herself at all? She was wedged into something far more adhesive than mere earth. She couldn't get out; and by this time she had begun to doubt if she even wanted to! Wouldn't it be better to lie still and not be rescued? She had forgotten Bob, and this restless, energetic figure rustling about so close to her seemed merely a new danger.

NEXT SUNDAY—"MABEL'S HOUSE," ANOTHER GREAT SHORT STORY, BY ETHEL LINA WHITE

The pain in her ankle was furious. It was a grinding, demoralizing pain, stabbing at every nerve.

The straight back reared itself closer; at any rate Carol was glad she hadn't got to look into those inhuman eyes again. It was bad enough to see the line of neck between the cap and the windcoat.

"Now roll toward me," the tranquilly authoritative voice suggested. "You'll feel freer when you've once moved. I'll give you a hoist."

Her whole body tore itself upward. She was no longer on the ground, she was swinging in the moveless air.

The blue lid of the sky moved upward, but the sides of the ravine still stared white and cold above them pitilessly high, punctuated with black tree stems.

Up they crawled somehow, in a series of heaves and pauses. What it felt like to the first Mrs. Endicott, Carol had no idea.

She moved forward, with the weight of Carol on her back, thru the deep snow in a series of crablike movements, with the help of pine stems and underbrush. Probably she left all emotions about it to Carol. She just moved. When she saw she could get a firm grip above her, and that the snow was capable of holding under her feet, she swung herself up and waited to make a fresh plan for the next plunge.

It was difficult to judge the depth of the snow, but on an upward slope it did not vary greatly. The first Mrs. Endicott just managed to keep the injured leg from the side of the trees, and the frozen girl on her back; that was all she had set out to do; if the snow held they would get her to the top, the frost was on their side, nor did it occur to her to ask what she would do if the snow loosened.

They reached the top of the ravine in safety close to Mrs. Endicott's skis, and as soon as she had recovered enough breath to speak she said to Carol:

"I'm going to slip you off on your good side into the snow. You'll be all right, and I've got to put my skis on."

A gasping voice cried, "You won't leave me?"

Carol Awakens to Find Herself Safe

Mrs. Endicott, putting on her skis, with her back turned to Carol, said, "No, certainly not," conclusively, rather than kindly. Then she stood up, looking taller and leaner than ever. She seemed always to be looking down on Carol from a great height with those enigmatic eyes. They did not express either scorn or pity. They expressed nothing.

"Now," Mrs. Endicott said briskly, "I've got to hold you in front of me on my skis; you'll face me, with your hands on my hips. Take a good grip. I'll tie this leg to the other so that it won't dangle. All you've got to do is to hold on. We shall move rather fast, but don't be afraid. I'm rather a steady skier, and it's the easiest possible slope. There's a farm halfway down. Put all your weight on that good foot."

Carol found herself swung up again, facing her enemy.

It was terrible to have to look into that steady face, but somehow or other the question of enmity seemed to have dropped.

Carol was being held, like a frozen bird, between those firm, warm hands.

They were off. It was a real flight, fantastic, swift, and terrible. Yet it had a thrilling quality that made it akin to ecstasy.

Carol felt nothing but the air; she saw nothing but the white flicker of snow under the driving blades.

The only firmness in a flying world was in the hands that held her.

"I can't stand any more," Carol said to herself. "This is the end. I shall just have to drop."

The pace slackened.

A chalet shot up close to them in the colorless light.

"Drop if you like now," said the first Mrs. Endicott.

When Carol came round she found herself lying on a mattress, at some distance from a big stove in a shadowy kitchen. She did not want to be any nearer the stove, for she was pricking and burning all over, as if she were being eaten alive by an army of ants.

A tub of snow stood close to the mattress and the first Mrs. Endicott was kneeling beside her, cruelly but deftly rubbing the snow by turns over Carol's face, ears, hands, and feet.

"Nothing has come off," her hard, cheerful voice proclaimed. "It's all surface frost bite, and you'll be none the worse for it in the end."

At intervals the awful rubbing ceased, and Carol found her head firmly against a shoulder as unyielding as a wooden board, while hot glue wein was being poured into the corner of her stiffened mouth.

Nothing else was alive in the room but a cat preoccupied with its own comfort and wholly indifferent to their strange activities. Carol had no idea how long Mrs. Endicott had been rubbing her, or how much glue wein she had swallowed, but the warmth began to come back to her in slow waves.

There was very little light in the room, and no sound but the heavy beat of a grandfather clock on the wall.

"There was only an old crone here, but I managed to get her going," Mrs. Endicott explained apologetically. "I didn't think she'd be much good to you, so I sent her off to the village. She'll take her time over it, but she knows what to do. I've sent for guides and a stretcher and Col. Endicott if he is in the village. Probably the guides will know where he is." She spoke the name of her late husband as if she had never made his acquaintance.

After she had spoken she carried the tub of snow out of doors, and when she came back there was for the moment nothing more for her to do, so she sat down behind Carol at some distance from the mattress.

All Carol's moral and personal thoughts had fogged off into the direct simplicity of her needs, but now very slowly and uncomfortably they began to clear themselves into her mind again.

This woman, sitting so quietly in the shadowy room, was Bob's first wife.

"I didn't know you were like this," Carol said at last defensively, when she could no longer stand the loneliness of her thoughts. "You see—Bob never told me what you were like. He never told me anything at all about you—or about your life together. Never—anything."

"Why should he?" the quiet voice replied. "There was nothing to tell that concerned you. Our life was over. I should not have expected him to speak of me."

This hurt Carol more than she had expected; but not wholly for herself. It hurt her for Bob; it seemed to make him a sort of outcast, and it hurt Carol worst of all for this other woman, of whom it was natural for Bob not to speak.

"Then you really," Carol began again, sorting out her words with difficulty, "I mean you really had a life together? It wasn't, as I had always supposed, that you just didn't hit it off? I'd supposed—I'd hoped—that you didn't care."

The silence shut itself against Carol as if it had an active quality.

"I think," Carol began again after a long pause. "It's only fair! I think I ought to tell you something. I don't believe Bob would have liked me if I hadn't somehow or other reminded him of his son Ted."

There was a still longer silence after this, but it was less hostile.

At length the still figure moved. "Yes, I had noticed that," said the first Mrs. Endicott.

"Perhaps," Carol went on, encouraged by even this slight response, "perhaps it's been a disappointment to him that I haven't been more like you are. I've noticed that he goes off more and more on these long ski tours—that was why I was trying to learn. I wish you'd tell me something—something to help me with him. He's more like you really than he is like me. I don't mean it's only those 20 years—he's definitely more like!"

"You can hardly expect me to give you a recipe for keeping husbands," the first Mrs. Endicott answered with a grim, half amused chuckle, "since I've so signally failed to keep my own."

She Learns Why Other Woman Stayed

Carol turned this over in her mind for a long time. The savage pain of the bites was growing less, even her ankle only throbbed in massive discomfort, but the pain in her mind had grown more acute.

"Why did you stay here?" Carol burst out at last. "It's made it so terribly hard. I don't mean only for us—tho I've sometimes thought it's why Bob hates ever to be in the valley. But for yourself! It must be so terribly cruel for you to go on living here alone—where you used to be together. Why do you do it? Why don't you go away somewhere else—where you'd never have to see us—never have to think about us any more?"

It seemed at first as if the first Mrs. Endicott was not going to answer any more of Carol's questions, but at last she said stiffly:

"It was my home. One has a certain feeling for any place where one has watched the seasons change thru the years. I have always lived a great deal in the open air; one can here, you know, winter or summer. The people here, too, suit me. . . ."

She stopped, but Carol did not think she had finished, and after a long pause she said reluctantly, as if the words were being dragged out of her, "My boys liked the place, too."

Carol was silent, but she was only thinking over how she could best put together—not an excuse, but a sort of reason for Bob's having left the first Mrs. Endicott.

"Don't you think," she pleaded at last, "that it was really loving them that made Bob like me? It's the same thing, isn't it, perhaps that makes him go off so, all alone to the tops of mountains? Don't you think he's wanting all the time—and perhaps only wanting—to escape from the memory of having lost them? Not to have to think about them any more?"

Mrs. Endicott got up, went to the door and opened it, looking out for a long time into the clearness of the night, swept clean by frost and sown thick with stars.

"I thought I heard them coming," she said at last, turning back to Carol. "One hears a long way off in this clear air. I am sorry I had no morphia with me; I was not on a tour, or of course I should have had some with me. You are a brave girl, otherwise I could have been no use to you. As to what you say, I have sometimes thought it might be partly true. He needed to escape from his grief, whereas to me it was a sort of companion. 'Here I and sorrow sit'—I suppose it was like that. After 20 years of marriage you will find a certain integration takes place—and it is difficult for one person not to affect, and even to invade, the personality of the other.

"I have thought over what you have said. I can't be of any further use to you, I am afraid, except to tell you that I believe it is worth while to assist this—this integration to take place. One cannot foresee the chances of life, but they are unlikely to be as adverse to you as they were to us. Besides, even in our case I think—I think what took place between us was worth while."

"Tell me this—just tell me this one thing more," Carol entreated, "before they come. Why did you help me? I thought when you saw me first—your eyes looked—couldn't you have killed me?"

"Quite easily," the first Mrs. Endicott said dryly.

Bob Reveals Finality of His Marital Break

Once more she rose and went to the door. This time Carol, too, heard far away the click of nailed boots upon the icy path. Mrs. Endicott left the door ajar so that no time need be lost in carrying in the stretcher, then she moved back behind Carol's mattress to where the light would not fall upon her face.

"The reason I didn't kill you," she said quietly, "was because you were another human being—and an injured one. Now I could add another reason. You are a good girl in your way. I think that you may help Bob if you are true to him."

Carol heard her husband's voice. He came in with that great swinging stride she loved, but as he reached her side he was brought up short by the sight of the figure standing behind her.

"Katherine!" he exclaimed.

He said the first Mrs. Endicott's name in a most curious way, as if he knew that he belonged to her and wondered what she was going to do about it. She did nothing.

Carol was not again aware of her except as an unstumbling presence, walking in rhythm with the guide who helped her carry the feet of the stretcher.

When they reached Sauerfeld and stopped at the door of the hotel, a crowd gathered round them. Without either Carol or Bob having seen what happened, the first Mrs. Endicott exchanged her burden with an onlooker and slipped away unnoticed.

When Carol found herself at last alone with her husband, soothed by morphia, safer and warmer than she had ever felt in her life, she pressed her head against his shoulder and began to cry.

"Bob," she whispered thru her easy tears, for it was quite impossible to feel very unhappy when she was so perfectly comfortable, "Bob, oughtn't you to go back to her?"

Her husband lay stretched out beside her on the bed, he stared down at her golden head in the crook of his shoulder.

"That's nonsense," he said in an odd, thick voice, "there's nothing to go back to. Besides, Katherine wouldn't take me. I broke up everything."

"But did you, did you really?" Carol protested, forcing him to meet her eyes. "When you said 'Katherine' I thought it sounded as if you still belonged to her."

"Well—yes," her husband admitted, speaking as if each word he uttered hurt him with a separate hurt, "in a sense I suppose I do belong to her. It's difficult to explain. You can't go thru—all that—and get rid of it in a moment. Besides, we suited each other. We both had strong wills and we fought a lot—but we respected each other—it was a real marriage! What there was of it is hers—not mine any more. I lost it; but I haven't lost that feeling that I'm hers still—if she wanted me. What I've lost is her. She hasn't lost me! Do you see what I mean?"

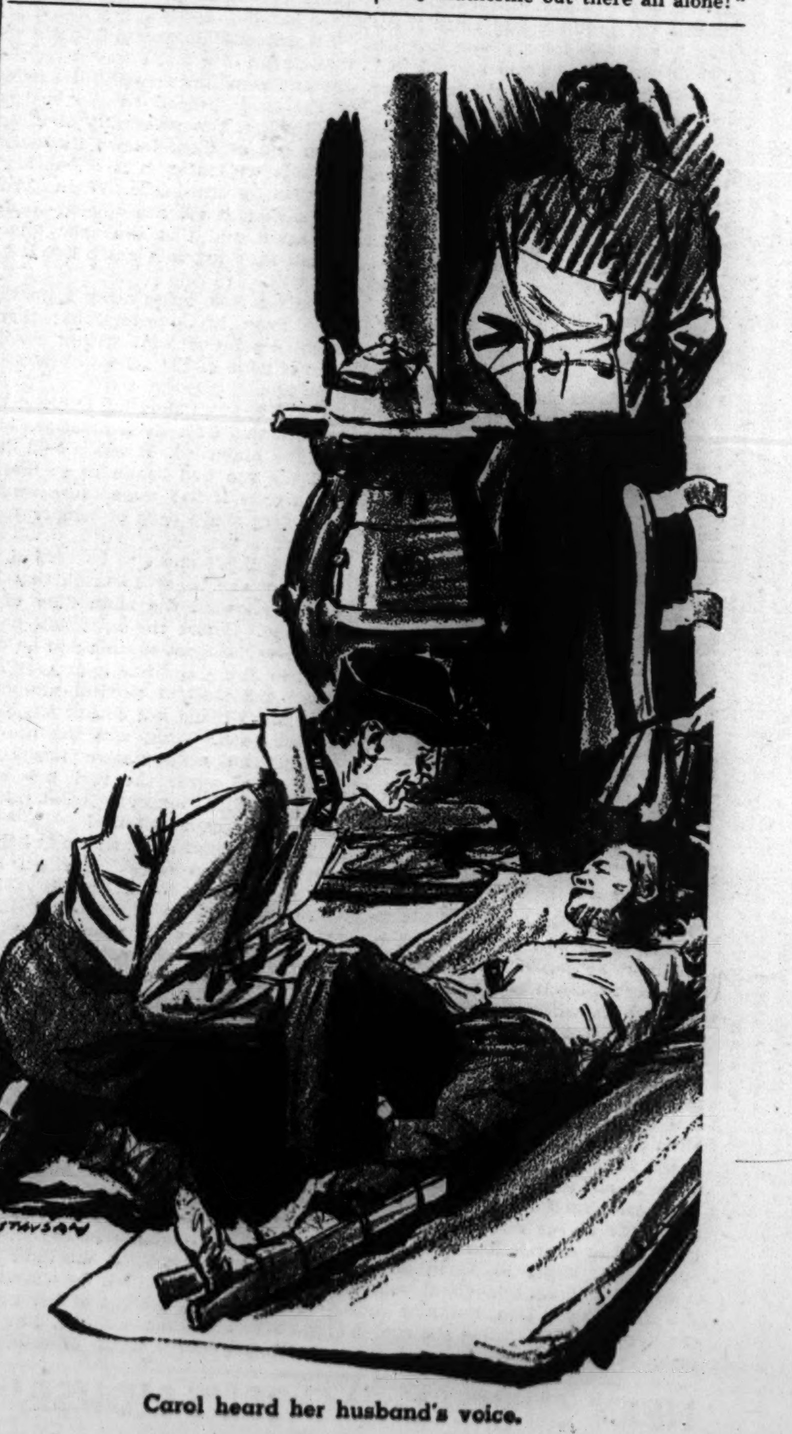
"Yes," Carol whispered. "I hate to—but I see it—I see it—because of knowing her! If I'd known her before—well then—it couldn't—any of it—have happened. But—but it has happened! Bob, I am yours!"

"You are mine," he said, holding her closer, "and as far as I am concerned you always will be mine. Still if I'd come on a man—that you had chucked me for—freezing to death in a ravine, I'd have let him freeze!"

"You mean—she loved you best? Better than I do? Better than you love me—or ever loved her? Is that what you mean, Bob?" Carol persisted, her lips against his throat.

He gave a long hopeless sigh, half sob, half laughter.

"I'm damned if I do know altogether what I mean," he admitted, "but if I didn't believe we could find together whatever it was I lost when I lost Katherine—if I didn't believe you'd help me to find it—well then—lying here with you in my arms—I'd envy Katherine out there all alone!"



Carol heard her husband's voice.

INSTALMENT XIV.

DAMNING guilt worked upon the lessening fear and agony in Bodkin's visage.

"Now will yu go for yore gun?" demanded Brazos.

"No—you—hydrophobia bitten cowhand!"

Crash! Brazos shot the other leg out from under Bodkin. Still the sheriff did not fall, nor this time did he scream out. He sagged a little, until his knee on the chair upheld him. Then the horrid expression faded, smoothed out his face, and into it came a vestige of the realization of death and a dark desire to take his merciless adversary with him. He let go of the chair with his right hand and drew his gun. Brazos let him swing it upward.

Then Brazos leaped aside and shot. Bodkin's gun boomed so close afterward that the two shots seemed simultaneous. But Bodkin's bullet crashed thru the window and Brazos' reached its mark. Bodkin slumped over the chair, his arms hanging, his head dropping, and on the instant his grip on his gun loosened to let it clatter on the floor.

Then the cowboy faced the ill assorted group of men who had assembled there as Bodkin's guests. They stood as if petrified.

"Henderson, yu're in bad company," rang out Brazos, "an' no matter what yore excuse, it'll be remembered in Las Animas. Miller, I'm brandin' yu as hand in glove with this Surface outfit. Yu business men an' yu strangers all know Bodkin now for what he was. An' I reckon thet'll be aboot all for Brazos Keene in Colorado."

Brazos Heads South Toward Home Country

Brazos rode away from Las Animas at dawn, as the sun was reddening the gray landscape, without ever once looking back, as he had done so often in his tumultuous range life.

His heading for the south, however, with the lean eager nose of his horse Bay turned toward Texas, had an air of finality. Thirst for adventure and even for romance, had been effectually killed. As Brazos took to the well-worn cattle trail, he felt sick and old and unhappy. He reflected that he would recover from the former, which was mostly revulsion at the shedding of blood, but he doubted that he would ever be young or happy again.

For long days he rode along, shunning the cow camps, going around several little towns, camping at water holes and living upon the food he had packed. He made a gloomy and strange traveler. The gray miles filed past and every one of them seemed a dropped fetter.

In due course the bitter dregs of his last killing orgy wore out of his stomach. But the sense of loss still pressed heavily upon him.

Brazos knew his despair had to do with a broken heart. That suspectible member had been broken often before, and the time he had ridden away from Holly Ripple he thought it could never be mended. Nevertheless he had been mistaken.

Despite the stress of his emotions, however, Brazos could not prevent the influence of the open and the solitude. There was something healing in the waving grass, the swales and green flats, the winding tree-bordered river bottoms, and the distant uplands. Autumn promised to meet him soon with its golden and gorgeous Indian summer.

The dry fragrant breeze soft in his face, the poise of hawk and bound of jack rabbit, and the slipping away into the willows of deer, the gradual drawing from sight of cattle herds, the warming color in the distance, the smell of dust that at times rose from the clip-clop of Bay's tireless hoofs, the cottonwood grove where he had once camped, the great sycamore tree on the bank of the Purgatory where he had helped to hang a horse thief, the subtle essence of the lovely land which had been so much in his life—these wore upon him more and more until his old philosophy got hold of him again, and reason made clear the change in his life, and that with his marvelous memory he could not be anything else but appreciative even with his broken heart.

The day came when Brazos' trail led to the sleepy village of Hooker, where he purchased a blanket and as much food supply as Bay could carry. Once over the line into the Pan Handle, towns would be few and far between. When he rode across the Texas line it seemed as definite a break as riding out of Las Animas. He was in his beloved Texas land. Yet how he had loved Colorado!

Thereafter travel became leisurely. There was now no need of hurry, if there had ever been, and he could think of Bay and be easy on the great horse.

When one late afternoon Brazos rode down toward a gold and scarlet creek bottom, he experienced a singular revivifying sensation. All that Texas range beyond he knew as well as if it had been a treasured book. Camp that night was one of divided memories—the old trail driving days vied with the poignant experience he had left behind in Colorado. He sat up late before his ruddy little camp fire, remembering, dreaming, yet unable to banish the thought of June and Janis.

It would not be long now, as days went, until he arrived at Camp Supply, on the Chisholm Trail. After that there would not be much more lonely traveling for him. He would meet cattle trains coming north across Texas on their way to Abilene and Dodge. And he would meet trail drivers riding south. He would find company. At the posts he would be known.

The deep wide rut in the prairie that was the old Chisholm Trail which he had ridden so often with cowboys as wild as himself, led on and on down thru the gray vastness of Texas. There was a comradeship in the old trail. One day was like another. He continued to make wide detours around settlements and wagon trains and herds of cattle.

Brazos came at length to Doan's Crossing. He was amazed to find himself so far down in Texas, arriving at one of the famous old posts of the frontier. Hungry and travel-stained, with Bay gone lame and needing rest, Brazos was forced to halt.

"Just as wal," he soliloquized. "Reckon I cain't be a lone wolf forever. I gotta live. A little more of this lone prairie will make me dotty."

Turning away from the great trail at the crossing, Brazos rode toward the post. It stood back from the river and appeared different. Then he saw that Doan's Crossing had grown to be a settlement. The huge rambling trading post, its adobe walls red in the westering sun, appeared the same as the picture in his memory. But it fronted on the corner of a wide street that stretched far between gray flat houses and red walled buildings. Back from this typical western street, full of dust and vehicles and houses, scattered cottages and shacks and tents grew up to the rise of the gray prairie.

"Wal, dog-gone me!" ejaculated Brazos, mildly. "Tom Doan has shore thrown up a metropolis."

If there was a trail herd in from the south it would account for the saddle horses standing bridles down, and the lounging riders, and the sloe-eyed swarthy Indians, but hardly for the life and bustle of that street. As Brazos slid wearily out of his saddle a lanky young Texan met him with a keen gaze.

"Howdy, rider. Air you stayin' over?"

"Howdy, young feller. I reckon my hawse is lame. Will yu put him up and look after him?"

"Yu bet," replied the lad, taking the bridle.

"Tom Doan heah yet?"

"Shore. Tom's heah, big as life. Yu been heah before?"

"Say, Tex, this old dobe post wouldn't be heah now but for me," drawled Brazos, as he untied his coat and saddle bags.

"Wal, yu don't say?" queried the lad, his keen blue eyes taking Brazos in with Texas perspicacity. "Mister, there's Doan comin' oot."

Brazos' glance lighted upon a tall Texan approaching. Same old Tom Doan! Brazos could have picked him out of a hundred Texans, tho they all were sandy haired, sallow-faced, with slits of gray fire for eyes. Brazos was used to scrutiny and he met it here in full measure. It gave him the first quick beat of pulse for days. He was home in Texas all right.

"Howdy, stranger. Get down an' come in," was the greeting. "Hevn't I seen yu before?"

"Tom, I reckon I'm starved and thin and black with this heah dust an' beard. But it's a downright insult for yu not to know me."

Doan straighten up from his close scrutiny. His still lined visage broke into a broad smile.

"Wal, talk of the devil an' heah he is!—Brazos Keene!"

"Yep, it's Keene all right, only not the boy yu knowed. How air yu, Tom?"

The warm smile, the glad flash of Texas eyes, the hard grip, and the hand on his shoulder thrilled some of the cold weariness out of Brazos.

"I reckon I'm downright glad to see yu, Tom," he responded, hoarsely.

"Say, you're spittin' cotton. Come in, boy, an' hev a drink."

"Wal, I need one, Tom. But not red likker."

The Old Post Has Become a Town

Doan led Brazos thru a lane of curious riders, into the post. The huge interior, its adobe walls decorated with Indian designs and ornaments, the colored blankets and utensils hanging from the rafters, the counters laden with merchandise, and the shelves packed with a miscellaneous collection of stores, and especially the great open fireplace at the end—all these appeared just the same as if he had seen them yesterday. But there was a wide door that Brazos did not remember. It led into a saloon full of smoke and noise. Dusty booted and shirt-sleeved westerners stood at a long bar; Indians in buckskin lounged back along the wall; gamblers sat intent at their tables.

"Tom, what the hell has come off aboot heah?" asked Brazos, after he had quenched his thirst.

"Brazos, we've growed up. Doan's Crossing is a town," replied the host, proudly.

"Hell, Tom, I ain't blind. But how come? There never was nothin' heah. Wal, nothin' but buffalo, Injuns, an' trail herd rustlers."

Doan laughted. "So we used to think, cowboy. But we was blind. There's rich land heah. Lots of farms. Plenty ranches. Fine grass an' water. We've got a growin' town. A dozen stores an' more, too many saloons, a school an' a church an' a doctor. I've added a hotel to my post. Turnin' 'em away some days. Two stages a week, herds still trailin' north, travel heavy. Aw, Doan's Crossin' is boomin'."

"Wal, dog-gone! I'm shore glad, Tom. But who ever would have reckoned on it?"

"I did for one, Brazos. . . . Where yu headin'?"

"West of the Pecos," replied Keene, ponderingly, his gaze averted.

"Aw! Don't tell me yu are on the dodge, Brazos?"

"Not atall. I reckon I did get in bad up Colorado way. But thet county I cleaned up will be so glad aboot it they'd fire any sheriff who put oot strings for me."

"Ah-huh. Wal, I hain't heerd nothin' an' I ain't askin'."

"Good . . . Tom, I want a room an' hot water. Last time I was heah I slept on the counter out there. Recollect thet?"

"I shore do. An' you didn't need no bath, 'cause you an' Herb Ellerslie got piled off in the river."

"Gosh!—Tom yu do remember heaps. Did I by any chance owe yu some money?"

"Nope. Anyway thet's too long ago to remember."

"Tom, yu're a liar. What become of Herb Ellerslie?"

"Shot, Brazos. Shot at Dodge by a gambler named Cardigan."

"Aw, no! I'm sorry. Herb an' I were pretty thick on the trail. Cardigan? I'll remember thet name. How aboot Wess Tanner?"

"Jest fine. Wess drove thru—let's see—along in August. He raved aboot one of them electric storms. Come to think of it, Wess will be along any day now. He's foreman for

But Bodkin's bullet crashed thru the window and Brazos' reached its mark.

What Has Gone Before

Brazos Keene has become a lonely line-riding exile because of his hopeless love for Holly Ripple, who has married some one else. He bunks in a vacant cabin and is arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bodkin the next morning for the murder of Allen Neece, whose body is found in the loft of the cabin. Brazos outwits Bodkin and surrenders to Sheriff Kiskadden, whereupon a letter from Holly clears him and throws suspicion on Surface, to whom Allen's father has just lost his ranch, Twin Sombreros. Brazos starts investigating Surface and the deal he has given the elder Neece and his twin daughters, June and Janis. He falls in love with June, but has a hard time distinguishing her from her sister. He feigns love for Lura Surface and learns that a girl was used to lure Allen to his death. Later Brazos discovers that Surface is plotting to get this same girl, Bess Syvertsen, to lure him into a trap where her supposed father, Bard Syvertsen, and Orcutt can murder Brazos. Instead Bess falls in love with Brazos and refuses to carry out the murder plot. Brazos confronts Bard and Orcutt, shooting it out with them, killing both. Bess, thinking Brazos has made a fool of her, draws a gun on him, and he saves his life by wounding her in the arm. She signs a confession and Brazos puts her on a train with money enough to get away. He then exposes Surface and before running him out of town makes him return the gold stolen from Neece and restore Twin Sombreros to the Neece family. Bodkin is elected sheriff, and Brazos learns that he is carrying on the crooked operations of cattle stealing that Surface once headed. Brazos goes to work for Neece, and, tho he is engaged to June, he finds himself making love to Janis, and, thinking she is June, has also asked her to marry him. When confronted by both girls he realizes that both are in love with him, and he discovers that tho he is still very much in love with June for her sweetness and depth, he also loves Janis for her fire and passion. He tells them of his dilemma and leaves the ranch. Arriving in town, he finds the new rustlers active and shoots it out with their head, Bart Knight, and attempts to make Bodkin shoot it out with him also.

Good 'Dates' Few, Says Girl and Tells Why

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: The thought occurred to me that since we girls all are supposed to turn over a new leaf and become models of perfection, it might be a good idea to hand out a set of 'don'ts' for the so-called stronger sex to lend an ear to.

"So, I'll start off with a few 'pet peeves,' and not my own personal peeves, either, for I've known quite a few girls to have just as hard a time finding suitable escorts as the boys claim to have finding dancing partners.

"No. 1 on the list, and second in obnoxiousness only to No. 2, is the 'take 'em out and drag 'em down' type. He'll take you out, waltz you around the floor a few times, and try to squeeze the life out of you on the way home. If you don't think there are quite a few like him, you don't know the 'modern man,' and he's not confined solely to the so-called younger generation, either. Of course, you can usually argue it out of him in time, but after a while you get a bit tired of arguing and proving that you're not the 'type,' so you just swear off for a few weeks and decide to stay home and read a book instead. He seems to resent the fact that he has to spend his 'hard-earned' money taking you out without getting any returns on his investment, this despite the fact that, in this man's world, he's paid more money for doing less work than you do.

"Second on the list is the most obnoxious one of all. He's the faint-hearted one, who hasn't the courage to be a big, bold man like No. 1, but contents himself with taking little pokes at you now and then, all perfectly innocent, mind you, according to his story, until you're about ready to scream and want to ask him just what his intentions are.

"Then there's No. 3, who sits around all night telling you what a great guy he is and bores you stiff with his bragging.

"No. 4 will take you to the smartest place in town, just to make an impression and then expect you to order the cheapest thing on the bill of fare. Not that we expect caviar and porterhouse steaks when we go 'stepping,' but we'd much rather go to a less expensive place and not risk getting crosseyed from watching the right hand side of the menu.

"And No. 5, who takes you out and spends all evening remarking how beautiful all the other women in the room look. Of course, he never even noticed your new hat and dress.

"Then there's the one who takes you out once and expects two invitations to dinner at your house in return, and the one with the inferiority complex who never is happy when not criticizing your clothes, manners, opinions, education, and anything else he can think of. And others too numerous to mention that could stand a little improvement in the art of being a gentleman.

"So, how about giving the boys a little home work for a change? I think there are a good many of them who could profit by it. But, of course; since they all think they're so perfect, I guess they wouldn't really think the rules could apply to them. And before closing, let me add that there are a few married men I know who could profit by some helpful hints on how to be better husbands, too. DISILLUSIONED."

Men, what's your answer to this letter?

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

In celebration of spring, there is a lovely new perfume. It's not heavy, altho it is a little heady, and you'll like it for the wonderfully simple reason that it's gay!

A perfume has come along—it's brand, sparkling new—that doesn't have any affectation. It doesn't pretend to be of the home-wrecking school, or moon-over Miami-ish, or nostalgic or anything else. It's just gay. And for this small favor we are thankful.

It's always been our idea that women use perfume for the soul-satisfying pleasure it gives them. It bolsters their sense of femininity, and that's a more important function for a perfume than "allure," "glamor," or any other little ideas inspired copy writers think they must concoct.

This new perfume is divinely blithe. It's the kind of scent that makes every day seem like Christmas, if you get what we mean. It has just enough spice to make it exhilarating, and just enough soft warmth to make it come-hitherish and moderately romantic. You'll like it because of what it does for your spirits. Other people will like it, too, but that is incidental, don't you think?

There are women who like heavy perfumes, and if they like them we think they should have them. But those women won't care for this bright new one. It's not at all heavy. While it's a lasting scent, and a highly concentrated one, its character isn't the mow-'em-down type.

It's a youngish kind of a perfume, which probably means that the grown woman will like it. It will step up her appreciation of every moment, every hour she wears it!

The bottle is pretty cute, a slender crystal column with a frill encircling it, and a glass stopper in the form of a perky bow. The box is gray, dotted with confetti and made even gayer by a design of bright colored bows.

"You'll like this perfume because it's fun. And fun is of a value above rubies in this gosh darned world!

Clotilde Children's Patterns

The jumper mode is one of the most popular styles for the young fry. It's a model that is as suitable to little boys as it is to small girls, who have worn it in various forms for generations. The pattern today offers jumper costumes for both sister and junior, and Scotch hats for both, too.

The original models are fashioned of navy blue, lightweight woolen, with the tailored blouses of spanking white piqué. The little girl's blouse has ruffled edging, but the small youth's model is appropriately unadorned.

The costumes may be made of heavy cotton, if you wish. With their sturdy and comfortable shoulder straps, these outfits are practical for the wardrobes of active youngsters.

Style No. 2989 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material for girl's jumper, with 1 yard for blouse. The boy's suit requires ⅞ yard of 35 inch fabric for trousers, with 1 yard for blouse.

Hat pattern No. 2812 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Are you considering modernizing a bathroom in your home this spring? Then why not equip it with new walls as well as new fixtures, walls that will not have to be done over every few seasons, but that will remain for years as good looking as they are the first day?

There are a number of new materials that suggest themselves for this job. Among them are linoleum and porcelain enamel. Linoleum is now available in types especially designed for wall coverings and in colors that are a delight to the eye. Pale blues, light peach, soft pink, creamy yellow, white, light green, and lavendar are just a few of the luscious tones that come in plain effects or in a striated or mottled effect that serves to break up monotonous expanses of wall.

Once the linoleum is on the wall it requires practically no care. When it becomes soiled it can be washed. And, of course, it will not be affected by the hot steam or moisture from the shower bath.

Interesting floors in linoleum can be planned to contrast with or match the side walls. And instead of the old right angles, where baseboards meet the floor, you can have a cove of the floor linoleum which can be extended for a few inches up the wall and can be finished with a narrow band of chromium.

The second excellent material for modernizing your bathroom walls is porcelain enamel, the same thing that has been used on your kitchen range, your kitchen table top and your refrigerator. As you know, it is unfading, unspottable, unburnable, and unbreakable, and it is so easy to keep clean.

It makes the entire room watertight and dirtproof. When it becomes soiled simply go over it with a damp cloth and it will soon look exactly as it did when brand new.

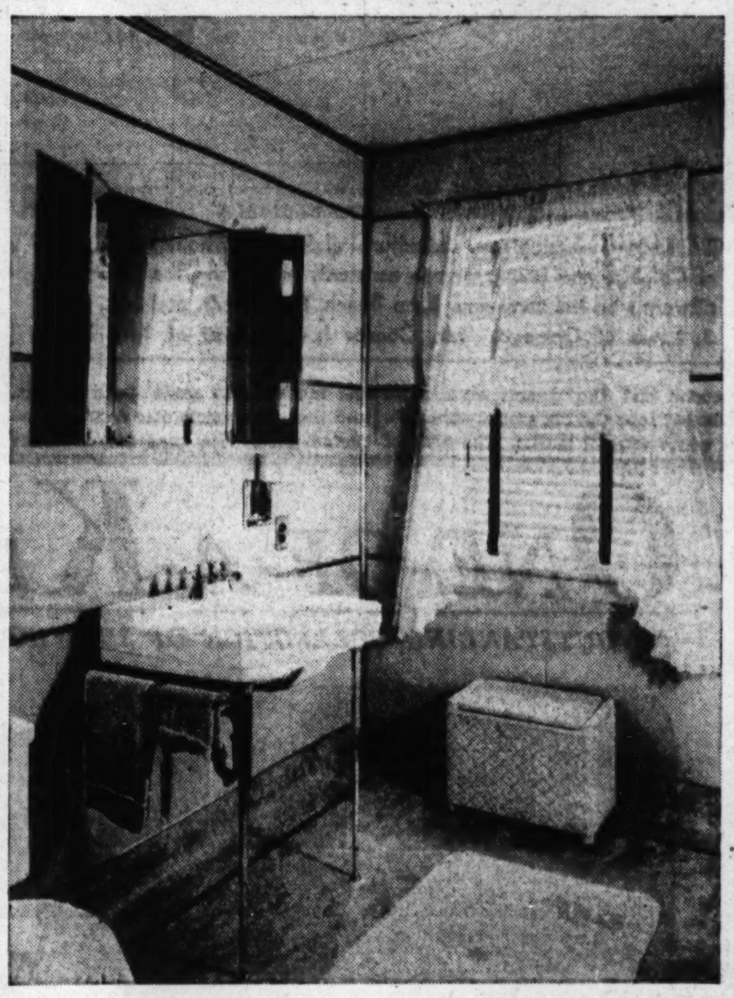
• • •

The photograph today shows this porcelain enamel used in a modern bathroom. As it comes in flat sheets it is clipped into place with stainless steel strips, the divisions between the sheets being permanently sealed with waterproof cement.

Almost any color combination is possible. The one used in the photograph consists of two shades of pastel blue. The fixtures are white. At the window is a Venetian blind of white with blue tapes.

The floor is done in a gray, marbleized linoleum which has a dark blue border stripe. Notice the cove which makes the room so much easier to clean.

Once the porcelain enamel is installed the home manager need not give a thought to color schemes or "doing over." For the walls will be as nearly permanent as any man made product can be.



[Hedrich-Blessing Photo.]

Walls and ceiling of this bathroom are pastel blue porcelain enamel, the same, easy to clean, unfading material you have on your range and refrigerator.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Now that it's time for spring housecleaning, we hope that readers who are straightening out basements and attics will remember that there are hundreds of sparsely furnished homes in the city in which discards will be more than welcome. Furniture which is usable but outmoded can be placed with any of the numerous families having only the bare necessities in their homes. Many are unable to sit down together for meals because they lack chairs. Some use packing boxes. Clothing is kept in cardboard cartons because there is no drawer space. Parents and children are sharing beds because they lack funds to purchase additional ones.

Surplus cooking utensils or dishes which you may have stored away are greatly needed in many poor homes. Baby buggies and cribs of all kinds and sizes always are in demand, and the requests for clothing are endless.

In fact, almost any item, clean and in good repair, may easily be placed with some needy person. We cannot, of course, make use of either clothing or furniture which is soiled or in disrepair, because neither this department nor the persons who come to us for help can provide funds to rehabilitate such items.

If you plan to move, and feel that you will have articles to place, please give us as much time as possible. We cannot, as a rule, arrange to call for anything without at least three days' notice. Persons on our files are generally without telephone service, and we can reach them only by mail. Occasionally applicants need two or three days to make arragements to pay for cartage. So if you're moving on May 1, please don't call on the 30th of this month and ask us to call for things before you move!

Mrs. S.'s letter is typical of the hundreds of requests we have on file.

"Dear Miss Brown: For the last six years my husband and I have been on relief. During part of that time he was employed on WPA. Just lately he went to work for a private concern, and we now are looking forward to having a suitable home for ourselves and our three children.

"We have been living in poorly furnished quarters, and have now found an unfurnished flat. We will be able to pay the rent required, and we wondered if you could help us to get some furniture and bedding. I have a stove, but am badly in need of beds and living room furniture. Anything at all will be greatly appreciated, including a rug or a few old chairs."

This address is on the south side, and Mr. S. will be glad to call for offers.

• • •

Miss S., a social worker, has requested a large crib for a family on relief. The 5 month old baby is now sleeping on a broken davenport. Altho her mother tried to keep chairs against the open side, the baby has fallen several times.

A bed of the same size also is needed for another family in which the baby, over a year old, sleeps with her parents in a three-quarter size bed.

Chicagoan Plans Florida Silk Industry

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. [By Mail].—A new industry will spring up among scrub palmettos of Florida if success crowns experiments now being conducted by Mrs. Frank J. Lewis of Chicago and Palm Beach. Mrs. Lewis, with her husband, is prominent in Chicago church and philanthropic circles. She is busy with the nucleus of what she hopes will be a silk farm, a project that would furnish work for hundreds of Chicago's unemployed.

"I know so many women in Chicago, capable women, who have been forced out of employment by those who are younger," declared Mrs. Lewis, who was the organizer of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women. "I know many families, also, who need the mild climate of Florida for reason of health. Persons such as these would benefit from the success of this venture. Each family would have two acres of ground and a small house. Vegetables for home use could be raised, and each family would constitute a unit of the silk farm."

Mrs. Lewis also is president of a nonsectarian organization which raises funds for milk for the tubercular poor of Chicago. Mr. Lewis is equally interested in the silk worm venture, but she became interested in it first and is the leading spirit in the project.

• • •

"When I wrote to my husband about it, I thought he would consider that I was just the least bit loony," she confesses, "but he became as enthusiastic as I am."

Mr. Lewis is founder and donor of the Lewis Memorial Maternity hospital and also the Lewis School of Aeronautics at Lockport, Ill. He gave the church at the tuberculosis sanitarium, and has been active in numerous other charities.

The Lewises own considerable land in Florida but the silk farm will be situated on 800 acres in Palm Beach county. It is well irrigated by a cross state canal and adjoins land set aside as a state park. At present 5,000 small white mulberry trees are growing and 10,000 more will be set out soon. The leaves of the white mulberry are used as food for the silkworms.

Mrs. Lewis became interested in the manufacture of silk thru the exhibit of Dr. Ludwig Harpootlian, sericulturist, at the Century of Progress. At present she is raising worms and reeling silk on a small scale. Nevertheless, worms, tens of thousands of them, now are gorging themselves on mulberry leaves in the small, temporary cocoonery. Those which have passed the gorging stage now are spinning silk which will be reeled on a machine housed in a special building on the farm. Dr. Harpootlian himself is connected with the Lewis enterprise and is superintending all activities. Mrs. Lewis' nephew, Thomas J. Connor of Chicago, also is connected with the project.

From egg to silk is a process requiring from 25 to 30 days, during which the culturist must feed his worms and look after them as tenderly as would a mother. Each butterfly lays from 500 to 800 eggs at a time. "Great oaks from little acorns grow," but it is difficult to believe that silk for royal robes originates in an egg no larger than a pin point. In fact, the classic riddle of "which comes first, the chicken or the egg?" applies with just as much reason to the silkworm, for the worm becomes a moth and the moth lays the eggs—a silken cycle.

A man who likes to steal a nap in church would do well to take lessons from the silkworm, which sleeps with its head in the air, looking interested and alert, in spite of the fact that it is absolutely inert. Moreover, the silkworm is blind. What seems to be an eye really is a false alarm. It sees nothing. The silkworm is guided purely by instinct.

Silkworms are raised indoors, sheds fitted out with racks being suitable. Good ventilation is necessary, altho the silkworms must not be subjected to drafts. Windows should be opened on one side of the room only, according to the authorities, and that side away from the wind. A correct temperature for the growing worm is about 82 degrees F.

At the Lewis experimental farm multitiered racks were nine feet long, three feet high, and four feet wide. They were fitted with dated paper plates. At first only a few worms appear from the "settings" of the infinitesimal eggs. These are known as "spies" or "scouts." As the worms continue to hatch, those arriving on the same day are kept together on separate trays. Thus, the worms are fed evenly and the newer ones do not go hungry while the older ones push them away from the trough. In this way, too, all in their respective developments are asleep at the switch at the same time. In a few days the worms are fed systematically according to the five ages thru which they pass when they eat and sleep alternately.

Just as junior has his spinach chopped finely, so the mulberry leaves for the fledgling silkworms are cut in strips about ⅛ inch wide. They are fed seven times a day, the leaves becoming coarser until, at the last, the worm is feeding upon the whole leaf. By the end of the fifth "age," which lasts seven days, the worm has filled his silk glands and is ready to do a neat job of spinning, the like of which never was equaled by man-made machinery. Now the silkworm becomes almost transparent, a yellow spot appearing on the head where the false eye is located.

Silkworms, in their natural state, find an anchor for their spinning on twigs, but commercially grown worms are furnished with tailormade anchors, such as sections of egg cartons. Having anchored their thread securely, the worms envelop themselves within cocoons containing 1,000 to 1,400 yards of silk each. Ten days after the spinning begins, holes are pierced in the ends of some of the cocoons and the worms once more look out into the big world, this time as white winged moths. The duty of the moths is to mate, deposit eggs, and then the female, her destiny completed, dies. The eggs are used for propagation. The pierced cocoons from which the moth has emerged are sent to a factory for carding.

At the Lewis farm the greater number of cocoons will remain unpierced. The cocoons will be steamed in a vapor bath for 10 minutes, to kill the chrysalis. This preserves the continuity of the thread which will be reeled on a machine at the farm.

Before the eggs to be used for propagation may be hatched they are subjected to a refrigeration process.

According to Dr. Harpootlian, about 40 pairs of silk hose may be made from 1,000 cocoons. Eight to ten crops a year are possible and the climate of Florida is more favorable for silk raising than that of Japan, he claims.

The silk moth is a native of northern China, where the secret of its production was jealously guarded for centuries. It is said that a traveler brought away the first eggs in a hollow joint of a bamboo cane.

Serious attempts had been made earlier to establish the silkworm in America. King James I. of England offered a liberal bounty to encourage silk raising in Virginia. French Huguenot settlers brought the silkworm with them from France to South Carolina. Efforts also were made in Pennsylvania. At the beginning of the revolutionary war the American colonies actually were exporting 1,000 pounds of silk a year.

Not only Florida, but the entire deep south would be favorable for the sericulturist, the experts say. And if these experts are right, the land o' cotton may become a land o' silk.

Proper Handling Means a Lifetime Wear for Linens

There is no reason why linens shouldn't last at least a lifetime. Each time they are washed the lovelier they should look, provided, of course, they are properly handled.

Roll your fine linens instead of folding them. If you fold them the same way year after year, the creased portions are likely to weaken and tear.

To keep a fine old linen tablecloth from stretching out of shape, pick it up by running your fingers along the edges and gathering the folds in your hands. Picking it up by the corners is likely to drag it on the bias and break weakened threads. Bear this in mind when you launder your linen cloths.

Ordinary every day linens should be washed with the rest of the family washing in hot soapy water after first soaking them in lukewarm suds. Make the first rinse hot and gradually reduce the temperature of the water until the final cool rinse.

Soap and water will remove most stains from linen if it is washed before the stain becomes set. If you must use a chemical stain remover, launder the piece as soon as the chemical has done its work.

In ironing, make sure that the linen is uniformly damp. Wrinkles are often persistent in linen fabrics, so have the iron warm enough to smooth them away.

Concrete First Floor Good Base for Many Coverings

Hard wood, rubber or linoleum may be laid over a first floor of concrete. Such a first floor is highly fire resistant. Neither hard wood, rubber or linoleum, however, should be laid over a concrete basement floor, which is in direct contact with the ground. Present day rubber floorings are now being laid, handsomely decorated with inlaid designs of different colors.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
Be wise, alkalize, but live down here where there are so many interesting things which you can enjoy, and still have a good night's sleep. We like tenants who like doing things, who prefer not to spend time commuting, who like to live in an unusual delightful little home with huge living rooms [one is 37 ft. long], fireplaces, and that sort of thing, and we'd like to help you give them that unusual and delightful little touch. It's a little cool to talk about being near the lake and ferns and fountains in our courts. Any way they're all on or near North Michigan-av. and just a short walk from the loop.
We have some wonderful places for groups of 3 and 4; some are furnished.

Day by Day on the Farm

By Bob Becker

Willows Provide Color.

April 13, 1940.

THE brightest splash of color on the Du Page county farm, a forerunner of what spring will do for the woodlots within a few weeks, is on Half Moon pond. Here the willows stand out against the dull brown background of fields and the dark water because they are a mustard yellow color at this season of the year. When we walked out to the pond we could see the yellow of the willows when we were at least a half mile from them. These trees hug the edge of the pond on the north and the west sides.

With the oaks and hickory trees devoid of any spring flush of green, the willows easily dominate their corner of the farm. One of the workers said he didn't know what he'd do without these willow trees at this time of the year. He said their vivid color looming up strongly on the landscape kept him encouraged about spring and warmer days even when the temperature went down to the freezing point.

Canada Geese on Pond.

We found about 18 Canada geese on the Half Moon pond when we hiked around one side of it to check the water level. Seeing these birds nonchalantly strolling around the pond was something of a disappointment because we had expected to find the geese paired off and thinking about nesting duties. On the contrary, the whole flock was enjoying the seclusion of the pond as if they had no idea of nesting this season. As a rule we always see some grackles and some redwings around this body of water. They were absent during our visit, but some of these birds are bound to take over the pond before the month is over.

While we were walking around the pond watching the geese we examined some of the hickory trees in the woods nearby to see if their buds had developed very much. They showed no signs of being in a hurry to match the pace of the soft maples, elms and other trees which now show their buds. The flower of the hickory tree is one of the most decorative on the farm. But this tree never displays any haste about exposing its blossoms to the fickle weather that often prevails in early April.

Watch for Martins.

The purple martin houses have been put up. Workers are keeping their eyes open for the arrival of these bird neighbors which nest on the farm each season. The martins are given locations which they like, open areas away from the woods. These birds feed on the wing, are excellent flyers, and like to have plenty of room for their flights around nesting boxes.

Another thing that the martin likes is a body of water, doubtless because of the insect life which a pond or other water area attracts and develops. Two of the martin houses on the farm are near a small artificial body of water.

Wrens to Arrive Soon.

Now that the martin houses are in position the boys soon will have to get their wren houses in order, for the peppery little wrens are due to move into Chicagoland shortly. This is one of the most popular species that take to bird boxes placed around a home. The wren population on the farm is so large that most of these birds nest the old and natural way, they go into the woods and build their nests in small cavities in the trees.

We are in the market for Loans on Chicago and suburban real estate. Completed buildings or to be constructed. Also FHA Loans.

HEITMAN TRUST CO.

3d Floor, Otis Bldg.
10 S. La Salle-st., Chicago.
FRANKLIN 2400.

MR. S. SAID: "I had given up hope, but your work and help saved our home." The facts: We O. K.'d a $3,200 top loan—far more than others would lend—but still not enough to pay off ALL DEBTS. After months of work we got the mortgagee to cut $460 off his claims and close the deal.
We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment, store and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property, and to close estates.
If even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholder's committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Low rates.

SERVING CHICAGO FOR 92 YEARS

The Beautiful Traitor

Graphic Section
Chicago Sunday Tribune
April 14, 1940

This is a reproduction of a painting by Thomas Lawrence, celebrated English artist. The subjects are Mrs. Margaret (Peggy) Shippen Arnold, wife of Gen. Benedict Arnold, and their eldest son, Edward Shippen Arnold, who as a young man served in the British army (he died in Singapore in 1813). The two posed for the painting at Bath, England, in 1783, the family then being in exile as a result of General Arnold's treason. The artist was only 14 years old at the time he created this masterpiece. In later years he became London's outstanding painter of persons of fashion and principal painter to the king. He was knighted in 1815. The painting was sent by Mrs. Arnold to her father, Chief Justice Edward Shippen of Pennsylvania. Today it is in possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, in the museum of which it was photographed recently in its original tones by the magic camera of The Chicago Tribune's color studio.

The Case of Peggy Arnold

By WILLIAM SHINNICK

SHE HAS BEEN described as the most beautiful, the most accomplished woman of the America of revolutionary days. She came of a wealthy family that gave her (for that time) an excellent education. The writings she left display a keen intelligence. We can hardly wonder that British and Continental officers, meeting her in the bloom of youth as the fortunes of war threw Philadelphia into the hands of invaders or patriots, vied for her favor.

Later she was to be called the most charming matron in England. A queen was amiable to her and insisted that the peerage show her particular attention. She reared four sons and a daughter and was a good mother to them.

Still, for nearly a century and a half her place in history was uncertain. Was she a tragic figure who suffered tremendous losses in reputation and exile to foreign soil because her love and devotion outweighed her horror of a great crime? Or was she a participant in the darkest, the most hateful conspiracy ever hatched on American territory?

George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, and the Marquis de La Fayette are on record as believing in her innocence. The people of Pennsylvania were at best doubtful—they banished her. An amoral, cynical politician, accused of seducing women and plotting against his country, claimed to have information she was guilty. Aaron Burr!

160 Years—and Plot Thickens

Historians exhausted fact and contemporary opinion and turned to the byways of tradition and folklore in their effort to learn the true status of this woman. Conclusions varied. Then a few years ago long-hidden documentary evidence, direct and authoritative, came to light. Now it is difficult to doubt her guilt.

Margaret Shippen Arnold was her name. She was the wife of Benedict Arnold, traitor.

Every American schoolboy is familiar with the story of Arnold's attempt to sell West Point, with its stores and defenders, for British gold and expansive promises; and how it failed because of the capture of the British major, John André, who was hanged as a spy.

Arnold's crime was the more shocking in contrast to the outstanding services he had rendered the American cause in the early Revolutionary war years. He was quarrelsome, vain, and venal, but he was impetuous in military affairs, brave to the point of foolhardiness, and possibly the best field leader of troops the colonies had.

The day after the battle of Lexington was fought he left his drug store in New Haven, called up his company of militia, and marched (Continued on page eight.)

RICHARD HIMBER

This Week

A sentimental bit, "Lonesome and Blue," is put into sophisticated swing by Richard Himber.

STARTING YOUNG is one secret of musical success, as has been indicated by the band leaders who have contributed swing versions of favorite old tunes to the Graphic Section.

Richard Himber is no exception. Born on Feb. 20, 1908, at Newark, N. J., he began studying violin when he was 7 years old. He admits to the usual childish regret over perfectly good play hours wasted in tedious practice, and yet there was an instinctive urge to carry on. That musical instinct is what has lifted him to his present position as the leader of one of the most reliable and popular of radio bands.

Himber's reputation over the country is almost entirely founded on his extensive radio appearances and his recordings. He has furnished the dance music for one sponsor's program now for seven consecutive years, and up to this year had spent nine years as a regular contributor to the recording production of one record firm.

HERE ARE THE WORDS TO "LONESOME AND BLUE"

1—Dearest, nearest to heaven were your endearing charms,
Dearest, heaven itself was to linger in your arms.
To love and lose is part of life's great game;
Tell me, am I all to blame?

2—You intended to end it by saying we're all thru,
I consented to end it, but now I find I'm blue;
All this suspense is driving me insane,
Still I love you just the same.

CHORUS—You never care if I'm all alone, don't even care if I'm blue.
I've been forgotten, that's why I'm forlorn;
Nobody loves me; O, why was I born?
Your faithless promise of "I'll be true" shattered each love dream I knew.
You've worn out my heart, you've torn it apart,
That's why I'm lonesome and blue.

Personal appearances have been confined to the east, but there again the long run is the rule. Three of New York's most popular hotel dining rooms have given him repeated return engagements—a high compliment to the popularity of his type of music.

Loath to talk about himself, Himber will dwell at length upon his musical ideas and the makeup of his band. Believing that his audience is among that group that prefers its swing in sophisticated form, with occasional lapses into unadulterated hot tempos and tunes, Himber has built up self-sufficient units within the orchestra to feature particular kinds of music. For instance, he has a small swing group that can pour on the jive when the time comes. He has, too, a waltz group that specializes in new arrangements of Viennese favorites. And there is a Latin group which provides those popular rhumba, tango, and conga rhythms.

One of Himber's favorite novelties is his parade of bands, in which he impersonates famous band leaders—appearance, eccentricities, and all—and his orchestra imitates with subtle sarcasm the musical tricks of those maestros. His excellent singing voice is an important factor in this stunt. It's a good illustration of Mr. Himber's musical versatility.

So is this swing version of "Lonesome and Blue."

Wives of the Candidates— Mrs. Robert A. Taft

White House Is Familiar to Her

By MARCIA WINN

SOME ONE once characterized Martha Bowers Taft as an electric current. That is as good a description as any. The basic difference is that you don't have to turn a switch to bring her warmth on and off. She may travel 600 miles in one day and make four speeches, but nightfall finds her as pulsating with warm, eager vitality as ever. In that she makes a superb foil and wife for Senator Robert Alphonso Taft of Ohio, currently seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

If Martha Taft ends up as mistress of the White House, a rôle her husband's supporters already have foreseen with the pat—if historically inaccurate—phrase, "another Martha in the White House," the atmosphere itself will not be new to her. She has been in it often enough since the age of 19. [Martha Washington did not live in the White House. It was first occupied by President and Mrs. John Adams in November of 1800.]

She now is 49, and if the years have grayed her chestnut hair and thickened her waist, they have developed or enhanced many attributes which would be as useful in the White House as they have been everywhere else. She is essentially a diplomat. She is friendly. She is spirited, gay, and witty. She has a genuine interest in people. She has great personal dignity as well as charm. She has unaffected tastes. She thinks clearly.

The only palpable correction she will have to make, altho she probably won't, if she ends up as a President's wife in addition to a President's daughter-in-law, is in her stockings. They usually contain a run or two, and people love her for it. It makes her seem very human, which she is.

People often tell her she looks like Queen Elizabeth. The resemblance is there—pictorially. It comes from their similar build and their smile.

Mrs. Taft is short—5 feet 3, which makes her seem microscopic beside her tall sons and husband—and sighs over it. She would like to be tall and willowy, and she is short and rather stocky. Her eyes, unlike the very blue ones of the queen, are a deep, sparkling chocolate. Her nose turns up, and her smile is wide. Her hair is long (it comes to her waist and has never been cut), and she has worn it the same way all her life, in a knot at the nape of the neck.

Her dress is simple and modest. Her hats are quiet. She wears a great deal of brown, which gives her a motherly wren look. She wears sensible low-heeled shoes and cotton gloves, usually beige or white. She dislikes extremes in anything, from flowers of overdone flamboyancy or scent, such as orchids or gardenias, to Picasso's "Guernico." ("I do like Picasso," she insists, "but I like him better before he went completely into abstractions. And I like a lot of other moderns better perhaps.")

But she is no simple person. She is highly intelligent, altho she says her mind stumbles along beside that of her husband. But where he, on the surface, is steady, slow, of iron, she is quicksand and mercury.

And she again is taking the stump for her husband. She doesn't attempt to deny that obvious fact. She says it is the natural thing to do. "I've campaigned with him for other women's husbands for 25 years," she says. "It would be awful, I think, if I didn't campaign for my own."

Back in 1938 when Robert A. Taft, a successful Cincinnati lawyer but—it was generally thought—a futile aspirant for any office other than precinct committeeman, set out to run for senator, Mrs. Taft had an idea she could help him. She asked Ed Schorr, the Republican state chairman, for suggestions, and he coldly, soberly headed her off. "When I came out," she said, "I was so boiling mad I made up my mind I'd make a speech that very night."

MRS. ROBERT A. TAFT

The first speech she managed to work in was before a group of Negro women on Lincoln's birthday. She was told the speech would have to deal with Lincoln. It did. "But when I got thru," she said, "it was hard to tell where Lincoln left off and Bob Taft began."

That is the way with most of her conversation. She uses the word "Bob" as often as the average person uses "the." She doesn't pretend to be modest about him. She is his greatest zealot. She glows. She thinks him all that is brilliant, all that is wonderful. She tells every one of it. "But Bob's so smart," she often interjects.

An instance of this occurred in the 1938 Ohio campaign, in which she ended up with more speaking engagements than her husband. She went into 85 of the state's 88 counties, with him or without him. Once her car turned over three times as she skidded to avoid a dog. She left campaign literature strewn over the field in which she landed, drove on, and made the speech with the sole comment, "Anyway, that probably got the S. P. C. A. vote." She gained six pounds, and her husband carried 79 of the 88 counties.

At one point in the campaign she appeared before a group of coal miners in a debate with the wife of Taft's opponent. The opponent's wife, diligently seeking the vote of the workingman, said: "My husband is a humble man. He has simple tastes. He is not one of these highly educated men. He is just an ordinary man—just like you and me."

Mrs. Taft rose to her feet, her brown eyes full of fire.

"My husband is not a simple man," she cried. "He did not start from humble beginnings. My husband is a very brilliant man. He had a fine education at Yale. He has been trained well for this job. . . . Isn't that what you prefer when you pick leaders to work for you?"

The miners were overwhelmed—for Mr. Taft.

Once in that Ohio campaign she drove from one end of a county to another and was late for her speech. The chairman interrupted her, as she made breathless apologies, to demand, "What is your native state?" Mrs. Taft, surprised, replied, "Why, Minnesota." The chairman grunted. "I thought so," she said. "You girls from west of the Mississippi come tough."

• • •

Mrs. Taft is proud of the Minnesota fiber in her blood. She went back to her birthplace, Winona, for the first time in 30 years in February when she made a whirlwind stump of Minnesota to tell her native brothers and sisters about the man she married. Everywhere she went she was extoled as—even a Minneapolis paper said this editorially—"a home-town girl who made good."

At Winona, her first stop, people came from miles around to see her. Her old nurse drove 250 miles to shake her hand. An old friend of her mother's unearthed the personal account book of her maternal grandfather, Judge Thomas Wilson, and gave it to her. She saw the white cottage where she was born, the larger yellow house that belonged to her grandfather, who was as much a part of Minnesota as the Mississippi river.

Thomas Wilson went to Winona in 1854 as a young lawyer. Soon he delved into politics, too. He became a delegate to the state's first constitutional convention, became one of its congressmen, served until his death in 1910 as second chief justice of its Supreme court. He was a Democrat, as Minnesotans occasionally recall, but Mrs. Taft, when put on this wheel, reminds them: "He bolted the party, tho, when William Jennings Bryan ran for President, and was a Republican when he died."

While still in Winona, tho, Tom Wilson brought a young lawyer, Lloyd Wheaton Bowers, out from the east to be his junior partner. Bowers married Wilson's daughter, Louise, more tenderly known as Lulu. They were the parents of Martha Taft.

When Martha was 3 years old, a thin little child with great brown eyes, her father became chief counsel for the North Western railroad, and the family moved to Chicago. Five years later Mrs. Bowers died. Since then, when she was 8, Mrs. Taft has never lived in the same house with a woman relative. Not from choice, but coincidence.

Her father then undertook her education. When she was 16 he sent her to the Sorbonne in Paris. Two years later she was back with a certificat in history and literature and a father in Washington, for Bowers' old Yale classmate, William Howard Taft, had been elected President. He appointed Bowers solicitor general.

Young Martha Bowers often was in the White House—one of the Negro doormen there then, and still at the White House after a lapse of 27 years, now greets her as of old, "Good evenin', Miss Martha." She knew the President's daughter, Helen, but she knew the President's retiring son, Bob, better. The year after Taft left the White House, the year after Bob left Harvard law school, she married him in Washington.

Since then her life has never been without great activity. She and her husband moved to Cincinnati. While he built up a law practice she gave birth to four sons and managed as well to become the first president of Cincinnati's League of Women Vot-

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Gratitude Not a Forgotten Virtue in Filmland

Hollywood.

THERE is quite a lot of ingratitude in the movie colony, but by the same token there are numerous instances of gratitude that indicate this isn't such a bad old world in which to live after all. This piece might be called "Bread Upon the Waters," because individually and collectively those instances serve as proof that kind deeds, generously performed, have a heartening way of coming home to roost years after the doer has forgotten all about them.

Take Harold Lloyd, for example. When he was a youngster back home in Omaha, Neb., his big ambition was to be an actor. John Lane Connor, the leading man in the Burwood stock company of Omaha, came to live at the Lloyd home as a boarder and was attracted by Harold's intense interest in the theater. Whenever the local stock company needed any one to play a boy's part Connor spoke to the manager of the company and got the job for Harold. Lloyd has never forgotten that kindness. Connor now has a well paying job in Hollywood, taking care of the comedian's fan mail.

Then there's the case of Marjorie Weaver. Marjorie got her start as an actress thru Judy Parks, who was her roommate at college. A newspaper conducted a beauty contest, and Judy submitted her roommate's picture without her knowledge. Marjorie was selected as the winner of the contest and was given a scholarship at a dramatic school, which in the course of events landed her in Hollywood as a film actress. When Marjorie became established in pictures she remembered the friend who had got her first break for her. She sent for Judy and got her the job of being her stand-in.

William Daniels, Garbo's friend and cameraman.

(Garbo and Ricardo Cortez in "The Torrent.")
When Greta Garbo was new in this country the cameraman for her picture "The Torrent" befriended her and has been her cameraman ever since, at her request. He is William Daniels (in picture at left).

William Daniels worked as the cameraman on Garbo's first picture in this country, "The Torrent." At that time Garbo wasn't the exalted personage she is now, and when she made amusing mistakes in attempting to speak English every one laughed at her—except Daniels. The sensitive young Swedish girl was made extremely uncomfortable and ill at ease by the thoughtlessness of her fellow workers. Daniels had tact enough to realize the situation. When the picture was completed he told her he had enjoyed working with her and hoped he might be permitted to work with her again, and he predicted great success for her. This thoughtful speech so overwhelmed Garbo that she burst into tears. She has never forgotten Daniels' kindness to her. When she went to Europe her boss, Louis B. Mayer, didn't hear from her, but Bill Daniels, her cameraman, received a cablegram. Ever since that first picture she has always insisted on having Daniels as her cameraman.

Garbo's sense of loyalty is very strong. She has few friendships, but those she has she regards as sacred. She was brought to this country by Metro only because Mauritz Stiller, the director, refused to sign a contract with the company unless Garbo came with him. Metro signed Garbo, whom they considered a scrawny, gangly girl without picture possibilities, only to get Stiller. A year or so later, after "The Torrent" was released, Garbo was in demand and Stiller was the unwanted. But Garbo didn't forget that Stiller made it possible for her to come to America, and as long as the director was alive Metro had to keep him under contract.

Marjorie Weaver, above, has as a stand-in Judy Parks, her roommate at college. Judy submitted Marjorie's picture to a beauty contest, and that was Miss Weaver's big break.

Gary Cooper has never forgotten that it was Frank Capra who made him a star in fact as well as in name. Cooper, after a promising beginning, began to slip in Hollywood. Moviegoers began to lose interest in him. He was colorless and couldn't act. Then Capra borrowed him for "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and a strange thing happened. People began saying that Cooper really was an actor after all. It was a shot in the arm for Cooper. When Capra recently became a producer on his own, and sought Cooper for his first independent production, "The Life of John Doe," Goldwyn didn't want to part with his tall star. It was Cooper who swung the deal for Capra by going to Goldwyn and persuading him to consent to his loan-out.

When Pat O'Brien was a struggling actor on Broadway, attempting desperately to get a foothold in the theater, Bert Kennedy, who was a well established performer in vaudeville, looked after him and helped him over the rough spots by lending him money when he was broke and frequently sharing his room with him. Later, when their positions were reversed and vaudeville disappeared, Pat brought Kennedy to Hollywood and secured him a life job as his stand-in.

In the early days of talking pictures Bobby Crawford was head of the music department at Fox. A woman came to him one day and gave him a hard-luck story about being broke and having a kid to support. Fox was making a musical, "Sunny Side Up," at the time, and Crawford got the woman a job playing the piano during rehearsals. He also arranged a small part in the picture for her kid. The woman Crawford helped was Jackie Cooper's mother, and she didn't forget his kindness. Several years later, when Crawford left Fox and went into the agency business, and Jackie Cooper was an established star, Jackie's mother came to Crawford and told him that she wanted her son to be his client.

Barthelmess

Shortly after Al Jolson became a popular Vitaphone star Joseph Schenck signed him to a heavy sugar contract with United Artists. Schenck's studio had no picture ready for Jolson, and for six months the actor collected a weekly salary of $31,250 without doing anything. Then came the depression, and Schenck suffered heavy losses. Jolson still had more than a million dollars coming to him on his contract, and he did a mag nanimous thing. He tore up his contract and handed it back to Schenck, saying, "I'm not doing anything for you, so you don't have to pay me any more money." Almost ten years later, when Jolson's popularity was waning, Schenck, who was now an executive at Twentieth Century-Fox, repaid Jolson for his generous act by signing him to a new movie contract and giving him a chance at a comeback.

For obvious reasons their names can't be mentioned, but two Broadway stars helped Fannie Brice when she first started to work in the Ziegfeld "Follies." In the innumerable little ways that a seasoned trouper can help a beginner they helped Fannie. Today the stars are no longer in the chips, but they want neither for the necessities nor the comforts of life, because they are permanent house guests at Fannie Brice's Long Island home in New York and all their bills are footed by Fannie.

Richard Barthelmess, the popular film star of a decade ago, got his break in films as a result of bread cast upon the waters by his mother. When Nazimova first came to America, Barthelmess' mother, Caroline Harris, befriended her and taught her to speak English. Years later, when Dick was trying to get a foothold in movies, he made the rounds of the film studios and was getting terribly discouraged. He had about made up his mind that there was no room for him in motion picture work and was about to sign up for a naval training cruise to tide him over. Nazimova was about to star in the picture "War Brides," and there was a part open for a young man to play the younger of two sons. When Nazimova learned about Barthelmess' predicament she called him to the studio and obtained the rôle for him. It was the rôle that launched Barthelmess on his film career.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

My dear Miss Tinée: In reviewing "Louise" there was not the slightest mention of poor Composer Gustave Charpentier. How come? Your heading states: "Directed by Gustave Charpentier," who is evidently also the man who wrote the music, and he should have been credited by you to this effect. Perhaps, as you stressed, you will coax Mr. Barry to write a proper review of the picture. Faithfully yours,

GUY D'AULBY.

Editor's note: Edward! Hurry! You're being paged!

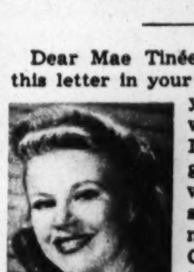
Dear Miss Tinée: May I have a little space for a worthy cause? Thank you. I just want to say a word in praise of Michael Whalen, who has been a favorite of mine for some years. In a long series of mediocre pictures Mr. Whalen has never failed to deliver an excellent performance. He has the sincere and earnest acting ability which will enable him to easily take the place of that other sterling performer, Warner Baxter, should that gentleman decide to quit the screen.

Could you please tell me where I may write to Lane Chandler, whom I often catch glimpses of in bit parts? This young man is being neglected, I think.

Thank you for your excellent column and fair views. Sincerely yours, CAROL ANN FOSTER.

Editor's note: You may—and you're welcome. A letter may reach Mr. Chandler care of Republic studio, 4024 North Radford avenue, Hollywood, Cal. Glad you like the column. So do I.

Dear Mae Tinée: Please print this letter in your column so that your readers will know what I think of Ginger Rogers. She was positively superb in "Vernon and Irene Castle." She is the kind that will do marvelously well in any part given to her. I'm sure many fans agree with me on this point. Hoping you will squeeze a small picture of her with this letter in your column, I gratefully remain an ardent fan,



GINGER ROGERS

AUDREY BOHNE.

Editor's note: Sure! Glad to print a picture of Miss Rogers for you this Sunday morning!

Dear Mae Tinée: We people in Chicago have to suffer thru two pictures usually, but now the north side theater fans have to suffer thru three, yes, three, pictures. I as well as many others would like to know just what the idea is.

It's Daintiness That Counts

And It's Least Costly of All Charm Aids.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

OUR OPINION is that if a girl set out this year to make herself one of the ten daintiest she'd win more genuine admiration than any ten best dressed that could be assembled. Daintiness stands on its own feet, and no one else but yourself — no designer or beauty specialist—is to be credited with its accomplishment.

This year everything in the way of dress and cosmetics and accessory features points up the purely feminine appeal. Fresh, crisp flower corsages even for sports wear are but one of this year's departures in the picture of strict feminine appeal. There are in addition the lingerie touches on dress and the stress laid on dainty gloves and the shoes. In fact, you cannot mention anything in this year's picture that doesn't add to the "sweetheart" picture.

Those are the surface items of the 1940 "good-enough-to-eat" girl. But we've got to consider more than that. Fastidious women would no more neglect their bodies than they'd neglect toothbrush use or hair setting appointments. They've acquired the habit of bathing, and, more to our point, the habit of checking or preventing any possible suspicion of unpleasant natural odors. With psychological thoroness, these are the very women who do wear the crisp, clean lingerie, the fresh white gloves, the brushed suit, the shined shoes, and the women who attend hair and skin and nails with regular precision.

But there's a carelessness among certain girls and women that never should exist when it is realized that this phase of appeal is within every individual's budget. Bathing—regular, thoro bathing — costs not even the price of a whole cake of soap. And if you must limit yourself there are a number of excellent deodorant products that cost almost nothing. A warm, sudsy bath in which one soaks and also scrubs is imperative as a daily performance. If this bath is taken at night, and if in the morning one gets under the shower to rid the body of possible night perspiration the danger of offense is down to the minimum. But if one is victim of excessive perspiration additional measures must be taken. For this purpose there are on the market almost foolproof astringents and deodorants of different characters — powder, cream, liquid, etc.

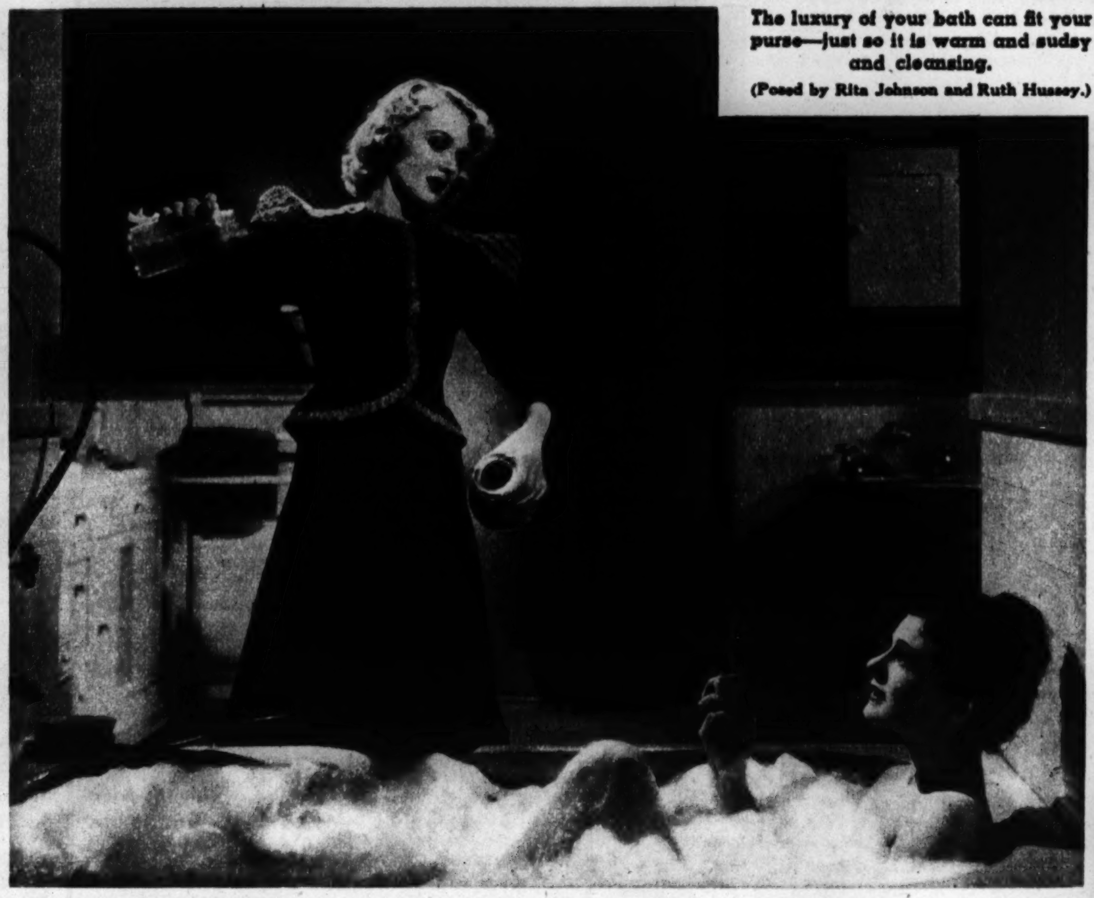
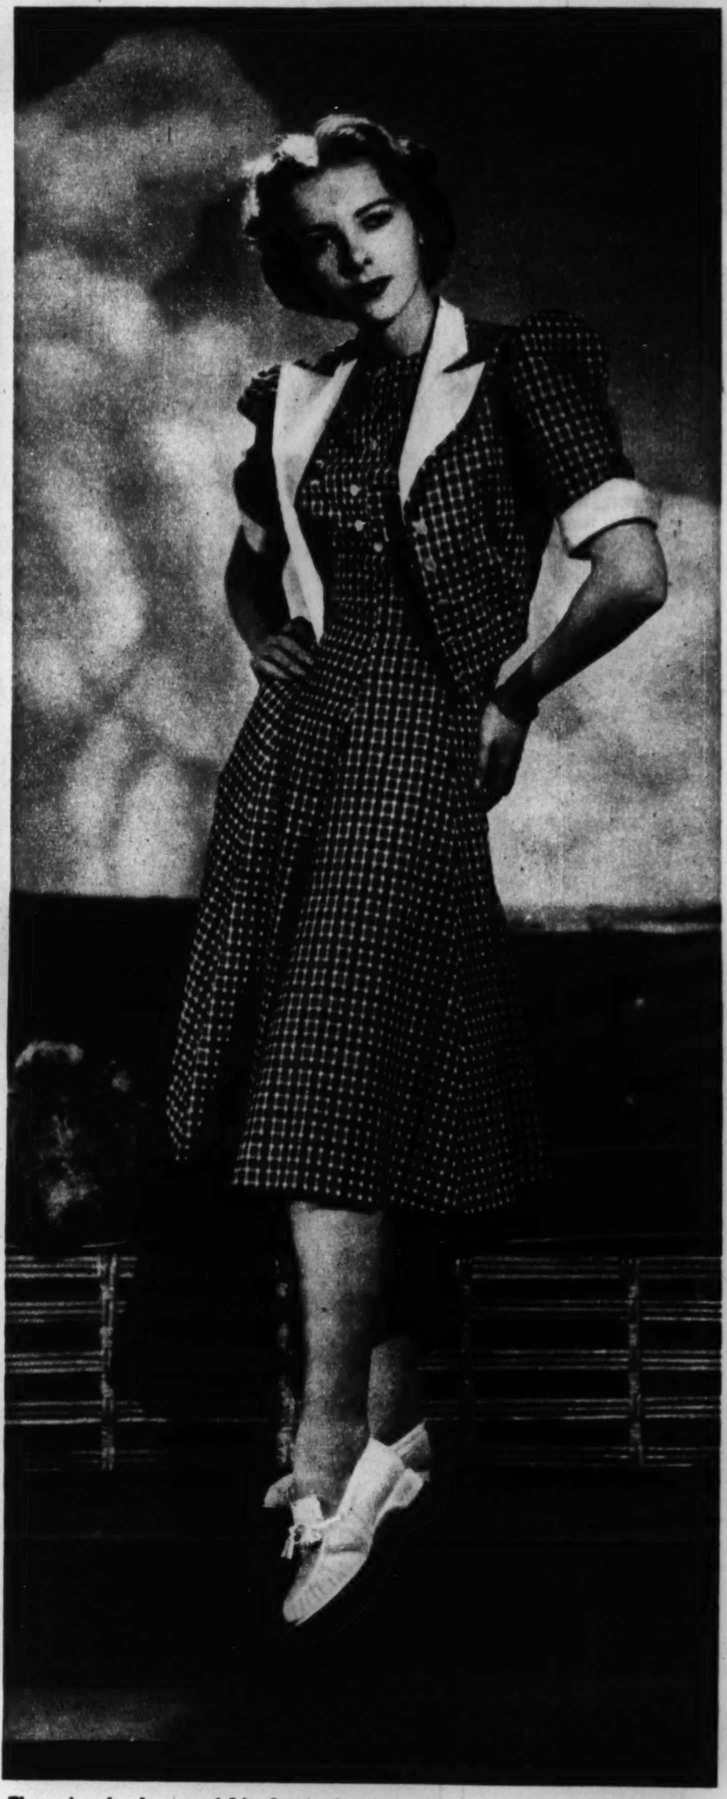
Daintiness, however, is not accomplished without an every-morning layout of stockings laundered the night before, clean undies, corsets aired thoroly and clean as frequent washing keeps them. A number of women lose points in the feminine checkup because of repeated wearings of unwashed sweaters. Women who suffer from excessive perspiration should forego sweaters unless they are willing to run them thru soapsuds and water after each wearing.

At this time of year especially, altho the offense knows no season, one must adopt extra measures of preventive care. It's a known fact that water consumption, for one thing, minimizes the trouble.

And your hair, ladies! Let it never be hinted that your locks could be guilty of evoking anything but praise.



The luxury of your bath can fit your purse—just so it is warm and sudsy and cleansing.
(Posed by Rita Johnson and Ruth Hussey.)



The crisp freshness of Ida Lupino's appearance is an excellent example of what is meant by the Dainty Look.

Another Mrs. Taft

ers (she later became national treasurer, a post she resigned in 1938 when her husband ran for the senate), president of the Associated Charities, organizer of its community chest, board member of the Children's hospital, and a host of other offices. Even before her marriage, when a girl in Washington, she organized a Girl Scout troop there, the second in the United States. Last year she cut its 27th birthday cake.

The sons all are in school now. The eldest, Bill, named for his grandfather, President Taft, is 24 and studying for his Ph. D. in literature at Princeton university. Bob is 22, married, and studying law at Harvard law school. The two younger sons, Lloyd, 18, and Horace, 15, are students at the Taft school in Watertown, Conn., which their Great-Uncle Horace founded. Mrs. Taft is very proud of Lloyd, who will be graduated in June; he carries all the school honors as easily as he carries his head. She can't decide whether to go to his graduation or to the Republican national convention, which opens in Philadelphia at the same time.

When not in Washington, where the Tafts now occupy the 12-room house formerly occupied by the Bolivian legation, they live on a 60-acre farm outside Cincinnati. They summer at Murray Bay, Que., where Mrs. Taft has become expert at trout fishing. She plays golf when she has time, but not very well, and lately she has had no time. She abhors bridge, but is a prodigious knitter. As she knits she reads.

Mrs. Taft in typical speaking pose.

She has trouble reading, for whenever she sits down to it the children's nurse, who has been with them 20 years, comes to ask her to look at how the school laundry has shrunk the boys' socks, or please won't she talk to Horace and tell him he must wear an undershirt. But for the last two years she has had little time for reading, and has read nothing new, she says, except newspapers and pamphlets.

Her tastes are fairly catholic when she does have time. She cares more for ideas and style than plot. Lamb's "Essays of Elia" is her favorite prose, along with other essays of the 18th, 19th, and 20th centuries. Right now, among the moderns, she likes Virginia Woolf.

She doesn't care much for historical novels—her favorites are Jane Austen, Trollope, and Dickens—and she finds many of the current novels difficult to read. "Perhaps," she says, "because I don't try often enough." She likes biography, "loves" poetry, and often reaches for a Wodehouse or occasionally for a detective story.

Right now, tho, she has no time for anything except her husband and his campaign. He writes his own speeches, and she writes hers, but altho she may make a suggestion about his, she won't let him even peek at hers. She writes hers in longhand, usually on a pad on her lap as she is on her way to make it, and then rarely looks at her notes.

Her voice is clear, resonant, and apparently tireless. She can make four speeches a day and greet personally 500 people with never a quaver in any register. She enjoys speaking if her audience is with her, and fills each speech with homely aphorisms, often using her sons or her husband as an illustration in point. She laughs a lot herself and likes to have every one around her in the same high mood. If possible she projects them into it.

In Minneapolis, as she wound up her brief February tour, she was asked to speak before the student forum of the University of Minnesota. Political savants were horrified and exceedingly worried. The forum, noted for its radicalism, was noted also for its fine heckling. Many a sturdy speaker, political or otherwise, had been sent away speechless and in tears by its heckling.

They wanted to warn Mrs. Taft. They did. Mrs. Taft accepted this bit of information casually and gayly. "I love heckling," she said. "Anyway, I have the hide of a rhinoceros."

She was heckled, and severely, but if there was any victory when it was all over it wasn't that of the student forum. In fact, at its conclusion a bristle-haired student who had been the most ardent heckler walked up to her and extended his fist.

"May I compliment you, Mrs. Taft?" he said in open admiration.

"May I compliment you?" she retorted.

Only once did her eyes flash and her temper seem unsure. This was when a student, flushing deeply, asked her concerning a speech in which Senator Taft seemingly had misquoted Secretary Wallace for his own good.

"I don't know what you're talking about," Mrs. Taft said quickly. "But you seem to suggest my husband said something in bad faith. As his wife, I am perfectly sure he didn't!"

She thought a moment and then added to it. "I know he didn't," she said. "For whatever my husband wants, he does not want to be nominated by mistake!"

This is Martha Bowers Taft, electric, direct, and—regardless of whether she or her husband wish to admit it—Mrs. Roosevelt's greatest rival as a public figure.

ELINOR AMES tells in pictures what and what not to do

1 If a girl is engaged she introduces the young man as her fiance. Otherwise no distinction is made—certainly not "my boy friend."

2 No one is expected to know everything, so don't hesitate to ask the waiter about some puzzling item on the menu.

3 The well bred girl never accepts a man's invitation to another girl's home. She lets the hostess do the inviting.

4 The first dance of the evening belongs to the girl's escort. She never accepts another man's invitation first.

5 A boy is always polite to his mother's friends, and those friends return the courtesy.

6 It is rude to interrupt any one's reading, even tho he is your young brother.

WANT EXTRA JUICY, FLAVORFUL

VEAL CUTLETS?

FIX 'EM THIS SPRY WAY

VEAL CUTLETS WITH SAVORY SAUCE

6 veal cutlets (about 1½ pounds)
¼ cup onion, chopped
¼ cup carrot, chopped
¼ cup celery, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons Spry
1½ cups hot water
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup top milk
¼ cup flour
1 egg, slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon water
½ cup sifted bread crumbs

Combine veal with vegetables, seasonings, Spry and water. Cover and simmer until veal is tender (about 30 minutes). Remove cutlets from stock and drain.

To make Savory Sauce, blend flour with milk, stir into stock and cook until thickened. Coat cutlets with flour, then dip in beaten egg, then coat with crumbs.

Fry cutlets in hot Spry (370° F.) 1-inch deep until brown (1 to 2 minutes). (Easier than deep frying. Fry croquettes this way, too. Notice how purer ALL-vegetable Spry fries without unpleasant smell or smoke—gives such crispy, delicious foods.) Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with Savory Sauce. Serves 6.

(All measurements in this recipe are level)

(Clip and save this Spry recipe)

No unpleasant smell or smoke, when you fry the Spry way

—foods are crisper, tastier, so digestible . . .

"YES folks, it makes a sight of difference fryin' with a purer shortenin' like Spry. An' a sight of difference in the way foods taste," says Aunt Jenny. "Do all your bakin' with Spry, too. See what delicate flavor Spry pastry has. An' Spry cakes are a treat. You save a tidy bit, too, compared to usin' expensive cake shortenin'.

"Notice how white Spry is. It looks purer—an' it is! Stays fresh longer, too, an' creams so easily. Only Spry gives all these three extra advantages. Change to Spry."

The Beautiful Traitor

immediately to Cambridge. There he was given a commission as colonel and allowed, on his own suggestion, to lead an expedition against the British forts at Crown Point and Ticonderoga.

This mission was successfully performed. He was then ordered by Washington to lead an army against Quebec. After a heroic wilderness march his men assaulted the fortress there, but failed to take it. Arnold in this campaign suffered a leg wound.

In the summer of 1776 he built the first American navy from the timber on the hillsides about Lake Champlain and fought it so well that a British invasion was halted; this despite the destruction in battle of the Arnold fleet. By that time his reputation was established; the British considered him the foremost American general.

Congress failed to give him rank conforming to what he considered his deserts, but he continued to fight. In 1777, when Burgoyne led a great army down from Canada, and was forced to surrender at Saratoga, Gates was the commander of the American forces. But it was Arnold who led where the fighting was hardest and his efforts were rewarded with a promotion to major general. Wounded again, he went to New England, recuperated, and in May of 1778 joined Washington at Valley Forge.

The next month the ragged Continentals marched into Philadelphia and Gen. Arnold, at the height of his popularity and with the full confidence of his commander in chief, was made military governor of the city. Its belles were nowise reluctant to grace the social affairs of the Continental officers as they had graced the parties of the British gentlemen who had just gone away.

Among these young women was Margaret (Peggy) Shippen, not yet 19 years old. Her father, Edward Shippen, was a lawyer. He was a political neutral; so clever in following the middle of the road that the British liked and admired him while the patriotic Pennsylvanians, after the war, made him chief justice.

Contemporary accounts agree that Peggy Shippen was attractive. She was accomplished in needlework, drawing, dancing, and music.

A welcome guest in her home, shortly before Gen. Arnold rode into Philadelphia, was Capt. John André. He was a competent soldier who was a social favorite wherever he went—a romantic, a poet, a gay young blade who flirted where he found opportunity, and to relieve the tedium of garrison life arranged dramatic entertainments.

One of his principal promotions of this sort was the Mischienza, a combination of play, pageant, and mock tournament presented as a compliment to André's commander, Sir William Howe. It was held at an estate outside Philadelphia while the hungry Americans were at frostbitten Valley Forge.

In the tournament two sets of champions, the Knights of the Burning Mountain and the Knights of the Blended Rose, contended in the lists according to the usages of ancient chivalry.

André, later to be the unfortunate adjutant general of the British forces in America, was "the charm of the company." He was one of the Knights of the Blended Rose.

A kinsman of the Shippens long ago made researches to show that Peggy wasn't at the Mischienza; that her father forbade it because he disapproved the outlandish Turkish costume that had been assigned her. The point does not seem important. She was invited, and if she didn't see André on this occasion she saw him on many others. She had, by any scheme of reckoning, that close friendship with André that would have made her a logical go-between in the Arnold-André plot to come.

Peggy Shippen met and loved the dashing Gen. Arnold. They were married in April, 1779, and went to housekeeping in Mount Pleasant, a large home outside the city which was described by John Adams as "the most elegant seat in Pennsylvania."

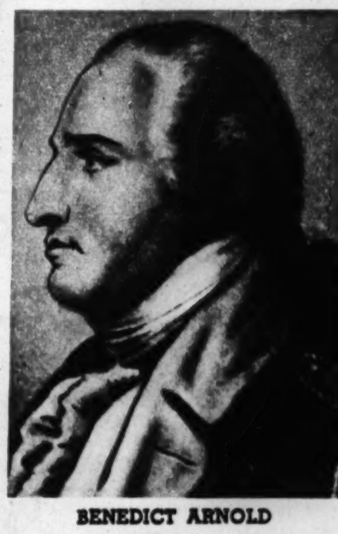
But even before he tottered into matrimony (he was supported to the altar by a fellow officer, lest his lame leg give way) Arnold the hero had begun to move toward the shadowy line that marks off the villains. He lived beyond his means, entertained lavishly, went into debt and speculated feverishly.

Eventually he was tried by court martial. He was charged with favoring Tories, violating regulations for the movement of ships, and using his position for private gain. Defending himself eloquently, he obtained a verdict generally favorable, but the court held he had been high handed and indiscreet and recommended that Washington reprimand him.

Washington did this, in a tone of mild rebuke, not knowing that Arnold was even then deep in his plot, selling the enemy information and hoping for an opportunity where treason could be made more effective. His motives probably were mixed; his need for money and the hope of advancement under the crown must have had great weight. Perhaps, too, the fair Peggy urged him to the final step.

In August, 1780, Washington granted him the command at West Point, for which he had schemed, and he went there at once. His wife and infant son soon followed. The plot was moving to a climax. Arnold and Sir Henry Clinton had been in correspondence and the Arnold price, $100,000, had been discussed. Now a personal interview was required, and Sir Henry sent Peggy's old friend André (now a major) to the meeting. He ascended the Hudson in the warship Vulture. He and Gen. Arnold, in a cedar grove, talked over the surrender of the post.

Then, with incriminating documents in his boots, André started back to the Vulture. But the ship had dropped downstream and André strove to ride overland to the British lines. It was mere accident that he was captured by a detachment of American irregulars. They searched him, altho he had Arnold's pass, and decided he was a spy.



BENEDICT ARNOLD

The officer in charge sent a note, telling of the capture, to Arnold. He forwarded the documents, however, to Gen. Washington, then approaching West Point on an inspection tour. The commander was accompanied by Hamilton and La Fayette, but he had sent them ahead with the light remark: "All you young men are in love with Mrs. Arnold."

So, on the morning of Sept. 25, we have the two aids of the commander in chief at breakfast with the Arnolds and Washington himself only a short distance away. And two messengers reaching destination almost simultaneously.

Arnold received his note and read it. André was captured. Washington would know all soon, if he did not know already. No time was to be lost. He apologized to Hamilton and La Fayette and retired to a bedroom. Mrs. Arnold followed.

Rapidly he told her the truth. He must fly. Leaving her hysterical, he left, galloped to the river and leaped into a boat. The Vulture had returned. Carrying a flag of truce, he compelled soldiers to row him out to her. On deck, he disclosed to the commander the fate of André. The ship set out for New York.

Clinton made him a brigadier general. Eventually he got a little more than $30,000 for his dark deeds. Perhaps it was enough. Any traitor is cheap material after his treachery; an unsuccessful traitor is without value.

What of Mrs. Arnold?

Washington was gentle with her. She could, he said, join Arnold in New York or return to her family. She chose to go to Philadelphia.

"We have every reason to believe," wrote Hamilton, "she was entirely unacquainted with the plan and that her first knowledge of it was when Arnold went to tell her he must banish himself from his country and from her forever."

• • •

La Fayette was equally sorry for her. "The unhappy Mrs. Arnold did not know a word of the conspiracy," he asserted.

But Aaron Burr was not so squeamish. Mrs. Arnold stopped on her journey from West Point at the home of Mrs. Prevost, who was later Mrs. Burr. Burr was there. Long years afterward he was to tell the world that Mrs. Arnold confessed to Mrs. Prevost that she helped persuade her husband to his infamous crime.

He did not say that Mrs. Arnold had told him anything of the sort, altho he accompanied her from the Prevost home to Philadelphia. That weakened his story. Also, there was an answer to it. Peggy Arnold's historical defenders said there was a tradition in her family that the cynical Burr attempted to seduce her, was scornfully repulsed and made up the tale in revenge.

It appears now that Burr was much nearer right than the three Revolutionary heroes who freed Mrs. Arnold. The historical documents that furnish proof are the papers of the British headquarters under Sir Henry Clinton. They were held as official secrets in England until a few years ago, when they were turned over to the William L. Clements library of the University of Michigan.

They are still there, still unpublished. Only hints have been given as to their contents. But two historians are now at work on this material and it is hoped their books will be printed this year. Until they finish the detailed story is being withheld.

Randolph G. Adams, director of the library and himself a distinguished historian, has disclosed that the conspiracy was much more widespread than earlier writers suspected, that many persons other than the known principals were involved, that Arnold was selling military secrets as early as the summer of 1779 (a few months after his marriage). As for Mrs. Arnold . . .

"There is certainly plenty of reason to believe that Margaret Shippen participated in her husband's conspiracy," he said.

She handled some of the secret dispatches between the two camps and Gen. Clinton wrote that she was paid $1,750 for her "very meritorious services."

André, deporting himself as a brave man should, was hanged. England honored him with a tablet in Westminster abbey. Arnold lived on, execrated in America and barely tolerated in England, for a full 20 years.

As a British brigadier he ravaged Virginia and burned New London, Conn. He issued a manifesto seeking to justify his treason. It was worse than useless.

There is an anecdote of Arnold's later days in America. He asked a captured Continental what would be done with him if he were caught.

"They will cut off that shortened leg of yours and bury it with honor for what you did at Quebec and Saratoga—and then hang the rest of you on a gibbet," was the sturdy answer.

That just formula was never followed. Arnold died a natural death in England. Margaret Shippen Arnold survived him and lived long enough to pay his debts and see her sons fixed in comfortable circumstances.

Nowhere in all her letters that are extant is there any complaint against her husband, nor any hint that she had ever tried to dissuade him from the step that ruined a great reputation.

How Air Lines Conquer Ice

New Safety Records Fruit of Intensive Studies

By WAYNE THOMIS

WITH the achievement of new safety records during the last 12 months, the commercial aviation industry in the United States has headed toward a new goal—that of maintaining safe, scheduled flight operations under any and all conditions of weather. In the past this has been impossible, and present safety marks were made by avoiding severe icing conditions and never attempting to make landings when fog, rain, snow, or dust cut pilots' vision too much.

But today radio, new navigational instruments, and effective carburetor, wing, and propeller de-icers are bringing bad weather problems near to solution. And of these problems the more important today is the icing. It is one over which the commercial air lines, the army, navy, and many private companies are teamed together to find the ultimate answer.

It is safe to say that more is known about ice today than ever before in the history of the industry. Carburetor and engine icing troubles can be considered as solved. Propeller icing troubles are minor at this time. The type of ice that has proved most difficult to defeat has been the sort that collects on wings, cuts into the efficiency of the clean airfoil, and raises tiny fingers that clutch and cling to passing air—thus destroying lift.

To the elimination of this sort of ice the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, O., has devoted 10 years of unceasing research. And it is this company which manufactures the only practical and effective equipment ever evolved to combat wing ice. This is the black de-icing boot that virtually every air liner flying today, most of the larger military planes, and all the new four-motored air giants that are about to be delivered have on wings and tail.

A new and improved type of boot that is expected to eliminate even more ice than those in use today was described in this department a few Sundays ago. Thru an error that story stated the air lines are not using boots at this time. Such is not the case. The boots are used, but, because the air line operators ever are demanding more efficient safety devices, studies are under way to improve them still further.

The Goodrich boot was evolved in 1929 after engineers for the company had experimented with chemicals and with the use of heat for removing wing ice. Both the chemicals and heat were abandoned after difficulties of furnishing continuous and sufficient supplies of either one were understood. The mechanical method at once proved its practicability.

Basically the de-icer has been the same since its inception. It performs two functions, to wit: Freeing of the bond between ice that has formed on the leading edge of a wing and the wing itself, and distorting the surface of the boot so that the air flow gets under the ice and tears it away in great chunks.

A rubber outer surface for the boot was chosen for two reasons. First of all, ice does not adhere as closely to rubber as it does to the metal skin of a wing. And, second, the rubber was wanted so that it could be stretched. The stretching process was needed because this broke the bond between the ice and the rubber wing covering.

In order to make the rubber stretch, and also to distort the surface, the engineers inserted a series of rubber tubes into the rubber covering. Inflation of the tubes simultaneously distorted and stretched the rubber outer skin and achieved the effect desired. Since the original set of boots many variations have been tried, with varying success on different types of airplanes.

A series of tests in which Goodrich and the Lockheed Aircraft corporation collaborated recently gave some important new information concerning boots, their area, arrangement of inflation tubes, and other pertinent data. This research has been typical of the development of the boot.

In the past in developing de-icers for very large planes such as the Boeing 314 Clipper ships (they are equipped with the boots today), the army's flying fortress bombers, and the even larger B-15 bomber, the practice was to use air tubes with about a three-inch diameter when inflated. These tubes always were laid side by side, with three or four always used, and in certain installations there have been as high as eight.

The tests with Lockheed—some in the Goodrich icing tunnel at Akron and some at the national advisory committee for aeronautics laboratories at Langley field, Virginia—showed the engineers that they should turn to larger and fewer tubes. And the tests also showed the engineers the ideal location for the tubes on the wing's entering curve.

• • •

This ideal point is the so-called stagnant area found at the leading edge of most wings. This area is just ahead of the sharpest point of the wing's entering edge and is formed by a tiny shock wave of air the wing pushes ahead of itself. If the

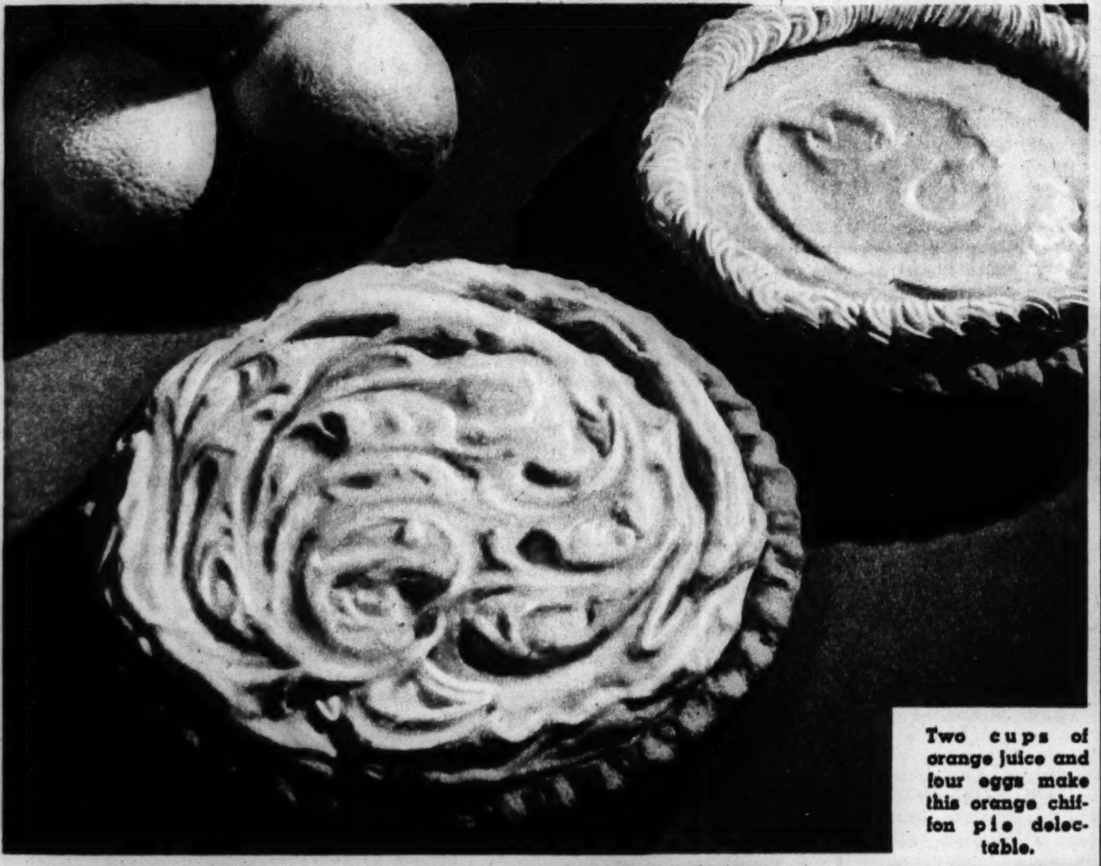
A Roast and a Near-Perfect Dessert



Two cups of orange juice and four eggs make this orange chiffon pie delectable.

By MARY MEADE

ORANGE CHIFFON pie is one of those nearly perfect desserts—not too heavy, not too sweet, not too rich, not dry. Light, fluffy, fruitily tart, melting on the tongue, it is a happy thought in a dinner menu which features roast meat.

Suppose the meat choice is a beef rib roast, boned, rolled, and tied at the market. Mashed or riced potatoes with good brown gravy, a buttered vegetable (cabbage will do), a crisp spring salad, and plenty of hot yeast rolls can fill out the menu in satisfying fashion and make a good buildup to such a glorious pie as this one.

ORANGE CHIFFON PIE

1 baked nine-inch pie shell
2 cups orange juice
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
5 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup sugar

Place orange juice, sugar, and butter in the top of a double boiler. Bring quickly to a boil over direct heat. Place over boiling water and stir vigorously while adding cornstarch and salt, which have been mixed with lemon juice. Stir until thickened and smooth and continue cooking, covered, for 15 minutes, to thoroly cook the starch. Add grated orange peel. Pour a little of the mixture into the slightly beaten egg yolks, combine two mixtures, and stir vigorously. Cook two minutes longer. Remove from heat. Beat egg whites until foamy and add salt and cream of tartar. Continue beating until stiff, slowly adding the half cup sugar. Fold the hot filling carefully into the egg whites. Pile filling in a baked pie shell. Serve with a whipped cream garnish if desired, tho the pie really needs no other trimmings.

A chocolate pastry crust, graham cracker or corn flake shell is a good substitute for the plain pie shell if you wish a different foundation for this pie.

Ideally, roast beef should be rarish in the middle. Rare beef always is juicier, puffier, and more flavorful when it is still pinky. If you must have it well done, roast the meat uncovered in a 300-degree oven until your meat thermometer reads 170 degrees. If time is your guide to doneness, allow about 48 minutes to the pound. This is a much longer time than is needed for a standing rib roast, for heat penetration takes much longer when there's no bone and a solid pack of meat.

If you like your beef juicily rare, allow about 32 minutes to the pound for rolled roast. The thermometer will register 140 degrees internal temperature. Medium well done beef in this cut will take about 38 minutes to the pound to reach an internal temperature of 160 degrees.

A rolled rib roast takes longer to cook than a standing rib cut. Thirty-eight minutes to the pound roasts it medium well done.

How Plants Reproduce Selves

• This is the last of three articles on the amazing functions of plant life. The first two described the green plant's use of sunlight to manufacture food and the forces which cause sap to rise to great heights.

By GREER WILLIAMS

THE ULTIMATE function of a plant, as of all living things, is to reproduce itself. Reproduction in the common green plant is similar in principle to that in animals. The plant has sex. The male must fertilize the egg cells of the female to produce offspring, the basic factor being the union of two bodies of protoplasm to form a third body.

The reproductive organ of most green plants is the flower. In it the young are created, in the form of seeds. The seeds contain infant plants prepared, when the time and circumstances are right, to grow into individuals like their parents. If one opens a bean seed he will find two sections. Each is an embryonic leaf equipped with enough food to nourish the bud lying between them when the seed begins to grow. The bud becomes the stem of the infant plant. Roots grow down into the soil from one end, while the leaves are raised on the upper end.

The flower is a special elaboration of the leaf structure of the plant in the form of a receptacle. The base covering is known as the calyx, which is made up of a rosette of leaves called sepals. The inner circle of leaves is the corolla, formed of petals.

Within this covering are the sex organs. There are usually several stamens (male), each consisting of a slender stalk topped by the two-celled anther where pollen is produced. The stamens are grouped around the pistil (female), a large stalk. At its base lies the ovary or seed vessel, containing one or more undeveloped seeds called ovules. At the end toward the flower's mouth is the stigma, a knoblike tip.

A flower containing both anthers and stigma is said to be perfect. It is bisexual. The lily and the rose are examples. The flowers of other species, however, may be monosexual, possessing either male or female organs but not both.

Yucca in bloom. Unique among plants, it has a "working arrangement" with the yucca moth whereby plant and insect help each other reproduce.

The flowers of any species of plant mature at a definite time in the year. It may be spring, summer, or fall. The anthers break open and release a fine yellow powder—the pollen. The stigma becomes hairy or sticky. Grains of pollen adhere to the stigma and take root in it. The pollen develops a tube which passes down thru the pistil into an ovule. When union takes place, fertilization is complete and the egg or seed cell begins to germinate. If there is more than one ovule, other grains of pollen are necessary to fertilize them. The fertilized egg cell multiplies into a number of cells which take the shape of the seedling plant. This is the embryo. Around it a quantity of nourishment forms and over this a seed coat. Meanwhile the pistil, in some plants, turns into a fruit which covers the seed. The embryo may occupy all the space within the seed, as in a peanut, or be only a speck, as in corn.

The major portion of the seed is reserve food, mostly the carbohydrate starch. But some seeds contain fat, such as the castor bean, or proteins, such as the common white bean.

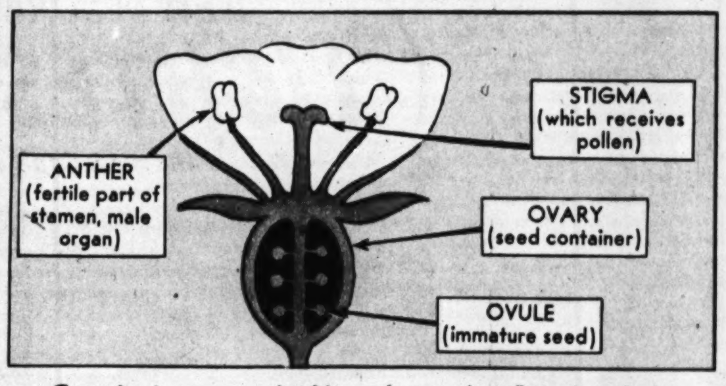
The transfer of pollen from anthers to stigma is pollination. Some bisexual flowers pollinate themselves, but this is not the rule. Self-pollination tends to weaken the breed, whereas cross-pollination — the transfer of pollen from one plant to another of the same species— seems to strengthen it.

Charles Darwin in his studies of evolution observed that nature commonly goes to great lengths to prevent self-pollination. Often the anthers and stigma of a flower are arranged so that pollen cannot be transferred within the single blossom. Again, the anthers and stigma in some plants mature at different times, so that self-pollination is impossible.

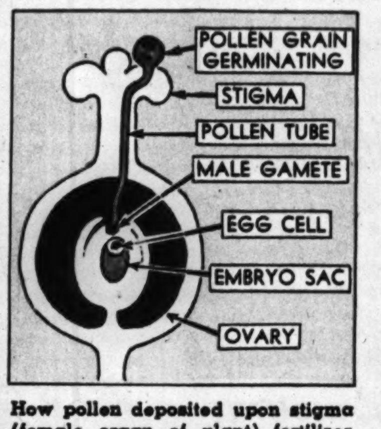
Bees are first-class pollen bearers. They are attracted to the flowers by nectar exuding from the pistil, from which they make honey. When the bee crawls in a blossom the anthers dust it with pollen, some of which scrapes off on the stigma of the next flower visited.

Many flowers have special adaptations to expedite pollination. One is the common sage, whose anther matures ahead of the stigma. The blossom reminds one of the mouth of a snake, with the anther resembling a fang and the stigma as the forked tongue. The anther lies in the roof of the blossom on a hinge. When the bee crawls in he hits a trip which brings the anther down on his back with a load of pollen. Later the stigma matures and dangles down where it is sure to rub against the pollen-dusted back of the next bee.

The yucca tree has a fascinating working arrangement with the yucca moth. It is so complete that neither can survive without the other. The moth lays her eggs in the ovary of the bell-shaped yucca flower. The larvæ hatched from the eggs feed on the seeds ripening there, consuming about one-third of them. But if the ovules were not pollinated there would be no seeds. Therefore the yucca moth when preparing to lay its eggs first goes to another flower and gathers pollen, which she holds in a ball, so to speak, under her chin. This the moth carries into the blossom, where she places her eggs. She then crawls up the stigma and rams the pollen into the stigma, which is forked to receive it.



Reproductive organs of a bisexual, or perfect, flowering plant.



How pollen deposited upon stigma (female organ of plant) fertilizes the egg cell.

Such a social contract has never been surpassed by man. The yucca pays with some of its seeds for the work of fertilizing them. The moth trades its labor for a place to room and board its young. Such interdependence between particular plants and insects occurs in other species, the extinction of one having brought the extinction of the other in some cases.

Many plants rely upon the wind for pollination. They, in contrast to the insect-pollinated types, usually have inconspicuous rather than showy blossoms and release vast rather than small quantities of pollen to the wind. Much, of course, goes to waste—such as that which causes humans to have hay fever. Ragweed, which pollinates in the late summer, is a common offender. Wind pollination often takes place in the spring before the growth of leaves which interfere with the passage of pollen from flower to flower. Elm, ash, some maples, alder, and hazel nut are examples.

Frequently the wind-pollinated tree or shrub is unisexual, or at least carries male and female flowers on different parts of the tree. This sexual differentiation is important to fruit growers. Different varieties of strawberries, for instance, must be planted near one another to assure fertilization and production of fruit. The Bartlett pear tree is self-sterile and will produce very little fruit without fertilization from a different variety of pear. Some species of apple, plum, peach, and cherry—usually produced by grafts from one original tree—are also so closely interrelated that they are self-sterile.

The seed is designed to spread the species thru time and space. Its embryo plant may begin growth as soon as the seed is ripened. Or as soon as the seed falls on suitable soil. Again, the seed may remain dormant for a long period. Some seeds die if not germinated by the next season, and others retain their vitality for years. Some seeds, such as those of the bean or the pea, have been known to germinate 80 years after they had matured. It is believed that the probable limit of seed life is between 150 and 250 years.

Plants resort to a great assortment of devices to scatter their seeds. The snapweed and violet throw their seeds a distance of several feet thru the explosive burst of the pod. The witch hazel capsule pinches out its two seeds with such force they travel 20 feet or more.

The wind does yeomen labor for others. The tumbleweed of the plains will roll for miles, dropping its seeds as it goes. The fruits of the elm, maple, and ash are winged and therefore will sail for some distance away from the tree. The willows, poplar, milkweed, dandelions, lettuces, and thistles send up little woolly or silky haired parachutes to carry the seed out into the world.

Plants living in or near the water use the current for seed transportation. Some equip the seed with a sponge surface or bladder to keep it afloat.

A number of others have hitch-hiking seeds. Examples are the sandbur, burdock, Spanish needle, and stickseed. When they are ripe their hooks, bristles, or forks catch on to the fur of animals or the clothes of humans passing by. Eventually they are scratched or picked off, some of them because of the irritation they cause.

Such seeds are no better than tramps. Those of edible fruits, on the other hand, are aristocrats which pay well for their journey. The smaller fruits are eaten whole by animals and birds, the seeds passing thru the digestive tract intact. Birds alighting on a fence contribute to the thickets of brambles and red cedar found along fence rows. The larger fruits are carried off by large animals, including man, and in one way or another the flesh eaten and the pits dropped.

Man, of course, is the greatest propagator of the vegetable kingdom, planting hundreds of species not only for the food, clothing and shelter they may provide him but for the pleasure of seeing and smelling their flowers.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

—if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method.

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At Drug, Pet, Dept. stores.

Eight Breeds Classified as Nonsporting

THE nonsporting group of dogs is in some respects one of the most interesting of all that are recognized today by the American Kennel club. Altho the number of breeds (eight) included in this group is comparatively small, they come from all parts of the world. The Boston terrier gets number one position in the alphabetical listing, but it also deserves that position because of its popularity. Besides the Boston the nonsporting group includes the bulldog, chow chow, Dalmatian, French bulldog, keeshond, poodle, and schipperke.

(Tribune photo.)

The bulldog is believed to have originated in the British Isles. This one is Bing Crosby and is owned by Mrs. Bert Franklin.

Altho they are classed as nonsporting, it does not follow that all of them are unable to make themselves useful. In fact, there has been some agitation to change the name of this group of dogs from nonsporting to miscellaneous, many breeders believing that the term nonsporting is a slur on the dogs in this classification. In the early days of dog shows there were only two groups—sporting dogs, such as the pointer, setters, spaniels, and retrievers, and nonsporting dogs. In those days the term nonsporting was used to designate all dogs other than the sporting breeds. Now, however, there are six classes of dogs. They are the sporting dogs, terriers, toys, hounds, working dogs, and nonsporting dogs.

The history of the Dalmatian indicates how some of the breeds now classified in the nonsporting group once were very useful to man. For example, the handsome coach dog, as the Dalmatian is called, was at one time a real sporting breed, for it was taken afield to hunt wild boar and also was used as a pointing dog on birds. It could serve as a draft animal and do other useful things.

The Boston terrier is the one breed in the nonsporting group that may be called American. England always is associated with the bulldog. The chow comes to us from China, and the keeshond is the national dog of Holland. The perky little schipperke is a European breed. So the nonsporting breeds from the Boston to the poodle and the chow represent many countries.

So far as we know the bulldog had its origin in the British Isles. The name bull was applied to it because of its connection with the old sport of bull baiting. This must have been one of the cruelest games that ever has been observed by the public. Naturally any dog that would fight a savage bull had to be absolutely devoid of fear. Thus it came about that the early bulldogs were almost insensible to pain.

Today we have a bulldog of entirely different temperament. By superb breeding methods it has been possible to eliminate all the undesirable characteristics of the old bulldogs and preserve and accentuate the finer qualities of the breed. This scientific breeding has developed a dog of excellent quality. The original viciousness of the breed has been bred out of it. The "sour mug" looks ugly, but actually he is just the opposite. He's dignified, kindly, and has an even temperament quite in contrast to those early specimens of the breed which were developed for sport only. All in all the modern bulldog, with its loose-jointed, shuffling gait, is one of the most distinctive breeds that may be seen in any home or any dog show.

(Carter photo.)

Snapped when he was in his bench space at a dog show, this springer spaniel, named Cavalier Flash, has the kindly expression that is so typical of the spaniel breeds.

(Tribune photo.)

The keeshond, one of the eight breeds in what is called the nonsporting group, was developed in Holland. Its blood lines go back to those northern strains of long-coated dogs from which have come the chow, Norwegian elkhound, Pomeranian, and others. This one is owned by Edward Jenner.

The Boston terrier (incorrectly called the Boston bull) is so well known to dog owners that he needs not one word of introduction to any one. For years the gay little Boston was the most popular breed in America, and altho it has lost that title to the cocker spaniel, it still is the first choice of thousands of dog owners.

In recent years the Dalmatian, sometimes called the coach dog, fire station dog, plum pudding dog, and spotted Dick, has been gaining in popularity. Extremely popular in horse-and-buggy days, the Dalmatian went out when the horse and buggy gave way to the automobile. Affectionate, intelligent, good looking, a good watchdog, and above all a gentleman, this handsome breed was all but forgotten for many years. Now fanciers are regaining their interest in the Dalmatian and you see more of them in shows.

Schipperkes, alert, inquisitive little guard dogs, have been making much progress in their bid for more popular favor, and poodles also have taken a big spurt, especially in the east, where scores have been entered in dog shows. The chow, impressive, good looking dog from China, is one of the best known breeds in the nonsporting group and has been among the most popular breeds for many years.

The keeshond, the Dutch dog, undoubtedly had its origin in the Arctic. Its blood lines go back to those northern strains of long-coated dogs from which came the chow, the Norwegian elkhound, the Pomeranian, and others. Altho it is an ideal companion dog, the keeshond hasn't become as well known in America as some of the other members of the nonsporting group.

DOG NOTES

Many veterinarians now are using ultraviolet ray lamps to treat ear canker in dogs.

The first official show ever staged exclusively for dogs was held in 1859 at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

Experiments conducted by a psychology professor of the University of Illinois prove that the average dog's hearing is about 40 per cent superior to that of the human.

A MAN WITH A PIPE

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1940, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.

Novice. Has sworn off cigarets and is trying to get used to a pipe. Calls it "Breaking in my new pipe." Has an awful struggle to keep it lighted and right side up.

Just for the looks. These boys are toting pipes because they want to look out-doorsy and tough in refined and stylish manner. Cigarets won't do the trick.

Girls love to shop for pipe-smoking boy friends. They know they can't go wrong on pipe racks decorated sort of horsy, or striped tobacco pouches in school colors. (Never mind what school if it's pretty.)

Untidy smoker. Dumps pipe ashes all over the house in vases, candlesticks, and potted plants, much against the wife's wishes.

In the good old days when Daddy was a youth, this was called either "Pipe Dreams" or "Bachelor's Reverie." Stamped on a pillow cover, it was just about tops for the pipe smoker's den.

Pipe chewer. Can't concentrate properly without a pipe — usually unlighted — clamped between his jaws. Very hard on pipe stems. A sports fan, probably.

Suspicious smoker. And no wonder, because the little woman has brought him his pipe and even lighted it, instead of saying as she usually does, "Oh, Stanley, DO take that SMELLY pipe away." Suspects she's going to ask for something that will cost plenty.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

Defying Rules Sometimes Produces Good Shots

EVERY amateur photographer has heard about at least a few so-called fundamental rules of photography which he is supposed to follow under all circumstances, but he is bound to miss some of the best pictures if he takes these rules too literally. The truth of the matter is that there is probably not a single photographic rule which has to be followed rigidly, and that some of the most striking pictures have been obtained by breaking time-honored rules.

Take, for example, the elementary rules of focusing and correct exposure. The amateur is taught that sharp focus and a wealth of detail are essential for good picture taking. Yet some of the most famous photographs ever made are far from being absolutely sharp. "Soft focus" effects can be very pleasing and striking, even tho today, with the strong interest in "documentary" photography, they are not as popular as they used to be. Soft focus is created by such devices as diffusion disks before the lens either when taking the picture or when projecting it in the enlarger. To a limited extent these effects can be obtained by deliberately moving the picture slightly out of focus. However, soft focus and out of focus are not identical.

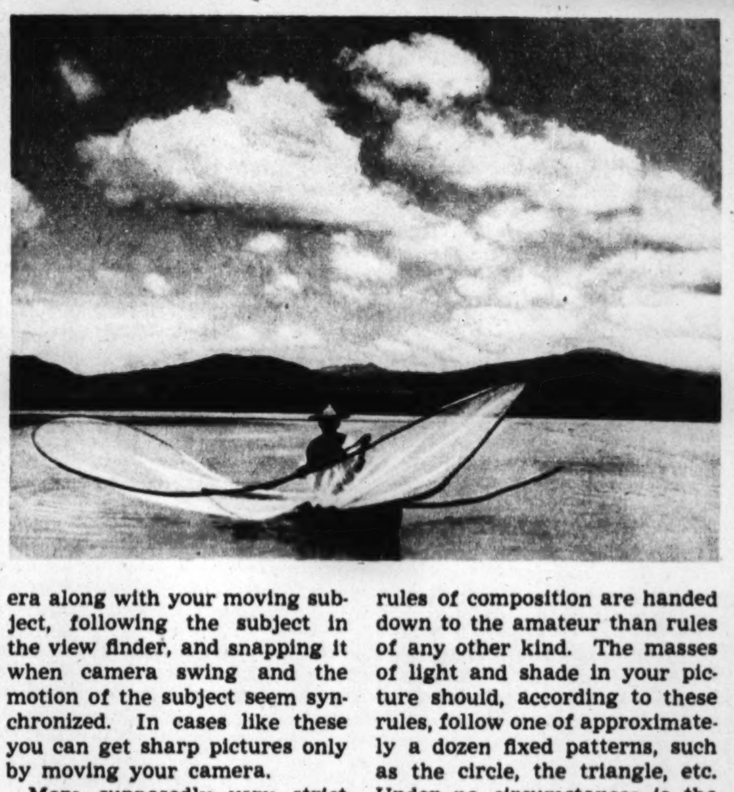
Then there is the matter of correct exposure. There is supposedly just one correct exposure for every picture. It should render the largest number and greatest latitude of tones which the film used is capable of reproducing. But the effect of certain types of pictures is based on eliminating this full tone range. You may want to show harsh contrast between brilliant highlights and dark shadows, or you may want to photograph just the detail which happens to be in the shade, without regard to detail in the bright illuminated portions of the scene. These effects can only be had by disregarding the rules of normal exposure and by exposing for special effects you have in mind.

Conservative handbooks tell you always to hold your camera straight, especially when photographing buildings. But "angle shots" made with a tilted camera have become highly popular and the distortions caused by the tilted camera are deliberately sought by many photographers.

Your action shots are supposed to "stop" the action photographed. Moving objects should be frozen in clear detail on your film. But very often the picture you get, even tho technically perfect, does not give the impression of any action at all. By exposing slightly too long you can create a light blur in your pictures which suggests real speed and action.

They tell you to hold your camera absolutely steady under all circumstances. Yet when you want to stop some forms of fast action there is just one way of doing so—swinging your camera along with your moving subject, following the subject in the view finder, and snapping it when camera swing and the motion of the subject seem synchronized. In cases like these you can get sharp pictures only by moving your camera.

More supposedly very strict rules of composition are handed down to the amateur than rules of any other kind. The masses of light and shade in your picture should, according to these rules, follow one of approximately a dozen fixed patterns, such as the circle, the triangle, etc. Under no circumstances is the horizon to split your picture in the middle, and a symmetrical arrangement in a picture is considered inexcusable. Yet some of the great masterpieces of painting and photography completely disregard these rules.



Spring as a picture subject can be tackled in many different ways. In his picture of Myrna Loy Photographer Willinger purposely omitted a filter to show the sky light and blank, the way it appears in spring sunshine. Use of a filter to bring out the cloud effects in the picture of the Mexican fisherman, at left, helped create contrast and dramatize a simple picture subject.

Another rule is to keep your main light source behind or at the side of the camera and never to shoot against the light. But thousands of excellent pictures have been made with the aid of this banned "back lighting," and certain types of pictures can be made only by this method.

Many more rules—and just as many important exceptions to them—could be enumerated. But the examples mentioned are sufficient to show that photographic rules are not to be taken too literally. While most of them are based on sound experience, it is wise to disregard them occasionally. There is just one rule never to be broken: Get good pictures, regardless of how you get them.

How Air Lines Are Conquering Ice

tubes are concentrated there the alternate inflation and deflation of them has little or no interference with the normal air flow over the wing.

These same tests showed that the de-icer boots probably should be increased in area. The boot as fitted to the usual Douglas DC-3 air liner covers about 5 per cent of the top of the wing and 5 per cent of the under surface back of the entering edge. Wind tunnel simulation of severe icing conditions showed that while the boot kept the area it covered fairly free of ice, the formation of a ridge immediately behind the boot could rob a wing of about 46 per cent of its lift.

But by increasing the area of the boot to about 15 per cent of the upper surface and 10 per cent of the lower surface of the wing a total of 86 per cent of the normal wing lift could be retained even after an ice ridge formed behind the boot. The countersinking of the metal cap strip used to hold the boot to the wing, as reported in our earlier de-icer article, is expected to assist in preventing formation of an abrupt ridge back of the boot.

Air for inflation of the rubber tubes is obtained from the engine-driven pumps of large airplanes. These pumps provide the suction for giro instruments such as the automatic pilot, directional giro, and turn-and-bank indicator. A connection is made to the pressure side of these pumps and when desired the air that otherwise is merely exhausted is directed into the tubes.

Pressures in the tubes are low, averaging about seven pounds per square inch. On a DC-3 air liner with a wing span of 95 feet about 20 cubic feet of air are required each minute. For the larger four-motored planes with the larger diameter tubes and greater area of boot about 75 cubic feet of air per minute will be required.

Up to this time the available amounts of air from the engine suction pumps have just about balanced requirements for de-icer boots as airplanes increased in size and speed. In the future it may be desirable to take the air from some independent source of supply such as auxiliary motors so that the main power plants can direct all their power to the propellers. Up to this time this has not become necessary, however.

An indication of the effectiveness of the Goodrich boot is the British government's order for 800 sets for Lockheed Hudson bombers being delivered from this country. It is understood that the Hudsons are the only British military airplanes equipped to combat ice and that they have been used thruout the winter for most of the long-range reconnaissance flights over Germany.

J. S. Pedler, areo sales manager for Goodrich, says that the British orders arrived in 200 lots. Certainly, he says, the last two orders—one of which was confirmed during the latter days of March—would not have come to the company unless the Hudsons already were in service and had demonstrated that the boots really enabled the planes to fly safely in icing weather.

THOUGHTS HAVE WINGS

You can influence others with your thinking

TRY IT SOME TIME. Concentrate intently upon another person seated in a room with you, without his noticing it. Observe him gradually become restless and finally turn and look in your direction. Simple — yet it is a positive demonstration that thought generates a mental energy which can be projected from your mind to the consciousness of another. Do you realize how much of your success and happiness in life depend upon your influencing others? Is it not important to you to have others understand your point of view—to be receptive to your proposals?

How many times have you wished there were some way you could impress another favorably—get across to him or her your ideas? That thoughts can be transmitted, received, and understood by others is now scientifically demonstrable.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the forty-fifth of the series.

ONE of the foremost among the statesmen and orators of Kentucky of an earlier generation was Cassius Marcellus Clay, who was born in 1810. After having served three terms in the legislature of Kentucky he established an anti-slavery paper in Lexington of that state in 1845. This was called the True American. Its office wrecked by a mob, Clay transferred his scene of operations to Cincinnati. In 1850 he was elected governor of Kentucky on an anti-slavery ticket. From 1861 to 1869, with the exception of one year, he served as United States minister to Russia. One of his most celebrated speeches was made when he was only 21 years old, a senior at Yale. The address was delivered Feb. 22, 1832, on the occasion of the centennial anniversary of the birth of George Washington. It follows in part:

"'Leave it to ourselves' should be the motto of our republic, the first principle of national legislation. Not license to lawlessness and crime; not that liberty which is so often shouted forth without meaning—defiance of wholesome laws and their severe and rigid execution. But let us alone—let us exercise reason and public opinion as regards our temporal interests as well as our immortal welfare.

"If we come to honor Washington today, to sanction his principles, which have been approved in times past, I cannot forbear pressing upon the minds of my audience, from various parts of the Union, the necessity to concede something to public opinion in the construction of our federal league; to be indulgent to one another. If you do not, my countrymen, I very much fear that this, the first centennial celebration of the birth of Washington, will be the last on which a mighty nation will have met.

"It is a principle generally admitted among politicians that the most despotic government in peace is the most efficient in war, and the reverse. This principle, applied to us, admits of much limitation. If we war with foreigners, and all united, I venture to say we are the most powerful nation on earth, comparing our physical resources; for we war not for a change of masters but for ourselves—for freedom. But if we war with each other, which God forbid, we are the weakest nation in existence, because we are the farthest removed from executive influence, more subject to individual will.

"Our strength is in public opinion, in unanimity. We revolt on the most favorable circumstances. No ignominious death of traitors awaits us; defeat at worst is but an unwilling marriage with a haughty yet loving lord. States come to the contest armed, provided, unanimous; fighting ostensibly under the banner of the constitution, if not in supposable cases, in the real spirit of our federal league.

"I would not speak lightly of the constitution of America; long may it exist to the honor of its framers and the greater glory of those who support it well; but I should not deem it safe to appeal to the letter of any copy, in defiance of the great original, written in the breast of every American."

In the foregoing words a young collegian who was destined to go far in his later years uttered in 1832 a serious warning that his country would not survive intact to the year of 1932 unless its people were permitted to govern themselves and shape their own fate. But the country has survived and progressed to a degree unforeseen in 1832. And still there are reasons today for sounding warnings similar to that of Cassius Marcellus Clay of more than a century ago. His address in commemoration of Washington is put together with scholarly phrases—a dignified and honest argument for the worthiness of public opinion.

Reprints of the first 25 "Gems of Eloquence" may be obtained at Tribune Public Service Offices, Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Price, 25 cents for portfolio of 25, or 2 cents each for individual selections.

Suppose you'd never had a bright bowl of it beckon you with its welcoming red and with its tempting aroma. Suppose you'd never drawn your chair close, lifted your spoon, and learned with that first smooth sip how its lively flavor could wake up appetite and delight the taste. Suppose you had still to try the soup almost everyone likes best—had still to discover how it glorifies the special appetizing flavor of tomatoes in a way all its own. Certainly, then, you'd have a treat in store for you!

"What a spot to be in! I was due in a few minutes at a shower for a sweet little bride-to-be when . . . the kitchen drain shut up tight. But . . .

"Alice knew the answer! Quick as a flash she'd bought a can of Drāno and was pouring a little down the drain. 'Drāno'll do the digging while we're having fun,' she explained. And it did! I was amazed at the way Drāno burrows right down through the grease and muck—cleans the drain thoroughly. Afterward she told me that you can avoid stopped up drains with Drāno. Just put a teaspoonful down the drain each night after the dishes are done! It works!"

"Uncle Sam sure did help—make tobacco better than ever

Actual color photographs. Before the harvest—inspection of a crop of better-than-ever tobacco grown at Willow Springs, N. C., by U. S. Government methods. (Below) H. H. Scott looks over some fine leaf after it's been cured.

. . . and Luckies always buy the finer grades," says H. H. Scott, 12 years an independent buyer

Here's why we ask: "Have you tried a Lucky lately?"

1. The world has never known finer tobacco than American farmers have grown in recent years with the scientific help of Uncle Sam.

2. Among independent tobacco experts—buyers, auctioneers and warehousemen—Luckies are the 2 to 1 favorite. Experts like H. H. Scott point out that Luckies have bought the choicer grades of these better-than-ever tobaccos. So Luckies are better than ever!

3. These finer tobaccos have been aged from 2 to 4 years, and have been further mellowed by the "Toasting" process, which takes out certain throat irritants found in all tobacco.

We believe that no smoker who has not tried Luckies lately can know how fine a modern cigarette can be. So try them for a week. Then you'll know why . . . WITH MEN WHO KNOW TOBACCO BEST—IT'S LUCKIES 2 to 1

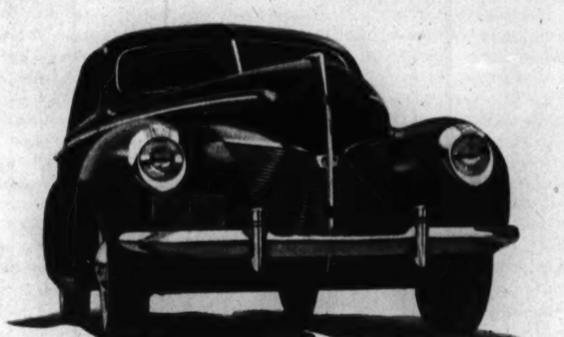
Most unusual is the full-width rear seat of the Mercury Sedan-Coupe—room for six in a car with all the advantages of a compact coupe! Bright rustless steel frames for all windows and a beautifully-tailored interior make the Sedan-Coupe a favorite "personal" car for both men and women.

100,000 OWNERS—100,000 FRIENDS

Sales of the Mercury during its first twelve months were greater than any other first-year car in automobile history. Today more than 100,000 owners are driving this big new car. Ask any of them what they like about it and these are the things they are apt to talk about. A new idea of roominess—seats really made for three—thanks to new body lines that flare out over the running boards. A great new V-8 engine—powerful, quick on the trigger, satin-smooth. A real advance in restful riding comfort—a brand-new team-work of springs, shock absorbers and cushions. And above all—real economy in a big car. Up to 20 miles per gallon of gas, say owners—one result of the Mercury's high power-to-weight ratio!



Mercury 8

You'll find roads suddenly better when you start to drive a Mercury 8. Exclusive construction "eases" the car over bumps, banishes sway and "gallop." From Finger-Tip Gearshift on the steering column to long, soft springs, a score of features contribute to the famed Mercury Ride. Have you enjoyed it yet?

Even the Dog Didn't Know Me!

THIS IS THE BEST WAY I know to tell you about a personal experience that happened to me not long ago. I'll never forget it!

IF YOU HAVE EVER been through a siege of what is politely called "intestinal sluggishness," you'll know I'm not exaggerating. You feel exactly like this!

AND THEN, just to make things perfect, those awful trips to the medicine cabinet! The treatment was worse than the trouble itself. I used to grimace every time I thought of it. Even the dog didn't know me! Until one fine morning at breakfast I discovered KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. My mother had sent me a package.

WITH SIMPLE LOGIC she'd explained: "We all need the right kind of 'bulk' in our diets. You probably don't get enough. If so, eat ALL-BRAN every day, drink plenty of water, and you get at the cause of the trouble. Join the 'regulars' with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN." And did I? Just take a look at me now!

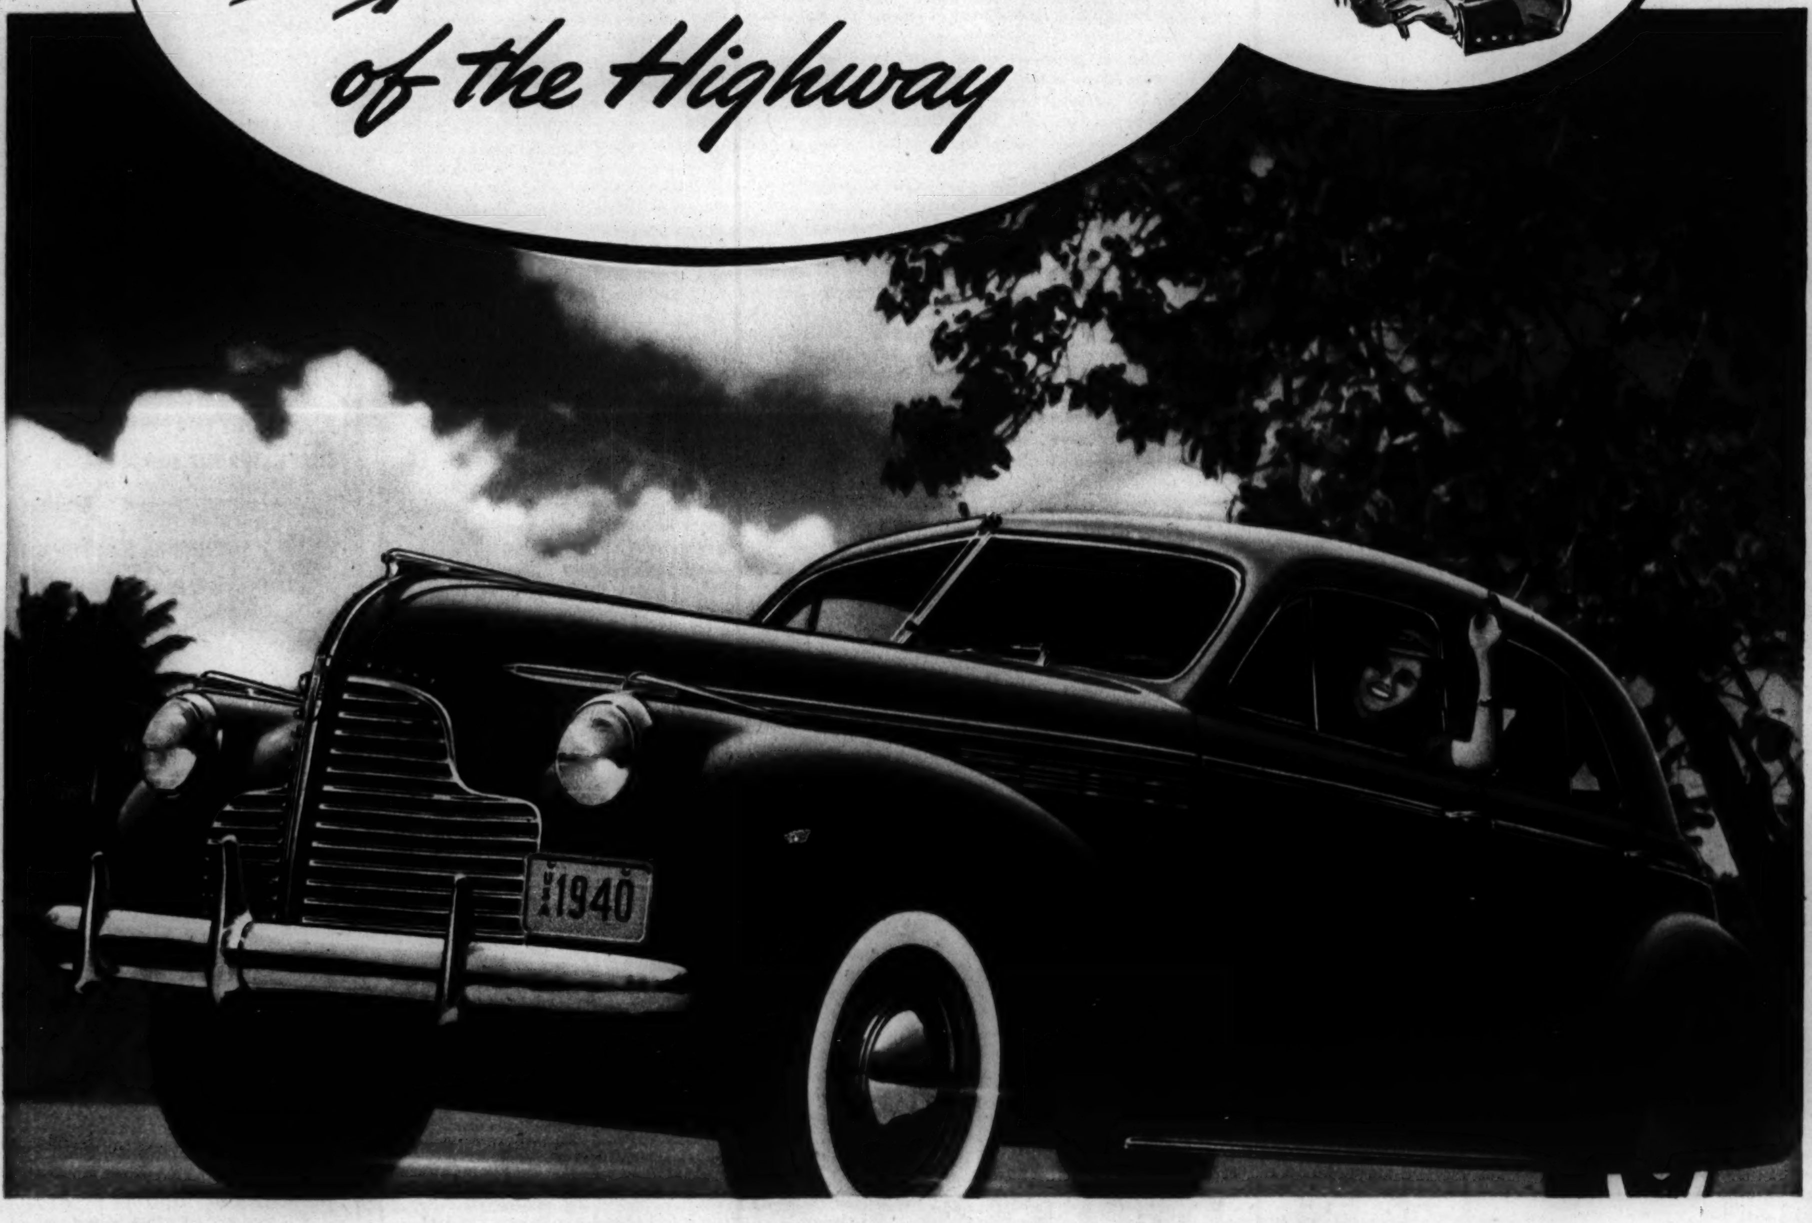
TRADITIONAL COVERING FOR THE OLD-FASHIONED BRIDE'S HAIR DRESS.

It's the ~~Beau~~ Go Brummel of the Highway



WE MIGHT caption this picture "What the well-dressed motorist will wear this season," or write a headline about the wide-open spaces of the Buick ROADMASTER'S five feet of front seat room.

But that misses the important point, that ROADMASTER is a stepper as well as a stylist. Owners insist we ought to bring out that it's "go" brummel as well as Beau Brummel of the 1940 highway.

Loose rein on its 141 up-and-at-'em horsepower and it sings down the long trail easy as wind through the willows. Point its proud bonnet toward the place where the fun begins and you get there eye-wink quick and with eye-wink effortlessness.

Loll back in its Foamtex-cushioned seats—soft coil springs on all four wheels filter out the road shock, hold you level as a speeding arrow.

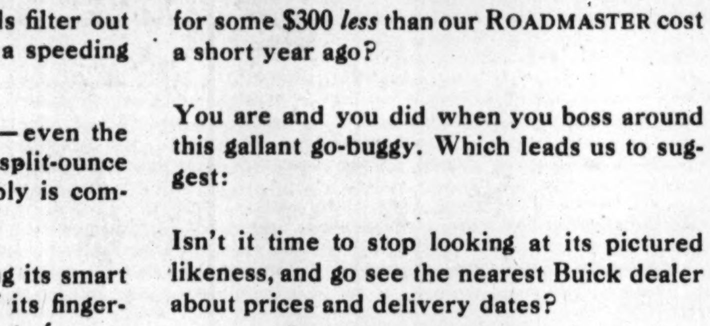
Luxuriate in its fine, smart finish—even the engine's action is velvet, thanks to split-ounce micropoise-balancing after assembly is completed.

Lord it all over the place, flaunting its smart style and reveling in the ease of its finger-flick gearshift, the silky functioning of its precision-meshing parts—you've got real reason here to be mighty pleased with yourself.

For aren't you piloting a car that shrewd observers class with the "over-$2,000" aristocrats—and didn't you get it for some $300 less than our ROADMASTER cost a short year ago?

You are and you did when you boss around this gallant go-buggy. Which leads us to suggest:

Isn't it time to stop looking at its pictured likeness, and go see the nearest Buick dealer about prices and delivery dates?



IT'S A "ONE AND ONLY"!
Don't confuse the Buick Estate Wagon with the garden variety of station wagons. Here's comfort! Here's utility! Here's downright luxury, with five-foot front seat room, carpeted floors, Foamtex cushions and all the other 73 new 1940 Buick features. Even the price is a pleasant surprise!

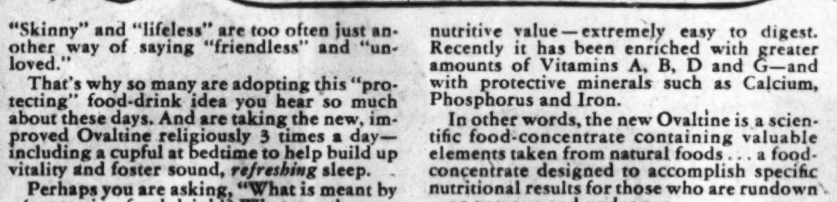
TERRY AND THE PIRATES THRILLS MILLIONS EVERY DAY IN THE TRIBUNE.

[ADVERTISEMENT] [ADVERTISEMENT] [ADVERTISEMENT.]



"Skinny" and "lifeless" are too often just another way of saying "friendless" and "unloved."

That's why so many are adopting this "protecting" food-drink idea you hear so much about these days. And are taking the new, improved Ovaltine religiously 3 times a day—including a cupful at bedtime to help build up vitality and foster sound, refreshing sleep.

Perhaps you are asking, "What is meant by a 'protecting food-drink'? What can the new Ovaltine do for me?"

The answer is simple. For example, when you are rundown and tired—or when you feel exhausted and easily fagged out—the new Ovaltine provides specialized elements that raise the sugar content of the blood very rapidly. And when you raise the blood sugar you offset one of the common causes of tiredness and fatigue.

Ovaltine has always been a food high in nutritive value—extremely easy to digest. Recently it has been enriched with greater amounts of Vitamins A, B, D and G—and with protective minerals such as Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron.

In other words, the new Ovaltine is a scientific food-concentrate containing valuable elements taken from natural foods . . . a food-concentrate designed to accomplish specific nutritional results for those who are rundown—or nervous and under par.

So if you tire quickly—or are thin and an easy prey to fatigue—try taking Ovaltine regularly each day, and always at bedtime, to give you a vitality "lift." See if you don't commence to feel fresher mornings and enjoy more energetic days. See if people don't start telling you how much better you look.

You can obtain Ovaltine at all grocery and drug stores. Get a tin today—or mail coupon for free trial supply.

The DRUMS of FU MANCHU
Exciting New Adventure Serial

THIS WEEK: RANSOM in the SKY!

1. Sir Nayland Smith and Dr. Petrie reach Fu Manchu's headquarters in time to rescue Allan from the clutches of the octopus. Fu Manchu escapes before he can secure the Dalai scroll from Allan.

2. They come upon Dr. Humphrey still under the influence of the drug administered by Fah Lo Suee. Proceeding to his office they start the translation of the scroll.

3. Fu Manchu in his torture chamber pours a pinch of incense powder into a burner. As the smoke slowly rises the features of Dr. Humphrey appear. Fu Manchu issues instructions to him.

4. Dr. Humphrey transmits Fu Manchu's instructions to Mary, who is to secure a document necessary for the translation.

5. Fah Lo Suee gives final instructions to the dacoits: they are to kidnap Mary when she goes to the Mongolian Foundation, and deliver her to Fu Manchu's hideout.

6. Allan insists on accompanying Mary on her errand. Arriving at the foundation they proceed to look for the manuscript. The dacoits hiding in the shadows observe them with evil eyes.

7. The dacoits step out and demand that Allan surrender Mary to them, reminding him that he is greatly outnumbered.

8. Grabbing a shield for protection, Allan savagely attacks his enemies. In a fierce hand to hand struggle he is finally subdued and locked in a room. The dacoits grab Mary and carry her to their waiting car.

9. Jumping from a window Allan gives chase in his car. In a wild ride over country roads he loses sight of the fleeing dacoits. Later he comes upon their car alongside of the road . . . abandoned.

10. Examining the car closely for clews he finds a note on the windshield.

9. That evening Carmelita cooks Kit Carson's supper with her own hands to be sure he is not poisoned.

10. The next morning Kit and Carmelita are out looking for clews when they meet a man with some interesting news.

11. They mount their horses and set out to investigate the train of fur wagons.

Next week: KIT CARSON'S NARROW ESCAPE from the INDIANS

12. Meanwhile a band of mounted Indians, armed with rifles, is watching the unsuspecting pair from a hill behind them.

5. Kit Carson walks into the saloon. His hands are on his belt, and his eyes alert. One of the gamblers offers to show him a card trick.

6. Suddenly two of the black-shirted men jump up from their table and attack Carson and one of his men, standing at the bar.

7. Like lightning, Carson and his comrade draw their guns, make their adversaries raise their hands, and back them into a corner

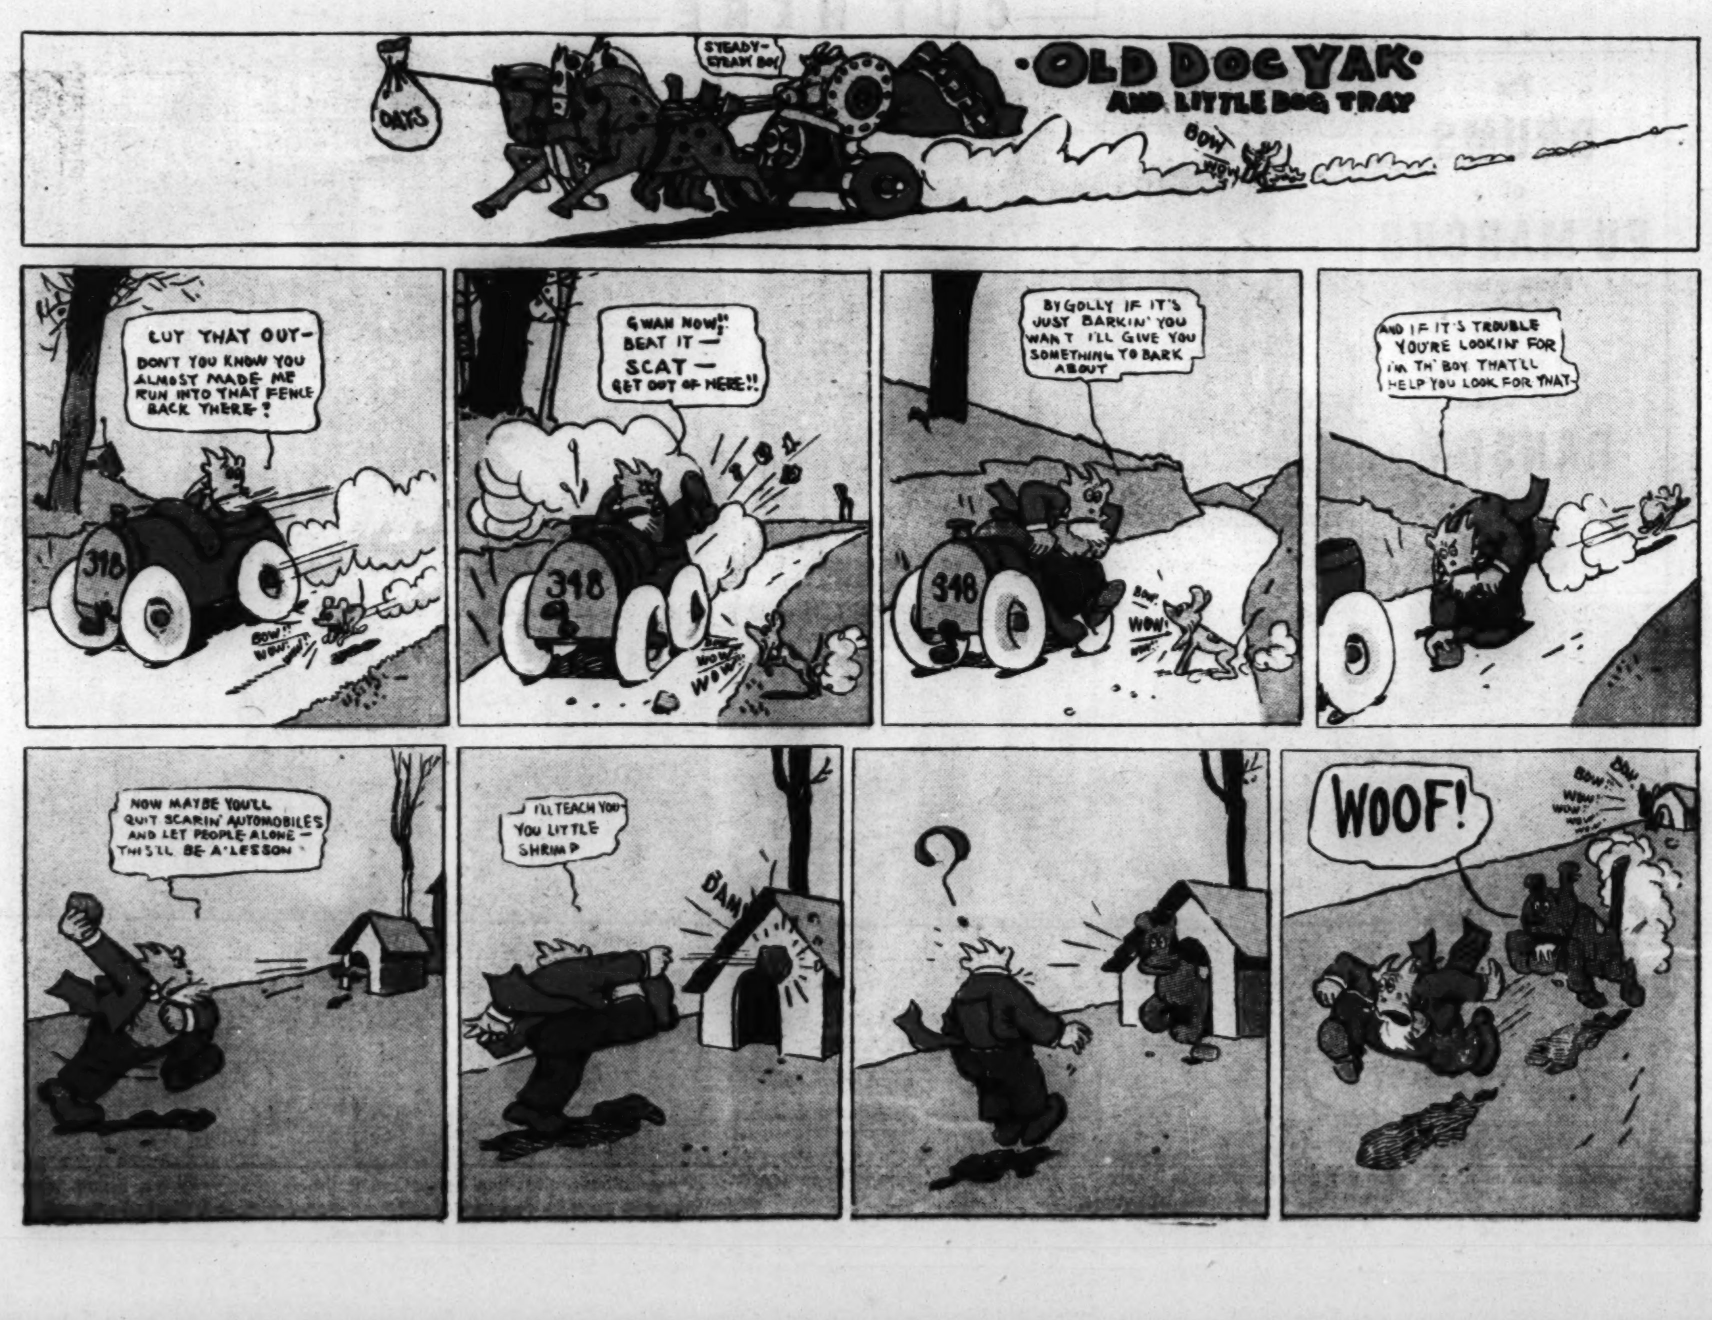
8. Two hours later Carmelita shows Carson a glass of poison she found mysteriously left in his room at the ranch house.

11. Midnight finds Allan and his friends nervously awaiting the arrival of Fu Manchu. From the corridor outside footsteps are heard.

12. The footsteps come nearer . . . nearer . . . they stop. All eyes are glued on the doorknob as it slowly turns and the door starts to open—suddenly the lights go out and there is a blast of gunfire, from Smith's revolver, in the direction of the door. The lights go on and there stands Fu Manchu unharmed.

13. Fu Manchu calmly surveys the anxious gathering. A sardonic grin comes on his face as he dictates the terms of Mary's safe return

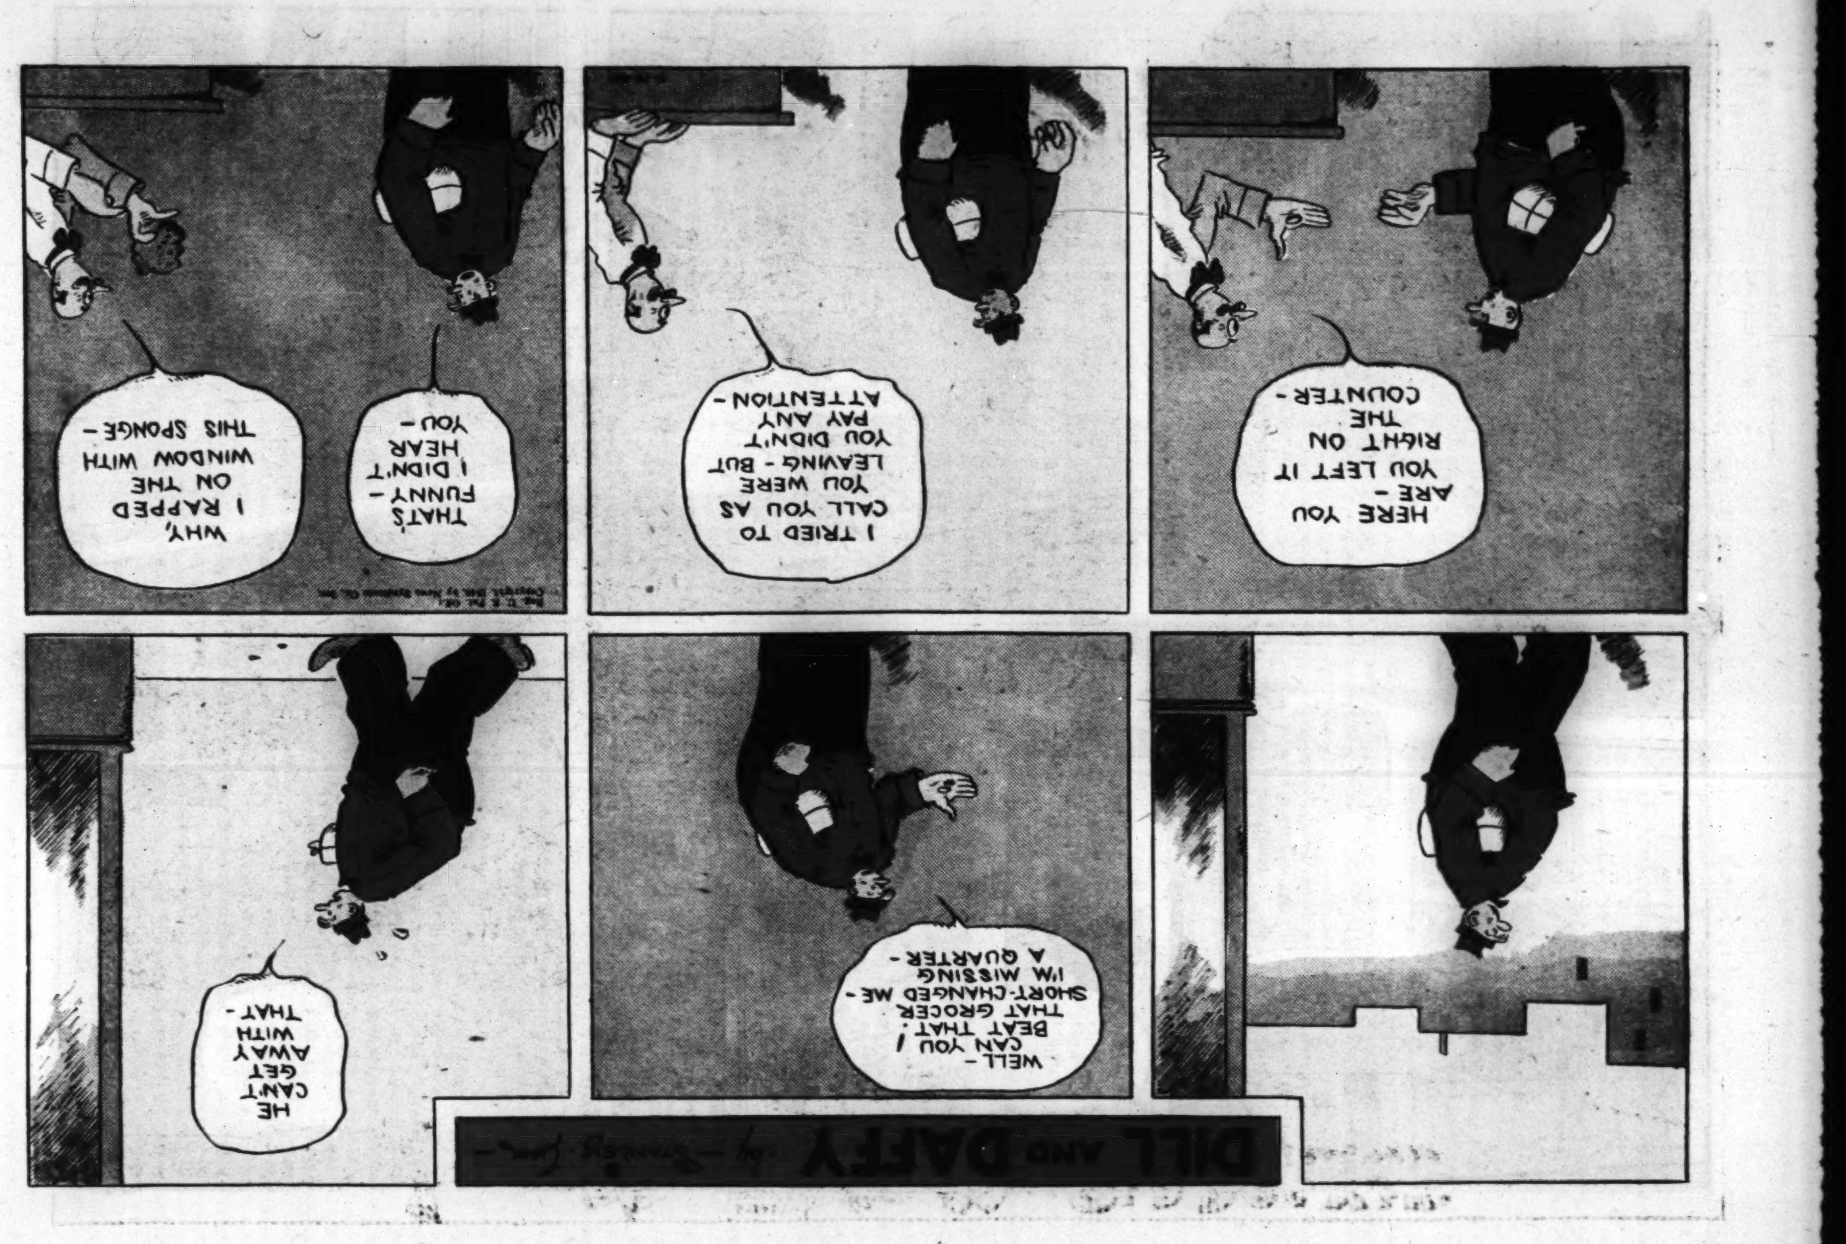
14. It is agreed that Allan is to accompany Fu Manchu to his secret rendezvous — upon the safe release of Mary he is to hand over the Dalai scroll.



15. Arriving in a secluded section of the country, Fu Manchu directs Allan to a plane. Climbing in, he sees Mary guarded by a dacoit. Upon seeing Fu Manchu the dacoit mounts the pilot's seat. In a moment the ship soars upward.

16. Fu Manchu straps on a parachute and opens the cabin door. The dacoit, leaving the controls, grabs the remaining parachute and jumps, followed by Fu Manchu. Allan rushes to the controls and manages to keep the ship on an even keel.

17. Hitting violent air currents the plane starts dropping—Allan frantically tries to control it. A mountain peak looms ahead. Desperately he noses the plane upward, but too late. The plane shudders as a wing hits the mountainside. A crash—a burst of flames followed by an explosion, drowning out Mary's screams.



1. After the knife misses Kit Carson's head by four inches, he pulls it out of the wood. Then he begins questioning the men around town.

2. He even seeks a clew from the lovely Carmelita, who lives in the ranch house near by.

3. Carson questions a stranger in black, who claims to be a doctor. He pokes a gun at him to see if it startles him into revealing a clew.

4. Meanwhile in the saloon next door five men in shiny black shirts gather around a card table.
